EDUCATION AND SKILLS

School Teachers' Review Body

The Secretary of State for Education and Skills (Ruth Kelly): I have received the 15th report of the School Teachers' Review Body and expect to publish this, alongside my response, on 6 December.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Farm Regulation

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (Jim Knight): The Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs 2004 regulation taskforce report highlighted the need for a new approach to the regulation of farming. Earlier this year, the Government renewed their commitment to regulating better and cutting bureaucratic burdens for industry, in the wake of the Better Regulation Task Force report, "Regulation—Less is More" and Sir Philip Hampton's review on inspection and enforcement.

I am therefore pleased to announce the launch today of Partners for Success, DEFRA's farm regulation and charging strategy, which is the first Government strategy to apply this new better regulation agenda to a specific sector of the economy.

The strategy heralds a new partnership between the Government and the farming industry, with a long-term vision for the future of regulation and charging.

By improving the way we regulate and enforce farm regulation, we will make it easier for farmers to comply, helping to improve the long-term sustainability of the sector: environmental, social, and economic.

The strategy commits us to cutting red tape for farmers, notably by reducing form-filling. This is part of DEFRA's commitment to reduce administrative burdens on business by 25 per cent. by 2009. It will help make regulation more efficient from the perspective of the customer, and help them to focus on getting results—on productivity, the environment, animal health and welfare, food safety, and worker health and safety.

Farmers too will need to play their part in making the strategy a reality, especially by managing the risks of their operations and reducing the unwelcome impacts of their activities.

Input from farmers, their representative bodies, wider rural interests, regulators and Government Departments has been invaluable in shaping the strategy. We will continue to work together over the next six months to develop success criteria for the strategy.

I am placing copies of the strategy and the accompanying action plan in both Libraries of the House.

HEALTH

Global Health Security Initiative

The Minister of State, Department of Health (Ms Rosie Winterton): On Friday 18 November, I attended the sixth ministerial forum of the Global Health Security Initiative (GHSI) in Rome, to agree actions to ensure a co-ordinated global response to health security issues, including preparing for an influenza pandemic.

Actions agreed at the meeting included:

A commitment to compare national flu pandemic plans to share information and expertise, and to better understand different approaches to pandemic planning;

A commitment to work with the World Health Organisation to develop and test protocols for early containment through a full range of public health interventions, including medical counter measures and equipment;

A commitment to further develop risk communication tools to ensure decision makers and health professionals have consistent information internationally to help manage an influenza pandemic and ensure the public are kept fully informed of action to take in a pandemic situation;

A commitment to develop, with WHO, approaches to improving capacity and access to vaccines; and

A commitment to work together to prepare for the Beijing pledging conference in January 2006, and to have a clear outline of prioritised action to attract the funding for implementation by multinational organisations.

The United Kingdom has played an active role in developing and taking forward several areas of the GHSI's work programme. The GHSI was launched at a meeting of international Health Ministers in Ottawa in 2001. Membership includes representatives of the UK, Canada, France, Germany, Italy, Japan, Mexico and United States together with the WHO and the European Commission for Health. The aims of the GHSI are to develop and implement co-operative, specialised public health protection measures in the event of a terrorist or natural incident.

In partnership with the USA, the UK has played a leading role in taking work forward on pandemic influenza. In June this year, the UK hosted a workshop on modelling pandemic spread and control strategies and an international tabletop exercise on preparedness and response. This event brought together modellers from each of the eight GHSI countries (Canada, France, Germany, Italy, Japan, Mexico, the UK and the USA) to discuss potential response strategies at each stage of an emerging pandemic. Important work has also been undertaken to compare the pandemic influenza preparedness and response plans between countries to facilitate better planning and coordination.

At the meeting, Health Ministers agreed a programme of action to ensure that national pandemic planning continues to dovetail with international planning and that we communicate effectively both nationally and internationally. We recognised the importance of ensuring our populations and healthcare professionals have the high quality, consistent international information they need to manage the consequences of an outbreak of pandemic flu.

In addition, we agreed to share information and expertise to speed up the development and production of a pandemic flu vaccine. We also agreed to work together to boost global capacity for pandemic flu vaccine.

Together with Canada, the UK has also led on work in the area of risk management and communication. A 24/7 emergency contact network for emergency communications is in place and several successful international communication exercises have been undertaken.

A copy of the final ministerial statement from the Rome conference has been placed in the Library.

TRANSPORT

Transport Innovation Fund

The Secretary of State for Transport (Mr. Alistair Darling): I am today announcing the names of seven local authorities which have bid successfully for funding to develop innovative schemes to tackle congestion, including work on the feasibility of road pricing.

In July, I said that the way to the long-term goal of an effective road pricing system was through local or regional pilots. To support the development of such pilots, I said that we would make funding available, through the transport innovation fund, to local authorities offering innovative local packages combining demand management and better public transport.

I announced on 5 July that up to £200 million p.a. would be available from the fund for such schemes from 2008–09 to 2014–15—more if good schemes emerge.

Development of these schemes will be a complex undertaking. We therefore announced, also in July, that we would make available £18 million of pump-priming funding between 2005–06 and 2007–08 to support the work of local authorities in developing these local demand management schemes. I invited local authorities to submit bids for this development funding.

The response to this offer was extremely positive. We received thirty-three bids, many with high quality ideas. The response to our invitation offers clear evidence that local authorities recognise that action planning to tackle congestion needs to start now.

I am today announcing pump-priming funding for seven areas to develop schemes:

Bristol City Council, Bath and North East Somerset Council, North Somerset Council, South Gloucestershire Council;

Cambridgeshire;

Durham County Council (for Durham City);

Greater Manchester;

Shropshire County Council (for Shrewsbury);

Tyne and Wear;

West Midlands conurbation.

The local authorities in all these areas will be carrying out feasibility studies on how local demand management and better public transport could together improve travelling conditions for their local people. Although no decisions have yet been taken by any of these authorities to adopt a road pricing solution to their congestion problems, all of them are planning to look at local road pricing as part of their consideration of demand management options. This work gives us the opportunity to develop practical design for road pricing schemes, within a coherent national pricing framework.

We will also be inviting officers from these authorities to work with us as members of the new Road Pricing Local Liaison Group together with others who have relevant experience of road pricing matters. This group will be responsible for taking forward thinking on those aspects of road pricing where it makes sense to have a consistent approach across all schemes, including technical standards, design and scheme appraisal. Local authorities' input will be essential to this work.

Receipt of this pump-priming funding is no guarantee that an authority will be successful in bidding for the main transport innovation fund. We will also work with other local authorities which have promising ideas for demand management, but which have not yet met the standard needed to secure development funding. We will be offering detailed feedback to all unsuccessful bidders, and currently plan to run a further round of pump priming funding in 2006. I shall keep the House informed.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

New Opportunities and Communities Funds

The Minister for Sport and Tourism (Mr. Richard Caborn): I am pleased to inform the House that on 24 November 2005 I formally issued the New Opportunities Fund (NOF) and the Community Fund—now operating jointly under the name of the Big Lottery Fund—with policy directions to enable the fund to launch its new programmes.

The policy directions and the programmes which will be launched as a result have been subject to an unprecedented level of public consultation and input from stakeholders. Underpinning all the programmes will be the fund's mission to improve communities and the lives of people most in need.

The planned programmes include up to £155 million to support voluntary and community sector infrastructure; £155 million for children's play; up to £354 million for environmental projects; and up to £165 million for well-being programmes. These initiatives will benefit communities the length and breadth of the UK.

I have placed a copy of the policy directions in the Libraries of both Houses.

DEPUTY PRIME MINISTER

Firefighters' Pensions

The Minister for Local Government (Mr. Phil Woolas): The Office of the Deputy Prime Minister has today announced new financial arrangements for firefighters' pensions.

The firefighters' pension scheme is currently financed on a pay-as-you-go system. This means that employees' contributions are paid into Fire and Rescue Authorities' operating accounts, from which pensions awards are made. At present, as part of formula grant, authorities receive funding from central Government to support pension payments.

The current system for financing firefighters' pensions can cause volatility in pension expenditure as a result of lump-sum retirement payments. It can also be difficult to establish what proportion of budget and council tax increases is the result of rising pension costs as opposed to the cost of running the service. Further, over time the forecast growth in pension costs would see pension expenditure rise as a proportion of authorities' budgets.

The new financial arrangements are based on employer contributions and are similar to those used for other unfunded public service pension schemes such as those for teachers, civil servants, NHS staff and the armed forces.

The new arrangements will mean that employee contributions and a new employer's contribution will be paid into a new local pension account, from which pensions payments will be made. Government will make up the shortfall. At the outset, appropriate adjustments will be made in the level of grant so that neither local nor national taxpayers will be disadvantaged.

The new arrangements are for both the existing and proposed new firefighter pension schemes, but have no impact on the terms and conditions of either scheme.

ODPM conducted a thorough consultation on the proposals for new financial arrangements for firefighters' pensions between 8 February 2005 and 3 May 2005. The proposals were broadly welcomed by Fire and Rescue Authorities. A formal and detailed ODPM response to the consultation can be found in the Libraries of both Houses.

Home Office Ministers, having considered responses to a parallel consultation with Police Authorities, have today announced a similar reform of the financing of police pensions.

The new financial arrangements for Fire and Rescue Authorities will be introduced in April 2006 and, subject to parliamentary approval, will take affect immediately. Fire and Rescue Authorities have been provided with detailed guidance, copies of which can also be found in the Libraries of both Houses.

Residential Boats (Security of Tenure)

The Minister for Housing and Planning (Yvette Cooper): My right hon. Friend the Deputy Prime Minister will publish for public consultation on 29 November, a paper discussing security of tenure for residential boats.

During the passage of the Bill which became the Housing Act 2004, the Government received representations that the Bill should be amended to provide similar protection for those living on boats as the Bill provided (and the Act now provides) for owners of park homes.

The Government agreed to explore possible options with stakeholders and publish a consultation paper in 2005.

In the consultation paper we have examined how residential moorings are managed particularly with regard to security of tenure; highlighted some problems that exist with these arrangements; and outlined possible solutions.

Copies of the paper are being sent to a wide range of interested parties including local authorities, trade and resident associations, and others with an interest in this issue. The closing date for responses is 21 February 2006.

Copies of the paper will also be placed in the Libraries of both Houses, and will be available on the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister's website at www.odpm.gov.uk.

A summary of the responses to the consultation will be published on the ODPM website and copies of the responses will be made available for inspection through the ODPM library.

EDUCATION AND SKILLS

Learning and Skills Council

The Minister for Higher Education and Lifelong Learning (Bill Rammell): I would inform the House that the Learning and Skills Council for England has today published its annual report and accounts for the period to 31 March 2005. Copies have been placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Initial Regulatory Simplification Plan

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (Jim Knight): DEFRA is today publishing an initial regulatory simplification plan.

In its March 2005 report "less is more", the Better Regulation Task Force recommended that by September 2006 all Government Departments, in consultation with stakeholders, should develop a rolling programme of simplification to identify regulations that can be repealed, reformed and/or coordinated. DEFRA's plan is a public statement against which our stakeholders can measure progress.

The plan is fully in keeping with DEFRA's strategic objectives set out in our five-year strategy. Measures in it will help to improve outcomes and compliance rates while recognising the need to protect the environment and enhance animal health and welfare.

The plan identifies some significant progress that has already been made in helping to reduce red tape and improve outcomes across a number of sectors. The whole farm approach, which goes live in 2006, will offer farmers integration in the delivery of regulation and advice so that those who sign-up will be able to reduce time spent form-filling and having inspections undertaken on their farms. It also looks forward to other simplification work, such as amending the Waste Management Licensing Regulations 1994 which, it is expected, will result in cost savings of around £10 million from June 2006.

An updated plan, which will include further information on steps that DEFRA is taking to regulate more effectively, will be formally scrutinised by a Cabinet Committee and the Better Regulation Commission in the New Year. It should be viewed as an evolving document which will be updated on a regular basis. It is a major contribution to DEFRA's aim of reducing the overall administrative burden imposed on the business sectors we cover by 25 per cent. by 2009.

Copies of the plan are available in the Libraries of both Houses.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH AFFAIRS

Azerbaijan and Armenia (Arms Embargo)

The Minister for Europe (Mr. Douglas Alexander): The Government remain committed to the Organisation for Security and Co-operation in Europe arms embargo against both Azerbaijan and Armenia, which we interpret as covering all goods and technology controlled under entries in part III of schedule 1 to the Export of Goods (Control) Order 1994 (commonly known as the military list).

In November 2005, the Government approved an export licence application for bomb disposal clothing and equipment for the special state protection service in Azerbaijan.

The decision was made in accordance with our practice occasionally to make an exemption to our interpretation of the embargo by approving exports of non-lethal military goods where it is clear that the embargo was not intended to prevent those exports. The Government believe that this export is justifiable on humanitarian grounds.

HEALTH

"Commissioning Children's and Young People's Palliative Care Services"

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Health (Mr. Liam Byrne): I am pleased to announce that the Department is publishing a guide today entitled "Commissioning Children's and Young People's Palliative Care Services".

The provision of palliative care for children and young people has often been raised in both Houses of Parliament. We have made it clear that we want improvements in the choice and quality of services available to children with life-threatening or life-limiting conditions and their families.

Children's palliative care needs are different from those of adults. Their conditions often entail much longer-term provision, often intermittently throughout their lives, and their needs can be complex.

The new guide provides important information about the key aspects of children's palliative care which will stimulate improvements in quality of provision and commissioning. It also aims to promote choice for children, young people and their families, for example whether to receive palliative care at home, in hospital or in a hospice.

Standard eight of the national service framework for children, young people and maternity services (NSF) has set very high standards of services for disabled children and young people and those with complex health needs, including palliative care. The new guide will help primary care trusts and practice based commissioners and their local authority and voluntary sector partners to implement the NSF standards as they develop and deliver children's palliative care, bringing together a range of providers to achieve a seamless service for children with life-limiting or life-threatening conditions and their families. It promotes the choice to die at home that so many children, young people and their families want.

Copies of "Commissioning Children's and Young People's Palliative Care Services" will be placed in the Library.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Police Pensions

The Minister for Policing, Security and Community Safety (Hazel Blears): After considering the responses to the consultation document published earlier this year I am pleased to announce the introduction of a reformed system of financing police pensions with effect from 1 April 2006.

The new arrangements will cover both the existing police pension scheme and the new scheme to be introduced next April, but will not affect officers as members of those schemes. The new system of financing pensions will benefit police authorities by keeping the pension payments they make to retired officers separate from their operating costs. The new system will facilititate operational budgeting and planning based on the real cost of serving officers, including the cost of their accruing future pensions. The new arrangements will also prevent any future rises in the cost of pensions in payment, as more officers retire, from impacting directly on police operating costs thus helping to keep council tax precepts to a minimum over the coming years.

Currently the police pension scheme, which is administered locally by the police authority for the force concerned, is financed on a pay-as-you-go basis. Police authorities do not hold specific pensions accounts and officers' contributions are therefore paid into their operating accounts, from which the pensions of retired officers are paid. This means that police authorities have to meet the cost of the pensions of retired officers from the same source that funds operational policing. Although authorities currently receive an element in their police grant to support these pension payments there can be volatility from year to year in pensions expenditure, depending on the number of officers who retire, which can have an impact on operational expenditure.

In 2001, a working party from the Treasury, the Home Office and the Department of Transport, Local Government and the Regions completed a joint review of arrangements for the financing of police and fire pensions. Following the recommendations of the Joint Review, a Home Office-led working group of officials drew up the consultation document "Report of the Working Group on Police Pensions Finance Reform" which we published on 24 March. We have now considered the responses to the consultation document and the outcome is that all respondents wish the new system to be introduced next year essentially as proposed. Support for the proposals was subject to specific comments and I am placing in the Library a copy of a summary of the results of the consultation exercise and of the Home Office response.

The new arrangements for financing police pensions will be based on officers' contributions and a new employer contribution that will be paid by the police authority into a separate pensions account. Any shortfall would be made up by a central Government grant and any surplus in the account recovered by central Government. To facilitate a smooth transition adjustments will be made in the level of Government funding through the police grant to ensure that there is no disadvantage to either the local or national taxpayer as a result of the change in the financing system.

The new arrangements are similar to those currently being used by other unfunded public service pension schemes, for example those for teachers, civil servants and NHS staff. The changes are also very similar to the changes being made to the financial arrangements for firefighters' pensions, also announced today.

We are in close touch with the Association of Police Authorities and the Association of Chief Police Officers about the changes and we will shortly issue police authorities with detailed guidance on the new arrangements.

PRIME MINISTER

Commonwealth Heads of Government Meeting

The Prime Minister (Mr. Tony Blair): The biennial Commonwealth Heads of Government meeting (CHOGM) took place in Valletta, Malta from 25 to 27 November.

Her Majesty The Queen attended the meeting in her role as Head of the Commonwealth. She also paid a state visit to Malta where she was most warmly welcomed by the Maltese people. The outgoing Commonwealth Chairman-in-Office, President Obasanjo of Nigeria, paid tribute on behalf of all Commonwealth members to the Queen's commitment and dedication to the Commonwealth.

This year, for the first time, Commonwealth Foreign Ministers met in advance of CHOGM to receive reports from Commonwealth bodies and to prepare the communiqué. The UK was represented by my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for International Development and my noble Friend the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs.

Commonwealth Heads of Government last met in Abuja, Nigeria in December 2003. At Valletta, Heads reviewed developments since then.

As in 2003, Heads issued a separate statement on multilateral trade. This highlighted the contribution that international trade makes to global prosperity, poverty elimination and sustainable development. They reaffirmed their commitments to the objectives of the Doha development agenda of the World Trade Organisation and to its conclusion by the end of 2006. While they welcomed the progress achieved since 2003 they stressed their deep concern about the pace of negotiations. The Commonwealth pledged its global influence to correct this and Heads committed to inject urgency into their negotiators at the WTO, encouraging them to be flexible and place priority on a genuinely development-oriented outcome for the round.

The importance of agriculture to developing economies was highlighted, with a call for the end of export subsidies by 2010 and time-bound commitments for substantial reductions in trade distorting domestic support and significant improvements in market access.

The importance of differential treatment for developing countries was highlighted in this context. Heads of Government also called for phased adjustment and other transitional measures to help vulnerable states, including small states and those traditionally dependent on preferential market access arrangements, to meet the trade and development challenges facing them. This was noted with particular reference to the impact on some Commonwealth members as a result of the liberalisation of the EU sugar regime. The G8 initiative on "Aid for Trade" was applauded as a means for meaningful market access.

Heads discussed other development issues, including the millennium Development Goals, where there is mixed progress in the Commonwealth. Heads welcomed the G8 proposals for debt cancellation and commitments by many developed countries to achieve the 0.7 per cent. target. Heads confirmed their commitment to root out corruption. There was particular concern for vulnerable small states, which need help to diversify their economies. Some small states have been very badly affected by natural disasters. Heads endorsed a proposal from Bangladesh for the Commonwealth to develop proposals to address how it can help with disaster risk-reduction and responses.

Heads also discussed terrorism, incitement and tolerance and reaffirmed their condemnation of all acts of terrorism. They emphasised that targeting and deliberate killing of civilians through acts of terrorism cannot be justified or legitimised by any cause or grievance. They commended the various initiatives to promote dialogue, tolerance and understanding among civilisations.

Heads discussed how to use information and communications technologies to support development, reduce poverty and contribute to the attainment of the millennium Development Goals.

During the summit, I met with the leaders of sugar producing Caribbean states and a number of other leaders, including the Prime Ministers of Malta, Mauritius, Pakistan and Singapore.

The Commonwealth expressed its concern about recent developments in Uganda, including the detention of Kizza Besigye. As Secretary General McKinnon said on Sunday 27 November, Uganda knows what must happen between now and 2007 when it expects to host the next CHOGM. I also raised our concerns directly with President Museveni.

It was agreed that the United Kingdom should return to the Commonwealth Ministerial Action Group (CMAG), the body charged with monitoring Commonwealth nations' compliance with the Harare principles.

I participated in the Commonwealth sports breakfast and thanked Commonwealth leaders for supporting London's Olympic bid. Heads of Government looked forward to the Melbourne Commonwealth games in 2006 and I presented Glasgow's interest in hosting the games in 2014.

Copies of the concluding communiqué, the separate statements on trade and small states and the declaration on networking for development have been placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

Euro-Mediterranean Summit

The Prime Minister (Mr. Tony Blair): The 2005 Euro-Mediterranean Summit took place in Barcelona on 27–28 November. I co-chaired the Summit with the Spanish Prime Minister. My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary also attended for the Government.

The summit delivered a five-year work plan with a substantial package of commitments towards political, economic and social reform in the southern Mediterranean region. A code of conduct on countering terrorism was also agreed. There was also agreement on a chairman's statement, reiterating the overall political commitments of the Euromed partnership. I have placed copies of these texts in the Libraries of both Houses.

The commitments agreed included:

a code of conduct on countering terrorism: this is the first time that Europe, Israel and Arab countries have agreed to condemn terrorism in all its manifestations, as well as practical commitments to act together against terrorism;

a governance facility: a substantial EU "incentive fund" to reward Mediterranean partners who make progress on good governance;

a commitment to raise standards in conduct of elections. This will be supported by EU technical assistance and observers; agreement to liberalise trade in agriculture and services: A first wave of regional negotiations should start before the end of 2005 with the aim of concluding them before December 2006. This is a major step towards the agreed goal of establishing a Euromed free trade area by 2010; targets on education including a commitment to ensure that all children (boys and girls) have access to quality education and to halving current illiteracy rates in the region by 2015. The EU and Mediterranean partners have committed to increasing significantly resources devoted to education; and to developing a "benchmark standard" university education qualification transferable within the EU and the region;

a commitment to develop co-operation between the EU and southern Mediterranean countries, on migration policy, including fighting illegal migration; in addition 1 billion euros in further lending to private investment in the southern Mediterranean region was announced by the European Investment Bank.

The Government are committed to the full and early implementation of the commitments agreed at the summit. We shall also continue to work towards further economic, political and social reform in southern Mediterranean countries.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Energy Review

The Secretary of State for Trade and Industry (Alan Johnson): The Prime Minister and I are pleased to inform the House that we have asked the Minister for Energy, the hon. Member for Croydon, North (Malcolm Wicks) to lead a review of UK energy policy and to bring forward policy proposals next year.

The review will assess progress against the four goals set by the 2003 energy White Paper:

to put ourselves on a path to cut the UK's carbon dioxide emissions—the main contributor to global warming—by some 60 per cent. by about 2050 with real progress by 2020;

to maintain the reliability of energy supplies;

to promote competitive markets in the UK and beyond, helping to raise the rate of sustainable economic growth and to improve our productivity; and to ensure that every home is adequately and affordably heated.

The review has a broad scope and will consider aspects of both energy supply and demand focusing on medium and long-term policy measures beyond 2010. The review will consider all options including the role of current generating technologies, such as renewables, coal, gas and nuclear power, and new and emerging technologies, for example carbon, capture and storage. The review will also consider transport and the role of energy efficiency. The terms of reference for the review are annexed to this written statement.

The review will be taken forward by a cross-departmental team based in the DTI, with officials drawn from key relevant departments and the Prime Minister's strategy unit. The review team will develop energy policy proposals during 2006.

This review is part of our ongoing commitment to reviewing progress against the goals and, if necessary, taking steps to ensure we stay on track. It will be taken forward in the context of the Government's commitment to sound public finances and will take account of all short-term, medium-term and long-term costs and liabilities both to the taxpayer and energy user. The review is taking place against a background of strengthening evidence on the nature and extent of climate change and increasing concerns about the future security of UK energy supplies.

Given the substantial challenge posed by climate change, Sir Nicholas Stern has already been asked to produce a report to the Prime Minister and Chancellor by autumn 2006 on the economics of climate change. The work undertaken as part of the stern review will be closely co-ordinated with, and complementary to the energy review.

ANNEX—Energy Review Terms of Reference

The Government will review the UK's progress against the medium and long-term Energy White Paper goals and the options for further steps to achieve them. The aim will be to bring forward proposals on energy policy next year.

The review will be informed by analysis and options drawn up by a review team led by the Energy Minister. This will be a team of officials drawn from key relevant departments and the Prime Minister's Strategy Unit. In drawing up the analysis and options, the Energy Minister will undertake extensive public and stakeholder consultation. The review will be taken forward in the context of the Government's commitment to sound public finances and will take account of all short-term, medium-term and long-term costs and liabilities both to the taxpayer and energy user. The review team will report to the Prime Minister and the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry in early summer.

EU Telecoms Council

The Minister for Industry and the Regions (Alun Michael): I will be chairing the Telecoms Council of the UK's EU Presidency in Brussels in the afternoon of 1 December 2005.

The first item on the agenda will look at the important theme of better regulation, focusing specifically on the 2006 review of the regulatory framework for electronic communications markets and on the future of EU spectrum policy. I will chair a policy debate on these issues and we have produced a Presidency policy paper to help guide the debate. This discussion is important in the wider context of EU economic reform. I hope to achieve a steer from the Council on the key issues that need to be addressed within the 2006 review and on the role of market based mechanisms in EU spectrum management.

I will then introduce a policy debate on the i2010 Strategy which I believe can play a key role in achieving the Lisbon goals of economic growth and productivity. With the help of a Presidency paper, I will ask my colleagues to explore the key issues that need to be the focus of attention in the area of information and communication technologies over the next five years and to discuss how best to ensure that ICT policy is appropriately reflected in wider national economic discussions both at EU and national level. I also hope that as part of this agenda item, we will be able to agree the set of Council Conclusions responding to the Commission Communications on the i2010 strategy and on e-accessibility.

The third agenda item will look at the transition from analogue to digital broadcasting, focusing specifically on the spectrum gains from digital switchover and on a timetable for digital switchover in the EU. I hope that we will be able to agree the Council Conclusions responding to the Commission Communication on this issue, but I do not anticipate a substantive policy debate.

Finally, together with Viviane Reding, European Commissioner for Information Society and Media, I will report back on the outcome of the world summit on information society which took place between 14 and 18 November and parts of which I attended.

EU Energy Council

The Minister for Energy (Malcolm Wicks): I will be chairing the Energy Council of the UK's EU Presidency in Brussels in the morning of 1 December 2005. My right hon. Friend the Member for Cardiff, South and Penarth (Alun Michael) will occupy the UK seat.

The first item on the agenda will be better regulation: implementation and outcomes of the internal market for electricity and natural gas. This item will include presentations from Commissioner Piebalgs on the Commission's report on progress in creating the internal gas and electricity market and from Commissioner Kroes on the initial findings of the Commission's sectoral inquiry into the European gas and electricity markets. I will then chair a policy debate. In order to guide the discussion, we have prepared Presidency questions focusing on implementation, enforcement and transparency; the power of regulatory authorities; market integration; and the need for improved third party access to networks. We hope the debate will help influence the future direction of EU energy market liberalisation within a better regulation framework and will make an effective contribution to the emerging findings of the DG Comp inquiry.

The second item will be Climate Change and Sustainable Energy, on which we hope that Ministers will adopt draft Council Conclusions. I will chair a policy debate, which aims to give impetus to the ELPs contribution to international efforts to address climate change and to promote sustainable, cost-effective energy supplies. Again, the Presidency has prepared questions to guide the debate, which will focus on the interaction between the energy, climate change and competitiveness agendas; the role of sustainable energy sources and technologies in helping to achieve climate change objectives; and, following publication of the Commission's Green Paper on energy efficiency, member state priorities for measures to be taken forward in the forthcoming EU energy efficiency action plan (EEAP) to be adopted in 2006.

These two items will take up the bulk of the Council's time.

The third and last item consists of information from the Presidency and the Commission, and comments from Ministers, on the EU's international energy relations—the EU-Russia energy dialogue, the South East Europe energy treaty, the EU-OPEC dialogue and the energy charter treaty. Although discussion may be brief, we hope it will underline the importance of this subject for the EU's security of energy supply. The UK can point to some successes in this area during our Presidency. We hosted an energy Permanent Partnership Council on 3 October, which gave impetus to the EU/Russia energy dialogue; progress on the South East Europe energy treaty was such that it was signed by Ministers in Athens on 25 October; an EU-OPEC ministerial meeting will be held on 2 December and negotiations on the transit protocol to the energy charter treaty are continuing. All these initiatives help to promote producer/consumer understanding and enhance energy transit and market opening.

TRANSPORT

Highways Agency Framework Document

The Minister of State, Department for Transport (Dr. Stephen Ladyman): The Highways Agency has an important role in delivering the successful management and operation of the strategic road network. It fulfils this role on behalf of the Secretary of State and the Agency's relationship with the Department for Transport is covered by a framework document.

The framework document sets out the roles and responsibilities of the Highways Agency, its chief executive and how he will work with the Secretary of State and the Permanent Secretary of the Department for Transport. The previous framework document dated from 1999 and was due for revision.

The framework document has been revised in accordance with Cabinet Office guidelines and has been approved by the Chief Secretary to the Treasury. Today I have placed copies of the new Highways Agency framework document in the Libraries of both Houses.

British Transport Police (Funding)

The Secretary of State for Transport (Mr. Alistair Darling): The professionalism and dedication to duty of the British Transport Police (BTP) was illustrated to the full by their response to the terrorist attacks in London on 7 and 21 July. The Government appreciate the highly professional capability demonstrated by the BTP.

Following discussion with the chief constable and the chairman of the BTP Authority, it is clear that the BTP incurred substantial costs as a result of their response to the attacks. I have therefore agreed to make a contribution of £3.6 million to the funding of the additional costs incurred. This sum covers the costs of overtime, accommodation and other overheads. It will also contribute to the costs of CCTV viewing equipment for speedy analysis of CCTV images.

BTP have confirmed that further additional costs associated with the failed bombing attempts of 21 July and other operations directly related to the July attacks are to be absorbed within BTP's existing budget.

However, this one-off payment does not prejudice the general principle that it is the rail industry that is responsible for funding the BTP. Any future request for central funding will only be considered on the merits of the case.

Rapid Transit Scheme (South Hampshire)

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Transport (Derek Twigg): In July 2004, I took the decision to withdraw funding for the South Hampshire rapid transit (SHRT) scheme because of excessive cost increases. Since then, the scheme's promoters, Portsmouth city council and Hampshire county council, have put revised proposals to the Department.

I have considered very carefully all the new information provided by the promoters. The promoters have succeeded in reducing the cost of the tram schemes below last summer's level. However, costs remain significantly higher than those the Department approved.

The latest tram proposals are still very expensive—costs are nearly 50 per cent. higher than originally planned. This is for a reduced scheme which places more of the risks with the public sector. I therefore cannot support requests to re-instate the SHRT proposal.

The scheme was given full approval in 2001 with a cap on the public sector funding of £170 million, present value terms at 2003 prices. Following receipt of bids that greatly exceeded the approved public sector cost, the promoters put forward an alternative proposal in late 2003 removing the proposed cycle shuttle and introducing revenue risk sharing. But the public sector funding remained £100 million more than we had approved.

The promoters' latest proposal requires public sector funding of £214 million in 2003 present value terms. Cost savings were achieved by removing the short loop proposed for Fareham and changing the proposed procurement, with less risk transfer to the private sector. This is a 26 per cent. increase above the previously approved amount. However, this simple comparison does not give a full picture because:

These figures are the total value in 2003 of the required public funding, at 2003 prices. In 2005, at current prices, the value would be £253 million—nearly 50 per cent. above the approved cap. And this is still a present value figure, so it understates the cost increase in cash terms over the life of the scheme.

But it is the cash costs that count. The current proposal would require £93 million of capital grant and a total of £581 million in annual payments, associated with the PFI credits, up to 2036. The original proposal required grant of £75 million, and £244 million in annual payments to 2033. The cost to Government have therefore more than doubled, from £319 million to £674 million, over 36 years.

I appreciate that the promoters have made every effort to reduce the costs of the scheme. However, it is clear that costs remain significantly higher than those that I previously approved. In the light of all the information, I cannot support requests to re-instate the SHRT proposal.

Merseytram

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Transport (Derek Twigg): On 13 June this year, I said that the £170 million Government funding that had originally been approved for Merseytram remained available if the scheme could be delivered at that cost.

Since then we have had regular discussions to secure the necessary funding commitments from the Merseyside districts, over which Merseytravel has powers to levy funds, to give confidence that the scheme would be delivered without further requests for Government funding. Unfortunately the required assurances have not been forthcoming. I have therefore decided that this scheme cannot proceed.

Merseytram Line 1 was given provisional approval in December 2002, at a public sector cost of £225 million, and with a cap of £170 million on central Government contributions. Costs subsequently increased, and Merseytravel advised the Department in May 2005 that the total public sector cost was £315 million—an increase of 40 per cent. This was for a scheme that was smaller in scope than the one we had approved.

This led to my announcement on 13 June 2005 that the Government would not increase its contribution to the project. However, our position has remained clear that the previously committed £170 million was available if the scheme could be delivered at that cost.

Since June, the Department's key concern has been to ensure that there would be no further requests for Government funding. To this end, the Department needed assurance that the districts, as the ultimate flinders of any shortfalls, had properly considered the risks, and accepted the consequences of the Government's contribution being capped. This logically meant that there should be no cap on the contribution from local sources. We made clear in July 2005 that we would need written undertakings from the Merseyside districts to this effect.

Since then, the Department has tried to help the authorities find a way forward. In September 2005 it became clear that not all of the Merseyside districts would be prepared to give such undertakings. We agreed to consider a proposition that Liverpool and Knowsley, as the principal beneficiaries of the project, would provide assurances that they between them would meet any cost overruns or funding gaps. We have also agreed to requests to extend the deadline for a decision.

We have also said that our requirements would be satisfied by an arrangement under which the two districts would enter a back-to-back agreement committing Merseytravel to take the risk above a certain level, as long as the districts' commitments to the Department were unconditional. This approach could address district concerns about the prudence or lawfulness of providing unconditional commitments to the Department, provided that they satisfied themselves that they could rely on the agreement with Merseytravel.

The Merseyside authorities have now had four months to deliver these commitments, but they have not been prepared to do so. What the districts have offered is a capped commitment, whereby Liverpool and Knowsley would bear costs up to £24 million. Above that level, they have asked us to rely on assurances from Merseytravel.

However, Liverpool city council has recently received written legal advice that it would not be prudent or lawful for Liverpool to rely on Merseytravel assurances about the risk of cost overruns without a proper independent due diligence exercise.

If Liverpool's own legal advice is that it cannot currently rely on Merseytravel assurances, then clearly it is not reasonable to expect the Department to do so.

Liverpool's advice is consistent with our view that there is nothing inherently unlawful in an unconditional district undertaking. What is preventing the districts from providing the commitment letters we have requested is that they cannot be confident in Merseytravel's assurances.

Our requirements have been clear since July. We have now had months of discussion with Merseyside. They have had plenty of time to undertake the necessary due diligence work. However, it is unfortunately clear that the districts are not prepared to give us the assurances we need; so we cannot be confident that there will be no further requests for funding. I have therefore decided that the scheme cannot proceed.

I recognise that transport investment is needed in Merseyside to support future growth in the area. We have committed over £200 million to transport improvements in Merseyside over the last five years, and we intend to continue to support good value schemes in the area. The Department stands ready to work with Merseytravel and Merseyside authorities on a package of transport improvements for Merseyside, especially improved public transport in the areas that would have been served by Merseytram. Funding will be there for the right proposals.

CABINET OFFICE

Regulatory Impact Assessments

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for the Cabinet Office (Mr. Jim Murphy): The Government are committed to ensuring that regulations are necessary, give effective protection, balance cost and risk, are fair and command public confidence.

In accordance with this, we require Departments to produce and publish RIAs for all regulatory proposals likely to have an impact on business, charities or voluntary bodies.

I have today presented to Parliament a Command Paper listing RIAs published between 1 January and 30 June 2005. Copies of those listed have been placed in the Library. This is the 23rd such Command Paper.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

EU Gender Equality Council

The Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport (Tessa Jowell): The Informal EU Gender Equality Council hosted by the UK presidency took place in Birmingham on 8–9 November. Together with ministerial colleagues, my hon. Friend the Member for Sheffield, Heeley (Meg Munn) and Baroness Crawley, I chaired this meeting which included visits to innovative community projects from across the west midlands tackling the problems of gender inequality.

In addition to 15 Ministers from across Europe with responsibility for gender equality, I was delighted to welcome Rachel Mayanja, the UN Secretary General's Special Adviser on Gender Equality and the Advancement of Women, Anna Zaborska, Chair of the European Parliament's Women's Committee and Vladimir Spidla, Commissioner for Employment, Social Affairs and Equal Opportunities.

On Tuesday 8 November, Ministers were divided into groups to visit community projects brought together in two venues in Birmingham. My colleague Meg Munn, visited a community arts centre called "The Custard Factory" and I hosted the other group of Ministers who visited a converted pub in Balsall Heath, now a thriving centre of education as part of South Birmingham College. At each venue we had the opportunity to talk to a number of women about their projects and to learn about good practice in the United Kingdom. The areas covered by the projects included rural enterprise, education and training, business start-ups, confidence-raising, gender equality in the business world and the promotion of technology and enterprise for young girls.

A number of Ministers commented that they found this part of the Informal to be the most innovative as it gave them a chance to speak to individual women who had experienced various forms of disadvantage and to hear their stories.

On the second day, after a short welcome speech from my hon. Friend the Under-Secretary, Ministers broke into three small groups chaired by the UK, Austria and Finland (the current and two succeeding Presidencies) for detailed discussions and an exchange of good practice. These discussions were based on questions prepared by the Presidency and sent to the Ministers in advance. The three themes flowed from the preceding Gender Equality Conference. These were:

"Breaking the Barriers", which included issues such as breaking down traditional stereotypes of women's work and occupational segregation, the kind of support needed for women entrepreneurs and using taxation and incentive policies to break employment barriers;

"Making work work" covering successful work-life balance initiative, childcare and how women can achieve economic security in retirement, and

"Getting in, getting on" covering educational initiatives aimed at inspiring girls to aim high in their professional lives, how women can update and expand their skills throughout their lives and the gender pay gap and how it can be abolished.

Discussions in these groups were lively and informative, aided in part by the smaller numbers of participants. In the subsequent Plenary session, each chair reported back on some of the key issues discussed and highlighted examples of good practice that were shared in their group. In discussion, Ministers agreed that the key issues affecting gender equality include:

The demographic challenge, meaning that people were living longer and having fewer children;

The gender pay gap;

Occupational segregation;

The need for increased involvement of men in caring responsibilities and domestic tasks;

The low status and consequent lower pay of many women's jobs;

Women's lower pensions caused by interrupted working patterns and lower pay;

Better quality and greater provision of childcare;

Flexible working patterns and reconciliation of work-life balance.

During the Ministerial meeting a number of speakers also identified the need to increase the number of women in the labour market if Europe is to increase economic growth, productivity and competitiveness. The links between this and the EU "Lisbon Strategy" were made with particular reference to retaining women in the labour market.

Ministers agreed that the opportunity to share and exchange practical examples of good practice, which worked in their Member States, with other colleagues, had been extremely useful and hoped that it could be built on in the future.

At the end of the meeting, a presidency statement was issued which will be formally presented to the Employment, Social Policy, Health and Consumer Affairs Council on 8–9 December. I attach a copy to this Statement.

PRESIDENCY STATEMENT

Statement made by the UK Presidency at the Conclusion of the Ministerial Meeting on Gender Equality in Birmingham on 9 November 2005

1. Ten years ago in Beijing the United Nations drew up a Declaration and a Platform for Action that has been the template for progress on gender equality ever since. The enthusiasm and commitment of the national delegates and representatives of civil society, who worked day and night on the text, helped to inspire the development within the European Union of a strong legislative base for gender equality and innovative policies for women's empowerment.

2. Together the Luxembourg and United Kingdom Presidencies were determined to lead the EU to a strong reaffirmation of the Declaration and Platform for Action to mark their tenth anniversary. This began with a Conference and Informal Ministerial meeting in Luxembourg in February, that reviewed progress in all EU Member States towards the goals in the Platform for Action, and provided a comparative review of the institutional mechanisms for promoting gender equality within Member States. The Luxembourg Conference report provides an important basis for future comparative EU study, and the Common Ministerial Declaration (adopted by Ministers of EU Member States responsible for gender equality on 4 February) provides a strong statement of support for the Beijing Platform for Action.

3. In March the Luxembourg Presidency led a very strong EU delegation to the 49th session of the Commission on the Status of Women at the United Nations, where, in no small part due to the determination of the EU, we secured a full and universal reaffirmation of the Beijing Declaration with a renewed emphasis on the importance of gender equality for the achievement of the Millennium Development Goals. These goals were reviewed at the Millennium Review Summit in September, where the UK led the EU delegation. The Outcome Document of the Summit makes even stronger linkages between the Beijing Declaration and the MDGs, including a reference to making the goals of full and productive employment and decent work for all, including women, a central objective of relevant international policies as well as national development strategies, including those aimed at poverty reduction.

4. Education and economic empowerment are key to promoting women's advancement in all of the areas identified in the Beijing Platform for Action. An educated woman who has marketable skills and equal rights in the workplace can better resist discrimination in other arenas. Women, as 50 per cent. of the EU population offer great economic and social resources of creativity, entrepreneurship and community cohesion. But economic empowerment, and gender equality, requires an effective legislative base and a wide range of policies, at national and local levels, and in business, for success. Within the EU we now have a strong legislative base, with the conclusion of negotiations on the extension of protection against discrimination on the grounds of gender into the field of goods and services. Therefore at the UK Presidency Gender Equality Conference and Ministerial Meeting in Birmingham we concentrated on sharing our experience of practical interventions and policy initiatives that deliver economic empowerment for women and gender equality for women and men.

5. Alongside practical examples from many EU Member States, generously shared by representatives from governments, business, trade unions, academics and civil society, we also considered ideas that have been successful in the developing world. And Ministers, prior to their own very valuable discussions, visited community projects based in the West Midlands—several funded by the EU—to see how local initiatives can make a significant difference to the economic chances of disadvantaged women, particularly to those experiencing multiple discrimination. These projects working with the specific needs of Minority Ethnic women, women in business, training and education of women, young female entrepreneurs, women facing social exclusion and support for women in rural enterprise, represent a microcosm of the complexity and diversity of issues facing women in their everyday lives across Europe, and, highlight the challenges faced by policy and decision makers to achieving full gender equality.

6. We were strongly influenced in our work by the mid-term review of the EU Lisbon Strategy. This strategy recognises overtly that gender equality and the advancement of women are fundamental to the achievement of full employment, sustained economic growth and social cohesion, as well as the promotion of knowledge and innovation in Europe, the reinforcement of social protection and the eradication of poverty. We encourage all Member States to ensure that their future annual Lisbon implementation reports, (which will report on their National Reform Programmes for 2005–08), are fully mainstreamed—in particular that; any targets and data are disaggregated by gender; that the goals of women's employment and the provision of good childcare are properly resourced; and, that the Integrated Guidelines on Growth and Jobs for 2005–08, are heeded, (with particular reference to Guideline No 18 "promoting a lifecycle approach to work"). The EU Lisbon Strategy must be achieved by full acknowledgement of the importance of gender equality.

7. The EU made a firm commitment, renewed in Luxembourg in February, to continue its work on different aspects of the Beijing Platform for Action by the development and collection of helpful and relevant indicators. It was also agreed that this year no new specific indicators would be developed, so that Member States could focus on implementation of the Platform in its entirety. In 2006 this work will recommence under the leadership of the Austrian and Finnish Presidencies, including a focus on gender equality health indicators. However, in due course, this will be greatly assisted as a result of work done under Luxembourg and the UK this year on the establishment of the European Gender Institute. This, and the Recast Directive that simplifies and streamlines the existing gender equality acquis, have been the primary focus of our work in Council.

8. The Presidency is proud of the EU's record of achievements in the field of gender equality but is all too well aware of the work that remains to be done. We believe that our emphasis at the Presidency Conference and Ministerial in Birmingham, on women's economic empowerment, in the context of the Beijing Declaration and the Lisbon Strategy, is an important one, and has provided the opportunity for significant and purposeful conversations between practitioners from across the EU, and more widely We are pleased that the European Commission plans to reprise the theme of women's employment and work-life balance as the central part of its Third Annual Report to Heads of State and Government, (to be presented at the Spring Council in March 2006). This UK Presidency Statement will be presented to the Employment, Health and Social Affairs Council for consideration on 8–9 December.

DEPUTY PRIME MINISTER

Tenancy Deposit Protection

The Minister for Housing and Planning (Yvette Cooper): My right hon. Friend the Deputy Prime Minister will publish for public consultation on 30 November a paper discussing secondary legislation to implement tenancy deposit protection for tenants.

During the passage of the Bill which became the Housing Act 2004 the Government introduced tenancy deposit protection provisions to safeguard deposits paid by tenants in relation to assured shorthold tenancies.

The consultation paper examines the information requirements to be placed on landlords and the handling of deposits at the beginning and end of the tenancy.

Copies of the paper are being sent to a wide range of interested parties including local authorities, tenant representative groups, landlord and letting agent associations, and others with an interest in this issue. The closing date for responses is 1 February 2006.

Copies of the paper will also be placed in the Libraries of both Houses, and will be available on the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister's website at www.odpm.gov.uk.

A summary of the responses to the consultation will be published on the ODPM website.

English Fire and Rescue Service

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State, Office of the Deputy Prime Minister (Jim Fitzpatrick): The Office of the Deputy Prime Minister has today announced additional investment of the order of £125 million, under the private finance initiative, for three projects proposed by fire and rescue service authorities.

These include a joint project put forward by Lancashire, Merseyside and Cumbria fire and rescue authorities as well as individual projects from Staffordshire, and Gloucester.

These PFI projects will help fire and rescue authorities to rebuild, refurbish and relocate new community fire stations allowing them to save more lives through improved response times and by providing fire safety advice to the communities which will help to reduce the number of accidental fire deaths in the home.

The Greater London Authority

The Minister of Communities and Local Government (Mr. David Miliband): The Government are today publishing a consultation paper on proposals for additional powers and responsibilities for the Greater London Authority—the Mayor of London and the London Assembly.

We believe the time is now right to look at giving the Mayor a greater say in the planning and delivery of London's strategic services while preserving the appropriate balance of power between the Mayor, Assembly and boroughs. We are opening the door to significant decentralisation of powers from Whitehall, while ensuring the GLA remains a focused and strategic authority. We believe the GLA has proven its worth, and that the time is right to shift power from Whitehall to London. How far will depend on the response to the consultation.

The Government's consultation paper outlines a number of proposals for additional powers for the Mayor across a range of policy areas, including housing, learning and skills, planning and waste management and waste planning. It also explores options for additional powers for the London Assembly and changes in appointments to the boards of the four functional bodies in the GLA Group.

We look forward to hearing the views of Londoners and those with an interest in London during the consultation period, which will run until 22 February. After considering all the responses to this consultation exercise, the Government will announce a final package of proposals in spring 2006.

A copy of the consultation paper has been placed in the Library of the House.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH AFFAIRS

General Affairs and External Relations Council

The Minister for Europe (Mr. Douglas Alexander): The General Affairs and External Relations Council (GAERC) was held on 21–22 November in Brussels. My right hon. Friends the Foreign Secretary, the Defence Secretary, and the International Development Secretary chaired the Council as presidency. I also represented the UK on certain agenda items.

The agenda items are as follows:

DEFENCE MINISTERS

Capabilities

The Council approved the final Requirements Catalogue 05, which identifies the EU's military capability requirements and puts renewed emphasis on rapidly deployable, sustainable and interoperable armed forces. The catalogue was validated using computer-assisted operational analysis provided by NATO. Two further battlegroups were announced (Greece-Romania-Bulgaria-Cyprus and a Czech-Slovak group), which ensured the roster was filled to the end of 2008. Progress on capability development initiatives including battlegroups, the European Gendarmerie Force and the maritime dimension was welcomed. Council Conclusions were agreed.

Civil-military co-ordination

The work of the UK presidency in improving civil-military co-ordination, notably on comprehensive planning and security sector reform, was widely welcomed as a step towards bringing all the EU's instruments into a more effective holistic response. The Commission also supported this approach. Ministers agreed that this work should be applied to comprehensive reviews of the EU's engagement in Bosnia, Democratic Republic of the Congo, Sudan and Aceh. The Council also discussed the importance of EU support to building African peacekeeping capacity, and the EU's ability to respond rapidly to disasters.

European Defence Agency

The Council welcomed the report by the Head of the Agency and agreed guidelines for the Agency's work in 2006. Ministers exchanged views on the finalisation of Administrative Arrangements between the Agency and Norway and Turkey. The presidency undertook to consult with those countries and return to the issue at the next opportunity.

Foreign and Defence Ministers: Bosnia

The Council reviewed the EU military and police missions in Bosnia and agreed Conclusions. It agreed that a continuing EU military presence was essential, with force levels broadly unchanged for the coming year. It established a follow-on police mission refocused to support police reform and the fight against organised crime, and agreed to strengthen the EU Special Representative's role in co-ordinating EU instruments. On the tenth anniversary of the initialling of the Dayton Agreement, Ministers welcomed the progress made by Bosnia and authorised the Commission to open negotiations on a Stabilisation and Association Agreement.

FOREIGN MINISTERS

Preparation for the 15–16 December European Council

The presidency introduced a draft annotated agenda and explained that Ministers would have a chance to consider draft European Council Conclusions at the 12 December GAERC.

Financial Perspectives 2007–13

The presidency introduced this item and highlighted that it remained committed to reaching a deal in December. The presidency highlighted the need to make progress in three main areas: (i) the structure of EU spending; (ii) modernising the budget, including a timetable for review; and (iii) resources. Significant changes would be needed to the proposals made n June by the Luxembourg presidency. The presidency highlighted plans for a ministerial conclave on 7 December, ahead of which the presidency would table comprehensive proposals.

WTO

The Commission set out the latest developments in the Doha Round. On process, the Commission commented that they will continue to ensure transparency with Member States and would consult the Council fully at Hong Kong. short conclusions were agreed.

Middle East Peace Process (MEPP)

The presidency and High Representative Solana welcomed the agreement on the EU mission to monitor the Palestinian operation of the Rafah crossing point on the Gaza-Egypt border. The parties' acceptance of an international role was significant. Commissioner Ferrero-Waldner highlighted that Commission capacity building programmes would work hand-in-glove with the ESDP monitors. In preparation for the 25 January Palestine Legislative Council (PLC) elections, Commissioner Ferrero-Waldner said an Election Observation Mission would deploy in mid-December and would consist of 172 observers. Monitors would strictly limit their contacts to issues related to the observation of the elections. The presidency underlined the importance of the EU maintaining its position that observers should not enter into dialogue with Hamas until they renounced violence and recognised Israel. Council Conclusions were agreed.

Iraq

The Foreign Secretary briefed on his recent visit to Iraq (10–11 November), highlighting that steady progress was being made. The Foreign Secretary emphasised the importance of the December elections, where the Iraqis were keen for international observers. The Council agreed that mounting a full EU Election Observation Mission (EOM) would not be possible in the time available, but wou'd explore what additional assistance it could provide in support of the 15 December elections. The Council also agreed that the EU should be considering now how to prepare for closer relations with the new government next year. The presidency thanked the Commission for their work on the opening of a Commission Delegation in Baghdad. Commissioner Ferrero-Waldner said they were currently looking for a Head of Mission and, in addition, would shortly be submitting a draft negotiating mandate to Member States for a Trade and Co-operation Agreement with Iraq by the end of the year.

Iran

The presidency updated the Council on the 18 November International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA) Report. High Representative Solana highlighted the need to work closely with Mr El-Baradei and for the international community to stay firm and united. The presidency agreed that the issue remained difficult but it was important the European side actively supported a diplomatic solution.

Migration in External Relations

The Council agreed council conclusions on migration in external relations and underlined their significance. The presidency noted the close interest taken by Heads of Government at Hampton Court on this issue. The Commission stressed the importance of better co-coordination of work between Justice and Home Affairs, External Relations and Development and of increasing partnership with countries of origin and transit on migration issues. They particularly highlighted the need to improve engagement with sub-Saharan countries and to reinforce dia'ogue with Neighbouring countries. The Commission also hoped that the reform of the financial instruments would enable them to respond more quickly and effectively to urgent migration related situations.

EU Strategy for Africa

The Council agreed conclusions on the Commission Communication on the EU-Africa Strategy: Towards a Euro-African Pact to Accelerate Africa's Development. The Communication will form an integral part of the overall EU Strategy for Africa, which should be discussed and agreed by Foreign Ministers at the December GAERC and endorsed at the December European Council.

During separate exchanges of views in preparation for the EU-Africa Strategy, Foreign and Development ministers identified the following priorities for the strategy: African ownership; mechanisms to monitor implementation of the strategy; increasing support for peace and security, including through a long term commitment to the EU's African Peace Facility; good governance; trade and regional integration; establishing an EU-Africa infrastructure facility; meeting aid volume commitments and providing more assistance for health, education and the fight against AIDS; migration; environment; human rights; and Economic Partnership Agreements.

AOB—ASEM/Burma

The presidency highlighted the issue of Burmese participation at the Asia-Europe Meeting (ASEM) meetings and agreed that officials should take work forward and revert in due course.

AOB—Cyprus

Sweden requested the presidency update Member States on plans for the Cyprus Aid regulation. The presidency highlighted the urgency of agreeing the Regulation and invited officials to take forward work before the next GAERC.

AOB—Bulgarian Medics

At the request of Bulgaria, who highlighted that the Libyan court of appeal was allowing a new hearing on the case of the Bulgarian and Palestinian medical staff at the end of January. This might herald a positive evolution. The Bulgaria Foreign Minister thanked the presidency, the Commission and the Member States for their efforts. The presidency offered continuing support to resolve this issue.

AOB—Organisation for European Cooperation and Development (OECD) Secretary General

Poland asked for support for the candidature of ex-Prime Minister Belka.

AOB—Ethiopia/Eritrea

At the request of the Netherlands, who highlighted the serious situation in the border region between these two countries and stressed the need for the EU to work closely with the UN. The presidency agreed to discuss this issue further at the December GAERC.

DEVELOPMENT MINISTERS

EU Strategy for Africa

Details of this item are set out in the paragraph above under Foreign Ministers' discussions.

The European Consensus on Development

The Council and Commission agreed "The European Consensus on Development". This will be a Joint Declaration between the Council, European Commission and European Parliament. It is divided into two parts: the first sets out common objectives and principles to guide the EU and its 25 Member States in development, focused on poverty eradication and partner country ownership; and the second sets out the revised EC Development Policy which clarifies the Community's role and added value and ensures that priority attention be given to least developed and low income countries in resource allocation; and development shall be taken into account in other policies that affect developing countries. The European Parliament is expected to formally adopt the Declaration in December.

Orientation Debate: Effectiveness of EU External Assistance

The Council held its sixth annual "Orientation Debate" on improving the effectiveness of EU external action based on a presidency discussion paper. The Council adopted Conclusions, which highlight the significant progress made by the Commission over the past five years and the concrete measures needed over the next year to improve the quality of aid and aid delivery at EU and Community levels, including: more joint multi-annual programming; lead donor arrangements at field-level; and more predictable long term funding.

Post-Tsunami Follow-up

The Council adopted the presidency progress report on the implementation of the post-Tsunami Action Plan. There was no further discussion.

Aid for Trade

The Council discussed the package of aid for trade measures proposed by the presidency, for agreement ahead of the WTO Ministerial in Hong Kong on 13–18 December. The Council welcomed the Commission's commitment at the G8 Summit in Gleneagles to increase aid for trade to 1 billion Euros annually and agreed to aim to adopt Conclusions at the 12 December GAERC, which express its collective intention to increase aid for trade within rising aid volumes.

AOB—Pakistan Earthquake

At the request of Denmark, the Council discussed the provision of aid to the victims of the recent earthquake in Pakistan. My hon. Friend the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for International Development reported back on the Reconstruction Conference held in Islamabad on 19 November at which he represented the presidency. The Council also discussed wider reform of the international humanitarian system.

HEALTH

Learning Disability Services

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Health (Mr. Liam Byrne): Today I am publishing "Valuing People: Making things better" the Government's third annual report on learning disability services. The report describes progress made in implementing the programme of action set out in the White Paper "Valuing People: A New Strategy for Learning Disability for the 21st Century" (Cm 5086) and comments on the National Director for Learning Disabilities report "The Story So Far—A New Strategy for Learning Disability for the 21st Century" which was published in March this year.

Valuing People is a cross-Government strategy. In last year's annual report, "Valuing People: Moving Forward Together", we described areas where Government Departments worked with learning disabled people to ensure that they could be more fully included in society. It recorded a wide range of activity covering many aspects of daily life. In this year's annual report "Valuing People: Making things better" we have described:

the work of the Learning Disability Task Force —which has changed the way it works in order to focus on the things that are really important for people with a learning disability; policies set up by the Department for Education and Skills such as "Every Child Matters", the Early Support programme and "Removing Barriers to Achievement" to look at how children with learning disabilities and their families can have services that meet their specific needs. Through encouraging more joined up working, DfES have also been addressing the issues faced by young people during the transition period when leaving school and becoming an adult; issues around choice and control for people with learning disabilities and how individual budgets can help increase people's choices. In the Department of Health, the Valuing People Support team's "In Control" project has been testing out how to make individual budgets happen for certain groups of people and we aim to learn from this; and the work being done to make people with learning disabilities' day to day lives better: such as improving transport services and, under new laws such as the Disability Discrimination Act, helping make information about transport easier to understand.

Today's report, like last year's, is written in an accessible form, using pictures and straightforward, jargon-free language. It is important that people with learning disabilities can see for themselves what is being done to improve the services they use and to increase the opportunities available to them to lead the type of life the rest of us take for granted.

Valuing People said that it would take a minimum of five years for its programme to be implemented. We are now over half way through that period and continue to make good progress. However, section three of today's report outlines where the Government acknowledge changes that still need to be made. We shall be working to address these issues in the near future.

Copies of "Valuing People: Government Annual Report on Learning Disabilities 2005—Making Things Better" have been placed in the Library.

Food Standards Agency

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Health (Caroline Flint): The Food Standards Agency's annual report 2004–05 was laid before Parliament today. Copies will be placed in the Library.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Justice and Home Affairs Council

The Secretary of State for the Home Department (Mr. Charles Clarke): The Justice and Home Affairs Council will be held on 1–2 December in Brussels. I shall be chairing the majority of the meeting and my right hon. and noble Friend the Secretary of State for Constitutional Affairs and Lord Chancellor will be chairing the items on civil justice. My noble friend Baroness Ashton of Upholland will also be representing the presidency.

One of the key issues for this Council will be counter-terrorism and the Council will be asked to recognise the significant progress which has been made during the UK presidency. This will include approving the EU Strategy on Counter-Terrorism, which is designed to complement the Counter-Terrorism Action Plan by providing a longer-term strategic direction. I am also hopeful that the Council will be able to agree the draft Strategy and Action Plan on Radicalisation and Recruitment, looking at the contributing factors involved and how they can be addressed.

Following on from the discussions by Heads of State at Hampton Court, there will be a strategic discussion at Council of the Commission's contribution to the European Council Paper on a Global Approach to Migration.

The Government have emphasised throughout the presidency, the importance that we have attached to the external dimension of Justice and Home Affairs issues. To reflect this, I hope to achieve agreement to the draft Strategy on External Relations at the Council. Linked to this, and following on from the useful discussions at the informal JHA Council I hosted in Newcastle, I hope that the Council will be able to agree draft Council Conclusions on increased EU Assistance to Combating Drugs in Afghanistan.

Another key priority for the UK presidency has been to raise the profile of EU work to tackle human trafficking. This is expected to result in the agreement to a wide ranging EU Action Plan at the Council, which I very much welcome.

On the Framework Decision on Simplifying the Exchange of Information and Intelligence Between Law Enforcement Authorities, the European Council's call for political agreement was reinforced at the July Council following the terrorist attacks on London. I hope that the Council will be able to agree to a general approach on this measure, though this will pertain solely to the text of the draft instrument and not to its annexes, allowing further time for consideration and fine-tuning of the detail.

Retention of telecommunications data is a complex dossier that has been subject to intense negotiation. Reaching a first reading deal with the European Parliament before the end of 2005 remains an ambitious but achievable goal. Subject to further progress in negotiations with the European Parliament and at Ambassador level this week there remains a good chance that the Council could reach political agreement on draft Directive text. In that case I am hopeful that a First Reading agreement could be reached with the European Parliament during our presidency.

The European Evidence Warrant will provide a fast and effective way of obtaining evidence from another Member State based on the principle of mutual recognition. There still remain issues to be resolved at the Council, notably around the grounds for refusal contained in Article 15, but I hope to be able to deliver a compromise that all Member States can accept so that we can reach a general approach on this important dossier.

In the area of civil justice, three items of business will be discussed: the European Order for Payment, Small Claims and the Directive on Certain Aspects of Mediation in civil and commercial matters. This reflects the priority which we as a presidency have given civil justice. Our citizens live increasingly cross-border lives: they live, work, buy and sell across Europe's borders. EU co-operation in civil judicial matters can bring practical benefits to the lives of citizens across Europe.

At the Council, I hope that we can reach a general approach on the European Order for Payment. On the European Small Claims regulation, I hope to confirm the emerging consensus on the key principles of an effective European small claims procedure. Our aim is to achieve an accelerated and simplified procedure, as contemplated in the Tampere conclusions and re-stated in the Hague programme, based on the principle of proportionality. Lastly we intend to use the Council to reach a broad agreement on the text of the draft Directive on Mediation, subject to outstanding questions of scope and subsidiarity and pending the opinion of the European Parliament. Progress in these areas will provide citizens and businesses with a means to resolve disputes more efficiently and at less cost.

There will also be a state of play report on the Framework Decision on Certain Procedural Rights in Criminal Proceedings, which will set out the progress that has been made on this dossier and the areas of contention that still remain to be taken forward under the Austrian presidency.

In the margins of the Council, the Mixed Committee will also meet with the Icelandic Minister in the Chair. There will be a further brief discussion of the draft Framework Decision on Simplifying the Exchange of Information in this forum. There is also going to be a report on progress on the technical developments for the Schengen Information System II, to look at whether more needs to be done to help meet the 2007 timetable. Finally, I am expecting the Commission to make a presentation on its Communication on Enhanced Interaction Between the Visa Information System, Schengen Information System II and Eurodac.

Finally, in the margins of the Council, representatives of the Member States, meeting inter-governmentally, will be looking to agree Draft Conclusions on Common Minimum Security Standards for ID Cards. This will be important in addressing the weak link in EU travel documentation.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Harm Reduction: Drug use and HIV

The Secretary of State for International Development (Hilary Benn): I am placing in the Libraries of both Houses copies of the new Government paper "Harm Reduction: Tackling Drug use and HIV in the Developing world." This paper is published by DFID today in conjunction with seven other Government Departments: the Cabinet Office, the Department for Culture, Media and Sport, the Foreign and Commonwealth Office, the Department of Health, HM Treasury, the Home Office and the Department for Work and Pensions.

Drug injection with contaminated needles and syringes is one of the major means of transmission of HIV and hepatitis C in Europe, Asia and Latin America. It is also driving HIV transmission in North Africa and the Middle East and is becoming an increasing problem in Africa.[1] For example, in Kenya, Nigeria and South Africa, injecting drug use appears to be higher than has previously been realised.

The paper primarily focuses on the prevention of drug-related harm, rather than the prevention of drug use per se. This includes reducing different kinds of harm whether health, social and economic. In the context of HIV and other blood borne diseases, harm reduction aims to reduce the health and social consequences of injecting drugs.

There is substantial evidence about the effectiveness of harm reduction in preventing HIV infection among Injecting Drug Users (IDUs), especially needle and syringe exchange programmes from many countries. For example in the UK and Australia HIV infection rates among Injecting Drug Users are much lower (less than 2 per cent.) than in countries without or with insufficient programmes.

Harm reduction programmes as part of a comprehensive plan for HIV prevention, treatment and care could save millions of lives every year.

The Government view harm reduction as an important part of the overall HIV prevention strategy in countries with serious HIV epidemics among Injecting Drug Users, as well as in countries without serious HIV epidemics where harm reduction helps maintain low prevalence rates. We are working across Government to address this issue and have jointly agreed next steps. These are outlined in the paper, and cover: 1) the UK Government's understanding of harm reduction in the context of HIV; 2) the international approach for harm reduction; and 3) DFID's support and approach for harm reduction in developing countries.

DFID's approach focuses on piloting, or assisting in the national implementation of harm reduction including needle and syringe programmes, safer injecting, substitution therapy, social marketing of condoms, and peer education through government partners, and international and local NGOs.

In implementing the approach set out in this paper we will continue to work in partnership with developing country Governments, international agencies and donors, civil society, the pharmaceutical and biotechnology industries, the broader private sector and the research community.

TRANSPORT

Integrated Kent Franchise

The Secretary of State for Transport (Mr. Alistair Darling): I am announcing today that Govia has been awarded the contract to run the integrated Kent rail franchise from 1 April next year.

The contract my Department has signed commits Govia to introducing the high speed commuter trains that will use the channel tunnel rail link to serve the south-east from 2009.

Journey times for passengers who wish to travel from Ramsgate and east Kent, through the Medway towns and Thames Gateway to the centre of London will be reduced. It will be the first high speed commuter service this country has seen. In 2012 Govia will provide the flagship Olympic Javelin rail service that helped London secure the Olympic games. This will link St. Pancras and Stratford in less than eight minutes.

In addition Govia has committed to improve performance, invest around £76 million in passenger and staff facilities, oversee the construction of two depots in East Kent to maintain the new and existing fleet of trains and add a number of off peak services to the current timetable. The franchise contract is for eight years with the final two years dependent on service performance achieving preset targets.

There has been significant investment in the franchise region in recent years. The taxpayer has invested more than £600 million in new rolling stock in Kent in the last three years. In addition, Kent has seen £93 million of investment in power supply, stations, depots and related infrastructure. Some £250 million will be invested in the new high speed trains.

The total subsidy for IKF is £585 million over the eight years. It is therefore justifiable for the new operator to increase fares by 3 per cent. above inflation from January 2007 for five years to ensure there is fair balance between the taxpayer and fare paying passenger.

I am satisfied that the competition for the franchise has resulted in a contract that represents very good value for taxpayer. It is a tough contract on which Govia will be expected to deliver. It will help support the new housing and economic opportunities in the Thames Gateway area and region beyond.

Written Ministerial Statements

Thursday 1 December 2005

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Avian Influenza

The Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (Margaret Beckett): I informed the House by written ministerial statement on 15 November, Official Report, column 48WS of the publication of the epidemiological report into the incident of avian influenza in a quarantine premises in Essex. The information previously available to us suggested that no consignments of birds had occupied the quarantine premises since March. It has now been established that a further set of records had been misfiled. Though this does not materially alter the position as previously reported to the House, we have now been informed that the quarantine premises in question accommodated a consignment of birds from 15 July to 18 August this year.

The consignment is documented as comprising approximately 2,000 birds from Tanzania. In accordance with normal procedures the records show that the birds were held for the quarantine period. In addition the documentation shows that there was mortality of approximately 10 per cent. during quarantine and post mortem samples from some of the dead birds were tested at the Veterinary Laboratories Agency. Samples taken from five of the dead birds and the sentinel chickens were negative for both Avian Influenza and notifiable Newcastle Disease. The samples from the dead birds were positive for paramyxovirus two which is not a notifiable disease.

There have been no reported cases of avian influenza in Tanzania.

We have brought the new information to the attention of our National Emergency Epidemiological Group. The group has concluded that there is no reason to alter the earlier conclusion drawn from its report that the likeliest source of the infection detected in October was the mesias documented as being imported from Taiwan. The epidemiological report will be updated to include the new information.

The Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (Margaret Beckett): In my oral statement to the House on 26 October, Official Report, column 308, I referred to the work my Department is carrying out jointly with ornithologists to monitor wild birds for avian influenza in the UK. The results of this surveillance will be of interest, to varying degrees, to the House and general public. My Department has therefore established mechanisms for the reporting of the surveys findings according to the level of significance as follows.

We expect that a number of samples taken over the coming months will demonstrate the presence of low pathogenic non H5 or H7 avian influenza viruses. These have little significance in the epidemiology of avian influenza disease in domestic poultry. When these low pathogenic AI virus types (which are not H5 or H7) are isolated, they will be reported via the DEFRA website as will negative results: www.defra.gov.uk

In the event that low pathogenic avian influenza viruses of type H5 or H7 are isolated, my Department will ensure that Health colleagues are informed as early as possible and prepare a briefing document which gives a clear explanation of the findings. If appropriate, a press briefing or conference will be held jointly with Health colleagues which will seek to cover as many issues as possible. Information will be posted on the DEFRA website and stakeholders will be updated.

Should a highly pathogenic avian influenza virus of any type be isolated Health colleagues will be informed and an announcement to both Houses will be made. My Department will ensure the thorough communication of the facts to the public and arrange early stakeholder meetings to ensure that key messages are understood. Communications will take place regularly as the disease strain is identified and investigations reveal more information.

HEALTH

Strategic Health Authorities and Primary Care Trusts

The Secretary of State for Health (Ms Patricia Hewitt): In my statement of 18 October, Official Report, columns 49–50WS, I explained the need to streamline strategic health authorities (SHAs) and strengthen primary care trusts (PCTs)—all in the cause of improving services to patients. PCTs need to be able to design, plan and develop better services for all patients in their communities, to work more closely with local government, and more effectively to hold hospitals and general practitioners to account.

In my statement, I stated that SHAs had been invited to submit proposals to the Department of Health. I also explained that an external panel had been established to advise Ministers on whether the proposals for reconfiguration submitted by SHAs had adequately engaged local stakeholders and met the criteria set out in "Commissioning a Patient-Led NHS", published on 28 July.

Following consideration by the external panel and Ministers, I have agreed that all proposals for the reconfiguration of SHAs are fit to go forward for consultation on 14 December. Proposals for PCT configurations will also go forward for consultation on 14 December. The objective has been to ensure that the consultation on PCTs covers the broadest and most appropriate range of options.

John Bacon, Group Director of Health and Social Care Services Delivery in the Department of Health, has written to chief executives of SHAs to outline the proposals on which their organisations can consult. A summary of the proposals has been placed in the Library.

My noble Friend Lord Warner, the Minister of State for NHS Delivery, has written to hon. Members with constituencies in England to inform them of proposals for SHAs and PCTs in their constituencies.

All proposals will be subject to a fourteen week local consultation and I will ensure that Parliament is informed when the consultation process begins.

No decisions will be taken regarding the reconfiguration of SHAs or PCTs until the results of the local consultations have been considered and any recommendations reviewed.

NHS Finance Data

The Secretary of State for Health (Ms Patricia Hewitt): I am publishing today, for the first time, in-year financial forecasts for each National Health Service (NHS) trust, primary care trust (PCT) and strategic health authority (SHA). These figures—which, of course, have not been audited—show that half way through the financial year NHS bodies are forecasting a net deficit by year-end of around £620 million. These forecasts have been placed in the Library.

A majority of NHS organisation are successfully managing their finances as well as cutting waiting times and generally improving services. Furthermore, NHS bodies typically take a prudent approach to forecasting by including a number of risks that they effectively manage by the end of the year. At this stage last year, the equivalent forecast figure was a deficit of £499 million; however, the audited 2004–05 position shows an end year deficit of £219 million. We therefore expect—and indeed intend to ensure—that the position at the end of this year will be significantly better than these mid-year forecasts. To keep these figures in perspective: the forecast deficit amounts to less than 1 per cent. of the funding available to the NHS, and two thirds of the gross deficit is due to thirty-seven (or 7 per cent.) of organisations.

The decision to publish these unaudited financial forecasts is a major step in increasing transparency. I have made the decision to publish the data because I want to make it clear that inefficiency and poor financial management are not acceptable.

I am also announcing today a further important measure to address the problems in a minority of NHS organisations. Turnaround teams of financial and management experts are being sent to support the strategic health authorities, NHS hospital trusts and PCTs that have the biggest delivery challenges. These teams will be experienced in resolving financial problems and managing NHS organisations. They will focus on ensuring the organisations deliver the efficiency and quality improvements needed to achieve both financial balance and better care for patients.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Parades Commission

The Secretary of State for Northern Ireland (Mr. Peter Hain): I am pleased to announce today the appointment of Roger Poole as the new Chairman of the Parades Commission for Northern Ireland. I am also appointing six new Commissioners—David Burrows, Dr. Joseph Hendron, Donal MacKay, Anne Monaghan, Vilma Patterson, and Alison Scott-McKinley.

The appointments follow an open recruitment process based on merit. The new Chairman and six new members will take up their posts on 1 January 2006.

These appointments bring a completely new dynamic to the Parades Commission. The membership represents the interests of all the people of Northern Ireland. They come from a variety of backgrounds, with a broad skills mix and, for the first time, a gender balance.

I am particularly pleased that two people with personal experience and understanding of the Orange Order and the cultural importance of parades have been appointed to the Commission.

I am appointing this Commission with a mandate to work itself out of a job by helping to create an environment in which accommodations on parades can be made between the two communities without the need for formal determinations.

I am confident that Roger's down to earth approach and willingness to engage with people will help move parades towards a new era and that he will be ably supported by the rest of the Commission.

The vast majority of parades pass off peacefully but there remains about half a dozen which are highly controversial. The violence that we saw at Whiterock in September cost millions of pounds of taxpayers money but had an even greater cost in terms of community relations.

Northern Ireland will not be able to move into a truly stable and peaceful future whilst these issues remain unresolved.

TRANSPORT

EU Presidency: Transport Council

The Secretary of State for Transport (Mr. Alistair Darling): The second Transport Council of the UK presidency takes place in Brussels on 5 December. I will again be in the chair, with the Minister of State, my hon. Friend the Member for South Thanet (Dr. Ladyman) in the UK national seat.

There is a fuller agenda than in October, which will include maritime items. The main items on the agenda include: a progress report from the Commission on the recent negotiations between the European Union and USA on a comprehensive liberalised aviation agreement; revision of the directive on driving licences; and three dossiers from the third rail package.

The latest round of EU-US negotiations for an air transport agreement took place in Washington from 14 to 18 November. There will be an exchange of views following the Commissioner's report, and my summing-up will be reflected in presidency conclusions. Progress was made during the talks with the USA, but will await the outcome of a US rule-making process on ownership and control of airlines, expected sometime in the first half of 2006, before evaluating the Stage One deal on the table.

The Council will consider a draft decision authorising the Commission to open negotiations on a comprehensive aviation agreement with China. The draft mandate sets out negotiating objectives for the first phase, primarily promoting "regulatory convergence" in competition and other fields. Negotiation of market access rights would in the main be left for later phases.

In regard to aviation security, I will present a report on progress in working group negotiations on a regulation to replace the existing regulation 2320/02. The existing regulation has proved open to divergent interpretations, has no security classification, and is subject to the full co-decision procedure with the European Parliament. This has meant that implementation across the 25 Member States has been uneven, that sensitive details of security measures are in the public domain, and that the regulation is difficult to amend quickly in response to rapidly evolving security circumstance. The new proposal would help to clarify, simplify, and further harmonise the legal requirements with the aim of enhancing the overall security in civil aviation.

Turning to land transport, we will table the draft recast directive on driving licences, with a view to political agreement. This is a compromise text that reflects the opinion of the European Parliament at its first reading and builds on the common position reached at the October 2004 Transport Council. Certain Member States have political difficulty with some of its provisions because of domestic concerns, which makes the outcome uncertain.

Three elements of the third rail package are on the agenda.

We will give Council the chance to achieve a political agreement on the liberalisation of international rail passenger services directive to amend Council Directive 91/440/EEC on the development of the Community s railways. This follows the useful exchange of views at the October Council. The proposed directive creates a presumption of open access and will extend liberalisation of the international passenger rail market to any licensed train operating company. This is currently only available to international groupings. The directive will also add the right of cabotage (carrying passengers between stations in the same country) on international services. The increased open access is, though, qualified. Member States may restrict access in particular markets which are already served by services which are the subject of a public service contract if the State's regulatory body confirms that this is strictly necessary to maintain the economic equilibrium of the public service contract. The proposal would have no significant effect on the competitive environment for Eurostar or domestic train operating companies in Great Britain. This directive is supported by a significant number of Member States, although there are some reservations which may mean an agreement is not possible.

Linked to the rail liberalisation directive is the draft Public Service Obligation (PSO) regulation for public passenger transport services by rail and by road. The Council will hear a progress report, in so far as discussions on the rail liberalisation directive have touched on the content of this proposed regulation. The draft regulation sets out to ensure harmonised rules for granting of contracts to passenger transport operators, including rail operators, to provide public services.

The second element of the third rail package in which the Council will have the chance to reach a political agreement is the draft regulation on International Rail Passengers' Rights and Obligations. The regulation provides enhanced rights for passengers making international rail journeys, building on the existing provisions in the COTEF international rail convention. The enhanced rights concern, in particular, the provision of information and tickets, compensation and assistance in the event of delay to international services, and assistance for persons of reduced mobility.

The third dossier of the third rail package is the Certification of train crews operating locomotives and trains on the Community's rail network directive. This returns to the Council for political agreement, following the European Parliament's (EP) First Reading on 28 September and the general approach which was reached at the December 2004 Transport Council. The directive proposed for agreement is not materially changed from the general approach text. It includes a provision to allow Member States to exclude from the directive's applications—for a (renewable) period of up to 10 years—train drivers who exclusively operate on the territory of that Member State if it can be demonstrated that application of the directive's provisions would not be economically worthwhile.

The maritime part of the agenda has one substantive item—Maritime Employment. The Council will be asked to agree Council Conclusions, which we have promoted, under the heading "Boosting employment prospects in the Community maritime sector and attracting young people to the seafaring profession". This will fulfil the UK promise to undertake this issue which was initiated during the Greek Presidency in 2003. This voluntary agreement, an example of better regulation, will help to build up a skills base of qualified and experienced people for the future of the shipping industry. Encouraging recruitment, especially among young people, is a vital part of that process.

The Commission will report on the current situation in the Galileo satellite navigation project. The Commission hopes to present a possible resolution for the recent delays to the project. As presidency, we will continue to stress that a continuing delay would increase the costs and risks of the proposed PPP concession for the deployment phase. We. will also recall Council's previous statements on sound financial management of the project, and the need for a robust deal which benefits the Community as a whole.

The most significant of the Any Other Business items are:

Italian Minister, Pietro Lunardi and Minister of State Stephen Ladyman will make a statement on the Verona III—Informal Ministerial Conference on road safety that was held in Verona in November.

The Commissioner will make a statement on the maritime package of seven proposals, which were published on 23 November.

The Commissioner will make a statement introducing a Communication on inland navigation.

The Commissioner will make a statement on SESAR (Single European Sky ATM Research—previously known1 as SESAME), a technical programme to facilitate implementation of the Single Sky.

The Commissioner will make a communication on the European Aviation Safety Agency.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Office for Disability Issues

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (Mrs. Anne McGuire): I am pleased to inform Members today of the launch of a new unit, the Office for Disability Issues (ODI), which fulfils a key recommendation of the Prime Minister's Strategy Unit report, "Improving the Life Chances of Disabled People", published in January of this year.

The Office for Disability Issues will lead cross-government work to drive forward the report's vision of substantive equality for disabled people by 2025.

Despite great advances in civil rights and services since 1997, outcomes for disabled people have remained disappointing in a range of areas including employment, income, and education. Therefore it is vital that steps are taken now to minimise the barriers presently preventing an individual's full participation in their community and the economy. All Departments committed to the 20-year agenda set out in the Life Chances report, which will be progressed through the new Office for Disability Issues.

The ODI will provide leadership as the focal point within for key partners working to promote improved outcomes for disabled individuals throughout their lives. As a cross-government unit, it will both influence and challenge from within, foster policy and programme coherence and integration across Departments. Working with key Government Departments, the ODI will ensure prompt implementation of the Life Chances set of recommendations for achieving full substantive equality for disabled people by 2025 as well as developing a broader and more inclusive strategy.

The ODI will become an exemplar in equal opportunities, a model public sector organisation in internal practices, external relations and activities. It will ensure that the views and aspirations of disabled people are at the centre of policymaking, by reaching out to organisations and individuals at every step, and bringing external expertise into the ODI itself. We will, for example, be advertising externally for a senior ODI post in the New Year. It will change the way Government communicate with disabled people and organisations, embedding stakeholder engagement in its day-to-day work. Using these networks, and analytical resources, the ODI will become a source of information and expertise on disability and support to Government Departments, and work to influence public perception and build awareness of disability issues.

A core team is already in place taking this work forward, and is engaging with a wide range of individuals and organisations, and sought views specifically on the ODI earlier this year. Feedback from this exercise informed our thinking on the role and remit of the Office, and is available on the ODI website, which is also being launched today.

While individual departments retain responsibility for delivery and outcomes, the ODI will take forward some specific recommendations from the Life Chances report. This includes facilitating the cross-departmental Ministerial and supporting Officials steering Groups (these groups were established at the beginning of this year). I am very grateful to my Ministerial colleagues for their valuable work so far on the Ministerial steering group.

The ODI will also collate and edit an annual report on progress towards the vision for substantive equality for disabled people by 2025; and will develop a set of outcome-based measures to track this progress. An independent advisory group is currently being appointed to scope out the role and remit of a National Forum for Organisations of Disabled People. The ODI will also be setting up a Task Force on Independent Living.

In addition to fulfilling recommendations in the Life Chances report, the ODI will take a broader view of disability, encompassing areas not covered in the Life Chances report. This will include supporting other Government Departments in the effective implementation of the 2005 Disability Discrimination Act's public sector duty to promote equality for disabled people. As well as being a collective resource for, the ODI will also specifically support the Minister with responsibility for disabled people.

Written Ministerial Statements

TREASURY

Budget ECOFIN: 24 November 2005

The Economic Secretary to the Treasury (Mr. Ivan Lewis): I chaired the Economic and Financial Affairs Budget Council (Budget ECOFIN) on 24 November 2005. The Permanent Representative to the European Union, Sir John Grant, represented the UK. The trilateral meeting with the European Parliament and the Commission, designed to reach an agreement on the 2006 EC Budget, was extended until 30 November since it was not possible to reach an agreement on 24 November. This was due to European Parliament not being able to continue negotiations after midnight on 24 November.

An agreement on the 2006 EC Budget was concluded between the Council and the European Parliament on 30 November. The agreement establishes total payment levels of €111,969 million (1.0100 per cent. of EU GNI), an increase to certain co-decided programmes of €100 million, and a mobilisation of the flexibility instrument of €275 million (of which €40 million is to be spent on CFSP). Agreement was also reached on the other agenda items carried forward from 24 November.

The Council duly concluded its second reading of the 2006 EC budget as an "A" point at the JHA Council on Thursday 1 December. The European Parliament is scheduled to vote on its own second reading on 15 December in Strasbourg, after which the 2006 EC Budget will be formally adopted.

Response to Globalisation

The Chancellor of the Exchequer (Mr. Gordon Brown): With companies, Governments and individuals all having to respond to the scale, speed and scope of a changing global economic environment, I am today announcing a package of measures to respond to the challenges and opportunities of globalisation.

I am today publishing a paper, "Globalisation and the UK—strength and opportunity to meet the economic challenge", that sets out Britain's policy response to the key challenges and opportunities of globalisation, in particular in skills, science, regulation, transport, and planning.

In the 2005 Budget I commissioned Sir George Cox to conduct a review into how best to apply creativity and innovation to improve UK firms' productivity and performance. His report is published today.

In the same Budget I asked Sir John Pattison to develop a 10-year strategy for UK stem cell research. He has published his report today.

Taking forward the goals from the 10-year science and innovation investment framework, I am announcing:

a new partnership with the biomedical industry, as a result of which the industry expects to grow its investment in UK medical R&D by £500 million per year in the near term rising to £1 billion in the longer term—an increase of some 30 per cent. ;

a new national institute for health research in the NHS, with around 10 major centre grants to support centres of excellence, 250 clinical academic fellowships, 100 clinical lectureship training opportunities a year, and a series of measures to streamline regulatory burdens on the research community; which my colleague, the Secretary of State for Health will build upon when she announces the new research and development strategy for the NHS in January;

a new commitment to develop the capability within the national NHS IT system to facilitate—within the bounds of patient confidentiality—9i) the recruitment of patients to clinical trials, and (ii) the gathering of data to support groundbreaking work to improve public health; in response to Sir John Pattisson's report, an extra £50 million over the next two years to make the UK a world leader in stem cell research, to take forward the recommendations of the UK Stem Cell Initiative (UKSCI) Report. The detailed response to the UKSCI report is available at:

http://www.dh.gov.uk/PolicyAndGuidance/HealthAndSocialCareTopics/StemCell/fs/en

a review into the intellectual property framework led by Andrew Gowers and reporting in Autumn 2006. While recognising that the Government believe the present UK system broadly strikes the right balance between consumers and rights' holders, it is important to examine whether improvements could be made; publication of the Government's response to discussions with business on the development of the R&D tax credit, including major improvements to the administration of the scheme to ensure that all businesses get the full value from the R&D tax credit; and in response to Sir George Cox's report, plans for a network of creativity and innovation centres in every region of the country to nurture emerging talent and build links between businesses and the creative sector.

Copies of the globalisation paper, the paper on discussions of the R&D tax credit and the reports of Sir George Cox and Sir John Pattison are available in the Vote Office and the Library of the House.

DEFENCE

Gulf Veterans' Illnesses

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Defence (Mr. Don Touhig): A key principle of the Government's approach to addressing the health concerns of veterans of the 1990–91 Gulf conflict is that there should be appropriate research into veterans' illnesses and factors that may have a bearing on these.

In their 2003 Review of Research into 1990–91 Gulf veterans' illnesses, the Medical Research Council included the recommendation that information from existing epidemiological and mortality studies should be linked. The Ministry of Defence subsequently commissioned a study led by Professor Macfarlane, of the University of Aberdeen. A paper reporting the results of the study is available on the website of the International Journal of Epidemiology in advance of hard-copy publication. The study examined both the longer-term mortality of Gulf veterans and, for those veterans that participated in the main epidemiological surveys of UK Gulf veterans, whether there was any relationship between self-reported experiences during deployment or illness at the time of survey, and subsequent death. The researchers report that, 13 years after the end of the 1990–91 Gulf conflict, there is no difference in the overall mortality of Gulf veterans compared with a similar group that did not deploy. The paper also says that an increase in death associated with certain reported exposures is not statistically significant and that excess illness reported by veterans during health surveys was not related to an increased risk of death.

A summary of the findings is available on the journal website and via a link on the MOD website at: www.mod.uk/issues/gulfwar/whats_new.htm.

DEPUTY PRIME MINISTER

Local Government Pension Scheme

The Minister for Local Government (Mr. Phil Woolas): My statement to the House on 13 July made it clear that, taking account of costed assessments of the effect on the Local Government Pension Scheme (the LGPS) of reinstating the rule of 85 with effect from 1 April 2005, the Deputy Prime Minister would come forward with new regulations in the autumn to address the consequences for the scheme in time for the provisions to be in place from April 2006.

Careful consideration has been given to the representations and specialist actuarial advice received from interested parties involved with the Scheme, and to the helpful discussions involving the key stakeholders within the framework of the LGPS Tripartite Committee. The estimates provided by LGPS administering authorities of the anticipated cost pressures arising from the decision to reinstate the rule of 85 in the scheme with effect from 1 April 2005, have also been taken into account. Draft amending regulations will shortly be circulated for consultation to all LGPS interests in England and Wales and will be laid before Parliament in the New Year once they are finalised.

The combined scope of the consultation package and the subsequent regulations will secure the on-going solvency of the scheme without any additional calls on central or local government budgets. This meets the Government's intention to secure the continued affordability and long term viability of the scheme, and its acceptability to taxpayers.

Amending regulations, on which the necessary statutory consultation begins shortly, will directly contribute towards mitigating and managing the costs pressures arising from the decision to reinstate the rule of 85 in respect of pension liabilities accruing on the scheme for the period 1 April 2005 until 30 September 2006. Other amendments, based on the responses received from a previous consultation exercise carried out over the summer, will further extend the existing flexibilities in the LGPS linked to the new tax regime for occupational pension schemes already established by the Finance Act 2004.

Further scheme amendments are also necessary to implement the terms of the European Employment Directive 2000/78/EC which establishes a general framework for equal treatment in employment and occupation. To give effect to the Directive and compliance with the timetable for associated Government legislation on age discrimination and employment law being introduced by DTI, the effective date for the removal of the rule of 85 from the LGPS will be 1 October 2006. Subject to the outcome of the proposed consultation exercise, it will be necessary to put in place appropriate safeguards, which can be objectively justified, for those LGPS members closest to retirement to take effect from the same date. The statutory consultation will provide a framework for discussion between the local authority employers and the trades unions in particular about the precise terms of these safeguards, and to explore how these may be associated both with the current proposed scheme changes, and others which may be developed in the wider discussion about the future of the scheme.

Balancing the scope of such safeguards with the opportunity to develop the longer term reform of equality proofed scheme will form an integral part of the discussions and negotiations which the Tripartite Committee stakeholders have already agreed to undertake over the next six months. These will involve local authority employers, trades unions and other scheme interests in a programme of discussion and analysis to modernise and reform the scheme. These discussions will take account of wider pension policy developments, to ensure the LGPS can meet the challenges of a changing and flexible workforce, in and around local government, and deal effectively with the high incidence of part-time employees many of whom are female on lower incomes.

It is intended to consult widely on a policy discussion paper, about the proposed way forward for the LGPS in the summer of 2006 for analysis and comment. This will allow a subsequent statutory consultation to begin later in the autumn of 2006, leading to new scheme provisions for April 2007 with the ultimate objective of having a new-look LGPS in place for April 2008.

The continued affordability and viability of the scheme, as well as its acceptability to taxpayers, remains a central theme of the Government's intentions for the LGPS. So too is our commitment towards ensuring the scheme offers an equality proofed pension framework for all its increasingly diverse and part-time workforce. Delivering an effective and affordable balance between the cost of its provision to employers and tax payers on the one hand, and fairness to scheme members on the other, remains a priority, within the overall resource framework of local government and of other employers within the scheme. A flexible and attractive pension scheme for local government and employers associated with it is now required.

This statement is in effect, the beginning of a series of detailed consultations with all LGPS interests about the future of the scheme. Initially, the affordability of the existing LGPS must be established but, in doing that, it is essential to begin to move forward and begin to discuss and analyse the possible form and content of a new-look LGPS for 2008. All LGPS interests are committed to that intent and objective.

Planning Delivery Grant

The Minister for Housing and Planning (Yvette Cooper): In July 2002 my right hon. Friend the Deputy Prime Minister announced that he would be making an additional £350 million available to local authorities over the period 2003–06 to improve the delivery of planning services. Since then, we have announced that the Planning Delivery Grant (PDG) will continue, with a further £255 million being made available in the period to 2008. We have now decided the basis on which we will distribute the Development Control and Enterprise Areas allocations of the Planning Delivery Grant of £135 million in 2006–07 and will be informing recipients of their provisional allocations.

The grant is performance related. Our aim is to enhance the resourcing of the planning system in a way that drives performance improvement and ensures effective delivery of our objectives for sustainable communities. It is specifically targeted towards meeting the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister's Public Service Agreements (PSA) 5 and 6. PSA 5 aims to achieve a better balance between housing availability and demand. PSA 6 requires all authorities to have local development frameworks in place (in accordance with agreed Local Development Schemes) and to meet the Best Value development control targets by 31 March 2007.

I can confirm today that the development control allocation is £78 million (57.7 per cent. of the total grant), with £71 million going direct to authorities to reward their improvement towards and achievement of Best Value development control targets in the period October 2004 to June 2005. The assessment is based on three quarterly performance figures this year because the announcement of the first allocation of PDG has been brought forward. It is now in line with other announcements of grant and this will help to increase certainty in local authority budget setting processes. This allocation will be paid to local planning authorities at a district and county level, national parks, regional planning bodies, the Broads Authority and the Greater London Authority. A provisional £2.2 million is also being made available to authorities with Enterprise Areas in their boundary.

This year we have increased the incentive for authorities to meet targets by allocating three quarters of the overall development control allocation for meeting targets and a quarter for performance improvement. In addition authorities that meet all three targets will receive a bonus of £50,000. The awards will be weighted to take account of workload and performance, and the rewards for meeting the major targets, or improving in this area, will be weighted more significantly.

For the first time there will be a topslice of £7 million from this development control total, which be used to support authorities towards meeting the target. There will be a topslice from this development control total, which be used to support authorities towards meeting the target. We agreed following a review of development control carried out with the Prime Minister's Delivery Unit that up to £5 million would be made available to the Planning Advisory Service and ATLAS, the team supporting authorities dealing with large housing applications in the south east. A topslice of £2 million from this total will be used to reward and incentivise authorities that are proactive in performance management of applications, especially through the use of electronic tracking of applications, and handling of backlogs. I will make a further announcement on what this will entail, early in 2006.

As in previous years, the development control allocations are subject to an abatement related to performance on appeals. Where an authority's performance on appeal is 40 per cent. worse than the national average (32.63 per cent. of appeals upheld against the authority), 10 per cent. of their development control allocation will be abated. Where this performance is 50 per cent. worse than the average, this abatement will increase to 20 per cent. of the development control allocation. This condition underlines the continuing importance we place on quality in decision making.

Grant allocations are not ring-fenced and authorities have complete discretion in the way they spend this money. However, to encourage investment for the future, 25 per cent. of the total grant paid to any individual authority must be spent on capital. The remaining 75 per cent. can be spent by the local authority on resource or capital budgets.

The final condition imposed on authorities ensures that the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister has the power to act appropriately to partly withhold payment or recover part or all of grant paid where there are concerns over the accuracy or proven inaccuracies in the information on which allocations were made. I may consider withholding up to 10 per cent. of the grant allocated to authorities whose Best Value Performance Indicator 109 (BVPI 109) has been qualified by the auditor until we have established to our satisfaction the reason for the qualification and the reliability of the data on which grant was allocated. Following this I may seek to recover some or all of the monies paid to those authorities.

Today's announced allocation remains provisional and so remains subject to a final determination of grant which will occur when the second announcement is made.

The second announcement will cover all other aspects of the grant including rewards for e-planning (£5.7 million), plan-making (£20.8 million), high housing demand and growth areas (£16 million) and low demand pathfinder areas (£2.5 million). It will also include topslices for the Planning Inspectorate (£2 million), Regional Planning Bodies (£6.5 million), the GLA (£100,000) and a national initiative of planning bursaries (£1.32 million). This second announcement is expected to be made in March 2006. All theses figures, along with those for development control and enterprise areas, remain provisional and subject to final determination by Ministers with agreement by Treasury.

A table showing the provisional amounts payable is available in the Libraries of both Houses. This sets out the details of each recipient's provisional grant allocations for development control and enterprise areas and abatements for poor appeals performance.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Environment Council

The Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (Margaret Beckett): I will chair the second Environment Council under the UK presidency on Friday 2 December October in Brussels. The Minister of State for Climate Change and Environment, will also attend, as the UK representative.

At this Council we will aim to secure partial political agreement on the LIFE + regulation, the only dedicated community financial instrument for the environment. We cannot reach a final agreement on the overall budget until the wider future financing negotiations are completed, but we want to agree the rest of the text at this meeting, to ensure that we can move as quickly as possible to adopt the Regulation before the current LIFE extension runs out at the end of 2006.

We will be discussing the Commission's recent Communication on aviation emissions, which supports the integration of aviation into the EU emissions trading scheme. We are seeking Council Conclusions to give the Commission a clear steer from Member States on the best way to tackle the impact on climate change of aviation emissions.

Council will also be asked to agree Conclusions preparing for the International Conference on Chemicals Management which will be held in Dubai in February 2006, and is scheduled to adopt the Strategic Approach to International Chemicals Management (SAICM).

Council will debate the Thematic Strategy on Air Quality which sets out the Commission's policy on air pollution up to 2020, and the associated proposal for a new Air Quality Directive. The focus of the discussion will be how the objectives under the Thematic Strategy might be delivered, and the balance in the Directive between new measures to reduce the environmental and health impacts of air pollution, and flexibility for Member States to comply with their obligations.

Finally, Council will debate next steps on GMOs. There was a short discussion on this issue at the October Environment Council, where we undertook to enable a further debate at the December Council, focussing on member states views of which aspects of policy on GM crops and food merit further in-depth analysis and political discussion, such as the potential risks and benefits of GM technology (including the regulatory regime and the decision-making process for individual GMOs) and the need for further research.

Under "Any Other Business", points will be raised on: the Biodiversity Strategy; the Nanotechnology Action Plan; Green Public Procurement; the Importation of Wild Birds; Action for the Baltic Marine Environment; and the Clean Clever and Competitive Initiative.

Common Agricultural Policy

The Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (Margaret Beckett): My right hon. Friend the Chancellor of the Exchequer and I have today published a paper which contributes to the debate already underway on how to achieve a sustainable future for agriculture.

We have presented a vision for what a sustainable model of European agriculture might look like in the future to benefit Europe and the rest of the world.

The paper does not set out a route map for getting there. That must be the subject of inclusive debate across Europe and achieved through a carefully planned process and to a manageable timescale.

Through the modernised European agriculture policy set out in this paper, we believe we can achieve the following goals:

Society can contribute less financially to agriculture but reap much greater benefits.

Consumers can have a secure supply of cheaper, safe, high quality food.

Developing countries can achieve significant economic growth.

Farmers in Europe can become more competitive and market focused.

The rural environment can be improved.

Rural development can be boosted, particularly in some of the poorest parts of the European Union.

Copies of the paper will be placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

MPs' Briefing Sessions

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (Jim Knight): On 20 October my right hon. Friend the Leader of the House of Commons announced a series of dates for briefing sessions on the work of Government Departments for new Members of Parliament, Official Report, column 63WS.

DEFRA has arranged two further sessions: Monday 12 December for Rural Affairs issues and Tuesday 10 January 2006 for Environment issues. Due to unforeseen circumstances the original briefing session on 24 January 2006 has had to be postponed. A new date will be announced as soon as possible.

Hon. Members should contact Deirdre Kennedy, Parliamentary Clerk at DEFRA on 0207 238 5455 to register an interest in attending.

TRANSPORT

Vehicle Register

The Minister of State, Department for Transport (Dr. Stephen Ladyman): I will shortly be launching a review of the provisions (Regulation 27 of the Road Vehicles (Registration and Licensing) Regulation 2002 (S.I. 2002/2742) which replaced previous similar provisions), under which data is released from the Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency's vehicle register. The provisions governing the release of this data have, in effect, been in place and worked effectively for over 40 years. When these provisions were originally introduced they did not envisage the introduction of electronic databases, the large number of vehicles now on the roads, or the range of bodies now requesting access.

Concerns have also recently been raised about the breadth of organisations that have access to the register. For these reasons, I will publish a consultation paper early in the New Year which will review the purpose, scope and operation of the release of data from the vehicle register.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Performance Targets

The Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (Mr. John Hutton): I am pleased to be able to announce today performance targets in respect of the customer-facing businesses of the Department for Work and Pensions.

In line with the Department's Public Service Agreement we are committed to improving the efficiency and effectiveness of our services. In order to demonstrate this, our businesses aim to achieve published unit cost targets.

The Child Support Agency target was published in its 2005–06 Agency Business Plan. The table below sets out our 2005–06 targets for Jobcentre Plus, the Pension Service and the Disability and Carers Service together with the published targets and actual unit costs for 2004–05.

	Definition	2004–05 Actual £	2004–05 Target £	2005–06 Target £
Jobcentre Plus	Benefit processing	28.07	28.18 [1]31.00	[1]28.24
	Job broking	208.02	191.49 [1]216.78	[1]217.03
The Pension Service	Cost per customer	25.07	24.00 [2]28.56	[2]25.50
Disability and Careers Service	Cost per customer contact	133.17	132.15	131.56

1. Jobcentre Plus revised the methodology of calculation for the 2005–06 target as a result of an allocation process that more accurately identifies the costs for benefit processing and job broking. The 2004–05 target has been recalculated on the same basis to enable comparison with the 2005–06. The increase from restated 2004–05 target to 2005–06 is explained by a small increase in expenditure on Employment Programmes, which is a reflection of the focus during 2005–06 on harder to help clients.
2. With improvements in management information, and a levelling off in Pension Credit load, the Pension Service decided that the methodology for calculating unit costs should be changed, removing the double counting of customers entitled to both State Pension and Pension Credit. This resulted in a lower average.

TREASURY

Regulatory Reform Order

The Economic Secretary to the Treasury (Mr. Ivan Lewis): The Treasury has today issued a consultation paper on a Regulatory Reform Order which proposes to cut unnecessary consultation by the Financial Services Authority (FSA), to make it easier for the FSA to tailor regulation to industry's needs and to improve the FSA's operational efficiency in other areas. Copies of the consultation paper have been placed in both Libraries of the House and it is accessible at www.hm-treasury.gov.uk.

Review of National Insurance Contributions

The Paymaster General (Dawn Primarolo): I have completed the annual review under section 141 of the Social Security Administration Act 1992. I propose the following changes to take effect from 6 April 2006. These rates and limits will also apply to national insurance contributions in Northern Ireland.

Employers and Employees

In line with the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992, the lower earnings limit for primary Class 1 contributions is to be raised to £84 a week. It is set at the level of the basic state pension for a single person from April 2006 and rounded down to the nearest pound.

The primary and secondary thresholds for Class 1 contributions will continue to be aligned with the weekly amount of the income tax personal allowance, which will be increased to £5,035 from April 2006. The primary and secondary thresholds will therefore be increased to £97 a week. This means that no tax or Class 1 contributions will actually be paid on earnings below this level.

The upper earnings limit for primary Class 1 contributions will be raised to £645.

The self-employed

The rate of Class 2 contributions will be frozen at £2.10 a week.

Self-employed people with earnings below the annual small earnings exception can apply to be exempted from paying Class 2 contributions. This limit will be raised by £120 to £4,465 in line with inflation.

The annual lower profits limit for liability to Class 4 contributions will increase to £5,035 a year (in line with the income tax personal allowance). The upper profits limit will increase by £780 to £33,540, to maintain the link with employees' earnings liable to Class 1 contributions.

Class 3

The rate of Class 3 voluntary contributions will be increased by 20 pence to £7.55 a week.

Share fishermen

The special rate of Class 2 contributions for share fishermen, which allows them to build entitlement to contributory Jobseeker's Allowance in addition to the other contributory benefits available to the self-employed, will be frozen at £2.75 a week.

Volunteer Development Workers

The special rate of Class 2 contributions for volunteer development workers, which entitles them to the full range of contributory benefits, will be increased by 10 pence to £4.20 in line with the statutory formula of 5 per cent. of the primary Class 1 lower earnings limit.

Treasury Grant

I need to ensure that the Fund can maintain a prudent working balance throughout the coming year. In accordance with section 2 (2) of the Social Security Act 1993, I propose to do so by prescribing that the maximum Treasury Grant which may be made available to the Fund in 2006–07 shall not exceed 2 per cent. of the estimated benefit expenditure for that year. Similar provision will be made in respect of the Northern Ireland National Insurance Fund.

I shall be laying a draft re-rating order before Parliament in due course. This will accompany a report by the Government Actuary to myself and my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions which we shall jointly present to Parliament.

The following table sets out the rates, earnings limits and thresholds for National Insurance Contributions proposed for 2006–07.

National insurance contributions, proposed re-rating, April 2006

Item	2006–07
Lower earnings limit, primary Class 1	£84
Upper earnings limit, primary Class 1	£645
Primary threshold	£97
Secondary threshold	£97
Employees' primary Class 1 rate	11 per cent. from £97.01 to £645 plus 1 per cent. above £645
Employees' contracted out rebate	1.6 per cent.
Married women's reduced rate	4.85 per cent. from £97.01 to £645 plus 1 per cent. above £645
Employers' secondary Class 1 rate	12.8 per cent. on earnings above £97
Employers'contracted-out rebate, salary-related schemes	3.5 per cent.
Employers contracted-out rebate, money-purchase schemes	1 per cent.
Class 2 rate	£2.10
Class 2 Small earnings exception	£4,465
Special Class 2 rate for share fishermen	£2.75
Special Class 2 rate for volunteer development workers	£4.20
Class 3 rate	£7.55
Class 4 Lower profits limit	£5,035

HM Revenue and Customs

The Paymaster General (Dawn Primarolo): The Child and Working Tax Credits are today benefiting over 6 million families and 10 million children. Tax credits tailor support to families' specific circumstances, providing more support when their need is greatest. They represent a more generous and inclusive system of income-based financial support than any previous system.

Over the past seven years the Government have reformed Britain's tax and benefit system to achieve three over-arching aims: to provide adequate financial incentives to work; to reduce child poverty; and to recognise the responsibilities of parenthood by supporting families with children. These reforms have helped make work pay and reduce the numbers of children in absolute poverty by one and a half million. Tax Credits have been an important part of this success and they represent the best way to continue it in the future.

In my statement of May 26 I outlined six measures to improve the administration of tax credits. These aimed to improve HMRC's communications with tax credit recipients, reduce the risk of errors and improve the procedures for recovering overpayments. Significant progress has been made in each of these areas.

Building on these improvements to the administration of the system, the Government are today announcing a package of further improvements most of which will come into effect over the next 18 months. The measures reflect the experience of the first years of operating the tax credit system and strike a balance between providing more certainty and stability of financial support for families, while maintaining flexibility to respond to changes in their income and circumstances. The measures also include clear responsibilities for claimants to report changes affecting their award.

The tax credits system is an annual one—integrated with the tax system—within which payments can be adjusted to reflect changes in a family's circumstances and income. Under an annual system, given a family's final entitlement cannot be known until the end of the year, some level of end-year adjustment will be necessary. However, for some families, especially those on lower incomes, downward adjustments to tax credit payments—to reflect changes in circumstances reported within the year or when awards are renewed—can sometimes cause difficulties. This is a particular problem where claimants had not realised their payments were too high. Better communications, which is a key part of the measures announced on 26 May, will help by improving claimants' understanding of the system.

Today's measures will improve matters further, providing greater certainty for claimants, especially those on lower incomes, through measures to reduce the need for adjustments caused by rising income and to limit the effects of adjustments. These are supported by measures to reduce the likelihood of unexpected downward adjustments resulting from inaccurate or out of date information about a family's income or circumstances.

Analysis of overpayments suggests that they result from a number of factors: income rises from one year to the next; families overestimating the extent to which their income has fallen when they seek extra support during the year; provisional payments made at the start of the tax year, which are based on out-of-date information that is subsequently updated when the award is renewed; and delays in reporting changes in families' personal circumstances to HMRC.

The improvements announced today will provide greater certainty for claimants, particularly those on lower incomes, while maintaining flexibility to respond to falls in income and changes in circumstances.

To increase the flexibility of the system, from April 2006 there will be an increase in the limit on the amount that family income can rise over the current tax year without affecting tax credit entitlement for that year. The current annual income disregard of £2,500 will increase to £25,000. This will mean that, for instance, a family where a non-working partner moves into work on average earnings will not see their increased income lead to a fall in their tax credit entitlement during that year. This will maintain the incentives for people to move into work, while removing a major cause of the overpayments seen in the first two years of the system's operation.

To provide greater certainty of award for claimants, from November 2006, automatic limits will be imposed on the extent to which tax credit payments can be reduced to recover higher payments in the earlier part of the year which could lead to an overpayment for the year as a whole. These limits will be set at the same levels at which overpayments from a previous tax year are currently recovered. This will guarantee that low- to middle-income families do not face large and sudden falls in their tax credit income, and reassure people who report changes promptly.

To tackle the problem of families overestimating falls in income, from April 2007, when claimants report a fall in expected income during the year, their tax credit payments will be adjusted for the rest of the year to reflect their new income level, but will no longer include a one-off payment for the earlier part of the year. At the end of the year, their award will be finalised when their actual income is known. If they have been underpaid, a further payment will then be made. This approach will provide a buffer against any overpayment accumulated by the family during the year, especially where their estimate of income proves to have been too low.

Today's measures will also give claimants clear responsibilities to report changes promptly and more regularly. They will be helped to keep their records up to date, including through more proactive contact by HMRC, allowing HMRC to base tax credit awards on the best possible information.

In summer 2006 the deadline for providing information to finalise and renew tax credit awards will be brought forward by one month to shorten the period during which provisional payments may be made using out-of-date information.

From November 2006, the range of changes reducing entitlement that must be reported to HMRC within three months will be expanded to include changes in work status or in the number of children for which the family can claim support. From April 2007, the time allowed to report such changes will be reduced from three months to one.

In early 2007, towards the end of the tax year, HMRC will contact key groups of claimants to obtain more up-to-date income information on which to base the next year's payments while the finalisation process is completed. And from 2008–09, the income figure used in setting provisional payments will be uprated by average earnings where up to date information has not been provided.

In line with its commitment when tax credits were announced in 2002, the Government have looked to learn from the early operation of the system and will continue to do so. Together these measures, and the six measures currently being implemented by HMRC, will lead to steady and ongoing improvements in the tax credits system, allowing it to deliver support even more effectively to millions of families. Without the changes announced today, initial estimates suggest that subsequent years' overpayments would be of broadly the same level as in 2003–04. When fully implemented, it is anticipated that today's changes will reduce the value of overpayments by around one third. I am still considering whether there is more that can be done to alert claimants about the recovery of an overpayment before HMRC starts to collect it but the scale of changes to the computer system that would be needed mean that this could not be done quickly.

I believe that these further measures will help to ensure that tax credits strike the right balance between flexibility and certainty for claimants and give clear messages about the need to report changes to HMRC. They are a positive response to the issues raised by the Ombudsman and others and will go a long way to meet the concerns they have expressed.

A case has been made for a system of fixed awards, which within the framework of the annual tax credits system, would need to be based on the previous year's income. The Government will continue to listen to the case, but believe on balance that it is preferable to maintain the current system that flexibly responds to changing circumstances.

The PBR sets out the actions the Government are taking to continue improving compliance in the tax credit system. As announced on 2 December, as part of their ongoing compliance work, HMRC have identified and stopped attempts to defraud the tax credits system by making claims through the tax credits e-portal. HMRC has closed the e-portal while it develops new checks to ensure the system remains secure. A criminal investigation is also being undertaken into the apparent false use of a number of DWP staff identities in fraudulent tax credit claims. It would not be appropriate to make any further public statement at this stage.

DWP and HMRC are carrying out an in-depth investigation into how this happened. They are also working quickly to identify the records concerned and to ensure they are corrected.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Independent Licensing Fees

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport (James Purnell): I am pleased to inform the House that I have today formally published the interim report of an independent panel that has been set up to consider whether the licensing fees are set at the right level.

The panel's terms of reference are to:

- consider whether the fees cover the full cost to licensing authorities;
- identify the scale, extent and nature of any problems encountered by licensees/licence payers and licensing authorities;
- make recommendations about how the existing fee structure and levels could be developed;
- ensure best practice is being fully realised across all authorities; and
- identify how the regime could be developed to address any other issues including impact of the fees scales on sports clubs, village and community halls.

While the panel, which includes representatives of local government, local communities and industry, has collectively concluded that it is too early to take a view on the current fee levels associated with the Licensing Act 2003, it has made the following initial recommendations to the Government:

- There should be a central source of information on fees addressed to licence payers, which explains why the system has changed, what the new system does for licence payers and their duties and responsibilities, as well as what licensing authority responsibilities are to licence payers.
- An annual date should be set for the payment of the annual fee with incentives for paying it.
- Consideration should be given to simplifying the application process, particularly in relation to advertising applications and clarification of the requirement for "professionally" drawn premises plans.
- There should be no impediment to licensing authorities making their monitoring, enforcement, and administration more efficient and cost effective.

We will now fully consider the panel's recommendations.

The interim report also identifies areas that the panel will now consider further, including:

- Licensing Authority income and costs.
- Licensing Authority inspection and enforcement regimes and the variability of Licensing Authority approach.
- The model for calculating fees.
- Simplification and number of applications.
- Temporary event notices.
- Not-for-profit groups (including sports clubs and village halls) and events and circuses
- Large events and festivals.

The panel is due to publish a final report on the fee levels in the autumn of 2006. Where it is able to do so, it will make further recommendations in advance of its full report.

I can re-affirm today that costs incurred by local authorities in meeting their requirements under the new Licensing Act will (provided they have been incurred legitimately and efficiently) be fully met by fees within the national fee regime. There should therefore be no liability for the council tax payer because of the new licensing regime. My Department and the Local Government Association will work with the independent fees review panel as a matter of urgency to agree the process for verifying these costs.

Everyone involved in the new fees system can rest assured that, if evidence proves that the current system needs fine-tuning, we are fully committed to doing just that.

Copies of the report have been deposited in the Libraries of both Houses and are available at www.culture.gov.uk.

DEFENCE

Northern Ireland Battalion 1

The Minister of State, Ministry of Defence (Mr. Adam Ingram): As part of our normal process of keeping force levels under review, the General Officer Commanding Northern Ireland (GOC NI), in consultation with the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland and Chief Constable of the Police Service of Northern Ireland (PSNI), has concluded that the remaining roulement battalion can be removed from his command as it is not required for routine support to the police in Northern Ireland. This follows a rundown in the requirement such that the tasks currently performed by this battalion can be delivered instead by resident battalions. Accordingly, the battalion known as Northern Ireland Battalion 1 (NIBAT 1) can be removed from the command of the GOC NI to Commander in Chief Land on the 16 January 2006.

This is a prudent measure to provide military support to the police efficiently and does not reflect the Army's ability to support the PSNI in countering the threat from terrorism and preventing potential public disorder. We will continue to keep force levels in Northern Ireland under regular review to match the support required by the PSNI.

DEPUTY PRIME MINISTER

National Non-Domestic Rates

The Minister for Local Government (Mr. Phil Woolas): I have today presented the provisional Local Government Finance Settlement for 2006–07. Included in the announcement was the distributable amount of National Non-Domestic Rates in England for 2006–07 to be redistributed to local authorities, which will be £17.5 billion.

The provisional national non-domestic rating multiplier for 2006–07 is 0.433 (43.3p in the pound) and the provisional small business non-domestic rating multiplier for 2006–07 is 0.426 (42.6p in the pound).

The calculation of the distributable amount for 2006–07 is set out in the table below.

Notes:

The above calculation involves estimating several figures that are inherently difficult to forecast accurately, such as the gross rate yield and the prior year adjustments. The resulting figure of £17.413 billion has therefore been rounded to £17.500 billion exactly to avoid spurious accuracy.

For 2002–03, 2003–04 and 2004–05, the amounts shown are generally those reported on the outturn (NNDR3) returns, with those for 2003–04 and 2004–05 being regarded as provisional in advance of the receipt of audited returns from all billing authorities. For 2005–06, the amounts shown are the provisional outturn for the year based upon authorities' provisional contributions to the non-domestic rating pool, largely as reported on NNDR1 and—where submitted—NNDR2 returns. For 2006–07, the estimates are based on:

1. Item 1: The gross rate yield represents the estimated effective total rateable value of non-domestic hereditaments on local rating lists multiplied by the small business non-domestic rating multiplier of 42.6p. The supplement of 0.7p that is also applied to businesses paying for the small business rate relief is not included, and neither is the small business rate relief included within the reliefs at item l(i). This reflects the fact that the income from the supplement is intended to equal the cost of the relief nationally, resulting in a zero net effect upon the Distributable Amount.
2. Item l(i)(a): the cost of the transitional reliefs in 2006–07 is estimated to be £300 million, to reflect the fact that the increase in the multiplier for 2005–06 onwards to take account of expected losses from appeals has had an impact upon the in-year revenue neutrality of the transitional arrangements. At least part of this cost will be recouped once the appeals take effect, and the power exists to adjust the multiplier in later years as necessary.
3. Item l(i)(b): net small business rate relief. This is assumed to be zero: see note 1, above.
4. Item l(i)(c): The empty properties relief includes voids and partially occupied hereditaments.
5. Item l(i)(d): Charitable rate relief.
6. Item l(i)(e): Rural Shops and Post Office relief. Figures include mandatory relief for general stores and post offices under the Local Government and Rating Act 1997.
7. Item l(i)(f): Community Amateur Sports Clubs (CASCs). This is mandatory rate relief for sports clubs registered with HM Revenue and Customs (formerly Inland Revenue) as Community Amateur Sports Clubs under the Section 64 of the Local Government Act 2003, which came into effect on 1 April 2004.
8. Item l(i)(g): Discretionary relief granted to charities, non-profit making organisations and for other reasons including discretionary relief for village shops and post offices under the Local Government and Rating Act 1997.
9. Item l(ii)(a) and (b): The allowances for the costs and losses incurred by authorities in collecting non-domestic rates from ratepayers.
10. Item l(ii)(c): City of London offset—the amount which the City of London is not required to pay into the non-domestic rating pool. It has been set to zero for 2004–05 onwards.
11. Item l(iii): net adjustment in respect of appeals and other amendments to the rating list affecting liability for previous years rates settled in that year: comprising repayments and associated interest payments.
12. Item 2: a forecast of the rateable value of non-domestic hereditaments on the central rating list multiplied by the multiplier, less the net effect of transitional arrangements, and adjusted for appeals and other changes in respect of previous years.
13. Item 3: Almost all properties previously included in the Crown List are now included in the local list figures at item 1.
14. Item 4: the contribution from central government to offset the amount of the Secretary of State's estimate of income forgone as a result of transitional arrangements is assumed to be zero for 2006–07.

Planning

The Minister for Housing and Planning (Yvette Cooper): This statement concerns a package of changes to planning policy the Government are announcing today. We are consulting on draft "Planning Policy Statement (PPS) 3: Housing", draft "Planning Policy Statement (PPS) 25: Flooding" and we are publishing a new Green Belt Direction. Copies of these documents will be placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

Planning Policy Statement (PPS) 3: Housing

The Government's housing policy aims to deliver a step on the housing ladder for future generations of homeowners, quality and choice for those who rent, and, sustainable, mixed and inclusive communities. To do this, we need the planning system to provide for new homes which are well-designed and built to high environmental standards, in places that are well located, with good access to jobs and key services.

Draft PPS3, which the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister is publishing today, is a key component of our strategy to deliver more homes where they are needed. It provides a national policy framework for those at regional and local level responsible for developing planning policies. It advocates an evidence-based approach, including the use of sustainability appraisals, in order to ensure that development plans provide a sound framework for deciding planning applications.

Draft PPS3 introduces important changes in the approach to planning for housing. Planning needs to be more responsive to the housing market, and to take account of affordability alongside the social and environmental impacts of development. It continues the priority for brownfield sites. It attaches high importance to the design and mix of housing that is delivered in new developments to improve the quality of residential environments and contribute to the delivery of sustainable communities.

New Green Belt Direction

The Office of the Deputy Prime Minister is also today issuing through a circular to local authorities a new Town and Country Planning (Green Belt) Direction.

This new Direction will come into force on 3 January 2006 and will, for the first time, specifically require planning applications for inappropriate development of certain types and scale in the Green Belt which local planning authorities are minded to approve, to be referred to my right hon. Friend the Deputy Prime Minister. The Direction will ensure that the Secretary of State has the opportunity to consider whether to call in for public inquiry and his own determination the more significant and potentially most harmful development proposals in the Green Belt before they can be approved. However, the Secretary of State will continue to use his powers of intervention selectively, in line with his call-in policy.

The introduction of a new, free-standing Green Belt Direction demonstrates the continuing importance that the Government attach to the protection of the Green Belt.

Planning Policy Statement (PPS) 25: Flooding

To strengthen the key role of the planning system in managing flood risk we are publishing for consultation:

A new Planning Policy Statement (PPS)25: Development and Flood Risk;

A proposal for a flooding Direction; and

A proposal to make the Environment Agency a statutory consultee for planning applications in flood risk areas.

The draft PPS25 strengthens and clarifies planning policy on development and flood risk to:

ensure flood risk is taken into account at all stages in the planning process; avoid inappropriate development in areas at risk of flooding; and direct development away from areas at highest risk.

The proposed flooding Direction will provide greater scrutiny for major developments proposed in flood risk areas. Where local authorities intend approve applications that the Environment Agency still objects to, ODPM could consider whether to call them in for decision by a Minister.

Making the Environment Agency a statutory consultee for planning applications in flood risk areas will reinforce implementation of PPS25 by ensuring that the agency is able to advise on all applications where flood risk is an issue.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Agriculture and Fisheries Council

The Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (Margaret Beckett): I chaired the Agriculture and Fisheries Council on 22, 23 and 24 November for the agriculture items on the agenda. My hon. Friend, the Parliamentary Under-Secretary, Ben Bradshaw, represented the United Kingdom and also chaired the Council for the fisheries items. My hon. Friend, the Parliamentary Under-Secretary, Jim Knight, represented the United Kingdom for fisheries items. Also in attendance was the Scottish Environment and Rural Affairs Minister, Ross Finnie.

The Council reached a general approach on the reform of the common market organisation of sugar ("general approach" being the term for an agreement reached before "European Parliament" has issued its opinion). The main elements of this are as follows: a 36 per cent. price cut on white sugar over four years and de-coupled compensation for farmers at 64.2 per cent. of the price cut alongside a voluntary restructuring scheme aimed at reducing EU production by around six million tonnes in the same period.

This will bring the sugar sector into line with other major CAP reforms and put the EU in a much stronger position for the Doha round talks in Hong Kong in December. It will also enable the EU to comply with the recent WTO Panel ruling limiting subsidised exports and allow the EU to fulfil its existing commitments on preferential imports from developing countries without new restrictions.

The Council also reached a general approach on rural development strategic guidelines. The guidelines suggest the priorities areas which Member States might address when preparing their rural development programmes for 2007–13.

The Council reached unanimous political agreement on technical conservation measures for the Baltic Sea, the Belts and the Sound. The regulation establishes measures for the conservation of fishery resources and includes restrictions on nets and conditions for their use; minimum landing size; and restrictions on fishing in specified areas. The measures contribute to sustainable fisheries in the Baltic.

The Council held exchanges of views on the forthcoming proposal for quotas in the Baltic Sea for 2006; and on effort control measures associated with total allowable catches and—quotas for 2006 in advance of the December negotiations.

Under "Any Other Business", the Fisheries Commissioner gave an update on negotiations on the annual fisheries agreement between the EU and Norway.

Ireland raised the possibility of introducing inter-annual flexibility in the management of certain fish quotas, in particular mackerel.

The Commissioner for Health and Consumer Protection updated the Council on the Commission's plans for revising the current safeguard measures on Avian Influenza and on international developments. He noted that the Commission would propose extending the emergency biosecurity safeguard measures currently due to lapse on 1 December, until next spring to take into account the spring migration of wild birds. As for the import restrictions on susceptible poultry, other captive birds and their products from Croatia, Romania and Turkey the Commission planned to ease the blanket restrictions and only prohibit susceptible animals and products from infected regions.

Poland drew the attention of the Council to the recent ban imposed by the Russian Federation on meat, meat products and plant products from Poland on the grounds that export certificates accompanying such goods had been found to contain irregularities. The Commission advised that Poland should hold bilateral talks with Russia as a first step to resolve the issues. The Commission also indicated that they would keep the situation under review and both the Commission and the Presidency offered to assist further if required.

The Agriculture Commissioner gave an update on the state of play of the WTO Doha Development Agenda negotiations, including the prospects for the WTO Ministerial meeting in Hong Kong.

Estonia, Latvia, Lithuania and Hungary, supported by Slovakia asked the Commission for amendments to the legislation to permit a smooth transition from their current scheme to the Single farm payment scheme. The Agriculture Commissioner indicated that she would consider the request constructively, and would come back with a response after it has been considered at technical level.

France asked the Commission to introduce safeguard measures against apple imports, under Article XIX of the GATT.

Cyprus presented to the Council a request for approval of a nationally funded aid to regularising farm debt. The Council has three months within which to give its decision.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH AFFAIRS

European Union Budget 2007–13

The Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (Mr. Jack Straw): As presidency of the European Union, Her Majesty's Government is today circulating to all member states of the European Union for discussion comprehensive proposals for the European Union budget in the next financial period 2007–13 inclusive. Copies of the proposal are available in the Library of the House and in the Vote Office.

This written ministerial statement outlines the context of the proposal. These budget proposals have four policy objectives:

> The first is tough budget discipline. They are below the level proposed by the Luxembourg presidency in June and 17 per cent. below the level proposed by the Commission.
> Second, they help the new member states in the enlarged EU by building their economies and societies, and they more fairly distribute the costs among the better off nations. The UK is offering an extra contribution to these costs of enlargement amounting to 8 billion euros over the budget period.
> Third, these proposals keep the rebate. Indeed the rebate will rise, from an annual average over recent years of 5 billion euros to around 7 billion.
> Fourth, these proposals ensure there can be no fundamental change in the rebate without fundamental reform of the Common Agricultural Policy. All spending, including on agriculture, will be subject to a review during the coming budget period.

Let me explain in more detail.

The budget overall

Last year the Commission proposed a budget of 1,025 billion euros, or 1.24 per cent. of the total national income of all member states (GNI). We said all along that this was far too high. There would be no chance of any serious budgetary reform in specific areas without strong downward pressure overall. Given this, and the demand of the six "budget disciplinarians" [France, Germany, Sweden, Austria, Netherlands and UK], the Luxembourg presidency reduced their proposed budget to 1.06 per cent. or 871 billion euros. This latest proposal would further reduce the budget to at 847 billion euros or 1.03 per cent. [on the commitments basis] and by the end of the budget period spending will be below the 1 per cent. level the six had proposed. This would be a major achievement.

It is important to see these proposals in a longer-term context. EU spending hit 1 per cent. of GNI in 1985 and rose rapidly under Baroness Thatcher and Sir John Major as a proportion of national income, by a quarter to 1.25 per cent. by the early 1990s. and it started to come down only in 1998. These proposals would bring it down further.

Enlargement

The new member states will receive 150 billion euros in structural and cohesion funding. That is an enormous amount and would represent very large new funds. Total funding through all EU programmes to the 10 new member states is worth twice the Marshall plan which funded the reconstruction of Western Europe nearly 60 years ago [at today's prices].

And we are ensuring that these countries will be able to spend much more of what they have been allocated. This is a very important point because the record shows that year by year both the existing and new member states have not been able to spend their full allocation for many technical reasons. We have included a series of very practical changes to ensure that they are better able to do so. This means that while headline entitlements are lower by 14 billion euros than in the June proposals, we are confident that all these countries will be better able to spend what they have been allocated. And we are proposing strengthened financial management arrangements.

Under our proposals, for example, Hungary would receive 22 billion euros in structural and cohesion funding the Czech Republic 23 billion euros and Poland 56 billion euros.

Of course there are those who ask why our taxpayers in western Europe should pay for roads, railways and other reconstruction projects in the east, the answer is that all enlargements have benefited all members economically by increasing the total volume of EU trade, investment and jobs in which all have a share. British trade with the new member states has already increased by 400 per cent. since 1990, 10 times the rate of growth with the rest of the world. That is an indication of the economic potential we will be helping to unlock by making this investment in Europe's future. It is very much in Britain's national interest for the world's largest single market to grow and become more prosperous. And the benefits of enlargement are not just economic. It must be in Britain's interest to have increasingly stable societies in Eastern Europe.

The UK contribution

As I have spelt out, and as these proposals make clear, the UK Government recognises its responsibility to pay a fair contribution to the cost of enlargement—an historic project supported across the political divide. It has been a strategic objective of successive British Governments and, happily, has enjoyed very active all-party support. The Opposition parties have called for significant increases in structural and cohesion funding in Central and Eastern Europe. This budget delivers that objective. But it has to be paid for. We all prepared to pay our fair share, but no more than our fair share.

As EU spending shifts from older member states to the new, the British contribution will inevitably rise, along with the contributions of all the EU 15 member states. But the proposals tabled by the Luxembourg presidency would have left us with a bill of more than 20 billion euros over and above the 50 billion euros that would be our contribution under existing arrangements. That was not acceptable then, nor is it now. The proposal we have tabled today will take our contribution to 58 billion over the seven-year period of the budget.

This is the equivalent of halving the value of the rebate in respect of structural and cohesion funding in the 10 new member states. This could be achieved either by not applying the rebate to a proportion of structural and cohesion funding in the new member states, or by a technical route to increasing our gross contributions.

The UK will in any event continue to receive the full value of the rebate as it applies to the Europe of 15, and to all CAP spending throughout the union. And the rebate will rise, because it increases in proportion to our net contribution. The rebate will increase from an annual average of 5 billion euros in the current financial period, to around 7 billion.

The rebate was negotiated in 1984, but it did not prevent a very significant rise in the EU's take of member states' national income. Nor did it deal with the underlying problem which made the rebate necessary. And it did not prevent the UK paying twice as much as France and Italy, countries with similar sized economies. With these proposals today, Europe's spending comes down as a proportion of income. And for the first time since the UK joined 30 years ago, we would pay roughly the same as France and Italy as a share of national income.

Reform

This is a budget which seeks to invest in Europe's future, and not only through enlargement.

Our proposals provide for a comprehensive and wide ranging review, covering all aspects of revenue and expenditure, including agriculture. This will be conducted by the Commission, which will submit a report in 2008. On the basis of the review, the EU would be able to make changes in the 2007–13 financial period.

Conclusion

We have always made clear our overall aim is to secure fundamental reform of spending which would remove the underlying justification for the rebate. The mechanism we propose for a review both of revenue and expenditure undertaken by the Commission would put us on a pathway to a reformed European Union better able to compete in the global economy. The budget we have circulated today is a tough package which recognises the responsibilities of all members of the EU to both pay a fair contribution towards the future well being of the Union.

It provides a sound basis on which all our citizens can thrive in an enlarged European Union.

A bigger, more prosperous European Union means a stronger, more prosperous Britain. These are good proposals for the UK and good proposals for Europe.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Police Authorities in England and Wales (Grant Allocations)

The Minister for Policing, Security and Community Safety (Ms Hazel Blears): I have today placed in the Library a copy of the Home Secretary's proposals for allocation of police grant for England and Wales in 2006–07 and 2007–08. The Home Secretary and I intend to implement the proposals subject to consideration of any representations and to the approval of the House.

This Government have put unprecedented levels of investment into the Police Service in England and Wales in recent years. This investment has helped to expand local policing, reduce crime and help to make our communities safer. Police Officer, Police Staff and Community Support Officer numbers are all at record levels, police performance continues to improve and the police have never been better equipped with the tools and powers to respond to the needs of local communities. On a like for like basis Government grant and central spending on services for the police will have increased by 56 per cent. or almost £4.0 billion between 2000–01 and 2007–08.

Our ambitious police reform programme continues to produce real improvements but there is still more to do to ensure that the Police Service meets the challenges of the 21st century. People are safer now but we want them to feel safer too. Key elements of the reform programme are about building a responsive, accessible police service which successfully tackles local concerns about crime and anti-social behaviour. As part of this, we are committed to ensuring that every neighbourhood has a neighbourhood police team by 2008; to continuing to modernise the police workforce to ensure it is able to deliver a more responsive, citizen focused service that the public want; and to reshape the national policing landscape to ensure it is able to meet the policing challenges of the modern world. A key part of this is the reconfiguring of the service around larger strategic police forces which will have sufficient capacity and capability to provide the full range of protective services to the public alongside responsive neighbourhood policing.

The National Community Safety Plan, which incorporates the National Policing Plan 2006–09, was published on 16 November. Our key policing priorities are to reduce overall crime; bring more offenders to justice, provide dedicated, visible, accessible and responsive neighbourhood police teams, tackle serious and organised crime including improved intelligence and information sharing between partners and protect the country from both terrorism and domestic extremism. The police funding settlement for the coming two years will support the priorities outlined in the plan.

This year, for the first time, the Government are providing planning totals for two years. Total provision for policing grants and central spending in 2006–07 will be £10,570 million, an overall increase of 5.0 per cent. This includes an increase of 3.4 per cent. in general grant (including a small increase to take account of losses from Amending Reports).

Indicative figures for 2007–08 are an overall increase to £11,047 million (4.5 per cent.) with an increase of 3.7 per cent. in general grant.

In this statement, I want to outline provision for support for the Police Service in England and Wales.

The police grant settlement

We propose to distribute the settlement as set out below. The table includes funding for both local and central spending.

[2] Details are set out later in the statement.

Police funding proposals within the Local Government finance system are being announced by my hon. Friend the Member for Oldham East and Saddleworth today, and by the Welsh Assembly Government.

Provisional general policing grants (ie Home Office Police Grant, Revenue Support Grant and National Non Domestic Rates) for English and Welsh police authorities in 2006–07 and 2007–08 compared with 2005–06 are given in Tables 2 and 3. The figures for 2006–07 take into account our proposed amendments to the settlements for 2004–05 and 2005–06.

With my right hon. Friend the Deputy Prime Minister, we have reviewed the Police Grant formula. We have decided to use the most comprehensive and technically robust option, on which we consulted during the summer, as a basis for formula change. We have updated the existing 1995 formula that used data from the early 1990s, to bring it in line with modern conditions. At the same time, we are concerned to maintain stability of funding during a period of major structural change. We have therefore decided to apply a broadly flat rate increase for all Police Authorities for 2006–07 and 2007–08. This will be 3.2 per cent. and 3.7 per cent.

The settlement continues to take account of our commitment to improve efficiency and effectiveness in the police service. We expect the police service to build on impressive efficiency gains of £316 million (3.24 per cent.) in 2004–05 and projected gains of £360 million (3.5 per cent.) for 2005–06 through continued focus on the target of £1,069 million of cumulative gains by the end of 2007–08. Half these gains are to be cashable. The greater certainty over funding for 2007–08 should help forces and authorities plan to meet this target. The Home Office, the Association of Chief Police Officers (ACPO) and the Association of Police Authorities (APA) will continue to work in partnership to deliver cumulative year on year improvements in the value for money to deliver the efficiency targets.

If Police Authorities deliver efficiency gains, and exercise judicious financial planning, there is no reason for them to set excessive increases in police precepts on council tax next year. The Government's policy in relation to average council tax increases of less than 5 per cent. in each year in 2006–07 and 2007–08 has been clearly set out by my hon. Friend the Minister for Local Government. The Government are prepared to take capping action if necessary.

Amending Reports

Details of the Amending Report for 2004–05, to take account of changes to ONS population data, and the Amending Report for 2005–06, chiefly to take account of changes to pensions' data from Derbyshire and Lancashire, were set out in my written statement of 31 October. The Government made clear in the Consultation Paper on formula grant distribution that they would apply the same approach to grant adjustment as they did in relation to the 2003–04 Amending Report. We have therefore adjusted 2006–07 grants to ensure that any authority owing money under the Amending Reports will be able to pay it back in 2006–07 and still be left with at least the broadly flat rate grant increase over 2005–06. The consultation period for both Amending Reports will end on the same date as the consultation on the funding settlement proposals 2006–07 and 2007–08 on 11 January 2006.

Welsh police authorities

We have for several years ensured that Welsh Police Authorities were treated in line with English Police Authorities with respect to the floor damping mechanism. In 2006–07 and 2007–08 we have adjusted the Home Office Police Grant of Welsh Police Authorities to maintain consistency with the English. The Home Secretary has provided additional support of £7.8 million in 2006–07 and £11.3 million on 2007–08 to ensure that Dyfed-Powys Police Authority, Gwent Police Authority and North Wales Police Authority receive at least a minimum increase in grant in line with English authorities. The shortfalls are further funded by scaling police grant to South Wales Police Authority which would otherwise have received a general grant increase of around 6 per cent. but now receives the equivalent increases to a police authority in England in both years.

Metropolitan Police funding

I have changed the provision for the Metropolitan Police special payment to reflect wider formula changes. I have allocated annual formula increases of £5 million in 2006–07 and 2007–08 and £15 million is added for the higher costs of Metropolitan Police Authority civil staff pensions. At the same time I have reduced the provision by £50 million as part of the consolidation of Counter Terrorism funding and this will be included within the Metropolitan Police Service's (MPS's) allocation within the Single Consolidated Fund.

Special formula grant

Over the past five years specific grants have been a very effective tool in delivering key aims and targets and funding new policing initiatives. We have made it clear over the past few months that we wanted to give police authorities more control over specific grants. We have therefore decided to consolidate four specific grants into a single pot for each authority. Each authority will get the actual or estimated level of funding it receives from these grants. We hope that this rationalisation will enable authorities to operate more flexibly. However we will expect authorities to honour commitments and agreed policy initiatives to build on the outstanding successes that these grants have so far achieved. Totals for each Police Authority are set out in the draft Police Grant Reports 2006–07 and 2007–08. The special formula grants are:

The Rural Policing Fund (£30 million)

The Rural Policing Fund was introduced in 2000–01 to target funds specifically at forces that police the most sparsely populated areas.

Special Priority Payments (£69 million)

Special Priority Payments are an integral part of the police pay system, enshrined in regulations following the Police Negotiating Board agreement in 2002.

London and South East Allowances (£48 million)

These allowances were introduced from 2001–02, following a recommendation by the Police Negotiating Board, to address specific recruitment issues in the South East.

Forensic Grant (£46 million)

The benefits to crime detection since this grant was introduced in 2000 have been enormous. It is important that the police service maintains the capacity that has been developed for the efficient and effective collection and use of DNA material from individuals and crime scenes. Without sampling of newcomers to crime and the collection of DNA samples from crime scenes, the benefits of the previous investment in the detection of crime and the benefits of legislative changes introduced by the Government allowing the DNA sampling of persons when arrested, will be reduced. The Home Office will continue to monitor and report on the use of forensics, particularly DNA, by forces in dealing with the investigation and detection of crime. Any significant changes will be highlighted and an explanation will be sought from the forces concerned.

Specific grants for police authorities

Police Authorities will continue to receive extra funding through a number of specific grants for particular schemes. Targeted grants were introduced as a direct response to what the police service and the public told us they wanted. Total provision for specific grants in 2006–07 is £588 million and in 2007–08 is £840 million (Table 4).

The main specific grants are:

Crime Fighting Fund:

£277 million will again be made available to forces to continue to support the costs of officers recruited through the Crime Fighting Fund. This Fund has been remarkably successful in helping the police service boost its strength which is at a historically high level of more than 141,000. In response to concerns raised by both Chief Constables and Police Authorities we have relaxed the terms of the Fund this year and are willing to discuss with the service further flexibility in the use of this money from 2006–07.

Community Support Officers (CSOs):

CSOs free up police officer time, provide reassurance and have powers to deal with aspects of anti-social behaviour and low level crime. This settlement honours our undertaking given in "Neighbourhood Policing—your police; your community; our commitment" (March 2005) to provide £88 million in 2006–07 and £340 million in 2007–08 to support our target of 24,000 CSOs by 2008. Details were set out in letters to Chief Constables and Police Authorities on 7 November 2005. In addition to this, for 2006–07, we have allocated £44 million for continuing support of CSOs recruited in the first three rounds from 2002 onwards and this support will continue in 2007–08.

Basic Command Unit (BCU) Fund:

£50 million will again be provided for BCUs. These are at the forefront of local policing. The grant will again be targeted towards forces with BCUs in high crime areas to help reduce crime in partnership with Crime and Disorder Reduction Partnerships. All forces in England and Wales will continue to receive a share of the grant. BCU Commanders will again have discretion locally to pool their allocations with the new Safer and Stronger Communities Fund.

Initial Police Learning and Development Programme (IPLDP):

We have worked with the Central Police Training and Development Authority (Centrex), to calculate the maximum savings that we believe can be transferred from their foundation training budget to IPLD programmes in forces next year and the following year. £13 million will be transferred to forces from Centrex's baseline in 2006–07, with the remaining foundation training budget becoming available in 2007–08. With this, and with funding that was removed from the Centrex baseline this year, we are able to increase substantially the funding per recruit that is available to forces for their initial police learning and development programmes. Some funding will remain with Centrex in 2006–07 so that they can continue to deliver foundation training for the first two months of the financial year. Each force, with the exception of the MPS (whose money for training is already included in their baseline funding, and who do not currently send recruits to Centrex for training), will receive £3,000 per IPLDP recruit in 2006–07 and 2007–08. Payment will be made up to the level of recruits that each force needs to maintain their force strength at 31 March 2005. This compares with just over £1,900 per recruit that we were able to make available to forces this financial year.

Counter Terrorism funding

As a result of recent events the Government consider that policy and funding for Counter Terrorism should be more closely linked to improve effectiveness. We have therefore drawn together existing grants, including the provision for Dedicated Security Posts formerly in general grant, into a single consolidated grant for Counter Terrorism. We will be augmenting the amounts transferred from general grant for counter-terrorism and the increase will be announced shortly. Within the increase in general grant to police authorities in 2007–08 we have made provision of £25 million to enable authorities to enhance further their counter-terrorism capability.

We are currently working very closely with ACPO on this matter. We see an important role for ACPO in the management of this grant and for ensuring coherence, strategic direction and for the provision of a nationally co-ordinated response. We will work closely with ACPO to ensure that both this uplift and funding from the new consolidated Counter Terrorism grant are used to create a significant increase in the strength of the police's counter-terrorism capability.

While we have included the MPS within the scope of this grant we are all conscious of the very important contribution that the MPS provides to our counter terrorist effort—not least its anti-terrorist investigation capability—and its vital role in protecting our capital city and its citizens from the terrorist threat. On that basis we believe that we should continue to fund the service separately so that Parliament is assured that the MPS's national capabilities are effectively funded.

Both we and ACPO are committed to ensuring that the Police Service both nationally and regionally has a robust, resilient and effective Counter Terrorist capability.

Police authority capital

The Home Secretary and I intend to allocate provision of capital grant for 2006–07 and 2007–08 later this month. We propose to plan grant allocation over the two years to take into account prospective force amalgamations.

Safer and Stronger Communities Fund

The newly created Safer and Stronger Communities Fund was rolled out to all Local Authorities in England in 2005–06. It brings together existing Home Office and ODPM funding streams. This Fund will total a minimum of £220 million in 2006–07, the Home Office contributing a minimum of £70 million resource and £20 million capital. The police service, subject to the agreement of other local partners, will be able to draw upon these funds to support local crime reduction initiatives. The Home Office Crime Team within the Welsh Assembly is currently liaising with the Home Office on establishing similar arrangements for Wales.

Asset Recovery Police Incentivisation scheme

This scheme boosts asset recovery by giving forces a direct stake in the proceeds they generate from the work. The police service received £13 million in 2005–06 (one third of the total assets recovered over and above £40 million in 2004–05). This will increase to one half in 2005–06 payable in 2006–07 with the maximum benefit available to the police of £65 million. From 2006–07, under a new incentive scheme, all asset recovery agencies including the police will receive back 50 per cent. of what they recover.

Serious Organised Crime Agency

Work is on track to launch the new Serious Organised Crime Agency (SOCA) on 1 April 2006. It is intended for the precursor agencies to begin transferring business to SOCA from January in order to ensure a smooth transition. SOCA's strategy for 2006–07 is based on a workforce strength of 4,250 staff and an initial budget of £400 million, including provisions to be made from HM Revenue and Customs and the UK Immigration Service.

National Policing Improvement Agency

We intend to establish the National Policing Improvement Agency (NPIA) on 1 April 2007, subject to legislation. The aim of the NPIA is to introduce a radically different model of police service leadership as well as producing greater efficiency, consistency and clarity of purpose in service delivery. The NPIA will be a new organisation that rationalises several other bodies. The agency's purpose will be to drive improvement in the police service. It will replace the existing organisations Centrex and the Police Information Technology Organisation (PITO). There will also be significant implications for the work of ACPO, the Home Office and the APA. Budgets for precursor agencies will be announced by 31 January.

Pensions

With effect from April 2006 a new financial arrangement for funding police pensions will commence. This will replace the present practice whereby each police authority is responsible for paying the pensions of its former employees on a "pay-as-you-go" basis. The new system will eliminate the effect of the volatility resulting from significant fluctuations in the number of police officers retiring in any given year and consequently reduce cost pressures being passed on to council tax precepts. It will also introduce greater transparency by making clear the actual level of resources available for service delivery.

Under the new arrangements Police Authorities will continue to be responsible for paying pensions to former police employees and to receive grant funding to support the employers' contributions. Any deficits on an authority's net pension costs will be met from a central specific grant managed by the Home Office. To create this central pension pot £313 million for 2006–07 and £328 million for 2007–08 has been held back from the funding settlement. The new arrangements will be cost neutral. The aggregate amount held back will be used to reimburse authorities for their actual pension costs shortfall.

Details of the new funding arrangements were set out in my statement of 29 November.

Conclusion

We have listened very carefully to all stakeholders in determining this settlement. We have provided the investment to deliver record numbers of Police Officers, Police Staff and an expanding number of CSOs and have provided the police with new tools to tackle the crimes that concern communities most. We will continue to work closely with the police to improve their efficiency and responsiveness to local communities. Our proposals will ensure that all forces in England and Wales receive a fair share of resources in the coming two years, in a time of radical restructuring that will give the police the organisation they need to face the challenges of the future.

Revenue Support Grant is allocated to the Common Council of the City of London as a whole in respect of all its functions. The City is grouped with education authorities for the purposes of floors.

National DNA Database

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for the Home Department (Andy Burnham): On transition of the Forensic Science Service (FSS) from Trading Fund status to GovCo the Government will retain control of the National DNA Database (NDNAD). It is recognised to be a world leading crime intelligence database, and a key national criminal justice asset.

The standard setting and oversight of the National DNA Database, ensuring quality and integrity of the service, will be carried out by a dedicated unit initially in the Home Office, overseen by a tripartite board composed of the Home Office, ACPO and APA. We propose to increase Human Genetics Commission representation at board meetings from one to two to strengthen lay representation. Following initial consultation regarding established bio-medical ethics committees, it has been determined that a new and dedicated ethics group is required to provide independent oversight of Board decision-making. Plans for the creation of this group are being developed with Department of Health support. These transitional arrangements have been developed to improve the strength and transparency of NDNAD oversight.

The operational delivery of database services—the loading of DNA profiles and the reporting of subsequent matches—will continue to be provided under contract by the FSS initially to ensure continuity of service to the police. The separation of operational service delivery from the governance and standard setting will enable value for money to be maximised, while the control of oversight within the public sector will be retained. Wider consultation will take place about the most effective long-term oversight of the National DNA Database and other national forensic databases, which should enhance public confidence in the safeguards and ethical controls which are being developed.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Community-based Restorative Justice

The Minister of State, Northern Ireland Office (Mr. David Hanson): The Government have today published for consultation draft guidelines setting out how community-based restorative justice schemes should work with the police and other statutory criminal justice agencies in dealing with low-level crime. The guidelines establish a framework for implementing recommendation 168 of the Review of the Criminal Justice System in Northern Ireland, which recommended that community-based restorative justice schemes could, subject to specific safeguards, have a role to play in this area. The safeguards include upholding the human rights of all participants; receiving referrals from the criminal justice system; being open to inspection by the independent Criminal Justice Inspectorate; and adhering to high standards.

The draft guidelines make clear that it is for the Police Service of Northern Ireland to investigate crime and for the Public Prosecution Service to decide how offences should be dealt with. Community-based restorative justice schemes must have an acceptable and appropriate relationship with the criminal justice system including the police, as envisaged in the Review.

I have placed a copy of the document in the Library of the House. It has been circulated to the main political parties, the Policing Board and other key stakeholders as part of a wider consultation process. Views on any aspect of the draft guidelines will be welcome, and some specific questions are posed covering human rights, the referral process, suitability of staff, complaints, and equality.

The Government will decide on the way forward after the consultation concludes on 24 February 2006 and we have had the opportunity to consider all the comments and views received.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Competitiveness Council and Space Council

The Secretary of State for Trade and Industry (Alan Johnson): I chaired my second Competitiveness Council of the UK's presidency in Brussels on 28–29 November 2005. My noble Friend, the Minister for Science and Innovation chaired the Council for the research items. He also chaired, with German State Secretary Mr. G-W Adamowitsch representing the European Space Agency (ESA) Council, the third meeting of the Space Council on 28 November 2005. The only interventions by the UK national seat were during the Space Council.

Monday 28 November 2005—Competitiveness Council (Research items)

The Council approved, by a large majority including the UK, a partial general approach on the 7th Framework Programmes (FP7) for research and technological development, based on a presidency compromise text. The Council debate focused on supporting the participation of small and medium sized enterprises in research projects and the implementation arrangements of the future European Research Council. This partial general approach will provide a good basis for adopting a Common Position once agreement has been reached on the financial perspectives.

The Council adopted conclusions on the recent Commission Communication "More research and innovation—investing for growth and employment". There was no substantive debate on this item.

Monday 28 November 2005—Space Council[1]

The Council adopted orientations on the Commission Communication on global monitoring for environment and security (GMES). It noted that the objective of GMES is to provide, on a sustained basis, reliable and timely information related to environmental and security issues in support of public policy makers' needs. My hon. Friend, the Minister for Competitiveness who sat in the UK national seat, intervened briefly to stress that it was important to utilise the existing capabilities of GMES alongside developing new ones. The Council also held an exchange of views on international collaboration based on a discussion paper tabled jointly by the EU and ESA presidencies. The debate focused on: the need to develop an overall cooperation strategy; EU/ES A roles and responsibilities; and the financial principles that should apply in funding. The UK intervened briefly to support the development of a collaborative approach but noted that this should pay due consideration to Community competence. Vice-President Verheugen (Commissioner for Enterprise and Industry) and ESA Director-General Dordain provided an oral report to the Council on the progress of European space policy.

Tuesday 29 November 2005—Competitiveness Council (Industry/Internal Market items)

I provided a Presidency summing-up of an exchange of views on EU industry policy and the recent Commission Communication "Implementing the Community Lisbon Programme: a policy framework to strengthen EU manufacturing—towards a more integrated approach for industrial policy" that was held over dinner on 28 November 2005. Ministers supported the Commission's approach to industrial policy—at both a sectoral and horizontal level, welcoming, in particular, the new High Level Group on Energy, Environment and Competitiveness. It was agreed that policies should focus on embracing and facilitating structural change.

The Council adopted conclusions on better regulation and recognised progress made at EU and Member State level. In particular, the conclusions welcomed recent Commission initiatives on simplification of existing legislation, screening of pending legislative proposals, impact assessment, and consultation.

The Council held a policy debate on the draft regulation for the registration, evaluation, authorisation and restriction of chemicals (REACH) and instructed the Permanent Representatives Committee to examine the remaining outstanding issues, principally authorisation and scope, with a view to achieving political agreement at the next session of the Competitiveness Council on 13 December 2005.

[1] A joint and concomitant meeting of the Competitiveness Council and the Council of ESA at ministerial level

The Council took note of a presidency progress report on a draft decision establishing a competitiveness and innovation programme (CIP) for 2007–13 and endorsed the approach to the horizontal issues that it sets out. The Council instructed the Permanent Representatives Committee to use the report as a basis for future discussions following agreement on the financial perspectives.

Based on a presidency progress report I chaired an exchange of views over lunch and in the Council on a draft directive on services in the internal market. The questions of scope, worker protection and free movement of services were discussed in order to provide political guidance for future discussions once the European Parliament has given its opinion.

The Council adopted conclusions on European Contract Law and the Review of the Consumer Acquis. There was no debate.

The Council took note of a presidency progress report on a proposal for establishing a programme of Community action in the field of health and consumer protection for 2007–13. The Council decided to return to this issue at a future session, as the programme is dependent on the outcome of the financial perspective negotiations and discussions in the European Parliament.

There were two "any other business" items taken at the Council, on which there was no debate. Vice-President Verheugen (Commissioner for Enterprise and Industry) provided information on the progress of the re-launched Lisbon Strategy related to the National Reform Programmes. Lithuania provided information about a conference they are organising in Vilnius on 1–2 March 2006 on the development of tourism in Europe after enlargement.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Employment and Social Policy, Health and Consumer Affairs Council

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (Mr. James Plaskitt): The Employment and Social Policy, Health and Consumer Affairs Council will be held on 8 and 9 December in Brussels. Employment and Social Policy issues will be taken on 8 December. Health and Consumer Affairs will be taken on the 9 December. The Council will be chaired by my right hon. Friend Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, apart from the agenda item on Working Time which will be chaired by my right hon. Friend, the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry. I will sit in the UK Seat apart from the Working Time Directive agenda item when my hon. Friend, the Minister for Employment Relations, Consumer and Fair Markets will represent the UK.

The first item is a Presidency Report from the informal meeting of Heads of State and Government, Hampton Court, 27 October.

There will be a policy debate on Demography and Human Capital. The discussion will focus on the following questions: Which steps should be taken by Member States and by the EU in order to increase the overall employment rate for people of working age? How should measures to improve human capital support this work? What specific measures should Member States pursue in order to maximise the employment opportunities for young people, older workers and disadvantaged groups and what are the specific barriers to raising the employment rates for these groups? The background to this discussion is provided by the Commission Green Paper on Demography and the EMCO report on Human Capital.

There will be a report from the Chairman of the Employment Committee on the Examination of National Reform Programmes. These are the annual reports on each Member States' progress towards achieving the Lisbon goals outlining their focussed policy objectives.

On the Directive of the European Parliament and of the Council amending Directive 2003/88/EC concerning certain aspects of the organisation of working time, the Presidency will be seeking political agreement on an amended proposal.

The Council will reach partial political agreement on a Decision of the European Parliament and of the Council establishing a Community Programme for Employment and Social Solidarity—PROGRESS. This is the EU-level spending programme for the period 2007–13, which will provide financial support for the implementation of the Community's objectives for employment and social affairs and the achievement of the Lisbon goals.

Ministers will be expected to endorse political agreement on the gender recast directive which will simplify, modernise and improve existing EU law on equal treatment between men and women.

The Commission and the Presidency will present information on the Directive on portability of supplementary pensions. This is intended to make it easier for workers with occupational pensions to move around the EU.

Under "Any Other Business" there will be four written items presented by the presidency. I do not expect any debate on these items: "Annual follow-up to the Beijing Platform", "Health and safety conference", "Round table on poverty and social exclusion", and "Corporate social responsibility".

There is one written item from the Luxembourg delegation reporting on their conferences on poverty held under the Luxembourg Presidency, and two written items from the Commission, one on their first biennial report on disability and the other on a memorandum of understanding between the European Commission and China on co-operation on employment and social affairs. None of these will generate discussion.

Tuesday 6 December 2005

ECOFIN

The Chancellor of the Exchequer (Mr. Gordon Brown): I will chair the Economic and Financial Affairs Council (ECOFIN) on 6 December 2005. The Paymaster General will represent the UK. Items on the agenda are:

Economic Reform: Council will consider two reports from the Economic Policy Committee on responding to the challenges of Globalisation and Lisbon National Reform Programmes;

Regulatory reform: Stock-take and look ahead to 2006;

Fiscal Issues: VAT Reduced Rates; following discussion at ECOFIN in November, Ministers will consider a proposal on VAT Reduced Rates.

Fiscal Issues: Code of Conduct report; Ministers will discuss and be asked to adopt a report by the Code of Conduct Group;

Financial Services: Post-Financial Services Action Plan; Commissioner McCreevy will give a presentation on the forthcoming Commission White Paper;

Combating Terrorism: Payments Regulation on wire transfers: ECOFIN will consider its general approach based on the Commission proposal.

Combating Terrorism: Action Plan update; Council will take note of progress on the EU's Counter Terror Action Plan.

Oil market and related energy issues; Commissioner Pielbags will update the Council on the Commission's work.

DEFENCE

Reserve Forces (Iraq)

The Secretary of State for Defence (John Reid): In line with our policy of employing the Reserves as an integral component of the armed forces, and our normal pattern in Operation TELIC, we shall shortly begin mobilising approximately 700 Reservists to deploy as part of the integrated UK force package on operations in Iraq (Operation TELIC). Reservists currently deployed in Iraq carry out a range of activities including medical support, force protection duties and providing individual reinforcements to units. We anticipate that most of these tasks will continue.

We plan to issue the callout notices for reservists in phases and aim to give individuals 28 days notice of call-up (other than for those who may volunteer to be mobilised at shorter notice). As is customary, to ensure that we successfully mobilise the required number, we will need to issue a greater number of callout notices than the actual requirement. On current plans, we will be issuing around 800 callout notices.

Mobilisation will be followed by a period of training, integration into receiving units, and then a short period of pre-deployment leave. Deployment to theatre is expected to begin in May 2006. The majority of these called out can expect a deployed tour of six months and a total period of mobilisation, including post-tour leave, of around 11 months, though for a few it may be slightly longer.

I would like to emphasise that this callout is part of our routine management of UK forces deployed on Operation TELIC. We, and our Multinational Force partners, will consider, in the months ahead, the levels and dispositions of forces required in Iraq to continue to build the capability and capacity of the Iraqi Security Forces and support the Iraqi Government of Iraq up to and following the first full democratic elections in Iraq, which will be held in December.

The next major routine roulement of regular UK forces in Iraq is due to take place during April and May next year and the lead formation, currently 7 Armoured Brigade, will be provided by 20 Armoured Brigade. We will make a further announcement covering this roulement once the details have been finalised.

Votes A 2006–07 (Presentational Changes)

The Secretary of State for Defence (John Reid): Ministry of Defence Votes A seek the maximum numbers of personnel to be maintained for service in the armed forces during each financial year.

As of 1 April 2006, we are amending the presentational format. The figures for the Commonwealth troops in the United Kingdom category will no longer be reported, and the numbers of the Queens Alexandra's Royal Army Nursing Corps and Princess Mary's Royal Air Force Nursing Service will be incorporated into those of the Regular Army and Regular Air Force.

The Commonwealth Troops accounted for by the Army and RAF are members of Commonwealth Forces. The numbers are predominantly students attending courses, the remainder being those on exchange and attaché duties. The Commonwealth Troops, like those of other non-commonwealth nations, wear the uniform of and are paid and maintained by, their home nation. They are not members of the UK Armed Forces nor maintained for service with the UK Armed Forces and therefore fall outside the ambit of Votes A.

Originally the Nursing Service were not a fully integrated part of the Services—being non-combatants—however they are now fully integrated and are now regarded as a sub-specialism and as such there is no longer appropriate to record these figures separately within Votes A.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Oversight Commissioner's Report

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Northern Ireland (Mr. Shaun Woodward): I have today laid before this House a copy of the Oversight Commissioner's third statutory report for the year 2005 which was published today, in accordance with Section 68(4)(a) of the Police (Northern Ireland) Act 2000.

This is the sixth report compiled by Al Hutchinson as Oversight Commissioner and the fifteenth in the series of oversight reports published since 2001.

I met yesterday with the Oversight Commissioner and welcomed the opportunity to discuss with him the contents of this thematic report on training.

Office of the Police Ombudsman

The Secretary of State for Northern Ireland (Mr. Peter Hain): The Government have received a report from the Chief Inspector of Criminal Justice in Northern Ireland on the Office of the Police Ombudsman for Northern Ireland (OPONI). The report has today been published.

The Government welcome this report, which recognises the good progress made by the Police Ombudsman's Office towards fulfilling its important role of providing a fair and impartial independent police complaints system. The report also makes some helpful recommendations, which the Police Ombudsman will address in striving for continuous improvement in the way that OPONI fulfils its investigatory, monitoring and accountability roles and responsibilities.

Copies of the Chief Inspector's report have been placed in the Library.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

European Union Energy Council (Brussels)

The Minister for Energy (Malcolm Wicks): I chaired, for the UK Presidency of the EU, the Energy Council in Brussels on 1 December. Alun Michael represented the UK.

The Council considered several matters of interest to the UK; chief among these were Better Regulation in the context of implementation of the EU's liberalised Electricity and Natural Gas market, Climate Change and Sustainable Energy, and EU Relations with Third Countries. There was an important and substantive debate throughout around the energy agenda discussed recently at Hampton Court, and the balance between our three key objectives of competitive markets, security of supply and tackling climate change. Member States recognised the important potential contribution from a European energy policy and supported Commission plans for taking this forward, through a Green Paper early in 2006, with a view to reporting to the 2006 December European Council.

On market liberalisation, there was broad consensus that secure electricity and gas supplies at competitive prices, delivered on open, transparent and competitive markets are crucial to Europe's competitiveness; and that full implementation of the second electricity and gas directives was crucial. The Commission report on the internal energy market and the competition inquiry into the energy sector highlighted areas for more work, including more effective action by the Commission and national regulators against anti-competitive behaviour. Member States saw no need for further legislation until there had been more investigation into key issues such as market concentration, long-term contracts and the impact of the Emissions Trading Scheme. They agreed that the main issues for developing an effective internal energy market—such as independent and effective regulation, the development of regional markets, effective unbundling, and transparency—could be done within the existing framework.

One Member State rejected the Commission analysis of market shortcomings, claiming that a period of regulatory stability was needed and that competition contributed to the EITs energy problems as much as it helped to resolve them. Some Member States expressed concern at their dependence on particular energy suppliers, noting that similar liberalisation to the EITs was needed in such countries.

Council conclusions were agreed on climate change and energy efficiency. Energy efficiency was recognised as making an important contribution to the three primary energy objectives. Member States saw the expected agreement on the Energy End-Use Efficiency and Energy Services Directive as welcome in this respect. Several Member States expressed concerns about the operation of the Emissions Trading Scheme and the need to revise the scheme before the next phase.

On EU-third country relations, the Presidency and Commission summarised progress on dialogues with key energy partners. On Russia, the successful Permanent Partnership Council held in October signalled real hope of progress. There would be a second ministerial meeting with OPEC on 2 December to develop the dialogue begun earlier in the year and promote mutual understanding. The Energy Treaty signed with south-east European countries would establish a neighbouring regional market on the same lines as the EU internal market. A key issue at the Energy Charter Treaty's annual Conference on 9 December would be how to take forward the negotiations on the Transit Protocol.

EU Telecoms Council

The Minister for Industry and the Regions (Alun Michael): I chaired the Telecoms part of the Transport, Telecommunications and Energy Council of the UK's EU presidency in Brussels on 1 December 2005.

The Council began informally over lunch, where I chaired a policy debate on the 2006 Review of the regulatory framework for Electronic Communications markets. The Council agreed that the Framework plays a key role in the development of open and competitive ICT markets. There was broad consensus that its implementation needs to be improved and that the Review of the Framework is a high priority for 2006. I was pleased that the Council gave a steer on the key issues for the Review. These included the importance of competition and investment in next generation networks, ensuring a light-touch regulatory approach and the importance of the needs of consumers.

The policy debate then continued in formal session with a focus on the future of EU spectrum policy. The Council agreed that spectrum is a valuable economic and social resource and that its management needs to be more flexible and efficient. However, views were divided about the role that market-based mechanisms and harmonisation should play in determining spectrum policy. There was broad support for further discussion and analysis on this important issue, particularly in light of the spectrum which will be released by the switchover from analogue television.

I then chaired a policy debate on the Commission's i2010 Strategy. This was a public open session. I reported on the successful events held as part of our presidency, including the gathering of Chief Executives on 8–9 July and the i2010 and e-accessibility conferences held in London on 6 September and 21 October respectively. Evidence from the Disability Rights Commission prepared for the second of these conferences showed that websites that failed to meet the e-accessibility standards were 50 per cent. more difficult for all individuals to use, demonstrating that accessibility is an economic issue as well as an equalities issue. There was broad support for the i2010 Strategy and its three objectives to promote open and competitive markets, to strengthen ICT research and to achieve an inclusive information society. The Council discussed particular priority areas within the i2010 Strategy's three themes. These included the need for appropriate policy actions in the regulatory field, on broadband and content and on e-government and e-accessibility. There was agreement that the i2010 Strategy needs to be implemented effectively if its contribution to the Lisbon agenda is to be realised. I am pleased to report that at the end of this debate the Council adopted Council Conclusions on the i2010 Strategy and on e-accessibility.

The Council also adopted Conclusions without debate on the subject of the transition from analogue to digital broadcasting. These Conclusions highlight the intention of Member States to complete the switchover, as far as possible, by the end of 2012.

Finally, I reported on the successful outcome on internet governance at the World Summit on Information Society and I highlighted the key role of the EU under our presidency in facilitating the compromise position. The agreement reached will provide a sound basis for delivering enhanced co-operation, and the response from the Commissioner and the Council was very positive indeed.

Written Ministerial Statements

DEFENCE

3 Para (Trials)

The Minister of State, Ministry of Defence (Mr. Adam Ingram): On 7 November, my colleague Lord Drayson, the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State and Minister for Defence Procurement, told the other place that he would report on the lessons learned following the "not guilty" verdict in the case of seven members and former members of the 3rd Battalion of the Parachute Regiment who were charged with murder and violent disorder.

It is worth reminding the House of the very difficult, demanding and hostile operational circumstances faced by the investigators of the Royal Military Police in Iraq in May 2003. It was in the immediate aftermath of the war fighting phase where there was an almost complete absence of civil governance, law and order and where there was widespread looting and civil disobedience. There were more than 2¾ million people in Basrah and Maysan Provinces who were very different in culture, language and religious background and the majority was also highly suspicious and often hostile. The RMP were required to support the deployed force, act as the local police for the Iraqi population and commence the huge undertaking of rebuilding the Iraqi police and prison services. The operational environment and situation facing the RMP cannot be equated to that faced by a civilian police force in the UK. In the first eight months of 2003, nine members of the RMP were killed on active service in Iraq.

Against that backdrop, the Adjutant General has conducted a comprehensive review of the case and the comments of the Judge Advocate General. He has concluded that many of the issues identified have already been addressed and action taken, but there remains room for improvement. The Adjutant General has identified: the need for a review of RMP resources to meet operational demands now and in the future; better and continuous liaison between RMP investigators and the Army Prosecuting Authority; and the need to drive down delays in the system in order to ensure the timely delivery of justice. These will also be taken forward, and further improvements will be delivered through the Armed Forces Bill. In the meantime, we continue to have full confidence in the professional ability of the Royal Military Police to conduct investigations of this complexity, seriousness, and in the context of a potentially hostile environment.

The Adjutant General has also confirmed that all seven defendants—both serving and former soldiers—were afforded very comprehensive support. Each had a Unit Defending Officer who could be contacted at any time, Legal Aid (including leading and junior Counsel) and time off for those still serving to prepare for their court martial. Personal issues and career consequences are always assessed fairly and kept under continuous review in such cases. The assertion by one of the defendants that he had been "hung out to dry" is unfounded.

Questions were raised about the payments made to Iraqi witnesses. This was done by the Military Court Service. The procedures and the level of expenses paid were in line with the standard practices applied in the civil process in the UK. Overall it is anticipated that the total cost of the trial will be around £4 million although final legal bills have to be submitted.

DEPUTY PRIME MINISTER

Housing Act (Implementation)

The Minister for Housing and Planning (Yvette Cooper): Further to my statement to the House on 10 October 2005 on a revised programme for implementing the provisions in the Housing Act 2004, I am now in a position to announce completion of most of the first phase of the programme which includes parts 1 to 4 and 7 of the 2004 Act.

Housing Health and Safety Rating System

On 28 November, the Housing Health and Safety Rating System (England) Regulations 2005 (SI 2005 No 3208) were laid before Parliament. The accompanying volumes of statutory guidance on the operation of the rating system, and on the use of the enforcement provisions in Part 1, were laid in draft at the same time, in accordance with section 9 of the Act. Part 1 applies to all residential premises and the laying of these Regulations and the draft guidance makes clear to those affected by the new provisions what is likely to be expected of them as from 6 April 2006.

Private Rented Sector Licensing

Today we have placed on ODPM's website http://www.odpm.gov.uk/housing/consult/, draft statutory instruments covering the licensing of HMOs and other private rented sector properties. These give effect to decisions announced on 10 October following extensive consultation with local authorities, managing agents, landlords and tenants.

We will take detailed comments into account before laying the final regulations at the end of January as indicated in the timetable published in October 2005. We want to make sure that the provisions are drafted in such a way that they are widely understood by those with responsibility to operate them.

The draft SIs include: The Licensing of Houses in Multiple Occupation (Prescribed Descriptions) (England) Order, The Licensing (HMOs and Other Houses) (Applications, Standards, Publication of Designation and Keeping of Registers) (England) Regulations 2005, The Selective Licensing (Specified Exemptions) (England) Order, The Housing (Interim Management Orders (Prescribed Circumstances) (England) Order and The Management of HMOs (England) Regulations.

The Government expect to lay these Orders in the week beginning 30 January 2006. They are expected to come into force on 6 April 2006.

Empty Dwelling Management Orders

The consultation exercise on Empty Dwelling Management Orders (EDMOs) closed on 14 October. In December we will publish our response to the consultation and set out our proposals for secondary legislation. We expect to lay the instruments in the week beginning 30 January 2006, and again expect these to come into force on 6 April 2006.

EDUCATION AND SKILLS

School Funding Settlement

The Minister for Schools (Jacqui Smith): I am announcing today the school funding settlement for 2006–07 and 2007–08. The settlement will mean that, by 2007–08, total revenue funding per pupil will have increased nationally by over £1,400 in real terms since this Government came to power, an increase of some 50 per cent. The settlement demonstrates the continuing high priority the Government give to schools.

1. On 21 July this year I announced to the House details of the new school funding arrangements which will be introduced from April 2006: in particular a ring-fenced Dedicated Schools Grant (the DSG), multi-year budgets for schools and a rationalisation of standards-related grants. The purpose of those arrangements is to guarantee delivery of the Government's commitment to increase spending on schools in every local authority area, to provide schools with the tools to take a strategic approach to their financial planning, to reduce bureaucracy, to ensure stability and to enable schools to focus on raising standards for all pupils.

2. I am announcing today the Government's decisions on the overall increase in the Dedicated Schools Grant in 2006–07, the allocation methodology to be used to distribute the DSG, and the level of the minimum funding guarantee for schools in each of those years. Details of allocations of both the DSG and specific grants to authorities and schools are being sent to local authorities today and I am placing copies in the Library of the House.

3. I announced in July that the minimum funding guarantee for schools in both 2006–07 and 2007–08 would again be set at a level which covered the average cost pressures on schools in those years, subject to a final assessment of those pressures. As in previous years, my officials have discussed the likely pressures on schools with representatives of local authorities and head teachers. These include in particular the differing pressures on primary and secondary schools respectively which result from the final stage of implementation of the National Agreement on Workforce Reform.

4. To reflect these pressures, the minimum funding guarantee for secondary and special schools will be set at 3.4 per cent. per pupil for 2006–07. The guarantee for nursery and primary schools in 2006–07 will be higher, at 4 per cent. per pupil, to reflect the higher cost of implementing workforce reform in those schools in academic year 2005–06. In 2007–08 the guarantee will be the same for all schools, at 3.7 per cent. per pupil. As in previous years, we expect the majority of schools to receive increases above the level of the minimum guarantee.

5. The Learning and Skills Council will match the minimum funding guarantee for secondary schools in its funding rates for school sixth forms in both years.

6. The overall level of the DSG will increase by 6.4 per cent. in cash terms in 2006–07, over the baseline of local authorities' budgeted expenditure on schools in 2005–06, and by a further 6 per cent. in 2007–08. This includes funding which will be transferred out of the DSG to meet additional costs of the expanding academies programme, as pupils in academies no longer need to be funded via local authorities.

7. The guaranteed unit of funding per pupil from the DSG will increase by 6.8 per cent. on average in 2006–07, and by 6.7 per cent. on average in 2007–08. Final allocations of the DSG will depend on actual pupil numbers as at January 2006 and will be determined by May 2006. However, authorities can plan ahead with confidence now in the knowledge that they will receive a fixed sum for each of their pupils.

8. In August, my Department issued a consultation document on the method of distribution of the DSG. This proposed a modified method of distribution for 2006–07 and 2007–08 which would take the existing level of authorities' spend on the Schools Budget as the baseline, give every authority at least a 5 per cent. per pupil increase over that amount each year, and distribute the remaining grant according to criteria which would be determined by Ministers in advance of each multi-year budget period. Distribution against each of these criteria would be through a formula based on objective criteria. The key benefits of the proposed approach were that it met the concerns of those authorities which currently spend significantly in excess of their Schools Formula Spending Share (SFSS), since their spend in excess of SFSS would be consolidated into their baseline. It would also enable increases in funding to be targeted more directly at Government priorities for schools.

9. Following that consultation, we have now decided to go ahead with this approach for 2006–07 and 2007–08. A majority of respondents to the consultation supported the proposals. However, schools in a number of authorities which currently underspend against their Schools Formula Spending Share were concerned about the proposals. We have responded to their concerns by allocating in our distribution methodology additional funding specifically for schools in these authorities. As announced in July, we propose to review the operation of this methodology, consider what lessons can be learnt and work up proposals for the distribution of the DSG in the longer term, in time for the announcement of the first 3-year allocations of DSG in late 2007 following the Comprehensive Spending Review. We will announce in the new year how we propose to involve local authorities and other stakeholders in that review.

10. Overall, the minimum increase in any authority's per pupil DSG will be 6.4 per cent. in 2006–07 and 6.1 per cent. in 2007–08, and the maximum will be 9 per cent. in 2006–07 and 8.4 per cent. in 2007–08. In addition, to protect authorities with rapidly falling rolls, we will ensure that every authority receives a cash increase in its DSG of at least 4 per cent. in each year.

11. Within this overall increase we will, as announced in July, give every authority an initial basic increase of 5 per cent. per pupil in both 2006–07 and 2007–08: for authorities in London this will be increased to 5.1 per cent. per pupil in both years in response to the STRB's recommendation that there should be a higher increase in the London pay scales for teachers, amounting to a pressure on school budgets of 0.1 per cent.

12. Beyond this basic increase, we intend to distribute the available increase in funding in 2006–07 and 2007–08 to reflect the priority which the Government attach to meeting the costs of greater personalisation of learning, more practical learning options for 14–16 pupils, workforce reform and the increased entitlement to early years provision from 33 to 38 weeks. In relation to each of these priorities, the sums allocated in 2006–07 will be consolidated into the authority's baseline for 2007–08, and any further sums identified for 2007–08 will be on top of that amount.

13. First, as set out in the recent White Paper "Higher Standards, Better Schools For All" and announced by my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State to the House on 17 October, we will earmark £335 million over the 2 years to support personalised learning, including extended opportunities outside the school day, at Key Stage 3. £120 million of the increase in the DSG will be earmarked for this purpose in 2006–07, and a further £215 million will be earmarked in 2007–08. In addition, £100 million will be earmarked for personalised learning, including extended opportunities, in primary schools in 2006–07, with a further £130 million in 2007–08. Every authority will receive an element of this funding, but it will be targeted particularly at authorities with the highest levels of deprivation and low prior attainment.

14. Secondly, we will distribute £40 million in 2006–07 and a further £70 million in 2007–08 to support the provision of more practical learning options for pupils aged 14–16 to maintain their engagement in learning. This funding will be distributed to all local authorities on the basis of pupil numbers aged 11–15.

15. Thirdly, we will distribute £70 million of the 2006–07 increase to reflect the full year cost of implementing guaranteed planning, preparation and assessment time in primary schools from September 2005. This will be distributed on the basis of primary aged pupil numbers in each authority.

16. Fourthly, we will distribute £82 million of the 2006–07 increase to meet the cost of the increased entitlement to free early years provision from 33 to 38 weeks which was announced in the 10-Year Childcare Strategy. This will be distributed on the basis of numbers of 3 and 4-year-old pupils in private, voluntary and independent settings.

17. In each of these cases we will apply the Area Cost Adjustment as used in the Local Government Finance Settlement, announced on 5 December, to the distribution of funds to reflect the higher costs of employing staff in certain areas.

18. Finally, we will distribute £30 million in 2006–07 and a further £30 million in 2007–08 to authorities whose spending on schools was below the level of their Schools Formula Spending Share (SFSS) in 2005–06. In 2006–07 each of these authorities will receive a sum equal to around a quarter of the difference between its Schools Budget for 2005–06 and its SFSS for that year. In 2007–08 we will give them a further quarter of the difference so that half the gap between spending and SFSS has been closed by then.

19. Although some of the increases in each year will be earmarked for particular purposes, it will be for individual local authorities in consultation with their Schools Forums to decide on the distribution of the whole of the grant locally, subject to meeting the minimum funding guarantee, and taking into account local circumstances as well as the Government's priorities. Local authorities and their forums are best placed to take decisions on the balance of priorities locally. As I announced in July we will be enhancing local decision-making under the new arrangements by giving Schools Forums new powers to approve certain proposals from their local authority. We are also strengthening the arrangements for Schools Forums' constitutions and proceedings to ensure that all partners within the school and wider educational community have confidence in the decisions that forums will be taking on their behalf. Regulations for this purpose will be laid before the House tomorrow.

20. At the same time, it is important to ensure a consistency of approach across authorities on key issues which will affect the stability and predictability of schools' budgets. I have therefore decided, following consultation, to go ahead with the proposal I announced in July to require authorities to use a single pupil count to determine their schools' budgets from 2006–07. The majority of those consulted welcomed this proposal, which will mean an end to in-year re-determinations of schools' budgets, and the consequent uncertainty about those budgets. This requirement will be incorporated into regulations which will be brought before the House soon.

21. I believe that this settlement provides the financial foundation for key Government priorities for schools and 14–19 learners. The distribution reflects an appropriate balance between delivering explicit resources to where they are needed to meet key Government commitments, and providing all authorities with headroom, once the cost of the minimum funding guarantee has been met, to target on local priorities. This will ensure that all authorities have scope to begin to respond to the conclusions of the review of deprivation funding—published today alongside the settlement—ensuring that schools in our most deprived communities and areas benefit from sufficient resource to meet the pressures and challenges they face.

22. The settlement also recognises the position of schools in authorities which in the past have chosen to spend above the level of their funding allocation—by taking their actual spending rather than their funding as the starting point for the DSG—but goes some way towards closing the gap by prioritising schools in authorities which have traditionally spent less than their funding allocation. The Government will consider whether and how to move further towards convergence around a national formula for authorities as part of the more fundamental review of the DSG in advance of 2008–09.

23. I am also publishing today details of specific grants for 2006–07 and 2007–08. As I promised in July, the funding for the School Development Grant will be increased by 3.4 per cent. per pupil in 2006–07 and by 3.7 per cent. per pupil in 2007–08, in line with the minimum funding guarantee for secondary schools. We will also bring a number of currently separate grants into the School Development Grant to reduce the number of different funding streams going to schools, and enable them to use these resources more flexibly. I am announcing details of a new fairer formula for the Schools Standards Grant, which from 2006–07 schools can use to support the development of extended services.

24. Finally, I can confirm that, as previously announced, the Leadership Incentive Grant (LIG) will come to an end in March 2006. However, the Government believe it is important to continue to provide specific support to our most deprived schools, and I am there announcing today arrangements for doing so within the School Development Grant, together with transitional arrangements for other schools which currently receive LIG.

25. The announcement I am making today creates a framework which combines clarity about the Government's priorities for school funding with flexibility for local authorities and Schools Forums over how they respond to those priorities. But most importantly it means that, for the first time, schools will know what their budgets will be for more than one year ahead, giving them increased stability and predictability and allowing them to plan ahead with confidence and make the best use of their resources for the benefit of all their pupils.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Gothenburg Protocol

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (Mr. Ben Bradshaw): The 1999 Protocol to abate acidification, eutrophication and ground-level ozone—known as the Gothenburg Protocol—was adopted under the United Nations Economic Commission for Europe (UNECE) Convention on Long-Range Transboundary Air Pollution. The UK signed the Protocol in 1999. The Protocol came into effect in May 2005 and has now been ratified by 18 Parties.

The Government placed an Explanatory Memorandum on the Protocol before both Houses of Parliament in September 2002. At that time it was thought that additional legislation would be required to allow the UK to ratify the Protocol.

However, further analysis of the provisions of the Protocol has allowed us to establish that further legislation will not be required. I have tabled a revised Explanatory Memorandum indicating that we propose to ratify the Protocol forthwith. I intend that the instrument of ratification will be deposited with the United Nations in the course of December 2005.

The UK will ratify the Protocol subject to a reservation. The new Explanatory Memorandum sets out the reservation that the UK will make. It relates to a provision on a type of gas engine where the UK considers that it is not technically feasible to meet the limit values required by the Protocol.

As the Government take these urgent steps to ratify, we are conscious that Parliament will have less time than convention normally allows to consider the revised Memorandum. However, we believe this to be a special case on the ground that the earlier Memorandum on the Protocol has been available to both Houses since 2002. In these circumstances, the Government consider that a shortening of the normal scrutiny period is reasonable.

HEALTH

Employment, Social Policy, Health and Consumer Affairs Council

The Minister of State, Department of Health (Ms Rosie Winterton): The next meeting of the Employment, Social Policy, Health and Consumer Affairs Council will be on 8–9 December. My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Health will chair the meeting and I will attend for the United Kingdom. Items on the agenda relating to health will be covered on 9 December. Items for discussion are: Human health aspects of pandemic flu; proposal for a Regulation of the European Parliament and of the Council on medicinal products for paediatric use; and the European Commission's Green Paper: "Improving the mental health of the population, Towards a strategy on mental health for the European Union".

Health Ministers will have a policy debate on human health aspects of pandemic flu and Ministers will be asked to adopt Council Conclusions on this topic. The Presidency then hopes to reach political agreement on the regulation on medicinal products for paediatric use.

There will then be an exchange of views on the green paper on mental health. The discussion will be structured around the European Commission's consultation questions.

Under any other business, the Presidency and the Commission will provide information on: Proposal for a Decision of the European Parliament and of the Council establishing a Programme of Community action in the field of public health and consumer protection; health inequalities and patient safety; a co-ordinated approach to the fight against HIV/AIDS in the European Union and the neighbouring countries; Council Public Health Working Party meeting at senior level; Commission High Level Group on Health Services and Medical Care; Framework Convention on Tobacco Control; and International Health Regulations.

In addition, Ministers will have an informal discussion on promoting healthy diets and physical activity.

Autumn Performance Report

The Secretary of State for Health (Ms Patricia Hewitt): Today I announce the publication of the Department of Health's 2005 Autumn Performance Report (Cm 6704). A copy of this has been placed in the Library. It shows the progress my Department has made towards achieving its public service agreement targets.

Further details of the performance of the National Health Service can be found in the latest copy of the Chief Executive's Report to the NHS; this has also been placed in the Library.

The Autumn Performance Report shows that there have been further improvements in access to services. The number of NHS patients waiting longer than three months for an outpatient appointment has fallen from 77,500 to 39,800 over the past year. In addition, the number of people waiting more than six months for an inpatient appointment fell from 69,900 to 24,800. We are on course to meet our maximum three month wait for outpatients and six month wait for inpatients by December 2005.

In addition to improving access we are also introducing choice. By the end of the year all eligible patients will be offered the choice of at least four providers at the point of general practitioner referral to consultant-led first outpatient appointments. Some patients are already benefiting from choice of hospital; since January 2005, cataract patients have been offered the choice of two or more providers at the point of referral. From April 2005, patients needing cardiac surgery have been given the choice of two or more providers at the point of referral by the cardiologist.

We are also improving health. Death rates from heart disease among people under 75 have fallen by 31 per cent., since the baseline of 1995–97; deaths from cancer have fallen by 14 per cent., over the same period. We have also seen a 6.6 per cent., fall in suicides against the 1995–97 baseline.

These are just some of the achievements of the NHS over the past year. These improvements have been made in a demanding year through the hard work, skills and passion of hundreds of thousands of staff, the increased funding the government is investing in heath and social care, and new and better ways of engaging services.

Finally, the Department has today published a report, "Accounting for Quality Change", which discusses the way the output of the NHS is measured. The Department considers it important to make the new figures public and encourage discussions, and ideas for further development.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Victims of Crime

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for the Home Department (Fiona Mactaggart): I am laying before the House today a command paper on services for victims of crime: "Rebuilding Lives: supporting victims of crime" (Cm 6705). It is part of the Government's ongoing reforms which have improved services for victims of crime and their families.

In it we make proposals for reform of the Criminal Injuries Compensation Scheme which will enable us to increase awards to the most seriously injured victims of crime, and to offer more immediate practical help to the vast majority. We are consulting on a range of options to deliver better support to victims through our manifesto commitment to introduce Victim Care Units. We will consult widely and the consultation period runs until 27 February 2006. A summary of the consultation responses will be published and placed in the House Library. Copies of the consultation paper will be placed in the House Library.

Royal Patriotic Fund

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for the Home Department (Paul Goggins): Today I will be laying before Parliament the Royal Patriotic Fund (Transfer of Property, Rights and Liabilities) Order 2005.

The Order provides for the transfer of the property, rights and liabilities of the Royal Patriotic Fund Corporation (a body corporate established under the Patriotic Fund Reorganisation Act 1903) to the RPFC, a company registered under the Charities Act 1993, and for the dissolution of the Royal Patriotic Fund Corporation. The RPFC has been established for the benefit of the persons specified in section 6 of the Armed Forces (Pensions and Compensation) Act 2004. Schedule 2 to that Act makes further provision in relation to the transfer of employees to the RPFC.

The object of the new body will remain the same as that of the Royal Patriotic Fund Corporation, namely to provide (by way of grants and allowances) assistance to the widows and other dependants of members of the Armed Forces. But the new constitution will enable it to carry out its functions more efficiently. The transfer will take effect from 1 January 2006.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Agriculture

The Secretary of State for International Development (Hilary Benn): I am placing in the Libraries of both Houses a copy of a new DFID policy paper, "Growth and poverty reduction; the role of agriculture".

The paper analyses the importance of agriculture for poverty reducing growth and shows why agriculture should be placed at the heart of efforts to reduce poverty. Increasing agricultural productivity can bring benefits to both producers and consumers. But of equal importance are agriculture's strong links with the wider economy.

The paper argues that reversing recent disappointing trends in agriculture's performance is critical if poor countries are to escape the trap of slow growth and poverty. This is particularly true in sub-Saharan Africa, where growth in agricultural output has barely kept pace with population. A major improvement in agriculture's performance in the world's poorest countries is possible and must be achieved if millions of people are to escape poverty.

The paper reaffirms the rationale for DFID support to agriculture and lays out the principles and priorities that should direct DFID's approach. Seven priority areas for action are identified. They are to: create policies and procedures that support agriculture; target public spending more effectively; tackle market failure; fill the agricultural finance gap; spread the benefits of new technology; improve access to land and secure property rights; and reduce distortions in international agricultural markets.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Post-primary Education

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Northern Ireland (Angela E. Smith): I have published a statement setting out the overall reform programme for post-primary education in Northern Ireland. This provides the context for the reforms and explains how the various elements fit together, including new admissions arrangements. Alongside this, I have published a summary of the responses to an earlier consultation on the new admission arrangements.

I have also launched a consultation on a proposal for a draft Education (Northern Ireland) Order which will give effect to key elements of the reforms. The consultation will run until 7 March 2006.

I have arranged for copies of these documents to be placed in the Library.

TRANSPORT

Longer and Heavier Goods Vehicles

The Minister of State, Department for Transport (Dr. Stephen Ladyman): I have received applications from two hauliers each wishing to trial a longer and heavier goods vehicle than is currently permitted. I have decided to refuse these applications.

Both vehicles exceed the current maximum length and weight limits of 18.75 m and 44 tonnes respectively. One applicant proposed to trial a vehicle 25.25 m in length weighing 60 tonnes, in common with moves elsewhere in Europe, while the other was expected to be 30.8 m and 84 tonnes.

While recognising that there are arguments both for and against, I have not been convinced that these vehicles are well suited to the UK at the present time, for a number of reasons. I have not seen clear evidence that longer and heavier vehicles (LHVs) would deliver economic benefit to the industry and in particular whether the benefits would come from increased mass, increased volume or both.

I believe that more work needs to be done to look at axle loadings for various designs of LHVs and the consequent impact on pavements, bridges and other infrastructure; and to estimate the costs of any reinforcement or remedial works.

The Department for Transport has examined video material showing prototype lorries turning and carrying out other manoeuvres and feels that more needs to be done to test their likely impact on traffic and to assess any constraints that might have to be placed on their usage. In particular I have noted that the previous increase in HGV weights to 44 tonnes had assumed that vehicles would be permitted to use the whole of the road network. If operation of LHVs in the UK were to depend on the designation of some form of "sub-network", as might be implied by access constraints, then the Department needs to study this premise and if correct assess the implications of creating such a sub-network.

The freight and logistics industry is constantly changing so I have instructed officials at my Department to continue to monitor developments, and to carry out their studies in close liaison with the industry.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Social Security Benefit Uprating

The Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (John Hutton): The proposed rates of benefit for 2006 are set out in the table below. The annual uprating of benefits will take place for State Pension and most other benefits in the first full week of the tax year. In 2006, this will be the week beginning 10 April. My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland proposes to introduce similar changes for Northern Ireland.

EDUCATION AND SKILLS

Information Sharing Index

The Secretary of State for Education and Skills (Ruth Kelly): I am announcing today a step change in the support the Government provide to front-line professionals in children's services by leading the implementation of an information sharing index.

The information sharing index is a key element of the "Every Child Matters" programme to transform children's services by supporting more effective prevention and early intervention. Its goal is to improve outcomes and the experience of public services for all children, young people and families. Better information sharing is essential for early and effective intervention. The index will provide a tool to support better communication among practitioners across education, health, social care and youth offending. It will allow them to contact one another more easily and quickly, so they can share information about children who need services or about whose welfare they are concerned.

Our decision about the way forward with the index has been informed by substantial input from, and consultation with, many front-line practitioners and managers across a wide range of children's services organisations. We have also drawn extensively on the experience of local index approaches run under existing legislation by Trailblazer local authorities. Our conclusions respond to what stakeholders have told us they need to be able to do their jobs more effectively and take account of views expressed on the design of the index.

The index will be a simple basic online system containing:

> minimal identifying information for each child; name, address, date of birth, gender, and contact details for parents or carers. Each child will also have a unique identifying number. In almost all cases this will be a scrambled version of their Child Reference Number (which all children are allocated when a claim for child benefit is made); > contact details for their educational setting and GP practice and for other practitioners or services working with them; and
> where a practitioner judges it appropriate and necessary, an indicator showing that they wished to be contacted by other practitioners because they have relevant information to share, are taking action, or have undertaken an assessment in relation to that child.

No case information will be held on the index. Children, young people, or, where appropriate, their parents or carers will be able to ask to see their records and to challenge any inaccuracies, in accordance with Data Protection Legislation.

There will be a single central index with its data partitioned into 150 parts, one relating to each local authority in England. A central index will ensure that the system works for children who move areas or who access services from more than one area. Partitioning the data will ensure local authorities take the lead in maintaining the accuracy of the data for children living in their area. To avoid double-inputting of data and to ensure high standards of accuracy, information on the index will be drawn from and updated through existing systems. It will use proven technology.

Technical access to the index will be either through the practitioner's existing case management systems, via a web link or, where an approved practitioner has no access to appropriate IT facilities, via another approved user who does have IT access.

The Government are determined that the index will be as secure as possible, and will therefore ensure it complies with rigorous security standards. Access to it will be granted only to authorised users who have undergone appropriate checks, including those provided by the Criminal Records Bureau. Practitioner use of the index will be audited to ensure information is only accessed where it is necessary for practitioners to do so, and so guard against inappropriate access by authorised users.

The Government are today making available a report on local authority trailblazer experience. Copies will be placed in the Library of the House.

The experience of the Trailblazers identifies significant benefits in the effectiveness of services. These include improved access to information to inform action, better identification of children not receiving universal services, and better multi-agency communication and information exchange. Scope for significant efficiency gains has also been demonstrated from time saved by practitioners on such tasks as identifying other services involved with a child, tracking down and contacting the individual practitioners involved, and making wasted referrals to services already involved with a child. These savings have been quantified as worth over £88 million per annum across England. We do not intend to reduce funding for children's services, but instead to enable savings realised to be reinvested in more and better services for children and more effective use of staff time. We anticipate that this will enhance staff satisfaction with their jobs.

The Government will commit substantial resources to the index. One-off implementation costs will be an estimated £224 million over the next three years—this includes the costs of adapting systems that will supply the data to the index and adapting the day-to-day systems used by practitioners so they can access the index from their own systems. It also includes the cost of ensuring the original data supplied to the index are accurate, that there are robust systems in place to ensure security, and that staff are trained to use the index properly. Operating costs, thereafter, will be £41 million per year. Most of these costs will fund the additional staff needed to ensure the on-going security, accuracy and audit of the index. Both set-up and running costs will be funded by central Government, so that the costs to local authorities do not form a pressure on the Council Tax.

Our plan is that a technically robust, secure and accurate index is available to support children's services across England by the end of 2008. To enable this to be achieved we plan to publish draft Regulations under Section 12 of the Children Act 2004, which will be subject to the affirmative resolution procedure. An initial set of Regulations in spring 2006 will provide the necessary vires to allow trials to take place for the creation of the initial records. We then plan to publish in autumn 2006 the main Regulations to govern the operation of the index. We will consult publicly on draft regulations in the summer/autumn of 2006.

Implementation will be led by a dedicated project team within DfES. The Project Team will continue to work closely with local authorities, users and other stakeholders to ensure that developments continue to be relevant and lead to more effective practice. Building on the current knowledge gained by the local authority trailblazers, the Project Team will directly and actively seek the views of children, young people and families and will ensure those views are taken into account as we develop the index.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Bribery Laws

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for the Home Department (Fiona Mactaggart): I am pleased to announce the publication today of the Government's consultation paper on reform of the laws of bribery.

Although the crime of bribery remains relatively rare in the UK, it is vital that we, through our actions and principles, remain vigilant and promote high standards of propriety at home and abroad. Modernising the criminal law plays an important role in carrying out this aim.

The existing law on bribery, which comprises the common law offence of bribery and a variety of statutory offences dating as far back as 1889, is fragmented, outdated and complex.

The Government sought to address problems in the existing law when we published the draft Corruption Bill; however since the publication of the report of the Joint Committee, which gave the Bill pre-legislative scrutiny in 2003, opinion has been divided on the way in which the offences should be formulated.

The purpose of this consultation is to seek a new consensus on the way forward. We are conscious that a good deal of criticism of the draft Bill came from those most exercised by the problem of bribery overseas. We therefore also seek views on a new proposal to enhance Serious Fraud Office powers to tackle bribery of foreign public officials.

The consultation, which contains proposals that will apply to England, Wales and Northern Ireland, will run until 1 March 2006 and I look forward to receiving views from a wide range of stakeholders. The Government are committed to reforming the law and today's consultation is a step towards delivering that commitment.

Copies of the consultation paper will be placed in the Libraries of both Houses. The consultation paper is also available on the Home Office website at: http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/about-us/haveyoursay/current-consultations/.

Scientific Procedures Statistics (Living Animals) 2004

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for the Home Department (Andy Burnham): The Statistics of Scientific Procedures on Living Animals in Great Britain—2004 is being published as a Command Paper today. Copies will be placed in the House Library.

This annual report meets the requirement in the Animals (Scientific Procedures) Act 1986 to keep Parliament informed about the use of animals for experimental or other purposes. It also forms the basis for meeting periodic reporting requirements at EU level. The format and content of future reports has recently being reviewed by the Animals Procedures Committee and I hope to be able to respond to their report shortly.

The report shows an overall increase over last year of 2.3 per cent in the number of procedures undertaken. The total number of procedures was 2.85 million, an increase of 63,000 over the previous year. Although this is the highest total since 1992, it does not necessarily signal an established upwards trend in animal use. The overall level of scientific procedures is determined by a number of factors, including the economic climate and global trends in scientific endeavour.

Non-toxicological procedures accounted for about 85 per cent. of the procedures carried out in 2004. These included studies for fundamental biological or applied research in human and veterinary medicine, with the main areas of use being for immunological studies, pharmaceutical research and development, and cancer research.

Procedures for toxicological purposes accounted for the remaining 15 per cent. of all procedures. About 70 per cent. of these were for testing the safety and efficacy of new drugs and medicines.

In keeping with previous years, those procedures which used mice or rats (or other rodents) were the great majority at 85 per cent. Those using fish amounted to 7 per cent. and those using birds, 4 per cent. The total of all procedures using dogs, cats, horses and non-human primates, that is, those species offered special protection by the Act, was less than 1 per cent. of the total.

Genetically normal animals were used in 1,673,000 regulated procedures, representing 59 per cent. of all procedures for 2004 (compared with 63 per cent. in 2003 and 84 per cent. in 1995). Genetically modified animals (nearly all rodents) were used in 914,000 regulated procedures, representing 32 per cent. of all procedures for 2004 (compared with 27 per cent. in 2003 and 8 per cent. in 1995).

These trends have been evident over recent years, reflecting the changing balance in use between genetically normal and modified animals, and are set to continue as advances in genetic science open up new and promising avenues of research.

It is important to point out that the Home Office, as regulatory authority under the 1986 Act, does not control the overall amount of animal research and testing which takes place, but seeks to minimise the numbers of animals used for justifiable purposes. We ensure, in carrying out our licensing function, that the provisions of the Act are rigorously applied in each programme of work. All animal use must be justified, and that for each particular programme of work the number of animals used, and the suffering caused must be minimised.

Further information on the annual statistics 2004 may be found on the Home Office website at http://scienceandresearch.homeoffice.gov.uk/animal-research/.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Southern Africa

The Secretary of State for International Development (Hilary Benn): Since my statement of 11 October, further assessments in Southern Africa have identified an additional 1.4 million people in Malawi, Zambia and Mozambique likely to face food shortages in the period up to April 2006. This brings the total numbers in need of assistance to over 11.4 million in Zimbabwe, Malawi, Zambia, Mozambique, Lesotho and Swaziland. This could rise as further reassessments take place, particularly in Zimbabwe.

The Scale of the Problem

Country assessments are carried out by national committees and are co-ordinated regionally by the Southern African Development Community (SADC). They consider whether households will be able to access their normal food requirements between harvests. Assessment reports can be found at the website of the Southern African Development Community: www.sadc.int. The figures include those with potential food shortages ranging from 1 per cent. to over 80 per cent. of their normal food requirements.

The breakdown by country is as follows:

Zimbabwe: The national assessment was formally released on 17 November and indicates that 2.88 million people will face food shortages, assuming stable maize prices. However, maize prices have risen significantly and, while hyper-inflation in Zimbabwe makes it difficult to assess affordability, it is possible that as many as 5 million people face food shortages. The underlying causes remain a combination of erratic rains, HIV/AIDS and bad governance. The World Food Programme, with support from DFID, has been providing food aid for 1 million vulnerable people, mainly children, and plans to scale this up to cover 3 million people over the next few months, and other donors are distributing to smaller groups. The World Food Programme has also now signed a Memorandum of Understanding with the Government guaranteeing humanitarian access and freedom from political interference in their humanitarian operations through the role of NGOs as implementing partners.

DFID has committed over £1 million in response to the Government of Zimbabwe's forced clearance of unauthorised dwellings earlier this year, Operation Murambatsvina ("Clean Up"), which displaced or destroyed the livelihoods of 700,000 people. The Zimbabwe Government have now reversed their refusal to accept international assistance to provide shelter. However, the UN and donors have not yet agreed with the Government on acceptable and equitable mechanisms for providing that aid. In the meantime, UN and non-Governmental agencies continue to operate relief programmes reaching 40,000 affected households, including those affected by HIV and AIDS, with food, blankets, medical care and other essential items. These issues were being discussed in Zimbabwe during the visit there this week by the UN Under Secretary General for Humanitarian Affairs and Emergency Relief Coordinator, Jan Egeland.

Malawi: The latest assessment indicates that up to 4.85 million people face food shortages. The Government and the World Food Programme have started a coordinated emergency programme targeting the 2.7 million most vulnerable people and plans are in place to reach all of those facing food shortages in the period leading up to the harvest in March/April 2006. A UN appeal for $88 million was launched in September covering food aid and distribution of seeds and fertiliser. This was later revised downwards to $74 million, of which $32 million has been pledged so far, with a further $68 million contributed outside the appeal. The UK Government contributed £10.2 million before the appeal was launched and £5 million in October in response to the appeal. We will contribute a further £3 million to help respond to the increased needs this week, bringing our total contribution to £18.2 million (about $32 million) making the UK the largest contributor to the relief effort in Malawi this year.

Zambia: The latest assessment indicates that 1.4 million people in the Southern, Western and Eastern Provinces will face food shortages before the next harvest in February–March 2006. The Government have now requested assistance. Food distributions by the World Food Programme, the Government of Zambia and an NGO consortium are increasing in response to this and the UK has this week committed an additional £4 million.

Mozambique: The latest assessment indicates that about 800,000 people will face food shortages, mostly in the south of the country. The World Food Programme continues to distribute food aid to some of those worst affected and the Government have established a range of safety nets, such as food for work programmes and free or subsidised seed distribution so that the poorest households have enough seeds to plant for next year.

Lesotho: Assessments in Lesotho have not changed. About 440,000 people could face food shortages. These are virtually all in households that suffer from chronic food insecurity. The Government are responding through safety nets, including a recently introduced old age pension.

Swaziland: Assessments in Swaziland have not changed. About 225,000 people could face food shortages in households that suffer from chronic food insecurity. As in Lesotho, other responses to chronic hunger, apart from food aid, are being encouraged, such as provision of seeds and fertiliser to poorer households.

What are the UK Government doing?

In response to this crisis, the UK Government have now allocated over £64 million in humanitarian assistance for the region this year. Some of this has been channelled through UN agencies and some has gone through Governments or NGOs.

The breakdown of our commitments so far this year is as follows:

Zimbabwe: £40 million covering relief programmes for up to 3 million people provided through non-Government channels, including contributions to the World Food Programme, HIV/AIDS programmes and responses to those affected by Operation Murambatsvina.

Malawi: Over £18 million towards the Government's emergency food distribution, helping to purchase maize, options on additional maize, seeds, pulses and oil, support to the Government's logistics and early warning capacity, and support to UNICEF for nutritional surveillance and response. Government of Malawi planning for the emergency began in March with help from early pledges from the UK.

Zambia: Up to £3,430,000 for food aid distribution to 200,000 households and other support through the World Food Programme and other agencies, and £1 million to Oxfam for cash transfers to 14,950 households in Western Province. In addition, we will provide £500,000 for nutritional surveillance and preparedness, and £500,000 for emergency seed distribution.

Mozambique: £235,000 for provision of seeds to drought affected farmers, using the Ministry of Agriculture's drought mitigation plan.

Lesotho: £350,000 for distribution of seeds and fertilisers and small-scale livestock interventions for affected households.

Swaziland: £300,000 for distribution of seeds and fertilisers and other necessary help for vulnerable households.

I am again urging EU partners to respond speedily to these additional needs and remain in contact with the UN on the international community's response.

The Wider Challenge

The crisis has reinforced the need to address the high levels of chronic hunger in Southern Africa more effectively and take action to reduce the risk of repeated crises affecting the region. I welcome the recent commitment by European Development Ministers—at the General Affairs and External Relations Council on 21–22 November—to support safety nets for the most vulnerable in Africa as well as commitments by the US Government to help break the cycle of hunger in Africa. I intend to work closely with all partners to address these longer-term issues while continuing to tackle emergency food needs effectively. We will continue to monitor the position closely and be ready to take further action if necessary.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Water Reform

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Northern Ireland (Mr. Shaun Woodward): Today I have placed in the Libraries of the House copies of the Consultation Report on the Integrated Impact Assessment (IIA) of the Government's proposals for the reform of water and sewerage services in Northern Ireland, known as the Water Reform Programme. This also includes the final Equality Impact Assessment and final Regulatory Impact Assessment.

Consultation on the draft IIA took place from 29 November 2004 until 4 March 2005. As part of the IIA process a number of impact assessments were carried out on the policy proposals, drawing upon available quantitative and qualitative evidence. Assessments carried out included Human Rights, Health, Equality, New Targeting Social Need (TSN), Regulatory impacts and Rural Proofing.

The Consultation Report I am publishing today summarises and responds to the comments made on the various IIA impact assessments and on the Water Reform proposals generally.

The Government have listened carefully to what has been said throughout the consultation period and has noted the substantial level of opposition to the proposals, particularly the introduction of domestic water and sewerage charges. However, the Government have heard nothing to suggest there is a realistic alternative to the Water Reform Programme which is needed urgently to:

- improve the delivery, efficiency and quality of service currently provided to the public in ways that would not be possible while Water Service remains in central Government;
- provide a sustained and reliable means of financing future investment in water and sewerage services; and
- release resources for allocation to other public services, up to £300 million by the end of the decade, in addition to the borrowing power in the Reinvestment and Reform Initiative which is currently delivering £200 million of capital investment in Northern Ireland's public services every year.

The Government have not heard a realistic alternative to increasing what people in Northern Ireland pay in local taxes and charges, compared with the position in Great Britain, as a vital step that must be taken if Northern Ireland is to have world class public services. In Great Britain average household contributions (including water bills) are £1,200–£1,300, whereas in Northern Ireland they are £550. The Government therefore remains committed to the introduction of the Water Reform Programme but, in response to the consultation, with revised or new policy in two key areas.

The strongest criticism of the original proposals was that the new domestic charges would be neither fair, nor affordable, particularly for those on low incomes.

The Government understand these criticisms. The introduction of the new charges has been deferred until April 2007, partly to allow more time to ensure change is properly managed. However in view of their impact, the Government still intend to phase the new charges in over a three-year period, with households paying one third of the full charge in 2007–08, two thirds in 2008–09 and the full amount in 2009–10. The changes to the non-domestic charging regime will be introduced on the same basis.

Water and sewerage services in Northern Ireland are not yet of as high a standard as those in England, Scotland and Wales, reflecting the lower levels of investment over many years and lower levels of efficiency. The gap in standards is being closed rapidly in Northern Ireland with new investment of £1.1 billion in the period 2003 to 2008. However, in recognition of the gaps that remain, and the burden that the introduction of the new charges may cause, the Government intend to set the new household charges during the three year period to 2009–10 to achieve the average level of charges that will apply in England and Wales in 2009–10. A detailed charging scheme will be published in late 2006. A first Periodic Price Determination conducted by the new Economic Regulator is planned to be concluded in 2009. This Determination will set tariffs for 2010–11 onwards.

The three year phasing-in period to 2009–10 will provide an opportunity for the Government-owned company (to be known as Northern Ireland Water Limited) to continue the delivery of the ongoing investment programmes that should bring services up to necessary standards both in terms of water quality and wastewater treatment. Progress has also been made in the past three years to improve efficiency levels. However there remains a gap in comparison with performance in England, Scotland and Wales, reflecting the exposure of companies in GB to commercial pressures and their greater freedoms and flexibilities. The three-year transitional period will allow the company time to deliver a demanding efficiency programme to bring down substantially the cost of water and sewerage services in Northern Ireland in line with best practice in Great Britain. This will be a major and testing challenge for the new company and its workforce.

A Strategic Financial Review has been completed to provide advice to Government on issues such as the company's financial structure, efficiency, corporate governance and regulatory arrangements. This Review, together with the Government's conclusions on its recommendations, will be published shortly.

The Government consider that phasing charges in over three years, and setting them at levels equivalent to the average in England and Wales during this transitional period, is fair to the people of Northern Ireland and is also fair to other taxpayers and water charge-payers elsewhere the United Kingdom.

The greatest concern expressed during the consultation was that the new domestic charges would not be affordable and would create hardship amongst those on low incomes. To ease the transition, and in recognition of the relatively high levels of poverty and disadvantage in Northern Ireland, the Government's broad objective will be to ensure that low income households, particularly pensioner households, should not need to spend more than 3 per cent. of their income on water and sewerage services. To achieve this, a new Affordability Tariff will be available for those households who are eligible. This tariff will be based on income and will be set at a level equivalent to 3 per cent. of the single person's pension credit guarantee as updated by Parliament each year. Additional protection in the form of lower caps will be set for those with properties valued at less than £100,000.

Eligibility for the scheme will be determined through the social security system and not through any new form of separate means testing. All those who are entitled to Housing Benefit, Rate Rebate or the Special Rate Relief scheme currently being developed within the Review of Rating Policy in Northern Ireland will automatically be entitled to the Affordability Tariff. Householders in receipt of Income Support and Pension Credit who would be entitled to these passport benefits (but do not claim them) will be assisted in securing access to low income protection by virtue of their eligibility for Housing Benefit or Rate Rebate. In addition the Government have decided that 16–17 year old householders will have automatic eligibility for low income protection. Children leaving care will also be automatically entitled to low-income protection up to age 21. The cost of the Affordability Tariff scheme will be met from existing Northern Ireland public expenditure rather than other customers and this scheme will be reviewed after three years.

The other area where the Government are announcing new policy is on domestic metering.

The IIA consultation exercise revealed strong views in support of domestic metering but also significant opposition to it. While there are very good environmental reasons for metering, the high cost of metering and the issue of affordability of water charges raise real concerns. Many argued strongly that universal or voluntary metering would penalise large and lower income families.

In recognition of these conflicting views the Government are setting an objective of a managed long-term transition to widespread domestic metering as a means of meeting long-term environmental and sustainability objectives. This recognises that it will take time to introduce widespread metering given the costs associated with the installation of large numbers of meters. It also recognises that the introduction of metering will need to be managed to mitigate adverse social effects. To avoid these, the Affordability Tariff scheme should virtually eliminate any significant adverse impact that domestic metering might have had on low income households. The long-term transition will involve a number of steps.

In the short term, meters will be offered as an option to pensioner households. In practice this will only benefit pensioner households who are not eligible for the Affordability Tariff, with implementation at a rate of 2,000–3,000 households per month. This will further mitigate the negative equality impact on pensioners from the capital value charging regime. Metered charges should be lower than unmeasured charges for most pensioner households whose consumption of water is significantly lower than average households. This will particularly benefit the "asset-rich and income poor". Those opting for meters will be able to revert to an unmeasured charge within 12 months.

Meters will be installed in all new properties and first time connections and billed on that basis as a practical means of reaching the long-term objective of widespread metering—low income protection would be provided on the same basis as for unmeasured customers.

Where a meter is installed in a property, all subsequent occupiers will be subject to metered charges with no option to revert to an unmeasured charge. However, if the new occupants are eligible for low income protection their protection would be provided on the same basis as for unmeasured customers.

The policy would be subject to a review within two years with a view to extending the domestic metering option to further groups from 2009–10 thus making metering more generally available to customers. However any such proposals would need to be subject to equality impact screening.

The Government have taken time to listen carefully to the points made in the consultation. They conclude there is no realistic alternative to introducing domestic water charges and extending the existing non-domestic charging regime. However, the Government have amended their policy and are confident that the balanced package of measures announced today will deliver better water and sewerage services, provide benefits to public services generally in Northern Ireland and do so in a way that is fair, affordable and sustainable.

The publication of the Final IIA, and the announcement of these revised and new policies, closes the consultation on the Water Reform policy proposals. The next step will be to bring forward draft legislation reflecting these proposals. This is planned for spring 2006.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Regional Development Agencies

The Minister for Industry and the Regions (Alun Michael): I have decided to appoint the new Board Members listed at Annex A and to reappoint the RDA Chairs and Board Members, listed at Annex B. Both new appointments and reappointments will be for a period of three years.

The new appointments, with the exception of Vanda Murray (NWDA), and all the reappointments, will begin on 14 December 2005. Vanda Murray will take up her appointment, at the North West Regional Development Agency (NWDA), on 1 April 2006. All the appointments will expire on 13 December 2008. I have placed further details of both the new appointments and reappointments in the Library of both Houses. All of them were made in accordance with the Code of Practice of the Commissioner for Public Appointments.

TRANSPORT

Autumn Performance Report

The Secretary of State for Transport (Mr. Alistair Darling): I have today published my Department's Autumn Performance Report for 2005. Copies have been laid before Parliament and placed in the House Libraries.

The Report sets out the Department's progress made on our seven Public Service Agreement targets over the last six months since the publication of the Annual Report in June 2005.

Potters Bar Derailment

The Secretary of State for Transport (Mr. Alistair Darling): On 23 May 2005, in response to a question from the hon. Member for Hertsmere (Mr. Clappison), the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State informed the House that I expected to be in a position to decide whether to hold a public inquiry into the Potters Bar derailment once the Crown Prosecution Service had decided whether to bring prosecutions. On 17 October 2005, the Crown Prosecution Service announced that they would not be bringing any prosecutions. After careful consideration, I have decided that there should not be a public inquiry into the rail accident at Potters Bar on 10 May 2002 in which seven people died.

Three investigations into the accident have taken place, by the Health and Safety Executive (HSE), the British Transport Police and the Rail Standards and Safety Board. The HSE interim reports made recommendations in order to avoid a similar accident in the future and I am satisfied that these recommendations have been acted upon. In addition, the coroner intends to hold a full inquest, which will take place as soon as the necessary arrangements can be put in place. I have agreed, if necessary, to fund his costs.

I do not therefore believe, on legal or general policy grounds, that it is necessary or appropriate to hold an inquiry in this case, or that such an inquiry would reveal more information on the cause of the accident than is already available.

The Health and Safety Executive recognise rail safety has improved and, when responsibility for safety enforcement is transferred to the Office of Rail Regulation, they will continue that work. Since the accident Network Rail, the company which replaced Railtrack, has taken steps to improve maintenance and ended the practice of contracting it out to separate companies. Network Rail now takes direct responsibility for maintenance of the rail network.

CONSTITUTIONAL AFFAIRS

Dedicated Drug Court Pilot

The Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs (Ms Harriet Harman): My right hon. and noble Friend, the Secretary of State and Lord Chancellor, Lord Falconer of Thoroton, has made the following written ministerial statement in the other place today, 12 December 2005:

"I am pleased to announce the launch of the dedicated drug court pilot. Under this model the same magistrate or district judge who gave a drug treatment order will be responsible for management of the offender during their reviews and to the point of completion. In the event of a breach of the order the same sentencing panel will consider the options available for re-sentence for the original offence committed.

By increasing continuity in the process, from the court and also from local partner agencies, offenders will be encouraged to complete the orders and become rehabilitated members of society.

The project will run for 18 months and will collect data from West London and Leeds Magistrates' Courts. It is hoped that by the end of the trial period there will be sufficient evidence that proves that this model is effective in reducing re-offending. If this model is successful my Department will recommend rollout to appropriate areas."

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH AFFAIRS

Diplomatic Missions

The Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (Mr. Jack Straw): From a community of around 23,000 in the United Kingdom entitled to diplomatic immunity, 11 serious offences, allegedly committed by such persons were drawn to the attention of the Foreign and Commonwealth Office in 2004. "Serious Offences" are defined in accordance with the 1985 White Paper on Diplomatic Immunities and Privileges—that is as offences that would, in certain circumstances, carry a penalty of 12 months or more imprisonment.

The Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (Mr. Jack Straw): There were 4,821 outstanding parking and other minor traffic violation fines incurred by Diplomatic Missions and International Organisations in the United Kingdom recorded during the year 1 January 2004 to 31 December 2004. These totalled £425,480.00. In July this year the Foreign and Commonwealth Office wrote to all Diplomatic Missions and International Organisations concerned giving them the opportunity to pay their outstanding fines, or appeal against them if they considered that the fines had been issued incorrectly. As a result payments totalling £63,650.00 were received, leaving a total of 4,135 (£361,830.00) unpaid fines for 2004. The table below details those Diplomatic Missions and International Organisations which have 11 or more undisputed fines unpaid.

London Congestion Charge

The number of outstanding fines incurred by Diplomatic Missions in the United Kingdom for non-payment of the London Congestion Charge since its introduction in February 2003 until 10 November 2005 was 32,761. The table below shows the 10 Diplomatic Missions with the highest number of outstanding fines.

Mission	Number of Fines outstanding	Value £
1–United Arab Emirates	4,859	452,650.00
2–Angola	4,218	392,750.00
3–Sudan	2,924	274,870.00

10–USA	933	62,250.00
Total	20,804	1,909,700.00

The Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (Mr. Jack Straw): The majority of diplomatic missions in the United Kingdom pay the National Non-Domestic Rates requested from them. They are obliged to pay only 6 per cent. of the total National Non-Domestic Rates value which represents payment for specific services such as street cleaning, lighting, maintenance and fire services. The total amount outstanding from all diplomatic missions is approximately £880,000.00. However, as at 1 July 2005 missions listed below owed over £10,000 in respect of NNDR. Ten additional diplomatic missions, who owe £10,000 or more in respect of National Non-Domestic Rates, have made arrangements with the Valuation Office Agency to clear their outstanding debts and have not been included in this list.

General Affairs and External Relations Council

The Minister for Europe (Mr. Douglas Alexander): The General Affairs and External Relations Council (GAERC) will be held on 12 December in Brussels. My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs and I will represent the UK.

The agenda items are as follows:

Annual Operating Programme 2006

The incoming Austrian presidency and future Finnish presidency will present their 2006 Operating Programme.

Financial Perspectives 2007–13

We expect the Council to focus on the outstanding areas where further progress is needed following the 7 December Conclave, with the aim of providing a useful basis for working towards a deal at the European Council on 15–16 December.

Preparation for the December European Council

The presidency will update the Council on preparation for the December European Council and discuss the outstanding issues in relation to the European Council Conclusions. The Council will also discuss the Commission and Council Papers setting out priority actions for improving migration management with a focus on Africa, which were mandated by the Hampton Court Summit.

WTO

We expect the Commission to update the Council on the latest state of play in the WTO negotiations.

Western Balkans

The Council is expected to have a further discussion on the EU's role in Kosovo, confirm EU agreement on a candidate to succeed Lord Ashdown as EU Special Representative in Bosnia, and discuss the Commission's opinion on Macedonia's EU membership application.

Enlargement

The Council is expected to note the Commission's latest enlargement package, including the overarching strategy paper and country reports on all the enlargement and Western Balkan countries (including Bulgaria and Romania). The Council will also look to agree new Accession Partnerships for Turkey and Croatia and new European Partnerships for the other Western Balkan countries.

European Neighbourhood Policy (ENP)

External Relations Commissioner Ferrero-Waldner will update the Council on achievements during the first year of implementation of European Neighbourhood Policy (ENP) Action Plans and highlight the critical priorities for implementation in 2006, both for the EU and the EU's partners.

EU/Africa

We expect the Council to discuss and agree the EU-Africa Strategy, which will then be adopted at the December European Council. This will be the first substantive discussion of the Strategy by Foreign Ministers. Development Ministers have already discussed the Commission's Africa Communication.

Ethiopia/Eritrea

Following a request from Dutch Foreign Minister Ben Bot, the Council will discuss the situation on the Ethiopian/Eritrean border, particularly how the EU might work with the UN to help resolve the dispute.

Parliamentary Questions

The Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (Mr. Jack Straw): During Foreign and Commonwealth Office Oral Questions on Tuesday 29 November, in response to a supplementary question from the hon. Member for New Forest, West (Mr. Swayne), I said

> "the United Kingdom has historically been paid significantly more than France over many years, notwithstanding the abatement that was secured in 1984", Official Report, 29 November 2005, volume 440, column 115.

I should have said that "the United Kingdom has historically paid" rather than "been paid". I apologise to the hon. Member and to the House for this inadvertent error.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Control Order Powers

The Secretary of State for the Home Department (Mr. Charles Clarke): Section 14(1) of the Prevention of Terrorism Act 2005 (the 2005 Act) requires me to report to Parliament as soon as reasonably practicable after the end of every relevant three-month period on my exercise of the control order powers during that period.

The 2005 Act came into force on 11 March 2005. During the 3rd period (11 September to 10 December) I made four orders on 23 November 2005 and one order on 8 December 2005, all five were made with the permission of the court under section 3(1)(a) of the 2005 Act.

There are eight control orders currently in force.

During the period I have refused two requests to modify control order obligations. A right of appeal exists in section 10 of the 2005 Act against a decision by the Secretary of State not to modify an obligation contained in a control order. This has not been exercised in respect of these refusals.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Gleneagles Implementation Plan for Africa

The Secretary of State for International Development (Hilary Benn): The Government are committed to ensuring that the pledges on Africa and development made at the G8 summit at Gleneagles in July are implemented, and progress has already been made. At the international level, implementation will be monitored by the Africa Partnership Forum, as well as by the G8 group of countries and the EU. The Gleneagles Implementation Plan for Africa—a copy of which I am placing in both Libraries—sets out the Government's views on the key milestone which need to be achieved on Africa and development in the twelve months following the Gleneagles summit. I am pleased that some of these have already been achieved, and the Government are working with their partners in developed and developing countries to ensure that the remainder are achieved as quickly as possible. This Plan will be updated monthly as further progress is made.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Pension Credit (Quarterly Report)

The Minister for Pensions Reform (Mr. Stephen Timms): I have today placed in the Library the latest quarterly progress report on Pension Credit, with figures to the end of September. The report gives the number of households and individuals receiving Pension Credit overall, broken down by the Guarantee Credit and Savings Credit and by Government Office Region and parliamentary constituency.

The total number of households receiving Pension Credit at 30 September 2005 was 2.71 million, or around 3.30 million individuals. The average weekly award is now £43.54.

The figures show that there were just under 2.1 million households, or 2.48 million individuals, getting Pension Credit Guarantee awards as at 30 September.

In future, Pension Credit caseload figures will be incorporated within the National Statistics reporting framework. The multi-benefit release of National Statistics in January 2006, including detailed Pension Credit figures for August 2005, will also include provisional headline Pension Credit statistics for November 2005.

Copies of the report are also available for hon. Members in the Vote Office.

TREASURY

Economic and Financial Affairs Council

The Chancellor of the Exchequer (Mr. Gordon Brown): On 6 December I chaired the Economic and Financial Affairs Council (ECOFIN) in Brussels. My right hon. Friend the Paymaster General represented the UK.

For the first time the Council agreed conclusions setting out the reforms necessary for Europe to respond successfully to the opportunities and challenges of globalisation. The Council also agreed conclusions on the implementation of the first Lisbon national reform programmes.

The Council discussed the joint UK, Austrian and Finnish presidencies paper "Advancing Better Regulation in Europe".

The Council agreed to refer proposals to reform reduced rates of value added tax to the European Council on 15 and 16 December.

The Council heard a report from the Chair of the Code of Conduct Group, the Paymaster General, right hon. Dawn Primarolo MP.

The Council took note of a presentation by Commissioner McCreevy on the Commission's White Paper on EU financial services policy 2005–10.

As part of its work in combating terrorist financing, the Council agreed a general approach, pending the European's Parliament opinion in first reading, on a draft regulation addressing payer information accompanying transfer of funds; and took note of progress in implementing the EU's action plan on combating terrorism.

The Council discussed oil and related energy market issues.

DEFENCE

Iraq

The Secretary of State for Defence (John Reid): The United Kingdom keeps under constant review, in consultation with coalition partners, the troop numbers required to assist the Iraqi Security Forces (ISF) in Multi-National Division South-East.

We continue to work with the ISF, with training, mentoring and an equipment and infrastructure programme towards the conditions for formal transfer of security responsibilities. Until those conditions are achieved, it is important that we retain the operational flexibility to respond to any change in the security environment, and ensure that this important programme with the ISF is not disrupted.

To ensure that this remains the case, the General Officer Commanding (SE) needs to retain forces to provide security along our principal lines of communication. At present the 1st Battalion, The Royal Irish Regiment provides the capability, and they will be replaced in January 2006 with the 1st Battalion, The Royal Scots Regiment (IRS).

Vaccines (PowderJect)

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Defence (Mr. Don Touhig): There have been no reports that any vaccines provided by PowderJect to the Ministry of Defence have been substandard.

EDUCATION AND SKILLS

Children's Services and Skills

The Secretary of State for Education and Skills (Ruth Kelly): In July 2005 I launched a consultation on the creation of a single inspectorate for children and learners. I am today publishing my conclusions in the light of the responses. I am grateful to everyone who responded to the consultation and I have taken careful consideration of the points made, developing my proposals significantly in the light of those comments.

I intend to proceed, as proposed in the consultation, to establish an enlarged Ofsted. This will be achieved by bringing together in Ofsted the children's social care remit of the Commission for Social Care Inspection (CSCI), the Children and Family Court Advisory and Support Service (CAFCASS) inspection remit of Her Majesty's Inspectorate of Court Administration (HMICA) and the inspection remit of the Adult Learning Inspectorate (ALI). The enlarged organisation will have the formal title of the Office for Standards in Education, Children's Services and Skills.

ALI, CSCI and HMICA have played vital roles in driving up standards in their respective sectors. But I am convinced of the benefits to users and providers of services of an inspectorate that can look across a wide range of services as they affect children, young people, families and adult learners.

The enlarged Ofsted will be able to follow learning from early years through to adult and work-based settings. It will support the needs of employers and business whilst at the same time sustaining focused, high-quality inspections of standards in our schools and, building on existing activity, across wider services for children, including social care for vulnerable children and young people.

The changes also reflect the drive to integrate services around improving outcomes for the user, for example through the integration of local services for children as set out in the Green Paper, "Every Child Matters" and the bringing together of academic and vocational learning outlined in the 14–19 White Paper. It is part of the wider reform of public service inspection to focus on needs of users, generate improvement in the services inspected, and help deliver better value for money.

Inspection and regulation have been powerful levers for improvement in services for children and learners in recent years. As we move into the next stage of inspection reform it will be essential to build on the strengths of current arrangements and the expertise of existing inspectorates, but also to reflect current and planned changes in the pattern of services, new arrangements for performance management and accountability and our increasing knowledge about what makes for effective inspection and regulation.

The Government will continue to work closely with inspectorates and others to ensure an effective transfer of inspection remits.

School Admissions

The Minister for Schools (Jacqui Smith): I have today placed copies of the summary of the responses received to the consultation on the school admissions and school admission appeals codes of practice, and supporting regulations, in the Libraries of both Houses.

We consulted on the codes of practice with the intention of having new codes in place from January 2006 for effect from September 2007 admissions onward. The consultation ran from 26 July to 18 October 2005. There has been a wide range of views and some points on which we wish to reflect further, particularly on the respective roles of local authorities, schools, admission forums and the schools adjudicators. Therefore, we have decided not to lay the revised codes at this time. The existing codes of practice will remain in force. We will, however, take forward the regulations on subjects approved for new aptitude selection and giving priority to looked after children in admission arrangements. We remain fully committed to a system of fair admissions for all children.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Environment Council

The Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (Margaret Beckett): I attended and chaired the second Environment Council under the UK Presidency in Brussels on 2 December. I was accompanied by the Minister for Climate Change and the Environment, Elliot Morley, in the UK seat.

Council adopted conclusions on the Climate Change Impact of Aviation, by consensus. The Conclusions support the aim of including aviation emissions in the EU Emissions Trading Scheme (ETS) and request that the Commission bring forward a legislative proposal before the end of 2006. The Conclusions also state that a comprehensive and consistent approach to tackling climate change is needed and that existing policies and actions should continue and be strengthened. This outcome is a major achievement and one of our key Presidency priorities on climate change. All Member States were ultimately able to agree on the conclusions, after various textual amendments were made to address specific points made by delegations, particularly in relation to the impact of the inclusion of aviation on industries already covered by the EU ETS and on islands and remote regions within the EU.

The Council reached partial political agreement on the Regulation on the Financial Instrument for the Environment (LIFE+), covering all aspects of the dossier except those relating directly to the overall budget, which are dependent on the wider future financing negotiations. The UK Presidency had done a great deal of preparatory work on this dossier at working level, in order to balance the needs of different Member States and to protect funding for biodiversity protection. The main issue outstanding at Council was the apportionment of funding between Member States, and between Member States and the Commission. After a lengthy discussion and a number of further changes to the Presidency's proposed text, the proportion of the budget to be delegated to Member States was increased from 75 per cent. to 80 per cent. to which the Commission agreed, subject to the ultimate size of the budget. The final stages of the negotiation concerned the weighting to be given to population density within the allocation formula, and in particular how to integrate Malta without unduly distorting the calculations. The Netherlands and Belgium were unable to support the partial political agreement following inclusion of this final adjustment, but with all other Member States and the Commission in support the Council was able to adopt the partial political agreement by QMV.

Council also adopted Conclusions in preparation for the International Conference on Chemicals Management to be held in Dubai in February 2006, and scheduled to adopt the Strategic Approach to International Chemicals Management (SAICM). The Conclusions confirm the EU's unanimous support for SAICM.

The Commission proposal to approve the placing on the market of a genetically modified maize product, MON 863 x MON 810 was unable to attract a qualified majority either for or against the proposal, and under the agreed procedure for such approvals now returns to the Commission for a final decision.

There was also an initial Council discussion on next steps on GMOs. A number of delegations were critical of the regulatory process in which the Commission, in the absence of a qualified majority in Council either for or against approval, is subsequently required to authorise GMO products for placing on the market. The Danes, supported by other delegations, called for a further debate which recognising the potential advantages of GMOs for the developing world. The Netherlands indicated that it was satisfied with the existing regulatory system.

Council also held the first debate on the Thematic Strategy on Air Pollution and the associated proposal for a new Directive on Ambient Air Quality, which made a valuable contribution to the UK Presidency Better Regulation priority. The Thematic Strategy was broadly welcomed by most Member States. A large majority called for detailed examination of the legislation under consideration by the Commission to deal with source-related pollution at Community level. This included a requirement for Impact Assessments to be carried out on all new proposals and for cost-benefit considerations to be taken into account during negotiations on any new legislation. The Netherlands, Germany and Belgium called for the quick adoption of the Euro 5 and NECD legislation. A number of Member States, including Cyprus and Spain, stressed that the varying geographical factors across the EU had a significant effect on compliance and this should be reflected in the proposed text. There was wide support for the flexibility of the Ambient Air Quality Directive and some discussion of future standards for fine particles, in particular support for these to be non-binding.

At lunch, I updated delegations on progress on REACH, and raised the importance of Ministers going to the Montreal Conference of the Parties to the UN Climate Change Convention with sufficient pledges to support the Kyoto mechanisms. Ministers also discussed the forthcoming meetings of the UNEP Governing Council and the Commission on Sustainable Development. We heard a presentation from Professor Jacqueline McGlade of the European Environment Agency on its recently published State and Outlook for the Environment Report 2005. The general reaction was that the report was very useful and demonstrated the benefits of action at EU level in delivering better environmental performance.

AOB items included information from the Commission on its plans to publish its long-awaited Biodiversity Strategy and from the Presidency on the Nanotechnology Action Plan and on Green Public Procurement. Sweden called for urgent action on the Baltic marine environment, following an informal Ministerial Meeting on 23 November. Belgium raised the subject of the importation of wild birds into the EU and urged the Council to agree to discuss and adopt tough restrictions, were supported by Hungary, Portugal, Germany, Spain and Poland. The Commission agreed to a Presidency request to undertake an option study on the issues involved. Finally, the Dutch made a statement about progress on their Clean, Clever and Competitive initiative.

In conclusion I thanked the Ministers present, the Commission and the Council Secretariat for their constructive approach and support, noting the substantial successes on the environment achieved during the UK Presidency. I passed the traditional green baton to my successor as President for the first half of 2006, the Austrian Minister Josef Proll.

Climate Change

The Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (Margaret Beckett): The eleventh conference of the parties to the UN framework convention on climate change (COP11) and the first Meeting of the parties to the Kyoto protocol (MOP1) took place in Montreal from 28 November to 9 December. Margaret Beckett, UK Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs, led the European Union delegation.

The agreement reached by all countries participating in the conference represent a important step forward in the global effort to tackle climate change. Despite the deep divisions of recent years, the whole global community including the United States, India and China have agreed to work together through the United Nations process to examine the way forward.

The conference agreed:

to implement the Kyoto protocol, by adopt a draft rulebook detailing the operation of the protocol (the Marrakech Accords) and a compliance mechanism for the protocol;

to improve the protocol by providing additional support and improvement to the Clean Development Mechanism; to establish the Five-Year Adaptation Work Programme, following last year's agreement in Buenos Aires; to launch processes for fixing new targets for greenhouse gas emissions reductions beyond 2012 (when the first commitment period under the Kyoto protocol ends), and for reviewing the functioning of the UN climate change system.

There will be two tracks to the discussions on global action post-2012:

developed country Kyoto signatories will consider further targets beyond 2012, when the first commitment period under the Kyoto protocol ends; and all countries under the UNFCCC (including Kyoto parties plus non-signatories including the US and Australia) have agreed to begin talks on the longer term future, analysing strategic approaches for long-term cooperative action. This includes advancing development goals in a sustainable way, addressing action on adaptation, realising the full potential of technology, and making full use of the market.

The UK's leadership on climate change has played an important role in enabling this agreement, through our action at home and abroad, in particular in 2005. The Prime Minister's decision to make climate change a top priority for the UK's presidencies of the Group of Eight (G8) industrialised nations in 2005 and the European Union from 1 July to 31 December 2005 is recognised by all parties as an important factor that has injected fresh momentum into the international debate. The entry into force of the Kyoto protocol this year was another important boost to global discussion on climate change.

The outcome of the G8 Summit at Gleneagles in July, attended also by leaders from China, India and other large developing countries, was a milestone. Key world leaders agreed for the first time that climate change was exacerbated by man's emission of greenhouse gases and required a rapid response. The G8 agreed to a new G8+ Dialogue on climate change, clean energy and sustainable development to create a political space outside the formal negotiating process and to complement and reinforce the United Nations Framework Convention on Climate Change (UNFCCC) process.

By implementing a series of innovative policy measures at home, the UK is one of the few countries on track to meet its Kyoto target, a reduction in emissions of a basket of greenhouse gases of 12.5 per cent. from 1990 levels by 2012. And the UK has shown international leadership by setting an even more challenging domestic goal to reduce emissions by 20 per cent., to which we remain committed and are addressing through the climate change programme review.

The UK recognises that the agreement reached at Montreal is only the beginning of a further round of global discussion. We remain committed to achieving the stabilisation of GHGs in the atmosphere in line with the goal of the UN Climate Change Convention.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH AFFAIRS

Indian Ocean Tsunami

The Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (Mr. Jack Straw): I should like to make a written statement on the commemorative events planned for the anniversary of the Tsunami in the Indian Ocean. This follows my previous statements to the House on 22 March and 28 June 2005.

I wish to express again my deepest sympathies and condolences and those of the entire Government to the family and friends of all the British nationals who lost their lives in the Tsunami and to all the British nationals who suffered trauma or injury. This feeling, I am sure, is shared by every member of the House. And we remember too the millions of people from the region who lost loved ones or whose lives have been shattered by the Tsunami. The anniversary on 26 December will be a very painful time for all those affected by the disaster; our thoughts and prayers will be with them.

British victims of the Tsunami

We have now confirmed that a total of 149 British nationals died as a result of the Tsunami; 129 in Thailand, 17 in Sri Lanka and three in the Maldives. The bodies of 143 of these people have been identified. The bodies of the remaining six have not yet been identified. There is one British national whose death has not been confirmed and who is still listed as a category one missing person—that is highly likely to have been caught up in the Tsunami.

Anniversary arrangements

On the morning of 26 December, the Royal Thai Government is arranging events in six separate locations where the greatest loss of life occurred. One memorial event will be held on Phi Phi Island; two in the Khao Lak area; and three in the Phuket area. A memorial foundation stone laying ceremony will take place in Khao Lak on the afternoon of 26 December, followed in the evening by an inter-faith service. Both of these events will be attended by the Prime Minister of Thailand. My noble Friend the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs with responsibility for consular affairs, Lord Triesman, will represent the Government at the anniversary events.

We expect that around 130 British nationals will travel to Thailand for the anniversary. The Foreign and Commonwealth Office's priority will be to provide support for families of the British victims during this very difficult time. As part of the special package of assistance which I agreed for victims of the Tsunami, the Foreign and Commonwealth Office will cover the travel and accommodation costs of a number of British nationals travelling to Thailand to mark this anniversary. Some of those families who have already taken advantage of this package of assistance and some of those injured will have their travel and accommodation provided for by the Royal Thai Government. A few families have chosen to travel independently, and will make their own arrangements.

The families of all British victims will be met at Bangkok airport and at Phuket airport and given assistance with travel to official commemorative events on 26 December. If they wish, officials from the Government and the British Red Cross will accompany them during their visit. My noble Friend, Lord Triesman, with the British Ambassador David Fall, will attend a religious service and host a reception in Phuket on 24 December for the families and for survivors.

In Sri Lanka, many communities and religious groups along the coast will hold events to mark the anniversary of the Tsunami. The Sri Lankan authorities are not planning to hold a large-scale commemoration ceremony but they are organising an inter-faith service on the evening of 26 December in the town of Bentota, on the south-west coast. We expect that 15 British nationals will travel out to Sri Lanka for the anniversary. The Foreign and Commonwealth Office will cover the accommodation and travel costs of some of those going out through the special package of assistance. Others are travelling independently. The Sri Lanka Government will also mark the anniversary with a remembrance service held on the morning of 26 December at their High Commission in London.

The Maldives Government are not planning to commemorate the anniversary as the whole of this year has been declared a year of national unity to mark the Tsunami. We are not expecting any British nationals to travel there for the anniversary itself.

My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport (Tessa Jowell), has recently visited India, Thailand and Sri Lanka to thank all the staff and volunteers for their work in the aftermath of the Tsunami. In Thailand she discussed arrangements for the forthcoming anniversary commemoration with the Thai Government.

The Government deeply appreciate the tremendous support and kindness shown by the governments and the peoples of all the countries in which British people were killed. At a time when they were each overwhelmed by their own national tragedies, they have shown enormous compassion and generosity to the nationals of other countries.

Ongoing Government response

The Foreign and Commonwealth Office continues to provide support and assistance to British nationals affected by the Tsunami. The United Kingdom has a dedicated consular team in Phuket for this purpose. We have also encouraged the British Red Cross to use some of the money which was donated by the public for Tsunami relief to assist British families who are suffering financial hardship. The Fund will primarily be available to UK residents, and grants will be made available to individuals who have been seriously affected by the Tsunami whether through bereavement, injury or trauma. Funds are also available for those otherwise unable to afford travel to events such as the formal inquest in West London. Payments from the Fund will normally be single grants of up to £10,000 per individual in respect of financial hardship and up to £2,000 for those requiring private psychological treatment.

The Department for Culture, Media and Sport has taken over the running of the Red Cross Helpline which had been funded by the Foreign and Commonwealth Office. This helpline offers support and telephone counselling to all victims of the Tsunami and provides advice on, for example, how victims can get long-term psychological help or on how to access the benefits system. The Department for Culture, Media and Sport is also funding the Red Cross Tsunami Support Network which was set up by the Red Cross and was also initially funded by the Foreign and Commonwealth Office.

Police Family Liaison Officers got back in touch with all the families of the victims in the run up to the formal inquest into the majority of the British deaths last week. Three British police officers are still seconded to the international disaster victim identification team in Thailand and are expected to remain there until the end of February.

The Foreign and Commonwealth Office is continuing to improve its crisis management procedures in the light of the recently published joint report by the Foreign and Commonwealth Office and the National Audit Office on lessons learned from our response to the Tsunami. The report concludes that Foreign and Commonwealth Office staff in the region and in London "coped tremendously well under severe pressure" and that they had "worked extremely long hours and made great personal sacrifices". But the unprecedented scale of the Tsunami meant that some people did not get the level of support which we would have wanted to give them. Where that happened, I have apologised to the families affected and we have listened to their suggestions for how we could have done better.

The joint report includes detailed recommendations on how the Foreign and Commonwealth Office can further improve its emergency response. We have accepted those recommendations in full; we have already implemented some and others are in hand. So, for example, although we had put in place new arrangements with the police for handling calls in the wake of the terrorist attacks of 11 September 2001, the police call centre could not cope with the volume of traffic generated by the Tsunami—at times more than 10,000 calls an hour. We are now part of new police call handling arrangements which route emergency calls across their national network; and we are looking at a way to register missing people on-line, taking some of the load off people staffing the telephones.

I was and remain determined to learn lessons so that our consular crisis management, an area in which the National Audit Office recognised the Foreign and Commonwealth Office as "world leaders", is the very best it can be.

Support for countries affected by the Tsunami

The Government have allocated the equivalent of around £275 million to disaster relief and reconstruction in the Tsunami affected countries including the Indonesian province of Aceh which took the brunt of the Tsunami. This can be broken down into: £75 million of bilateral funds allocated to the humanitarian relief effort; £65 million of bilateral funds to the longer-term reconstruction phase; £50 million through tax relief on public donations made through the Gift Aid Scheme; £40 million contributed through the European Union; and £45 million by adding Sri Lanka to the list of countries eligible for the United Kingdom's new multilateral debt relief initiative.

TRANSPORT

Greater Western and Thameslink Rail Franchises

The Secretary of State for Transport (Mr. Alistair Darling): I am announcing today that First Group has been awarded contracts to run the Greater Western and Thameslink/GN (Great Northern) franchises. Both contracts will commence on 1 April next year.

The contracts have been awarded following a rigorous, competitive and independent bidding process. Both are tough and will deliver value for money for the taxpayer and an improved service for passengers.

The contract my Department has signed for the Greater Western franchise commits First Group to operate the services from London to the South West and South Wales.

Many of the concerns raised following my Department's consultation on the Invitation to Tender on the Franchise have been addressed. In particular it commits First Group to retain the overnight sleeper between London and Penzance and retains the half hourly off peak service between London and Cardiff.

In excess of £200 million of private sector investment will be made within the early years of the franchise. This will contribute towards a complete re-design of the high speed fleet. Together with the new timetable this will increase the number of standard class seats on trains between London and Reading in the morning and evening peak periods by more than 20 per cent. and 30 per cent. respectively.

It will also fund a programme of station enhancements, including better customer information systems, passenger security measures including CCTV and 1,700 new car parking spaces. Additional revenue protection staff and community support officers will also be provided.

The contract is for 10 years, with the final three years dependent on achieving tough service performance targets.

On the Thameslink/GN franchise First Group has been contracted to run services from Brighton, through London and on to Bedford, and from London to Cambridge and Peterborough.

The timing and capacity of services to Bedford will be improved. Over £40 million of private sector investment will be made in the first three years. This will help improve the reliability and quality of the rolling stock, enhance stations and provide 600 additional car parking spaces.

The franchise is for up to nine years. At the end of the fourth year the franchise will automatically continue for two years if performance improvement targets are met. Subject to my Department's agreement the franchise can then continue for up to three further years. This flexibility is necessary to facilitate work on the Thameslink 2000 Programme which was subject to a public inquiry under the Transport and Works Act.

On both franchises First Group expects to deliver continuous improvement in service performance. In addition, it is contracted to provide premiums of £1,131 million for the Greater Western Franchise and £808 million for the Thameslink/GN franchise. This is funding that will be put to good use and reinvested back into the railways to help ensure rail services continue to improve.

Cross London Rail Links Ltd.

The Secretary of State for Transport (Mr. Alistair Darling): I am today making an additional £100 million available for the further development of Crossrail. This money will be used by Cross London Rail Links (CLRL)—the company held jointly by the Department and TfL to assist them with promotion of the Crossrail Bill—to provide proper support to the project as we take the Crossrail hybrid Bill through Parliament over this period. It will also allow CLRL, working with the Department and TfL, to do necessary research and planning before the Crossrail scheme can enter its next phase of development.

The case for Crossrail is clear and the Government have long said that they are committed to the scheme. This is a further sign of that commitment. This is a complex long-term project but important features are being determined at this stage. Money spent properly now will see its reward later in a better planned, better designed and therefore better value for money final scheme. But that does not mean that resource is unlimited. The grants I am announcing today will allow CLRL to make a start on a detailed programme of work for the development of Crossrail. My Department will continue to monitor expenditure on the project, so as to ensure best value as the Bill continues through Parliament.

These grants will be paid to CLRL by my Department under section 6 of the Railways Act 2005.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Employment and Social Policy, Health and Consumer Affairs Council

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (Mr. James Plaskitt): The Employment and Social Policy, Health and Consumer Affairs Council was held on 8 and 9 December in Brussels. Employment and social policy issues were taken on 8 December. Health and Consumer Affairs were taken on the 9 December. The Council was chaired by my right hon. Friend Secretary of State for Work and Pensions apart from the agenda item on the working time directive which was chaired by my right hon. Friend, the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry. I represented the UK seat apart from the working time directive agenda item when my hon. Friend the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Trade and Industry took that role.

The first item was a presidency report from the informal meeting of Heads of State and Government, Hampton Court, 27 October. The presidency recalled that Hampton Court, in endorsing the Commission's paper on "European Values in the Globalised World", had agreed a coherent framework for future thinking on social justice, globalisation and demography. The Employment and Social Policy Council would take the lead on following up work on demographic change.

A policy debate on "Demography and Human Capital" revealed a high degree of consensus on the broad approach. Discussions covered labour market participation, the need to extend working lives, reconciling work and family life, increasing momentum towards gender equality in access to employment, regulated immigration mitigating effects of demographic change and free movement within the EU being achieved before third country immigration. The Commission agreed that all the areas identified by Member States were important, and must be coordinated into a coherent overall strategy. The presidency concluded that Council would return to this issue during discussions on the joint implementation report in the new year.

The Chairman of the Employment Committee (EMCO) outlined the key conclusions from the Examination of national reform programmes. These are the annual reports on each member state's progress towards achieving the Lisbon goals which outline their focused policy objectives. The Council noted EMCO's report, and the presidency concluded that EMCO's findings would be useful to the Commission in its preparation of the joint implementation report, and in preparations for the spring Council.

Council reached agreement on two dossiers: a partial political agreement on a decision of the European Parliament and of the Council establishing a Community Programme for Employment and Social Solidarity—(PROGRESS) which involved agreement on all parts of the programme without budgetary implications; and, political agreement on a common position on the gender recast directive which aims to simplify, modernise and improve existing EU law on equal treatment between men and women. The presidency advised that the European Parliament had confirmed its undertaking not to adopt any amendments in second reading if the Council adopted the common position on the basis of the text negotiated in the informal discussions.

The Commissioner introduced the proposed directive on portability of occupational pensions, which seeks to facilitate the acquisition, transfer and protection of occupational pension rights, with the aim of reducing barriers to worker mobility. The presidency gave some feedback from exchanges in Council working groups: a number of issues would need to be addressed before the dossier was ready to be discussed at ministerial level.

There was a lengthy debate on the directive of the European Parliament and of the Council amending Directive 2003/88/EC concerning certain aspects of the organisation of working time; the presidency prepared revised texts for discussion and the Council almost reached agreement on a package which retained the opt out and solved the doctors' on call issue. However, despite intense negotiation, concerns about clarifying that the limits in the directive applying per worker rather than per job/contract meant this agreement could not finally be reached. The presidency agreed to reflect on the best way forward.

Under "Any Other Business", the Council noted reports from the presidency on the 10-year anniversary of the Beijing Platform for Action—which reviews annually gender equality issues, and presidency conferences on health and safety, corporate social responsibility, and social inclusion. Council also noted a report from Luxembourg on the four European meeting of persons in a situation of poverty, and two information items from the Commission, on the biennial report on disability, and on a memorandum of understanding between the Commission and China on employment and social affairs.

SOLICITOR-GENERAL

Crown Prosecution Service: Overall Performance Assessment

The Solicitor-General (Mr. Mike O'Brien): HMCPS Inspectorate has today published the outcome of phases 1 to 5 of their programme of "Overall Performance Assessments of CPS Areas". Reports have been published covering 22 of the 42 CPS Areas. Of the 22 Areas, 2 were rated as excellent, 10 as good, 7 as fair and 3 as being poor.

Copies of the reports relating to the area which serves their constituency have been sent to relevant Members of Parliament and are also being placed in the Library.

CABINET OFFICE

Better Regulation Bill (Consultation Responses)

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for the Cabinet Office (Mr. Jim Murphy): A copy of the summary of the public consultation on proposals for a Better Regulation Bill is today being placed in the House Library and on the website of the Cabinet Office Better Regulation Executive at:

http://www.cabinetoffice.gov.uk/regulation/

The publication of the summary of consultation responses follows a three-month consultation exercise, which ran from 20 July to 12 October 2005.

The proposed Bill will replace the Regulatory Reform Act 2001, so that it is easier to remove or amend outdated and unnecessary legislation. It also requires regulators to have regard to a set of regulatory principles which will be contained in and made under the proposed Bill.

This document also includes the Government's responses to issues raised during the consultation process.

CONSTITUTIONAL AFFAIRS

Co-ordinated Online Record of Electors

The Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs (Ms Harriet Harman): My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State and Lord Chancellor, Lord Falconer of Thoroton, has made the following written ministerial statement in the other place today, 14 December 2005:

> "Today, I am pleased to announce to the House the launch of a consultation on detailed issues and proposals for the implementation of arrangements providing national access to locally collected and maintained electoral registration data.
> Part one of the Electoral Administration Bill currently before Parliament makes provision for the establishment of one or more Co-ordinated Online Record of Elector (CORE) schemes. It will allow—at national level—access to electoral registration data that will continue to be locally gathered and maintained. The scheme would be established by a secondary legislation order, a draft of which would first need to be actively approved by both Houses of Parliament. The paper seeks views on what the CORE scheme order should contain. Stakeholders will have until 7 March 2006 to respond.
> Copies of the consultation document are available in the Libraries of both Houses and will also be made available on the website of the Department of Constitutional Affairs."

Boundary for Wales Commission Report

The Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs (Ms Harriet Harman): I have today laid the Report of the Parliamentary Boundary Commission for Wales, and associated Draft Order, before Parliament. The Report, and associated Draft Order, will affect Welsh Parliamentary Constituencies and National Assembly for Wales Electoral Regions.

DEFENCE

Autumn Performance Report

The Secretary of State for Defence (John Reid): I have today placed in the Library of the House copies of the Ministry of Defence's "Autumn Performance Report". This shows that Defence has continued to deliver on its primary objectives in the last six months. The armed forces, supported by their civilian colleagues, have consistently succeeded on military operations, including providing support to a number of home departments, and have made a significant contribution towards the Government's wider conflict prevention goals. At the same time we have continued to improve the level of military readiness and deliver the changes and efficiencies needed to make the most of the resources available for defence. In particular, a major programme of work is currently in hand across defence, the Government and industry to improve the way in which we acquire and support equipment.

Future Aircraft Carrier (CVF)

The Secretary of State for Defence (John Reid): The Ministry of Defence has today taken a major step forward in its plans to acquire two new Future Aircraft Carriers (CVF) for the Royal Navy. These carriers will provide mobile, flexible, independent bases from which to deploy the Joint Combat Aircraft (JCA) and other capabilities. They will provide a step change in capability—enabling us to deliver significant strategic effect and influence around the world at the time and place of our choosing.

I am pleased to announce agreement on an innovative shipbuild strategy for these vessels, bringing together a number of shipyards in a type of partnering arrangement that will be central to the forthcoming Defence Industrial Strategy.

Key to this ground-breaking approach will be the innovative Aircraft Carrier Alliance: a single integrated team formed from MOD and industry. I am pleased to announce that today also marks a major stage in the development of the Alliance with the shipyards VT and Babcock now joining BAE Systems, KBR, Thales UK and MOD as full members. To mark the commitment to the Alliance approach, these five companies and MOD have signed an Alliance Charter committing to this arrangement. The Alliance has also agreed the best allocation of roles and responsibilities between them to achieve overall success for the project. In doing so all the Alliance members will share in the risks and rewards of delivering this challenging project to time and cost.

Having completed detailed assessment work, we have now decided to commit to the Demonstration phase, amounting to some £300 million of further work: an essential step before we commit to and contract for manufacture of these two ships. This is the first of a two-stage incremental approach to "Main Gate". The second stage of the "Main Gate" approval will set the time, cost and performance envelope for the manufacture phase. Shifting the point at which we make the main investment decision has no effect on the "In Service Date". We are undertaking work now that we had originally intended to undertake during the demonstration phase after full commitment to manufacture.

We will now refine the detail of the adaptable CVF Delta design for these new carriers, including the ship systems, ahead of rather than after the signature of manufacture contracts. By this innovative approach we will ensure the commitment of the maritime industry to supporting this vital project. This further approval also includes commitment to long lead materials, where this is necessary to maintain the momentum of the build programme.

In addition, we are now able to maintain momentum and give the industry a greater degree of planning stability. I can announce that subject to satisfactory contract and demonstration of value for money—that we have already allocated some 60 per cent. of the carriers to be built in separate "super blocks" at BAE Systems yards at Govan and Barrow; at VT in Portsmouth and Babcock in Rosyth, with final assembly of both carriers at Rosyth. The structure above the hangar deck will be open to competition and will allow an opportunity for the many shipyards and suppliers with the ability to undertake this work, but not currently involved, to compete and win work. These blocks will then be joined to the base structure at Rosyth. We will also aim to maximise the level of subcontract competition within the "super blocks". Early indications suggest that CVF associated work could sustain and create some 10,000 jobs in the UK across its design and manufacture period.

The expansion of the Alliance partnership provides an important launch pad for further innovation on this project. We have agreed that we will jointly consider, subject to negotiation, how the build contract can be extended to encompass not only the carriers' initial support but also the support for the Invincible class carriers until their out of service dates. This approach will ensure coherency in maintaining continuity in our carrier capability, with the same companies responsible for ensuring the continuation in service of the Invincible carriers also managing the introduction into service of their replacements.

In parallel with this approach, we are continuing our discussions with France, with whom we are jointly examining areas of mutual benefit and opportunities to deliver economies in our respective carrier programmes. For any co-operation to work, however, it must deliver cost savings and must do so without delaying UK or French programmes and we look forward to receiving industry's proposals.

Taken together, therefore, our approach provides a key stepping stone towards the developing maritime industrial strategy which we intend to outline in our forthcoming Defence Industrial Strategy. It is already clear that the CVF programme, as part of the wider Carrier Strike capability with the Joint Strike Fighter, will offer the enhanced power projection capability required by our armed forces in the future. This announcement reinforces our commitment to this flagship project for the Royal Navy and represents a significant step on the route to re-shaping our maritime industry and providing this vital expeditionary capability.

EDUCATION AND SKILLS

14–19 Implementation Plan

The Secretary of State for Education and Skills (Ruth Kelly): I have today placed copies of 14–19 Education and Skills Implementation Plan in the Libraries of both Houses.

The Implementation Plan sets out what the reform programme we set out in the 14–19 White Paper published in February will mean in practice.

We are aiming to create an education system that is not merely good but world class and which is built around the needs of all young people, employers and our society. We are guaranteeing more choice about what young people can learn so that they have a head start for a rewarding future. Our recent White Paper "Higher Standards, Better Schools for All" proposed reforms to ensure that every school is a good school and that every child receives increasingly tailored support. A continued focus on improving standards, especially in English and maths, in developing more personalised learning and in creating greater flexibility are strong components of both the 14–19 reform agenda and of our strategy for schools.

At the heart of this system is a new curriculum entitlement which will offer each young person a choice of high quality learning pathways—including the option of more theoretical or more practical approaches at an appropriate level for them—which can be the basis for progression to further learning, higher education and employment. Delivering this entitlement will require profound change in the education system with collaboration of all players a key requisite for success.

At the local level, a coherent 14–19 system will need excellent partnerships between Local Authorities and local Learning and Skills Councils. The role of Local Authorities as the integrators of services of children up to the age of 19 will be crucial.

This Plan sets out how we will strengthen the role of local Government in 14–19 education, and pilot better models of partnership working between Local Authorities and the local LSCs to ensure the strategic development of 14–19 provision in their area, particularly in relation to local skill needs.

The Implementation Plan sets out three key priorities: developing new qualifications and the curriculum; supporting every local area to deliver; and improving the system for today's young people.

The agenda is a long-term one and we are working closely with key delivery partners to make it a reality. In taking work forward we will continue to consult with a wide range of individuals and organisations.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH AFFAIRS

European Union Budget 2007–13

The Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (Mr. Jack Straw): As presidency of the European Union, Her Majesty's Government are today circulating to all member states of the European Union revised proposals for the European Union budget in the next financial period 2007–13 inclusive. Copies of the proposal are available in the Library of the House and in the Vote Office.

This written ministerial statement outlines the context of the proposal.

These revised budget proposals maintain the four policy objectives set out in my written ministerial statement of 5 December, Official Report, columns 65–68 WS:

> The first is tough budget discipline. They remain well below the level proposed by the Luxembourg Presidency in June and 17 per cent. below the level proposed by the Commission.
> Secondly they help the new member states in the enlarged EU by building their economies and societies, and they more fairly distribute the costs among the better off nations. On 5 December, the UK offered an extra contribution to these costs of enlargement amounting to 8 billion euros over the budget period.
> Thirdly, the proposals keep the rebate. Indeed the rebate will rise, from an annual average over recent years of 5 billion euros to around 7 billion.
> Fourthly, the proposals ensure there can be no fundamental change in the rebate without fundamental reform of the Common Agricultural Policy. All spending, including on agriculture, will be subject to a review during the coming budget period.

The revised proposals do, however, take account of the discussions amongst EU Foreign Ministers on 7 December and of the intensive bilateral contacts we have had with other member states and the European Commission since then. In particular, the revised proposals:

> Extend the scope of the practical changes we proposed to the rules governing structural and cohesion funding, and extend their application to Greece and Portugal, all of which should increase the impact of EU money on the ground in enhancing prosperity, stability and competitiveness.
> Provide extra money for the decommissioning of nuclear power plants in Slovakia and Lithuania, and additional structural and cohesion fund support for Poland, Hungary, the Czech Republic, Estonia and Latvia.
> Extend transitional cohesion funding for Spain until 2013, and grant additional funding for Ceuta and Melilla.
> Offer additional rural development funds to Finland, Ireland, Portugal, Sweden and Austria.
> Improve the net positions of Sweden and the Netherlands, two of the countries with the highest net contributions to the EU budget.
> Commit the Council to increase spending on R&D by 75 per cent. between 2006 and 2013

The overall ceiling for the budget for 2007–13 with these changes is €849.3 billion (1.03 per cent. GNI).

We remain convinced that these proposals are good for Britain and good for Europe, and offer a sound basis for agreement at this week's European Council.

HEALTH

NHS Ambulance Trusts

The Secretary of State for Health (Ms Patricia Hewitt): A review of ambulance services, "Taking Healthcare to the Patient: Transforming NHS Ambulance Services" was published in June 2005. It set out a clear strategic direction for ambulance services that would improve patient services. Over the next five years, ambulance services will provide an increasing range of mobile healthcare for patients who need urgent care. They will work to help provide diagnostic services and support patients with long-term conditions and they will continue to improve the speed and quality of ambulance responses to 999 calls.

This review was undertaken by Peter Bradley CBE, Chief Executive of London Ambulance Service National Health Service Trust and National Ambulance Adviser, at the request of the Department of Health. He was supported by a reference group of key stakeholders including ambulance trust chief executives, clinicians and representatives of other NHS organisations. Copies of the review were placed in the Library in June 2005.

The reference group's view was that in order for the benefits outlined in the review to be fully realised, ambulance trusts need to have sufficient strategic capacity, and to be of a size to attract the high calibre senior managers and leaders necessary to manage these new organisations. The review therefore recommended that there should be significantly fewer, larger ambulance trusts, so that ambulance trusts would have the infrastructure, capacity and capability necessary to deliver and sustain the changes needed.

Benefits of these larger trusts include:

> More investment in front-line services as trusts make savings in "back room" functions;
> Improved patient care by providing an opportunity to raise the standards of service provided by all trusts to the level of the best;
> Better emergency planning with greater capacity and capability to respond to major incidents of all kinds;
> More integrated services and better career opportunities for staff.

I have accepted the recommendation for fewer ambulance trusts. A 14-week consultation, led by strategic health authorities (SHAs) on my behalf, will now consider the future organisation of ambulance trusts. Consultation will begin today and conclude on 22 March 2006. Any changes to the organisation of ambulance trusts will only happen following local consultation and discussion with relevant parties in the local area.

We expect that SHAs will involve hon. and right hon. Members in the consultations, including sending them copies of the consultation document. Some copies of the consultation document have also been placed in the Library.

We believe these proposals to reorganise ambulance trusts, coupled with all other recommendations made in "Taking Healthcare to the Patient: Transforming NHS Ambulance Services" will put the NHS in the best position to provide more convenient, consistently high quality and appropriate mobile healthcare for the people of England. Under these proposals, there would be no reduction in ambulance vehicles or frontline staff. Instead, they will mean less bureaucracy and more money to invest in front-line services. Response times for life-threatening situations will not be adversely affected by these changes.

I can confirm that the proposals for the reconfiguration of SHAs and the proposals for the reconfiguration of primary care trusts (PCTs), as set out in my written statement of 1 December, are also going forward for consultation from today. All proposals will be subject to a fourteen-week local consultation and will therefore run concurrently with the consultation on the proposed reconfiguration of NHS ambulance trusts. No decisions will be taken regarding the reconfiguration of SHAs or PCTs until the results of the local consultations have been considered and any recommendations reviewed.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Animal Procedures Committee

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for the Home Department (Andy Burnham): On behalf of the Home Secretary and the Minister for the Department of Health and Social Services and Public Safety for Northern Ireland, I am very pleased to announce the appointment of Ms Sara Nathan to chair the Animal Procedures Committee from 1 February 2006 for a four year term. Sara Nathan currently occupies several other non-executive positions with public bodies and is a member of Ofcom, the Criminal Injuries Compensation Appeal Panel and the Regulatory Decisions Committee of the Financial Services Authority. She is a former member of the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Authority.

I also wish to thank the Reverend Professor Michael Banner, who stands down as chairman of the Animal Procedures Committee on 31 January 2006 for his work on the Committee. The Animal Procedures Committee has an important role providing advice to the Home Secretary, and the Minister for the Department of Health, Social Services and Public Safety for Northern Ireland, on matters concerned with the Animals (Scientific Procedures) Act 1986 and their functions under it, having regard both to the legitimate requirements of science and industry and to the protection of animals against avoidable suffering and unnecessary use. Under Michael Banner's skilful chairmanship the Committee has significantly expanded its role and has produced valuable and thoughtful advice on a number of issues relating to the use of animals in scientific procedures. This included the completion of a wide-ranging review of the Animals (Scientific Procedures) Act 1986. Ministerial colleagues wish to record our gratitude to Michael Banner for his excellent personal contribution to the work of the Committee over the last eight years.

Zimbabwe (Immigration Removals)

The Minister for Immigration, Citizenship and Nationality (Mr. Tony McNulty): On 27 June my right hon. Friend, the Secretary of State for the Home Department made a statement on the return of failed asylum seekers to Zimbabwe and on 6 and 18 July he updated the House on that issue. I would like to provide a further update on returns to Zimbabwe.

On 18 October the Asylum and Immigration Tribunal issued a determination in relation to the treatment of failed asylum seekers whose return to Zimbabwe was enforced. The Tribunal found that the particular way we were enforcing returns of failed Zimbabwean asylum seekers from the United Kingdom to Harare airport put them at risk of mistreatment. The Tribunal has refused permission to appeal their determination so we will be seeking permission to appeal from the Court of Appeal. In the meantime, as we made clear at the time of the Tribunal determination, we will not be enforcing returns of Zimbabweans to Zimbabwe whilst we work to resolve the concerns identified by the Tribunal.

On 16 November, the Tribunal issued a further determination. They concluded that the effect of the earlier determination is that any Zimbabwean citizen who will not return there willingly is a refugee even though the method by which we enforce returns is being reviewed. We strongly disagree with this conclusion and will also be seeking permission to appeal this determination or others which rely upon it. We shall continue to take decisions based on the individual merits of the claims.

In its 18 October determination the Tribunal did not find that Zimbabwe was unsafe generally for failed asylum seekers or that those who return voluntarily are at risk. Voluntary returns to Zimbabwe are possible and are continuing. We therefore expect failed asylum seekers to return voluntarily to Zimbabwe and will assist them in doing so through the International Organisation for Migration (IOM).

The Government remain deeply concerned about the political and economic crisis in Zimbabwe, in particular its appalling human rights situation, and continue to work with international partners to press for an end to abuses.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Northern Ireland Departments (Priorities and Budget 2006–08)

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Northern Ireland (Angela E. Smith): My hon. Friend the Minister of State for the Northern Ireland Office (Lord Rooker) has made the following ministerial statement:

"Following consultation on the Government's 'Draft Priorities and Budget for Northern Ireland', which was launched on 25 October 2005, the Government are today setting out its priorities and spending plans for Northern Ireland Departments for the years 2006–07 and 2007–08. In reaching final decision on the allocations for the next two years, the ministerial team has considered carefully the views expressed during the consultation period on the draft proposals.

Our vision is for a world class Northern Ireland, and the 'Priorities and Budget' we are publishing today represents key steps towards achieving that aim. To turn this vision into reality, we need to direct resources to support new initiatives; to fundamentally reform the way services are managed and delivered to get the best value for money; and to raise more money to pay for local services.

Underpinning this vision, and providing a framework for the detailed spending plans, are the key strategic priorities of:

economic growth;

public sector reform;

high quality public services; and a society based on partnership, equality, inclusion and mutual respect.

These priorities will be taken forward by action across all Departments, supported by targets across a number of important areas, where the proposed outcomes will deliver the changes needed to ensure the achievement of the vision for Northern Ireland.

In overall terms, Northern Ireland has benefited from massive increases in investment in public services in recent years and that growth will continue over the next two years. By March 2008 we will be spending in excess of £16 billion a year on public services in Northern Ireland. However, public expenditure per head in Northern Ireland is higher than any other region in the UK, while revenue raised from the domestic rating system is only around half the equivalent figure for the rest of the UK. This is unsustainable if we are to continue to improve public services here in Northern Ireland.

There is the need to continue to invest resources wisely in areas that will help transform society and the economy. We are committed to investing in those services which make a difference in people's lives including—health and education; children and young people; promoting long term economic growth through investment in training and skills; and in protecting the environment through research and development of new sources of renewable and clean energy.

As a key step in taking forward work in priority areas, we have established three new ring fenced priority funding packages, worth some £48 million in 2006–07 and £58 million in 2007–08 and underpinned by a further £15 million and £34 million capital investment in those years.

Children and Young People

For children and young people some £28 million and £33 million will be available to ensure every child has the best start in life. This will include driving forward our policies in areas such as pre-school and extended/out of hours school based activities, childcare and Sure Start, along with measures to foster their health and wellbeing. This will be a distinctive allocation of funding that will be used to make good the shortfall in provision for these key areas of support for families. A fundamental aspect of all of this will be the integrated delivery of programmes and activities to ensure real and effective joined up thinking and working by the key Departments and agencies involved.

Skills and Science

Beyond school age, around 24 per cent. of our working population has no qualifications whatsoever, compared with 15 per cent. in the UK as a whole. We are already committed to significant investment in skills and training programmes for employment. And we recognise the critical importance of ensuring a secure foundation for lifelong learning and employment. It is for this reason an additional £15 million next year and an additional £20 million the year after will be allocated to tackle economic inactivity and to promote greater investment in skills and science training leading to employment—alongside investment in research and development. Our working age population must have the skills to allow us to prosper in the new, more competitive, and highly skilled international markets that will dominate all our futures.

Environment and Energy

The quality of life in the future will also depend on our children continuing to enjoy the same clean and healthy environment that we do. That means we need to take action now to support the development and use of renewable forms of energy.

An extra £5 million in each of the next two years will be allocated to encourage the research and development of renewable forms of energy. £10 million and £30 million over the next two years will also be available for capital investment in renewable energy. This will enhance the security and diversity of our energy supply and minimise the environmental impact of energy generation. Finally, capital investment of £5 million in 2006–07 and £4 million in 2007–08 will be available to ensure the 'Warm Homes' scheme in Northern Ireland can be extended to match the commitments made for central heating for pensioners in England, as set out in the Chancellor's recent pre-Budget report.

The funding for these three priority packages comes from additional resources received in the course of the Chancellor's March 2005 Budget, and recent pre-Budget report, and from revenue raised as a result of a planned 19 per cent. increase in the domestic regional rate in 2006–07. For other areas, because this was not a Spending Review year, there were no additional resources available for allocation, compared to the position established last year. Therefore, to allow extra money to be allocated to the top priority services of health and education, the spending in lower priority areas has been reduced by 3 per cent. in 2006–07 and 4 per cent. in 2007–08.

This approach provides for increases in health of 7.5 per cent. in 2006–07 and 6.4 per cent. in 2007–08, with education receiving increases of 4.2 per cent. in 2006–07 and 3.9 per cent. in 2007–08.

Alongside the improvements in the financing of our public services, it is important that the management and delivery of those services is also improved. We are continuing to push forward the reform agenda initiated by the former Northern Ireland Executive and by the ministerial team since devolution was suspended.

In the health service in Northern Ireland, as in the rest of the UK, there is the need to ensure that increased resources are matched by reform and improvement to ensure services are delivered both effectively and efficiently. The recent Independent Review of Health and Social Care Services completed by Professor John Appleby of the King's Fund made recommendations for creating more effective performance management across HPSS. These, together with recommendations on the funding of the health and social care sector and the new structure put forward by the RPA, will need to be considered.

In education, programmes and actions are being developed to reduce the overcapacity and duplication of education provision, with the Investment Strategy for Northern Ireland playing a major part in reshaping the schools estate to contribute to the removal of surplus places.

The Northern Ireland public sector will continue to push forward with the efficiency plans announced in last year's 'Priorities and Budget', with the reallocation of resources, released through efficiency improvements, to priority front line services. The plans include targets for the public sector to deliver efficiency gains of 2.5 per cent. each year over the period 2005–06 to 2007–08. During the same period the administration costs of civil service departments being held flat over the next three years and civil service numbers will reduce by 2,300 across all departments, thus reducing bureaucracy and releasing resources to priority areas.

This 'Priorities and Budget' builds on the real growth in public expenditure that has occurred in recent years, and that will continue over the next two years. It provides the necessary investment, underpinned by reform, to equip Northern Ireland to move towards a better and brighter future.

I have placed copies of the 'Priorities and Budget 2006–08' document in the Library."

Investment Strategy for Northern Ireland

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Northern Ireland (Angela E. Smith): My right hon. Friend the Minister of State for the Northern Ireland Office (Lord Rooker) has made the following ministerial statement:

> "The Government have today published the first Investment Strategy for Northern Ireland. The Investment Strategy takes a longer term, more strategic view of Northern Ireland's infrastructure and investment needs.
> It is based on the recognition of the need to make best use of the opportunities presented by developments such as the Reinvestment and Reform Initiative and PPPs, along with historic capital budgets, to address the need of Northern Ireland for better public services after a lengthy period of under investment. In taking a longer term view of Northern Ireland's needs, the Investment Strategy allows decision-makers to ensure that investment in public infrastructure is directed to where it is most needed, is prioritised appropriately, and is delivered effectively.
> A copy of the document has been placed in the Library of the House."

TRANSPORT

European Union Transport Council

The Secretary of State for Transport (Mr. Alistair Darling): I chaired the Transport Council in Brussels on 5 December. The Minister of State, my hon. Friend the Member for South Thanet (Dr. Ladyman), was in the UK national seat.

The Council received a progress report from the Commissioner on the "Air Transport Negotiations Between the EU and the US". The Commissioner reported on the progress made in recent talks with the US. For the UK, my hon. Friend stressed the need for a balanced package, in which changes on airline ownership and control are an essential element. Summing up, I welcomed progress so far, but noted that the Council could not reach any decisions until the US has concluded its internal rule-making process.

The Council discussed the Commission's request for a mandate to open air transport negotiations with China. While there was agreement about the growing importance of China as an aviation market, the view of the Council was that it would be premature to give the Commission a mandate for community-level negotiations while the focus is on EU-US.

Following a progress report on the amending regulation on aviation security, I concluded that there were good prospects for early agreement.

The Council reached political agreement on three proposals from the "Third Rail Package".

The rail market access directive was put to the Council as amended in prior negotiation to take account of member state's concerns. The directive would open the market for international rail passenger transport in 2010, including allowing "cabotage", that is, picking up and setting down passengers in the same member state, but enable member states to restrict competition where strictly necessary to protect public services. In reaching political agreement, the Council accepted requests for member states to be allowed to impose a levy on all passenger train services on their territory to contribute to the financing of services provided under public service contracts, provided certain conditions are met; and for market opening to be delayed until 2012 in those member states in which more than half of the turnover is derived from international traffic.

Discussion of the market access directive has proceeded alongside consideration of relevant aspects of the proposal for a regulation on Public Service Obligations (PSOs) in land-based public transport. This would provide an updated regulatory framework for award of public service contracts and the financial compensation provided to operators. A progress report was noted by Council on the PSO element. In addition, the Council and Commission made a minutes statement stating that rail market opening can only be achieved step by step recognising public service needs, and committing the Council to try to reach political agreement on the PSO proposal as soon as possible in 2006 on the basis, inter alia, that member states should continue to have the possibility to award directly without competition contracts for rail public services.

The Council reached political agreement on the regulation on international rail passenger rights. This builds on the existing international convention (COTIF/CIV) and creates new rights for international rail passengers on access to tickets and information, a system of compensation and assistance for passengers in case of delay, and specific rights of access and assistance for passengers of reduced mobility.

There was political agreement on the directive on train crew licensing. It provides for a European licensing and certification system for train drivers, with the possibility for renewable derogations for "domestic" train drivers if it is demonstrated that application of the EC system would not be cost effective.

The Council was unable to reach political agreement on the directive on driving licences. While there was recognition of the positive elements in the proposal, particularly regarding driving licence tourism and improved security, a significant number of member states still had problems with the proposal. In summing up, I reminded the Council that there was support for the measure from several member states and that the Council would need to return to it.

The Commissioner gave a progress report on the Galileo project. He reported that the first Galileo satellite would be launched later in December and that progress on the concession had been made. In summing up, I emphasised the importance of ensuring proper functioning of the public private partnership to give value for money.

The Council agreed conclusions on boosting employment prospects in the maritime sector. The conclusions aim at action by all stakeholders to sustain high-quality maritime skills and assure continuation of European maritime know-how across the broader sector. This is an example of a non-regulatory approach to a timely issue.

The regulation on multi-annual funding for the European Maritime Safety Agency, for its work in responding to pollution caused by ships, and the regulation on information on the identity of air carriers were agreed without debate.

Four of the presentations under AOB referred to in my pre-Council statement on 1 December were given as planned, namely on road safety, the new maritime package, the air traffic management Single Sky Project (SESAR) for which a PPP is proposed, and extension of the scope of the European Aviation Safety Agency.

There were a number of additional AOB points.

Ireland called for action on the current situation regarding ferry manning. The Commission recalled that there is no EC legislation on ferry manning at present, and that priority should go to achieving solutions through the social partner dialogue and to implementing higher standards based on the forthcoming Convention text from the ILO.

The Slovenian Minister invited Ministers to a conference he is hosting in Ljubljana in January on Motorways of the Sea.

France introduced a Memorandum calling for a strengthening of oversight of aviation safety: nationally, within the Community and within the International Civil Aviation Organisation. The Commissioner welcomed this approach.

France presented a memorandum to the Council and expressed its concern about the impact of high fuel prices on road transport.

Local Transport Capital Settlement

The Secretary of State for Transport (Mr. Alistair Darling): Today I am announcing firm allocations for the 116 local highway authorities and six Passenger Transport Authorities in England, outside London, for capital expenditure in 2006–07. This will amount, in total, to a £1.6 billion package of funding to improve local transport, with £1.4 billion in this local transport capital settlement announced today, and a further £200 million for new major schemes, the details of which will be finalised early next year. This is the first part of some £8 billion over the next five years.

This builds on the £8 billion of investment in local transport projects in the five years of the first Local Transport Plan period. That period saw a reduction in road casualties, an improvement in local road maintenance and better travel choices being delivered in many towns and cities. Today's announcement demonstrates the Government's commitment to building on these achievements.

This year's settlement delivers firm funding for 2006–07, the first year of local authorities' second Local Transport Plans (2006–07 to 2010–11). We have also issued financial planning guidelines for the integrated transport block for the whole of the second LTP period. This will give authorities predictable funding levels for the next five years to enable them to formulate effective and realistic transport strategies.

Funding has been released to allow authorities to continue work on major transport schemes already under construction. I will be announcing further 2006–07 funding for new major schemes next year after I have received regional advice on the prioritisation of schemes.

Details of the 2006–07 allocations have been placed in the Vote Office and both Libraries of the House. Right hon. and hon. Members representing English constituencies outside London will receive details for the local transport plan area covering their constituencies, from their regional government office.

Written Ministerial Statements

CONSTITUTIONAL AFFAIRS

Freedom of Information Act

The Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs (Ms Harriet Harman): My noble Friend the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State has made the following written ministerial statement.

Today I have deposited copies of "The Freedom of Information Act 2000—Statistics on Implementation in Central Government July to September 2005" in the Libraries of both Houses.

This is the third quarterly bulletin produced by DCA monitoring the performance of central Government and associated bodies under the Freedom of Information Act 2000.

Judicial Pensions

The Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs (Ms Harriet Harman): My right hon. and noble Friend the Secretary of State and Lord Chancellor has made the following written ministerial statement.

"The judicial pension schemes are mainly governed by the Judicial Pensions Act 1981 and the Judicial Pensions Act 1993.

I have concluded that, as administrator of the judicial pension schemes, it would be in the best interests of the members that, for the future, the schemes should not be registered schemes for the purposes of the Finance Act 2004.

The principal effect will be that lump sum benefits payable from, and members contributions payable to, the schemes will cease to attract tax relief from 6 April 2006. Income tax will, of course, also continue to be payable on pension benefits. Judicial pension benefits will consequentially not be taken into account for the purposes of the registered pension schemes provisions of the Finance Act 2004 as they will not receive the preferential tax treatment afforded to such schemes.

I also propose to make provision for judges to receive a long service award which will become payable when they near retirement. The level of the award, which will be a proportion of the lump sum, will reflect their years of service and their judicial grade and will ensure their net position is maintained. I will amend judicial terms and conditions to reflect this proposal.

There will be an adjustment to the rate of contributions for dependants' benefits and certain technical changes to the schemes needed to reflect the terms of the Finance Act will be made under powers contained in that Act.

I am satisfied that these proposals are in accordance with the terms of the Finance Act 2004. They serve to maintain but not improve the overall remuneration package for the serving judiciary and to protect the principle of judicial independence in so doing. There will be no net cost to the Exchequer. In these circumstances, it is not necessary for me to introduce separate legislation for judicial pensions and I do not therefore propose to proceed with the Bill which was announced in May this year."

DEPUTY PRIME MINISTER

Compulsory Purchase Law

The Minister for Housing and Planning (Yvette Cooper): The Deputy Prime Minister has today placed copies of his response to the Law Commission's report: "Towards a Compulsory Purchase Code" in both Libraries of the House and has also placed the response on the ODPM website www.odpm.gov.uk/planning-information. The Commission presented their report to Parliament in two parts: on Compensation (Law Com No 286) in December 2003 and on Procedures (Law Com No 291) in December 2004.

In 2000 the Compulsory Purchase Policy Review Advisory Group (CPPRAG) had recommended changing the compulsory purchase of land powers, procedures and compensation arrangements. The most pressing changes were put in the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 and included strengthening local authority powers to acquire land for the creation of sustainable communities as well as making the compensation fairer to those losing their land.

CPPRAG also proposed the Government should work with the Law Commission on how to replace the whole of the current raft of statute and case law on compulsory purchase and compensation by a single statute expressed in modern language. ODPM and its predecessor Departments (DETR and DTLR), along with the Welsh Assembly Government, have been working on this with the Commission since 2000.

Although the Commission's recommendations identify a basic framework for reforming the structure of the law, they do not set out the detailed provisions needed to ensure fairness to those affected, as well as speed and simplicity. The ever-evolving complexity of the statute and case law has shown that these aims cannot always easily be reconciled. As the Law Commission has demonstrated, there are no quick and easy solutions and moving towards a simpler and more readily accessible set of laws would still require substantial further work.

The Government would like to have a single simple compulsory purchase code expressed in modern English. But finding further legislative time for this needs to be balanced against the Government's many other priorities. Given the changes providing immediate and tangible improvements were in the 2004 Act, implementing the Law Commission's proposals is not a practicable proposition for the foreseeable future.

The Government consider it more important to maintain a stable legislative framework providing certainty both for acquiring authorities and for those whose properties may need to be acquired. This should encourage acquiring authorities to exercise their compulsory purchase powers wherever this makes sense in the public interest to further their wider policy objectives.

English Local Government (Conduct)

The Minister for Local Government (Mr. Phil Woolas): The Government have today published a Discussion Paper about standards of conduct in English local government. It sets out our vision for a future comprehensive conduct regime for local authority members and employees. Such a regime would need to be part of our future strategy for local government, and hence this is published as part of the ongoing local vision debate begun by the Government last year.

The paper incorporates the Government's response to the recommendations on conduct in local government in Chapter three of the 10th report of the Committee on Standards in Public Life (Graham Committee). It also incorporates our response to the report of the ODPM Select Committee on the role and effectiveness of the Standards Board for England, as well as a response to the recommendations of the Board itself following its review of the code of conduct for members.

We have largely accepted the recommendations of the Graham Committee; in particular its central recommendation for a more locally based decision-making process for the conduct regime. Accordingly, we have not accepted the recommendation of the ODPM Select Committee to maintain the present centralised regime for handling allegations of misconduct by members. We have, however, largely accepted the other recommendations made by the Select Committee.

The paper also indicates the approach the Government are minded to follow on the conduct of employees, in particular on the political restrictions which apply to local government employees, the pay of political assistants and a code of conduct for employees. In reaching these views, the Government have had regard to the responses received to the consultation that the Office undertook on these issues last year.

We believe that the approach set out in the paper would both deliver a clearer and more proportionate conduct regime for local government members and employees, and ensure that the public can continue to have confidence in those who serve them. We now intend to work with the Standards Board and other stakeholders to carry forward the changes identified in the paper, having regard to any comments and debate the paper itself generates. The Government recognise that certain of these changes would require primary legislation and it intends to seek this at the next convenient opportunity Parliamentary time allows.

Copies of the paper have been placed in the Libraries of the House.

TREASURY

United Kingdom Coins—2007

The Chancellor of the Exchequer (Mr. Gordon Brown): Her Majesty the Queen has been graciously pleased to approve my recommendation that the following coins should be issued in 2007:

a crown piece to celebrate the diamond wedding anniversary of Her Majesty the Queen and His Royal Highness Prince Philip;

a two-pound coin to mark the 200th anniversary of the abolition of the slave trade in the British Empire; and a 50 pence piece to mark the centenary of the foundation of the scouting movement.

Collector versions of these coins will be released at a premium above face value and, during the course of the year 2007, the coins will also become available at face value from banks and post offices.

EDUCATION AND SKILLS

Reducing Reoffending through Skills and Employment

The Secretary of State for Education and Skills (Ruth Kelly): I am today, with my right hon. friends the Home Secretary and the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, presenting to the House a document setting out our strategy to help reduce re-offending through improved skills and employment opportunities for offenders.

The Government will publish in the new year a five-year strategy for reducing re-offending and protecting the public. This will emphasise the importance of punishment and deterrence in preventing offending. But it will also recognise the need to deal with the range of factors which lead some offenders into a cycle of repeat offending. This cycle carries a considerable cost to the Exchequer: a re-offending former prisoner costs the criminal justice system an average of £65,000 up to the point of re-imprisonment and £37,500 each year in prison. On top of this, there are often unquantifiable costs to the victims of crime and their communities.

An important part of the Government strategy is a concerted drive to transform the skills and employment prospects of offenders. The challenge is stark. A majority of offenders have poor skills, with over half having no qualifications at all. Nearly half have experienced exclusion from school. Two thirds were unemployed before prison.

Evidence suggests that employment and a reduction in re-offending are linked, and that stability and quality of employment are key factors. Accordingly, there is a strong case, as part of our wider strategy, for seeking to get more offenders into jobs, and to raise their skill levels in order to improve their chances of becoming more productive and successful in employment, to the benefit of individuals, their families, and the wider society that would be damaged by continued offending.

A great deal of progress has been made in recent years. Increased investment has raised the capacity of the prison education service, and improved basic skills training for offenders in the community. Achievement of qualifications in literacy, language and numeracy has more than doubled since 2001. Prisons are subject to the same demanding standards of external inspection as other education providers, and this is driving up quality. Jobcentre Plus offers employment and training advice to offenders in prisons and, with the help of additional Prison Service investment, in 2004–05 there were over 41,000 cases in which an offender leaving prison went directly into employment, training or education.

But there is more to do. Inspection evidence tells us that the quality of learning and skills in prisons is still too often inadequate, and unresponsive to individual needs. We need more coherence in assessment, planning and continuity between different settings, for example when prisoners are moved at short notice, or released into the community. We also need to do better in engaging and motivating particular groups of offenders to improve their skills. Opportunities for education and training must lead to skills and qualifications that are meaningful for employers and to real job opportunities.

We intend to take advantage of the opportunity presented by the sentencing reforms of the Criminal Justice Act 2003—which make rehabilitation one of the statutory purposes of sentence—together with the creation of the National Offender Management Service, to build a new approach. The strategy is set out in the document, "Reducing Re-offending Through Skills and Employment".

The document sets out the case for action and outlines a radical vision to make a step change in four main areas:

to focus strongly on jobs for offenders, with employers driving the design and delivery of programmes, and new approaches to get offenders into work; to ensure that training providers and colleges are better able to provide the skills offenders need to get a job; to promote a new emphasis on skills and jobs for offenders across prisons and probation services; and to motivate and engage offenders, through a new "employability contract", with a strong emphasis on rights and responsibilities.

Some action can begin at once. In other areas we propose to test new approaches in order to make the best use of the resources and capacity within the system. We look forward to the widest possible debate—with employers, with the learning and skills sector, and with colleagues working in prisons, probation and in jobcentres.

This may in the past have been an area of education and training that has had a low profile. Along with my right honourable friends I am determined that we should set a new ambition: to provide more offenders with the tools and motivation to turn away from crime and become employable and productive members of society.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Bovine Tuberculosis

The Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (Margaret Beckett): The Government are today announcing new measures to tackle bovine tuberculosis (TB) in cattle in England. These include:

A 12 week public consultation on the control of badgers to reduce the disease in high incidence areas.

The introduction of a requirement for the pre-movement testing of cattle to reduce cattle to cattle spread. This will apply to cattle over 15 months of age moving from one and two year tested herds.

Changes to compensation arrangements that will bring into line payments for bovine TB and three other cattle diseases.

The consultation on badger culling follows the publication yesterday of results from the "Randomised Badger Culling Trials". It also follows a cost benefit analysis by DEFRA of a number of badger culling options, drawing on the evidence of the trials carried out in Britain and the Republic of Ireland.

The Government continue to pursue the development of potential bovine TB vaccines for both cattle and badgers. We are also planning to extend the use of the gamma interferon test to improve diagnosis of TB in cattle.

The Government are also announcing the setting up of a new independent stakeholder group to provide advice on bovine TB policy.

Copies of all the relevant documents have been placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

Autumn Performance Report

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (Jim Knight): The Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs' 2005 Autumn Performance Report (Cm 6692), which highlights progress towards achieving the Department's Public Service Agreement targets since the publication of my Departmental Report (Cm 6537) in June, will be published on Friday 16 December. Copies will be placed in the House Libraries.

Avian Quaratine

The Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (Margaret Beckett): On 26 October, I announced an independent review of the UK's avian quarantine system. The review panel, chaired by Professor Nigel Dimmock, Emeritus Professor of Virology at Warwick University, examined the avian quarantine system as a whole.

The independent review group has concentrated on the principles of the system, assessed how effective it is and given recommendations about how it might be improved.

I have now received Professor Dimmock's report and copies are available in the House Libraries.

The main conclusions include:

Imports of captive birds should be permitted to continue. However, existing quarantine procedures should be improved to further reduce the risk, and should be kept under review.

Because imports into the EU are governed by EU rules, and movements within the Community are less rigorously controlled, the health protection provided by avian quarantine of imported captive birds can only be achieved if action is taken at EU level.

Avian flu and Newcastle disease present little risk to public health, and if the modified quarantine system were operating throughout the EU the risk from imports of captive birds would be negligible.

My Department will study the reports findings carefully, including the associated costs and benefits of each of the findings. The work will be taken forward in partnership with the EU and stakeholders, and the appropriate action will be taken as quickly as possible.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH AFFAIRS

The G8 Gleneagles Summit

The Minister for Trade (Ian Pearson): The G8 summit at Gleneagles Hotel took place on 6–8 July 2005. My right hon. Friend the Prime Minister made a statement to the House on 11 July in which he outlined the successful outcomes of the Gleneagles Summit and the real benefits G8 leaders committed to, including delivering an additional $25 billion in annual aid to Africa by 2010 and agreement on a process to tackle climate change.

I am now able to release the organisational costs of this summit. Based on the final invoices and accounts received from our suppliers, as well as prudent estimates where final figures are not yet available, the organisational cost of the summit was £12.7 million. A breakdown of this figure will be placed in the Library of the House and then will be made available on the G8 website: www.g8.gov.uk.

Securing the summit was the responsibility of the Devolved Administration and the Scottish Executive. This covered every aspect of policing operations, including specialist public order, search and other teams drawn from forces around the UK, and additional grants to the emergency services. I understand that Scottish Ministers released the figures for these costs yesterday.

HEALTH

Health Reform

The Secretary of State for Health (Ms Patricia Hewitt): I have published this week "Health Reform in England: update and next steps". Copies have been placed in the Library. The document describes the framework for reform of the national health service in England, restates the rationale for reform and explains how the reforms will be mutually reinforcing. It summarises the initiatives already announced and lays out a programme of further policy development for 2006.

It is the first in a series of publications building on the commitment in "Creating a Patient-led NHS" to explain how the whole reform programme fits together. It shows how the reforms offer a real opportunity to provide a better service to patients and the public, enabling the people working in the NHS to make the most of their skills and commitment.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Counter-Terrorism: Progress Report

The Secretary of State for the Home Department (Mr. Charles Clarke): On 5 August, my right hon. Friend, the Prime Minister, announced a 12 point plan of measures designed to tackle terrorism. This statement sets out the very significant progress which has been made since that time. We will report again to Parliament on further progress before the summer recess.

1. To introduce new grounds for deportation and exclusion (including the drawing up of lists of extremist bookshops etc, engagement of which would trigger deportation; the negotiation of "Memoranda of Understanding" with relevant countries; and consultation on the introduction of non-suspensive appeals in respect of deportation).

The Home Office and the Foreign and Commonwealth Office have worked closely together to identify extremists overseas who pose a threat to the UK and I have already excluded a number of individuals from the UK.

Work is underway to put together a similar list of individuals in the UK and we are reviewing the processes and mechanisms already in place for gathering national information on extremist activity. In respect of bookshops, the Terrorism Bill will make it illegal to disseminate material that may incite or be useful to terrorists.

"Memoranda of Understanding" have been concluded with Jordan and Libya and good progress is being made with other priority countries to which we wish to deport people. Notices of intention to deport where we would need to rely on assurances from the receiving state have been served on 29 individuals whose presence has been assessed to be a threat to national security. Most are detained pending the outcome of their appeal; four have been released on bail. It remains the position that we would consider legislation if legal obstacles were to arise in the process.

Following consultation with opposition parties, a provision has been included in the Immigration, Asylum and Nationality Bill which provides that in national security deportations any in country appeal would be confined to ECHR issues and that matters of national security could be challenged only after the individual had been removed.

2. To create an offence of condoning or glorifying terrorism, anywhere, not just in the UK.

The Terrorism Bill now proceeding through Parliament contains many important measures that will assist the law enforcement and security agencies in the fight against terrorism, including the introduction of a new offence of glorifying terrorism in the UK or abroad.

3. To refuse asylum in this country automatically to anyone who has participated in terrorism, or has anything to do with it anywhere.

A provision has been included in the Immigration, Asylum and Nationality Bill which will allow us to deny asylum while respecting our obligations under the Refugee Convention.

4. To consult on extending the powers to strip citizenship, applying them to British citizens engaged in extremism, and making the procedures simpler and more effective.

Following consultation with opposition parties, provisions now included in the Immigration, Asylum and Nationality Bill will, if passed, replace one of the existing criteria for deprivation of citizenship—that the person concerned "has done anything seriously prejudicial to the vital interests of the United Kingdom"—with a test of the public interest. If passed, the Bill will additionally confer on the Secretary of State a power to remove a person's right of abode in the UK, again on "conducive" grounds, where this right derived from citizenship of a Commonwealth country other than the United Kingdom.

5. To consult on setting a maximum time limit for all future extradition cases involving terrorism.

Work is underway in consultation with Her Majesty's Court Service, the Crown Prosecution Service and the judiciary. This will involve better co-ordinating the responsibilities of all agencies with the aim of speeding up every stage of the process short of putting the case at risk or compromising fairness. Rashid Ramda has now been extradited and we will continue to prioritise cases such as these.

6. To examine a new court procedure to allow a pre-trial process: and examine whether the necessary procedure can be brought about to give us a way of meeting the police and security service request that detention, pre-charge of terrorist suspects, is significantly extended.

We are currently examining ways of allowing more sensitive evidence, specifically evidence derived from intercept, to be produced in court. The Government have accepted the decision of the House of Commons that the maximum period of pre-charge detention should be extended to 28 days.

7. To extend the use of control orders for those who are British nationals and cannot be deported.

To date a total of 17 control orders have been made of which nine have been revoked because the individuals who were the subject of the orders are now detained under immigration powers pending deportation. Eight orders are therefore currently in force, one of which is in respect of a British national.

8. To expand the court capacity necessary to deal with control orders and other related issues. The Lord Chancellor will increase the number of special judges hearing such cases;

The Department for Constitutional Affairs is reviewing the capacity of the courts, specialist tribunals and the judiciary to deal with existing and anticipated caseload relating to terrorism, with a view to meeting the demands of counter-terrorism.

The judiciary have been very supportive of our efforts to improve the efficiency of terrorism-related trials. They have put in hand new procedures for the allocation, handling and case management of such trials. Her Majesty's Court Service is making an additional suitable court room available.

9. To proscribe Hizb-ut-Tahrir and the successor organisation of Al Muiahiroun, and to examine the ground for proscription to widen them and put forward proposals in the new legislation.

The Terrorism Bill widens the criteria for proscription. The list of proscribed organisations will be reviewed on the basis of the new Bill.

10. To review the threshold for the acquisition of British citizenship to make sure that it is adequate, and to establish with the Muslim community a commission to advise on how there is better integration of those parts of the community presently inadequately integrated.

The Immigration, Asylum and Nationality Bill will extend the requirement to be "of good character", which presently applies only to those seeking citizenship by naturalisation, to all applicants for citizenship except those relying on a provision in the 1961 UN Convention on the Reduction of Statelessness. I will establish a Commission drawing on representatives of all faiths and communities and have written to faith leaders for their views on membership and terms of reference. I intend to make an announcement on this matter early in the new year.

In addition, my Department continued to work with representatives of the Muslim community, culminating in the announcement of a number of important initiatives including:

the creation of a National Advisory Council on Mosques and Imams;

the training and accreditation of imams; and placing a greater emphasis on citizenship training for children attending madrassahs.

11. To consult on a new power to order closure of a place of worship which is used as a centre for fomenting extremism, and to consult with Muslim leaders in respect of those clerics who are not British citizens to draw up a list of those not suitable to preach and who will be excluded from our country in the future.

I have today placed in the Library of the House and on the Home Office website the responses to the consultation paper "Preventing Extremism Together: Places of Worship" which was issued on 6 October. We received 66 responses in total, from a range of individuals, and representative national faith and law enforcement organisations. I am grateful to everyone who submitted views.

Respondents were clear that strengthening police and community partnership was the most effective way of dealing with the problem of extremism at places of worship, emphasising in particular greater exploitation of existing police channels by communities to report extremist behaviour earlier, citizenship training and, as was emphasised in the response Association of Chief Police Officers, the earlier use of existing legislation and operational techniques by law enforcement agencies.

This commitment to joint working and information sharing, alongside the provisions to tackle extremism in the Terrorism Bill and the positive recommendations that emerged from the "Preventing Extremism Together" report published on 10 November, represents a coherent package of action and, consequently, I will not seek to legislate on this issue at the present time, although we will keep the matter under review.

A database of individuals around the world who have demonstrated unacceptable behaviour is being developed.

12. To bring forward the proposed measures on the security of our borders with a series of countries specifically designated for biometric visas over the next year; and to compile an international database of those individuals whose activities or views pose a threat to Britain's security—anyone on the database will be excluded from entry with any appeal only taking place outside the country.

Embarkation controls were immediately introduced as a response to terrorists attacks in London. Fixed controls were introduced at major ports in support of Special Branch. The Immigration Service has the ability to re-establish a fixed embarkation control at one hour's notice in case of urgent operational need.

Over the next five years, e-Borders will transform our immigration control. Using new technology we will develop an integrated system to check travellers before they enter the UK and to prevent travel to those who have no right to enter or who are known security threats. E-Borders will also enable us to take appropriate actions against passengers of interest to each of the border agencies, and to collect information on when people arrive and whether they leave.

With this approach we will be able to improve security, improve efficiency and improve data information flow and intelligence on people entering and leaving the UK. The introduction of high-tech e-Borders will be combined with the phasing in of biometric passport-based ID cards to increase substantially our knowledge of who is coming in and out of the country.

We have already implemented biometrics operations in visa posts in Sri Lanka and East Africa; new operations began in Vietnam, Democratic Republic of Congo and the Netherlands in November 2005. As a result, Biometric Match data is available to Entry Clearance Officers in these countries before a decision is taken. By 2008, all those entering the UK on a visa will have been fingerprinted and digitally photographed. Border Control staff are working with the United Kingdom Passport Service (UKPS) to identify and provide authentication and verification of biometrically enabled travel documents.

As set out earlier, we have worked with the Foreign and Commonwealth Office to establish an international database of individuals whose behaviour gives cause for concern.

Public inquiry

In addition to work on the 12 point plan, I have given careful consideration to the views of those who have asked the Government to establish a foil public inquiry into the atrocities of 7 July. The Government do not believe that such an inquiry would add to our understanding of the causes of those atrocities, in particular when there are Parliamentary and other inquiries underway into these and related events. Additionally, to establish one would be to divert the attention of our police and security services during an extended period of time when they are still actively engaged in both the murder investigation which continues and the detection and prevention of further atrocities.

However, I believe that it is important to set out clearly an authoritative account or "narrative" of what happened before and around 7 July. Accordingly my Department will develop such a narrative which we intend should be published in due course. In doing so, they will work closely with the police and security services. In making final decisions on the content of the narrative to be published we will of course have due regard to the need not to compromise intelligence sources or put at risk possible prosecutions.

Oakington Investigation

The Minister for Immigration, Citizenship and Nationality (Mr. Tony McNulty): An action plan containing all 54 recommendations from the investigation carried out by Stephen Shaw into the allegations contained in the BBC documentary, "Detention Undercover: the Real Story" has been compiled and is being published today. The recommendations are aimed at strengthening management, improving the monitoring of people at centres across the detention estate and improving staff attitude towards detainees.

We have now implemented 30 of the recommendations and any outstanding recommendations relating specifically to Oakington will be implemented by March 2006. All contractors who operate centres under contract to the immigration and nationality directorate have taken on board those recommendations not aimed specifically at Oakington to ensure consistency across the detention estate. All remaining recommendations will be implemented by October 2006.

We have always made it clear that there is absolutely no place for racism anywhere in our society, and particularly within the immigration system. Immigration staff will continue to work closely with the contractors to ensure that all those who are detained are treated with dignity and respect.

PRIME MINISTER

Cabinet Committees

The Prime Minister (Mr. Tony Blair): I have today placed a copy of the current list of Cabinet Committees, their full membership and terms of reference in the Libraries of both Houses. Details have also been updated on the Cabinet Office website.

Committee on Standards in Public Life (Tenth Report)

The Prime Minister (Mr. Tony Blair): I am today publishing the Government's response to the Tenth Report of the Committee on Standards in Public Life, "Getting the Balance Right: Implementing Standards of Conduct in Public Life". The Government have considered the Committee's report with great care, and I would like to place on record my thanks to the Committee for its thorough consideration of these issues. Our response to the main recommendations is as follows:

Ethical Standards Framework for Local Government

We consider that a move to a more locally based process for considering misconduct allegations against local government members, along the lines recommended by the Committee, would be the most appropriate way of addressing local issues and ensuring the local ownership of standards.

To maintain a culture of good conduct and provide strategic support to enable councillors to manage conduct issues effectively, we feel there is an essential, continuing role for the Standards Board for England in supporting high standards locally, as also recommended by the Committee.

Public Appointments

The Government accept the Committee's recommendation that more systematic information should be published by departments on their overall policy and approach to public appointments. The Cabinet Office will work with Departments to ensure a more consistent approach.

The Government also recognise the important role of independent assessors in the process and believes that the accreditation of independent assessors should be given further consideration by the Commissioner in consultation with the Cabinet Office and departments.

The Government are also attracted to the Committee's recommendation for a Board of Public Appointments Commissioners, and for individual Commissioners to each be linked to a small number of departments. However, such a proposal will have cost implications and the Government would therefore welcome the views of the Public Administration Select Committee who are currently carrying out an Inquiry into the role and independence of the ethical regulators of Government.

Copies of the Government's response [Cm 6723] have been placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

Wilson Doctrine

The Prime Minister (Mr. Tony Blair): The Government have received advice from the Interception of Communications Commissioner, Sir. Swinton Thomas, on the possible implications for the Wilson Doctrine of the regulatory framework for the interception of communications, under the Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000.

The Government are considering that advice. I shall inform Parliament of the outcome at the earliest opportunity.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Coal Health Compensation Schemes

The Minister for Energy (Malcolm Wicks): I announced in my written statement of 21 July that I was setting up an independent external review of the handling of the Department's coal health compensation schemes. This followed a series of press articles raising concerns about various aspects of the schemes.

The terms of reference for the review were:

> To review the integrity of the administration of the scheme for dealing with coal health claims; and to identify any specific measures needed to improve the administration of the scheme; to consider whether there are adequate safeguards in place to prevent, detect and pursue fraud while ensuring the fair and timely settlement of claims; and to make recommendations accordingly to Ministers and/or the accounting officer.

The review was undertaken by a team led by Stephen Boys Smith, a former senior official at the Home Office.

I am publishing today the report of the review. I have placed the report in the Libraries of both Houses and it is available on the Department's website at: http://www.dti.gov.uk/coalhealth/.

I am grateful to Stephen Boys Smith and the review team for producing a focused report on what are complicated issues.

The Coal Schemes were initially set up to discharge very substantial liabilities, inherited by my Department from British Coal, for industrial injuries suffered by miners. In total we estimate they will result in payment to miners and their estates of up to £5 billion in compensation. We are about halfway through the schemes and more than £2.8 billion has been paid out in compensation so far. As the report notes, and as Members in coal mining constituencies will be aware, significant sums have been paid out in the coal areas equivalent to around 3.5 per cent. of local annual income. Current expenditure is nearly £2 million a day.

In short, I think that the Government are fully facing up to their obligations to discharge these liabilities. Given the scale of the task, it is important that there is confidence that the schemes are being well run. I am therefore pleased to take from the report the assurance that:

> the administration of the schemes is basically sound although there are lessons to be learned about how the schemes were put into operation;
> that, aside from continuing efficiency improvements, no major changes are needed to improve the running of the schemes; and > that the fraud procedures in place are appropriate.

The report also rejects the argument that the Union of Democratic Mineworkers were granted more favourable terms over other parties and confirms that arrangements with the UDM effectively provided identical compensation to that under the "Agreements with the Claimants Group".

The report also makes a number of specific recommendations. The Department fully accepts those recommendations which are directed at it and will follow them through in the months ahead. I will report to the House as appropriate on this.

I wish to comment at this point, however, on the report's specific conclusions and recommendations in three areas, namely the initial design of the scheme; the issue of the costs of administering the scheme, including legal costs; and the issue of transparency.

On the basic design of the schemes, the report concludes that the arrangements put in place in the late 1990s were not the best way to administer compensation for so many people; and it goes on to recommend that, were a similar case to arise in future, the Government "should very carefully examine alternative ways of proceeding".

I agree with this recommendation.

When the basic groundwork for the current schemes was put in place in the late 1990s, no one knew that we would have anything like as many as 700,000 claims under the schemes; and, in particular, that we would have so many relatively low value claims. The existing schemes are now well established and we have introduced radical changes to the lung disease scheme in the last twelve months to speed up the processing of significant numbers of claims.

Any further substantive changes to the existing schemes would run the risk of delaying the payment of claims which would be to no one's benefit. Moreover, given that we are in the last few years of the current schemes now is not the time for further redesign. But were we to face such circumstances again, we would undoubtedly want to think long and hard about whether there are better alternatives.

The second key issue which the report raises is the question of costs and solicitors' costs in particular.

In commenting on this, I should first make clear the considerable contribution to the running of the scheme that has been made by the various firms of solicitors involved. The schemes are complex; and it is entirely right and proper that miners and their families should have professional legal support through this process, funded by the Government under the legal obligations we inherited from British Coal.

But the report nonetheless points out that the legal cost structures were largely negotiated, along with the agreements themselves, at a time when the anticipated volumes of cases under the schemes were considerably lower than has proved to be the case. It would be wrong not to recognise that higher than anticipated volumes of cases undoubtedly bring opportunities for batch processing and reduced costs per case. The report also notes that not every claim will always require the assistance of qualified legal professionals and that the cost to public funds "does not now necessarily reflect the more routine nature of the work". The report recommends, therefore, that we consider whether there is more to be done in this area, with the aim of ensuring that legal costs more accurately reflect the nature of the work actually undertaken.

This is an issue the Department is already actively pursuing. In particular, we believe that the new "fast-track" approach we have implemented this year for the lung disease scheme should require significantly less input by solicitors and should therefore incur considerably reduced costs.

We have argued that case with the solicitors' representatives and, indeed, before the High Court. We have now taken the issue to the Court of Appeal. I do not think it appropriate to comment in detail at this stage. But significant sums in legal costs—perhaps up to £200 million of taxpayers money—are at stake.

There are also other areas where we have yet to reach agreement with the claimants' solicitors on costs and we will be pursuing these equally vigorously to ensure they reflect work done and a reasonable level of return.

More generally, I regret that legal costs have become the source of such contention. It is right that solicitors are properly rewarded for the work they have done. But claimants representatives will recognise that it does no good whatsoever to the reputation of themselves or their profession if they are perceived in the press and elsewhere, rightly or wrongly, as being primarily motivated by fee earning opportunities.

In this context, the report also discusses the concern that in some cases solicitors have taken money from claimants' compensation to cover costs even though legal costs are met by the Government, and that, again in some cases, union fees have been deducted from compensation. Both issues are discussed in the report in some detail.

Clearly, it would be wholly unacceptable for deductions to be made from any compensation payment without the claimant's agreement, though the report notes that, as far as they were aware, there were no examples of that happening. But the report equally suggests that in some cases, claimants appear to have been invited to agree to make such contributions without it being crystal clear to them that such donations were a matter for their choice and that other solicitors would not seek to make them. That would strike me, to say the least, as questionable.

These are essentially matters about conduct within the legal profession and the Department has no direct role. We have, however, raised the issues with the Law Society in the past and will continue to make clear to them the importance of taking these issues forward rigorously and proactively. There is again legal action in prospect, though not involving the Department. The report does however make a specific recommendation that, subject to the outcome of any legal action in this area, the legal profession should take forward the issue of claimants who were not made fully aware that they were free to use solicitors who did not make any deductions. The report calls on the legal profession to take this forward. I urge them to do so—and I will follow up this issue with the Law Society.

Third, we have also taken steps immediately to address the recommendation about greater availably of information about the schemes. We have already put on the website: http://www.dti.gov.uk/coalhealth/ the claims handling agreements, including the UDM agreements, and the latest reports to the courts on progress of the schemes—which cover a lot of detail. We will consider what further information might be added and would welcome input from interested parties about what additional information they would find helpful.

Although it is not dealt with within the report, I can also report separately to the House that the Serious Fraud Office has now confirmed to my Department that, while their investigations are continuing, their investigation is not now focusing on any suspected fraud against the Department.

Company Law (Operating and Financial Review)

The Minister for Industry and the Regions (Alun Michael): The Chancellor announced on 28 November that the Government had decided no longer to require quoted companies to prepare an Operating and Financial Review, in addition to the requirements of the EU Accounts Modernisation Directive.

I am today laying regulations which repeal the requirement on quoted companies to prepare an Operating and Financial Review for financial years starting on or after 1 April 2005. They will need to include a Business Review as part of the Directors' Report, in compliance with the EU Accounts Modernisation Directive requirements. This is in line with the Government's general policy not to impose regulatory requirements on UK businesses over and above relevant EU Directive requirements. I am today publishing guidance on the regulations.

We are committed to improving strategic, forward-looking narrative reporting by companies, and to enhanced dialogue with shareholders based on such reporting. We believe it is important for companies to report on non-financial issues relevant to the development and performance of the business, including, for example, environmental matters and human capital management, and they will need to do so under the Business Review requirements. The Business Review will need to cover principal risks and uncertainties as well as giving a balanced and comprehensive analysis of the business.

The contents of the Business Review cover much of the ground covered in the Operating and Financial Review, but in less prescriptive form. The depth of analysis required is proportionate to the size and complexity of the business. A small company (namely one which satisfies two of the following: turnover of not more than £5.6 million balance sheet total of not more than £2.8 million; not more than 50 employees) need provide no such review. Also, the Business Review does not have the additional audit requirement specified for the OFR.

Companies that have been preparing to produce an OFR will be able to use that work to produce their Business Review. In addition, many companies have been producing a voluntary OFR for some years, and may wish to continue doing so using work that they have done toward the mandatory OFR. Or they may use that work to improve the quality and depth of their Business Review.

The Government also believe that disclosures—both mandatory and voluntary—are only part of the picture. On their own, disclosures are insufficient to generate responses by businesses to the legitimate concerns of civil society. Dialogue with and pressure from stakeholders, including the public, NGOs, shareholders and Government, is vital for achieving this outcome.

In order to have the maximum impact, it is important that the requirements for narrative reporting are properly calibrated, and neither impose an excessive compliance burden, nor push companies into a "tick box" or "boilerplate" approach to disclosure.

As regards enforcement of the Business Review requirements, the Financial Reporting and Review Panel has the legal authority to review a company's Directors' Report, for financial years beginning on or after 1 April 2006 and, if necessary, go to the court to compel a company to revise its report.

The Company Law Reform Bill contains provisions relating to the Operating and Financial Review. We intend to bring forward amendments to remove the need for a quoted company to produce an Operating and Financial Review. In future such a company will have to produce a Business Review. I am today inviting views from interested parties by 15 February before we bring forward appropriate amendments to the Bill.

TRANSPORT

Night Flying Restrictions

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Transport (Ms Karen Buck): On 10 June 2005 I launched stage 2 of a two-stage consultation process about setting the night restrictions regime at Heathrow, Gatwick and Stansted to run to October 2012. The consultation paper explained that we intended to continue the present night restrictions regime for a further year from 30 October 2005 until 29 October 2006.

We stated that, during that year the current regime should continue unchanged. The consultation document then invited comment on whether the specific movements limits and noise quotas to apply for summer 2006 should be the same as those for summer 2005. I also announced that the movements limits and noise quotas for winter 2005–06 should remain the same as those for winter 2004–05.

After careful consideration of the responses on this subject to the stage 2 consultation on night flying restrictions which we launched in June, we have concluded that the movements limits and noise quotas for the summer season 2006 should be the same as for summer 2005.

The reasons for adopting this approach remain as set out in the consultation paper and were not disputed by those responding to the consultation.

We are continuing to consider carefully the full responses on the other issues outlined in the recent consultation exercise and will make an announcement in due course on the night restrictions regime to apply from 29 October 2006.

The consultation also invited comment in a range of issues including the length of the night quota period (currently 11.30pm until 6am), the specific movements limits and noise quotas, proposals for environmental objectives and specific noise abatement objectives and possible noise insulation schemes or criteria in respect of night disturbance.

Although there was relatively little comment on the specific point about the summer 2006 movements limits and noise quotas, there was been a greater response about other issues raised in the consultation. We are continuing to analyse those responses and carry out the associated assessments including a full Regulatory Impact Assessment.

Road Safety Cameras

The Secretary of State for Transport (Mr. Alistair Darling): I am today publishing an independent research report which confirms the effectiveness of the national safety camera programme over the four years from April 2000 to March 2004. I am also announcing changes which will end the current ring-fencing of funding for safety cameras, and will give much more local flexibility and accountability, both on funding and in other respects, to local authorities, the police and the other agencies who are involved in improving road safety at the local level.

The four-year research report, prepared by PA Consulting and University College London, examines over 4,000 camera sites in 38 safety camera partnership areas, covering virtually the whole of Great Britain. The report finds that safety cameras continue to be highly effective in reducing speeding, accidents and casualties at camera sites:

- The number of vehicles exceeding the speed limit fell by 70 per cent. at fixed camera sites;
- After allowing for the general trend of improving road safety, there was a 22 per cent. reduction in personal injury collisions (PICs)—around 4,230 fewer per annum; and
- Again after allowing for the general trend, there was a 42 per cent. reduction in the number of people killed or seriously injured (KSIs)—around 1,745 fewer per annum, including over 100 fewer deaths.

The report also considers the "regression-to-mean" effect. This effect arises because the number of PICs and KSIs in the period before installation of a camera may be higher than the long-term average for that location. The report finds that, at the very small number of sites where it was possible to examine this effect, a proportion of the observed reduction in PICs and KSIs could be attributable to regression-to-mean. The report concludes that, even after allowing for this finding, safety cameras are achieving substantial and valuable reductions in collisions and casualties.

I have placed a copy of the PA-UCL report in the Library. It will also be available on my Department's website.

I am also announcing today important changes to the national safety camera programme in England and Wales. Taking account of the findings of the four year report, we have concluded that:

> Safety cameras are delivering substantial and valuable reductions in accidents and casualties;
> The current netting-off funding arrangements have enabled a rapid programme of investment in safety cameras;
> The safety camera programme is now more mature, with some camera partnerships seeking few or no additional camera sites, as many of the worst casualty sites where a camera is the right solution have now been dealt with.

It is therefore now timely that camera activity and partnerships are integrated into the wider road safety delivery process. For the future we are going to give greater flexibility to local authorities, the police and the other agencies who work with them to improve road safety, so that they can pursue whichever locally agreed mix of road safety measures will make the greatest contribution to reducing road casualties in their area. As part of this process the responsibility for safety cameras in Wales will transfer to the National Assembly for Wales.

Therefore, 2006–07 will be the last year of the netting-off funding arrangements for safety cameras in England and Wales. I understand that the Scottish Ministers are also considering the future of the hypothecated Safety Camera Programme in Scotland, and will announce their decision in due course.

For 2007–08 and beyond, my department will enhance the overall level of funding for road safety provided to local highway authorities in England through the Local Transport Plan (LTP) process. For the first time a proportion of this funding will be revenue based.

The enhanced funding will be allocated to authorities in accordance with their road safety needs (using the existing LTP road safety formula) and with the quality of their second round LTP submissions and delivery record. We will also provide enhanced funding to Transport for London. My Department is writing to all highway authorities in England to provide details of this change, and inviting them to reflect this new flexibility in their LTP submissions due in March 2006.

We propose to allocate some £110 million a year for this enhanced funding over the period 2007–08 to 2010–11. As well as the greater flexibility, this will provide financial stability and facilitate long term planning. It is also a substantial increase in funding for road safety, by comparison with the latest projection of 2005–06 expenditure by safety camera partnerships in England which is some £93 million.

In considering the quality of LTP submissions, we will have regard to, among other factors, the degree of cooperation and wider collaboration between the local authority, the police force and the other relevant agencies in the area, in respect of their road safety strategy, linkages with other areas of work and their approach to tackling individual problematic locations. We want local strategies and decisions to be well-founded, taking account of the combined knowledge and expertise of all the agencies concerned, and to avoid duplication of effort. My Department will work closely with local road safety partnerships to help them produce high quality bids, and to deliver substantial casualty reductions. We will also encourage road safety partnerships to include a wider range of other organisations in local decision-making, and not restrict themselves only to police and local authorities.

For the final year of safety camera netting-off funding in 2006–07 we are amending the handbook of "Rules and Guidance" to reflect the findings of the four-year report. The criteria on the location of safety cameras are being changed to ensure that cameras can be used where there is a strong road safety need. The deployment criteria will take account of all injury accidents as well as the level of KSIs, look back five years rather than three; and allow camera enforcement on routes where there is a serious problem of speeding and casualties, without the problem necessarily being concentrated at one particular location. A copy of the updated handbook will be placed in the Library and on my Department's website in due course.

The handbook will also make improvements to the signing of cameras, to further assist drivers to recognise and comply with the speed limit:

> Speed limit and camera signs will be co-located where possible.
> Signs will be placed to allow the sign and camera to be visible to the driver in the same view.

We also intend to publish shortly revised guidance to Traffic Authorities on setting local speed limits, which will request authorities to review the speed limits on their A and B roads by 2011, and to give priority to reviewing the limit on any road [not just A and B roads) on which there are poor casualty histories or there is a widespread disregard for the current speed limit, especially where safety cameras are being considered. By undertaking this review, which may lead to inappropriately low speed limits being raised as well as inappropriately high speed limits being lowered, we wish to encourage motorists to have greater respect for speed limits generally.

Regional Air Access to London

The Secretary of State for Transport (Mr Alistair Darling): The Government have today published guidance on the Protection of Regional Air Access to London, copies have been placed in the Libraries of the House. This guidance was foreshadowed in "The Future of Air Transport" White Paper (December 2003) and follows extensive consultation with stakeholders.

The aim of the guidance is to clarify how the Government will interpret the criteria in the relevant European Regulation (EC 2408/92) when assessing applications for Public Service Obligations (PSOs) to protect existing regional air services to London. A more precise definition of the criteria will provide a firmer basis for the discussion of individual cases with both airlines and regional bodies.

"The Future of Air Transport" White Paper recognised the concern of regional stakeholders about the availability of landing and take-off slots at major London airports. It stated that the Government were prepared to intervene in well defined circumstances to protect slots at the London airports for regional services through imposing PSOs. Where services already exist from UK regional airports to London (defined as City, Gatwick, Heathrow, Luton and Stansted airports), this intervention would guarantee a minimum level of scheduled air services on these routes.

The criteria for PSO imposition are set out, but not precisely defined in EC Regulation 2408/92. In 2004, The Government consulted on interpretations of these criteria and the agreed definitions are set out in the guidance. The Government consider that in order to justify intervention in the market, a PSO application must illustrate the benefits to the regional and national economy that would otherwise be lost if a service was withdrawn. It will be the responsibility of regional bodies to make a case for a PSO against the criteria. In order to assist regional bodies in assembling the evidence required to demonstrate wider benefits, the guidance contains an Annex which provides a common methodology for assessing the economic benefits of maintaining an adequate air service to London, so as to ensure transparency and comparability.

Final judgment on the eligibility of a route for PSO imposition rests with me, as Secretary of State for Transport, and would be based on the merits of each case set against the criteria in Regulation 2408/92. If an application is supported, the Department would notify the European Commission and air carriers operating the route, and a PSO would be imposed to the extent necessary to ensure on that route the adequate provision of scheduled air services satisfying fixed standards of continuity, regularity, capacity and pricing. After a PSO has been imposed on a route, European Law (Regulation 95/93 as amended) allows Member States to reserve slots at airports on that route so that an airline cannot use them for a service to an alternative destination. The reservation of slots is at the discretion of the Member State and can only take place at airports designated as "co-ordinated", which in London are Heathrow, Gatwick and Stansted.

The Government think it unlikely that the imposition of a PSO on a route to London would require subsidy. All regional routes to London are currently commercially viable. Should subsidy be required, however, it would be the responsibility of the relevant regional body to reimburse the Department for these funds. PSOs will be reviewed every three years to ensure that their imposition is still appropriate and the obligations set out are being met.

In addition to clarifying the interpretation of the European Regulation, the guidance also supports a voluntary early warning system for airlines operating regional routes to London. This invites airlines to provide as much notice as possible, preferably at least four months, of their intention to withdraw from, or reduce services on routes to London. Whilst I recognise that airlines operate within a competitive commercial environment, I believe that the early warning system strikes a good balance between the need to maintain an adequate level of regional services to London, and limiting the Government intervention in the market. The system offers regional partners together with the Government the time and opportunity to explore all potential solutions to ensure continuity of regional services into London.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Autumn Performance Report

The Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (Mr. John Hutton): I am publishing today the Autumn Performance Report of the Department for Work and Pensions. The report is intended to supplement the Department's annual report published in June 2005 (Cm 6539).

The report provides the latest account of how the Department is performing against its Public Service Agreement targets. Copies have been placed in the Library.

Social Fund

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (Mr. James Plaskitt): I would like to expand upon the Pre-Budget Report 2005 announcements on the treatment of capital in the discretionary Social Fund.

The Government have already announced a number of significant improvements to the budgeting loan scheme to take effect from April 2006, which will amount to an increase in finding of £210 million over three years. There will be further publicity about these for customers and advisers nearer April.

In addition, to ensure that budgeting loan recipients are not penalised for having small amounts of savings, Pre-Budget Report 2005 announced that the capital allowances available to budgeting loan applicants would be increased from April 2006. The current rules mean that capital of up to £500 (for people of working age) or up to £1,000 (for pensioners) is ignored when deciding whether a budgeting loan should be awarded and the amount of the loan. Capital in excess of £500/£1,000 will be offset against the amount of loan sought. From April 2006 the allowances will increase to £1,000 (people of working age) and £2,000 (pensioners).

The crisis loan scheme works differently from the budgeting loan scheme, with all resources available to the applicant taken into account when deciding whether a loan can be made. There is no capital allowance and one will not be introduced.

The Government are also currently exploring the scope to make early improvements to the community care grant scheme, to tighten its focus on the cases with the strongest case for help. This currently operates the same capital allowances as the budgeting loan scheme and we will consider whether the same change or any other change should be made to the treatment of capital as part of this work.

TREASURY

Former Inland Revenue—"Hansard" Statement

The Paymaster General (Dawn Primarolo): This is to clarify the position of the civil settlement procedure for serious tax evasion offences, known commonly among tax professionals as "Hansard", following the introduction within HM Revenue and Customs of a new single procedure on the 1 September 2005 for dealing with cases of fraud civilly.

Both former HM Customs and Excise and the Inland Revenue had procedures for tackling serious acts of evasion using civil sanctions. Following the creation of HMRC it is important for the efficient and effective administration of the tax system, that there should be a single process to resolve both direct and indirect tax losses where they result from the same fraudulent behaviour.

HMRC reviewed their procedures and following consultation with external stakeholders, introduced a new single procedure for handling fraud cases civilly on 1 September 2005. This builds on and replaces former procedures inherited from both former Departments such as the Revenue's "Hansard" and Customs' VAT "New Approach".

With effect from that date, previous procedures will not be used for cases of suspected fraud, but they will continue to be used on cases commenced under these procedures prior to 1 September 2005.

A new Code of Practice 9 (2005) has been introduced in respect of these procedures and a copy is being placed in the House of Commons Library.

Public Service Pensions

The Chief Secretary to the Treasury (Mr. Des Browne): Legislation governing public service pensions requires public service pensions to be increased annually by the same percentage as additional pensions (State Earnings Related Pension and State Second Pension). My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions announced on 6 December 2005, Official Report, column 74, that benefits such as additional pensions will be increased by 2.7 per cent. in line with the annual increase in the retail prices index up to September 2005. Public service pensions will therefore be increased by 2.7 per cent. from 10 April 2006, except those which have been in payment for less than a year, which will receive a pro-rata increase.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH AFFAIRS

General Affairs and External Relations Council

The Minister for Europe (Mr. Douglas Alexander): The General Affairs and External Relations Council (GAERC) was held on 12 December in Brussels. My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs chaired the Council as presidency and I represented the UK on certain agenda items.

The agenda items were covered as follows:

Annual operating Programme (AOP) of the Council for 2006

The incoming Austrian and Finnish presidencies introduced the annual operating programme. The main operational lines of the programme will be:

rekindling the confidence of people in the European project;

the European model, including those issues in the constitutional treaty, which promoted quality of life; driving forward the Lisbon process in the run-up to the spring European Council, with a focus on growth and jobs;

follow up to the Hampton Court summit;

promoting Europe on the world stage;

the EU's external policy, with a focus on South East Europe and the Western Balkans.

Financial Perspective 2007–13

The presidency outlined the results of the 7 December conclave and other discussions, and noted that it aimed to issue a revised negotiating box on Wednesday 14 December, with a view to achieving consensus at the European Council on 15–16 December. There was no further discussion.

Preparation for the December European Council

The presidency gave an update on preparations for the European Council on 15–16 December, and the Council had an initial discussion of European Council conclusions.

The Council also had a short discussion of the Commission and Council papers setting out priority actions for improving migration management—with a focus on Africa and the Mediterranean—which were mandated by the Hampton Court summit.

Western Balkans

Croatia: the Council welcomed the recent arrest of Ante Gotovina and praised the work of the International Criminal Tribunal for Yugoslavia (ICTY).

Kosovo: High Representative Solana and Commissioner Rehn presented their joint paper on the EU's future role in Kosovo. They underlined the fact that the EU should prepare for an enhanced post-status role but should not prejudge the end of the status process. The presidency noted that the EU would continue to act under UN authority for the foreseeable future.

Bosnia high representative/EU special representative (HR/EUSR): the Council agreed to support the nomination of Dr. Schwarz-Schilling as Lord Ashdown's successor.

Macedonia: the Council discussed the Commission's opinion that the former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia should be granted candidate country status and agreed that the decision should be referred to the European Council. The Council agreed short conclusions reflecting this decision.

Enlargement

The Council agreed conclusions on enlargement with minimal discussion.

European Neighbourhood Policy (ENP)

Commissioner Ferrero-Waldner briefed the Council on progress under the European Neighbourhood Policy (ENP), one year after its launch, and identified key priorities for 2006. She noted that seven ENP action plans had now been negotiated and formally adopted (with Israel, Jordan, Moldova, Morocco, the Palestinian Authority, Tunisia and Ukraine) and that partners had begun implementing the agreed priorities, in line with clear timetables. She also noted that the ENP had strengthened and expanded the scope of the EU's political dialogue with a number of Mediterranean countries and facilitated the regular discussion of issues such as democracy, human rights and governance.

Ferrero-Waldner identified the completion of the next five ENP action plans (with Egypt, Lebanon, Armenia, Azerbaijan and Georgia), preparation of an ENP Country Report on Algeria and the smooth transition between the existing neighbourhood programmes (2005–06) and the new cross-border co-operation programmes (2007–13) as priorities for 2006. The Council supported Ferrero-Waldner's assessment and also highlighted the importance of reviewing the implementation of existing action plans.

EU/Africa

The Council discussed the EU-Africa strategy. The Council agreed that the strategy would play a crucial role in directing clear and substantive EU engagement with Africa in coming years. The Council agreed the strategy and submitted it to the European Council.

Ethiopia/Eritrea

The Council discussed the deterioration of the situation in Ethiopia-Eritrea over the last few months and the recent Eritrean request that European and North American members of the UN Mission in Ethiopia and Eritrea (UNMEE) should be withdrawn. The presidency noted that an EU mission, led by my noble Friend the Minister for Africa (Lord Triesman of Tottenham), would visit the region on 17 December. Council conclusions were agreed, calling for co-operation with UNMEE and early progress on border demarcation.

Middle East Declaration

The Council directed officials to continue working on the draft of a Middle East declaration in advance of the Foreign Ministers' dinner on 15 December.

AOB—EU/ASEM/Burma

Some member states raised the issue of Burmese representation at EU/Asia-Europe meetings.

HEALTH

Medicines and Healthcare Products Regulatory Agency

The Minister of State, Department of Health (Jane Kennedy): We have received the Annual Report and Accounts of the Medicines and Healthcare Products Regulatory Agency for 2004–05 which has been laid before Parliament today in accordance with the requirements of sections 5(2) and 5(3) of the Exchequer and Audit Departments Act 1921. Copies have also been placed in the Library.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Autumn Performance Report 2005

The Secretary of State for the Home Department (Mr. Charles Clarke): The Home Office autumn performance report 2005 has been published today by Command of Her Majesty. Copies of the report are available in the Vote Office and in the Library. The report is also available on the Home Office website.

The report sets out the progress we have made towards achieving our public service agreement targets.

The report shows that we have made significant progress against our targets. Overall crime is down by 12 per cent., and the fear of crime has fallen. In the year to September 2005 we have brought 1.194 million offences to justice, exceeding our target for 2005–06. Police performance has improved, but there is still much to do in reforming the police services, to meet operational requirements and the public's expectations. Our drugs strategy continues to deliver real benefits to communities across the country with record numbers of drug misusing offenders entering drug treatment through the Criminal Justice System, and falling drug related crime. Asylum remains under control, with sustained falls in those not only claiming asylum but also those whose claims are unfounded.

Ministers of Religion

The Minister for Immigration, Citizenship and Nationality (Mr. Tony McNulty): I am today announcing the results of our recent consultation exercise on the immigration provisions for religious workers from abroad.

It has long been the case that we have recognised that religious communities in the UK can face difficulties in recruiting sufficient numbers or suitably trained personnel from within the resident labour market. Therefore there are longstanding provisions in the immigration rules which enable faith communities to recruit religious personnel from overseas.

However, it is important that these provisions balance the needs of faith communities with the twin aims of maintaining community cohesion and maintaining an effective immigration control and we have been working with faith communities over the last couple of years to ensure these aims are met.

Since the White Paper "Secure Borders, Safe Haven" was published in February 2002 we have held two separate consultation exercises with faith communities about our immigration provisions. As a result of the first consultation, since August last year all those applying for leave as a Minister of Religion have had to demonstrate that they speak English so that they can speak to and for their communities. At the moment this is to a basic level (level four of IELTS), but we announced at the time that this will be raised to the standard of a competent user of English (level six IELTS) in August 2006. Also as a result of the first consultation, some migrants already in the UK have been able to change the basis of their stay to be recognised as a Minister of Religion.

We recently completed a second stage of consultation on the skills needed to practise ministry in a diverse and cohesive society. The consultation ran from March to July this year, and asked faith communities for their views on pre-entry qualifications for those entering the UK for religious employment and on civic knowledge tests for those who have been in the UK for at least a year. Due to some concerns raised, we also asked for views on the impact of the English language requirement on religious workers in non-pastoral roles.

The Under-Secretary of State for the Home Department, my hon. Friend the Member for Wythenshawe and Sale East (Paul Goggins), the Minister with responsibility for faith issues, and I have now fully considered both the written responses to this consultation and would like to announce the following measures:

Firstly, we will be introducing a pre-entry qualification requirement for religious workers from abroad. This will mean that any overseas national seeking to enter the UK to perform religious duties will have to demonstrate that their community considers that they are suitably qualified to perform these duties.

The faith communities themselves support this approach. We recognise that different faith groups have very diverse standards to assess who is qualified to work in their community, and we will be working with them on the best way of introducing such a requirement. For this reason, the pre-entry qualification will not be introduced now, but as part of the implementation of the new points based system for managed migration.

Secondly, I will introduce a new category within the Immigration Rules for religious workers in non-pastoral roles. This category, which is being laid before Parliament today and will come into effect on 9 January 2006, will enable religious communities in the UK to recruit the personnel they need from abroad. Many faiths require a range of personnel to perform religious rites in their community but who do not have a pastoral role. This new category caters for such workers. The requirements of the new category reflect the roles that these people will fill. For example, Ministers of Religion preach to their congregation and therefore are required to speak English, but those coming to the UK under the new category will have a non-pastoral role and will not be required to speak English. Following discussions with the faith communities, they will not be eligible to stay in the UK for more than two years.

I have also taken this opportunity to clarify the provisions for certain religious workers who have previously been able to come to the UK for short periods as visitors by including them within this new category.

The recent consultation also proposed a post-entry civic knowledge test for Ministers of Religion from Abroad, which would apply at the point at which the individual applied for an extension of their stay, normally after one year. However, since then we have introduced an equivalent test for all those applying for British citizenship. We have also published proposals for changes to the requirements for settlement, to include a civic knowledge test, as part of our five-year strategy for asylum and immigration. Therefore we are not proposing introducing a civic knowledge test for Ministers of Religion from Abroad at this stage, but will consider the issue again in the context of these subsequent changes.

Both changes I announce today recognise the needs of the faith communities and their concerns about ensuring that overseas nationals have the skills needed to practice their ministry in the UK's diverse society. They also balance this with the aims of community cohesion and a robust and effective immigration control. We will continue to work with the faith communities on these issues.

TRANSPORT

Modernising Operator Licensing

The Minister of State, Department for Transport (Dr. Stephen Ladyman): I have today published a consultation paper setting out the Government's proposals for streamlining and modernising the licensing system for operators of heavy goods vehicles and public service vehicles. Copies have been placed in the Library of the House.

The proposals take forward our commitment in the White Paper "The Future of Transport" to provide better regulation of the road haulage and passenger transport industries.

The three key changes proposed in the consultation are:

New arrangements for holders of more than one licence,

A revised fee structure,

The abolition of vehicle discs and margin concession for goods vehicles.

These will simplify procedures, reduce administrative burdens but maintain safety standards. They will also build on administrative improvements already made by the Vehicle and Operator Service Agency (VOSA).

The consultation closes on 31 March 2006. If the proposals are supported by the various stakeholders implementation would take place during 2006–07.

TREASURY

HM Revenue and Customs Investigation

The Financial Secretary to the Treasury (John Healey): In a letter to the Chairman of the Treasury Select Committee on 29 September 2004 (a copy of which was deposited in the Library of the House), I reported that the Metropolitan Police Service (MPS) was conducting an investigation—Operation Gestalt—into Customs and Excise's handling of a series of excise diversion frauds on the London City Bond in the mid-1990s.

I can today update the House on significant developments in the police investigation.

HM Revenue and Customs (HMRC) yesterday received confirmation that the Crown Prosecution Service (CPS) have considered a report from the MPS relating to allegations of non-disclosure to the Butterfield Review involving two very senior then serving officers, Terry Byrne and David Pickup, and also Sir Richard Broadbent, former Chairman of Customs and Excise. The CPS have concluded that there is insufficient evidence to charge any of these individuals with a criminal offence and that further work on this matter would not be justified.

The Chairman of HMRC, David Varney, has confirmed that the Department will now discuss with David Pickup a return to work in accordance with the Department's procedures. Terry Byrne retired from HMRC in November 2004 on reaching the age of 60.

I made clear in my letter of 29 September 2004, and HMRC has also consistently stated, that it would be wrong and unjust to prejudge the outcome of investigations, and that the term "under investigation" should not be taken to mean that charges would follow. This has been an extremely difficult and unpleasant period for the individuals concerned. It is, however, necessary that reports of serious alleged wrongdoing are properly and independently investigated.

The MPS's Operation Gestalt investigation continues. A total of 12 current and former HMRC officials at present remain under investigation. The Department has in place established contact and welfare arrangements to support those officers affected. The priority of the Department continues to be to ensure that: the MPS receive HMRC's full and active co-operation with the investigation; the rights of all individuals involved are protected; and the Department's ongoing law enforcement operations are maintained while the investigation is ongoing.

CABINET OFFICE

Cabinet Office Autumn Performance Report 2005

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for the Cabinet Office (Mr. Jim Murphy): I have today published the Cabinet Office 2005 Autumn Performance Report (Cm 6725). Copies of the report have been placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

DEFENCE

SKYNET 5

The Minister of State, Ministry of Defence (Mr. Adam Ingram): I am pleased to announce that we have been able to agree to a change to the already successful Skynet 5 PFI deal, to enable a revised risk mitigation approach to be adopted.

Rather than relying on space insurance to cover satellite loss in an unpredictable insurance market, as under the original deal the revised approach is built upon increasing the in-orbit constellation. Instead of two satellites in orbit, there will now be three satellites, with a part built fourth satellite available as a back up to a satellite loss throughout the satellite launch phase, which ends in late 2008. The MOD requirement will continue to amount to two satellites, which means that an in-orbit spare will be available; delay in building a replacement satellite in the event of a loss would therefore be avoided. Continuous operational capability can therefore be maintained.

This innovative approach to risk management is fully consistent with the aims of smart acquisition and it shows how a PFI deal can evolve over time, to continue to provide our armed forces with the best available capability at the right price.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Agriculture and Fisheries Council

The Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (Margaret Beckett): The European Union Agriculture and Fisheries Council will meet in Brussels from 20 to 22 December 2005.

I will chair for the agriculture items and my hon. Friend, the Member for Exeter, (Mr. Bradshaw) will chair for fisheries issues. My hon. Friend, the Member for Dorset South, (Jim Knight) will be in the UK seat.

The Council is expected to adopt conclusions on the Commission's communication for simplification and better regulation of the common agricultural policy.

We also hope to reach political agreement on Community measures for the control of avian influenza and related expenditure under the veterinary fund.

We expect the Council to adopt the first stage of the European Community and United States agreement on trade in wine.

At the request of Germany, the Council will discuss the implementation of cross compliance rules under the CAP single payment scheme.

The Council will vote on a proposal to authorise the use of genetically modified maize variety 1507.

The main fisheries item is the annual negotiation on total allowable catches and fishing quotas for next year, where we hope to reach political agreement. We also hope to secure agreement on total allowable catches and quotas in the Baltic and recovery measures for sole stocks in the Bay of Biscay.

Under any other business, the Fisheries Commissioner will update the Council on proposals for restructuring the fisheries sector and on the EU action plan on simplification of the Common Fisheries Policy. The Agriculture Commissioner will update the Council on the outcome of the WTO negotiations in Hong Kong. Demark will raise the issue of export refunds for live bovine animals. Italy will draw the Commission's attention to the situation in the poultrymeat market, following the recent avian influenza outbreak in Europe. The Commissioner for Health and Consumer Protection will update the Council on that outbreak and outline proposals for an EU action plan on the protection and welfare of animals. Spain will draw attention to repeated outbreaks of the animal disease, blue tongue, arising from North Africa and request resources to control its spread.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH AFFAIRS

Biological and Toxin Weapons Convention

The Minister for the Middle East (Dr. Kim Howells): States Party to the Biological and Toxin Weapons Convention (BTWC) met in Geneva, 5–9 December. The purpose of the meeting was to discuss and promote common understanding and effective action on the content, adoption and promulgation of codes of conduct for scientists.

The States Party to the BTWC agreed by consensus a politically binding report where, inter alia, States Party stressed the need to undertake activities at the national and international levels and recognised the following:

(a) while the primary responsibility for implementing the convention rests with States Party, codes of conduct, voluntarily adopted, for scientists in the fields relevant to the convention can support the object and purpose of the convention by making a significant and effective contribution, in conjunction with other measures including national legislation, to combating the present and future threats posed by biological and toxin weapons, as well as by raising awareness of the convention, and by helping relevant actors to fulfil their legal, regulatory and professional obligations and ethical principles;

(b) codes of conduct should reflect the provisions of the convention and contribute to national implementation measures;

(c) a range of different approaches exists to develop codes of conduct in view of differences in national requirements and circumstances;

(d) codes of conduct should avoid impeding scientific discovery, placing undue constraints on research or international co-operation and exchange for peaceful purposes;

(e) science should be used for peaceful purposes only but has the potential to be misused in ways that are prohibited by the convention, and therefore codes of conduct should require and enable relevant actors to have a clear understanding of the content, purpose and reasonably foreseeable consequences of their activities, and of the need to abide by the obligations contained in the convention.

Further, States Party recognised that all those with a responsibility for, or legitimate interest in, codes of conduct should be involved in their development, promulgation and adoption and agreed on the value of codes of conduct applying not just to scientists, but to all those involved in scientific activity, including managers and technical and ancillary staff.

On the content of codes of conduct, recognising the principles listed above, States Party agreed on the importance of codes of conduct being:

(a) compatible with national legislation and regulatory controls and contributing to national implementation measures;

(b) simple, clear and easily understandable both to scientists and to wider civil society;

(c) relevant, helpful and effective for guiding relevant actors in making decisions and taking action in accordance with the purposes and objectives of the convention;

(d) sufficiently broad in scope;

(e) reviewed regularly, evaluated for effectiveness, and revised as necessary.

On the adoption of codes of conduct, recognising that it is important to build on and co-ordinate with existing efforts and avoid imposing burdensome and duplicative measures, the States Party agreed on the value of:

(a) demonstrating the benefits of codes and encouraging relevant actors to develop codes themselves;

(b) using existing codes, mechanisms, frameworks and bodies as far as possible; and

(c) tailoring adoption strategies according to the needs of each relevant sector.

On the promulgation of codes of conduct, recognising that codes of conduct will be most effective if they, and the principles underlying them, are widely known and understood, the States Party agreed on the value of continuous efforts on promulgation through appropriate channels.

States Party were also encouraged to inform the Sixth Review Conference in 2006 of any actions, measures or other steps that they have taken on the basis of the discussions on codes of conduct to facilitate the conference's consideration of the work.

The preceding meeting of experts held in Geneva in June 2005 had prepared the way for this political decision making. At this earlier meeting, levels of attendance and participation were excellent with 82 States Party contributing to international discussion and sharing of expertise on codes of conduct for scientists. States Party were also able to benefit from the input, expertise, and experience of a number of international and non-governmental organisations and science stakeholders. A multi-agency delegation represented the United Kingdom. Sir David King, Chief Scientific Adviser, made a well-received presentation on his code of ethics for Government scientists, which is currently being piloted across Government. UK officials also made four presentations on different aspects of the subject.

Ambassador John Freeman, on behalf of the United Kingdom, led the international work on this subject in 2005 and chaired both the meeting of States Party and the meeting of experts. I am sure Members will join me in expressing appreciation for the work and efforts of Ambassador Freeman to achieve consensus on a report that reflected the large measure of agreement that exists on the subject under discussion. Moreover the level of active participation and engagement over the last three years of the current work programme is an indication to us that States Party recognise both the importance of the selected subjects and also the value of the work programme more generally in contributing to strengthening the convention.

At the meeting of States Party, delegations also agreed the dates for a preparatory committee to the Sixth Review Conference of the convention in 2006. The preparatory committee will be held in Geneva, 26–28 April 2006. The Sixth Review Conference will be held in Geneva, 20 November–8 December 2006, with the precise dates to be confirmed by the preparatory committee.

The UK is one of the three depositaries to the convention and will continue to work co-operatively, both nationally and internationally, through 2006 in preparation for a successful conclusion to the Sixth Review Conference.

I will keep the House informed of developments and outcomes in 2006.

British Council Annual Report

The Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (Mr. Jack Straw): Copies of the British Council Annual Report, incorporating the Trustees' Annual Report and Accounts, for the year ended 31 March 2005 have been placed in the Library of the House. During the period the Council received £172.065 million grant in aid from the Foreign and Commonwealth Office.

HEALTH

Employment, Social Policy, Health and Consumer Affairs Council

The Minister of State, Department of Health (Ms Rosie Winterton): The Employment, Social Policy, Health and Consumer Affairs Council met on 8–9 December. The Secretary of State for Health chaired the meeting and I represented the United Kingdom. Items on the agenda relating to health were covered on 9 December. Items for discussion were: human health aspects of pandemic flu; proposal for a Regulation of the European Parliament and of the Council on medicinal products for paediatric use; and the European Commission's Green Paper: "Improving the mental health of the population, Towards a strategy on mental health for the European Union".

The policy discussion on the human health aspects of pandemic flu focused on areas of EU co-operation to complement existing work on this topic. Member States acknowledged that the first and most vital step was the completion of national contingency plans. On the issue of risk communication with the public, Council agreed that, while this was primarily a Member State responsibility, there was a need for clear co-ordination between Member States, the Commission and the European Centre for Disease Prevention and Control to avoid confusing messages. The Commission reported the experiences of the common ground simulation exercise on pandemic flu.

The Council also discussed the issue of increasing production capacity for both antiviral drugs and vaccines. On vaccines, Council stressed the importance of increasing the research effort into the development of new vaccines. On antivirals, Ministers agreed that building up production capacity was primarily for Member States, but outlined that further consideration should be given to the available options for dealing with a pandemic influenza outbreak including the feasibility and added value of the EU holding a targeted strategic stockpile of anti-viral drugs.

The presidency issued conclusions on the human health aspects of pandemic flu.

There was a qualified majority in favour of a political agreement to the proposed regulation on paediatric medicines.

The Council gave a supportive steer to the Commission on its recent Green Paper on improving mental health.

Ministers took note of Presidency information on: Proposal for a Decision of the European Parliament and of the Council establishing a Programme of Community action in the field of Public Health and Consumer Protection; Health inequalities and patient safety; and Council Public Health Working Party meeting at senior level.

Member States also took note of information from the Commission on: A coordinated approach to the fight against HIV/AIDS in the European Union and the neighbouring countries; Commission High Level Group on Health Services and Medical Care; Framework Convention on Tobacco Control; and International Health Regulations.

Ministers also had an informal discussion on promoting healthy diets and physical activity.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Antisocial Behaviour Orders

The Minister for Policing, Security and Community Safety (Hazel Blears): I am announcing today statistics relating to Antisocial Behaviour Orders (ASBOs).

An ASBO is a civil order which protects the community from behaviour that has caused or is likely to cause harassment, alarm or distress to one or more persons not of the same household as the perpetrator.

ASBOs were introduced under the Crime and Disorder Act 1998 and have been available since April 1999.

ASBOs can be issued to anyone aged 10 years or over. They impose restrictions on the behaviour of individuals who have behaved in an antisocial way and protect communities from often long-standing and highly intimidating activity.

Breach of an ASBO is a criminal offence and can lead to custody. The maximum penalty for breach of an ASBO is five years imprisonment or a fine of up to £5,000 for an adult offender.

The Home Office is notified by all courts of ASBOs issued. As I indicated in my statement on 3 November, Official Report, columns 52–53 WS, a joint exercise between the Court Service and the Home Office is under way to refine and improve further the collection of these data.

Data on the number of ASBOs issued are updated quarterly. New figures for the period up to June 2005 are now available. These figures show that for the period between April 1999 and June 2005 the total number of ASBOs issued (as reported to the Home Office) was 6,497. The number of ASBOs issued in the quarter April to June 2005 is 14 per cent. of the total number of ASBOs issued over all quarters and represents an increase of 48 per cent. on the same quarter last year. However, this represents an increase of 1 per cent. on last quarter's figures so the rate of increase is slowing.

Of those ASBOs issued, 54 per cent. were to adults and 43 per cent. to juveniles (3 per cent. of ASBOs are age unknown).

Some 47 per cent. were orders on application and 53 per cent. were orders on conviction.

I have placed with the Libraries of both Houses a briefing note containing information about ASBOs and the ASBOs statistics issued today.

National Probation Service/National Offender Management Service

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for the Home Department (Fiona Mactaggart): The National Probation Service has today published its Annual Report for 2004–05. The Prison Service and the Office for Contracted Prisons published their Annual Reports and Financial Accounts for 2004–05 on 19 July. Copies of all the Annual Reports have been placed in the Library.

Performance against all the National Offender Management Targets for 2004–05 is indicated in the table below. A full breakdown of the performance of both public and contracted prison establishments, in relation to applicable Key Performance Indicators (KPIs), will be placed in the Library. The breakdown includes updated figures for those establishments managed by the Office of Contracted Prisons.

Justice and Home Affairs Council

The Secretary of State for the Home Department (Mr. Charles Clarke): The Justice and Home Affairs Council was held on 1–2 December in Brussels. I chaired the meeting along with my right hon. and noble Friend the Secretary of State for Constitutional Affairs and Lord Chancellor. My noble friend Baroness Ashton of Upholland also represented the presidency.

I introduced the counter-terrorism coordinator's six-monthly report (doc 14734/1/05), the EU CT Strategy (doc 14469/4/05) and the EU Strategy and Action Plan to combat radicalisation and recruitment to terrorism (docs 14781/1/05 and 14782/05 RESTREINT). It was concluded that EU-level co-operation, including Europol and Eurojust, was an important component of member states' approaches to counter-terrorism. The six-monthly progress report and the EU Counter-Terrorism Strategy was sent to the European Council on 12 December. The Strategy and Action Plan on Radicalisation and Recruitment were also agreed.

Following on from discussions led by the Prime Minister at the Hampton Court summit, I emphasised that the presidency was very pleased that the issue of migration had been discussed, stressed its political importance and invited the Commission to present their communication "Priority actions for responding to the challenges of migration: first follow-up to Hampton Court". The Commission set out the three main pillars of the Communication: the need for a comprehensive approach covering all aspects of migration; the improvement of operational co-operation between member states, particularly in the Mediterranean; and the need to improve co-operation on migration with third countries of origin and transit, particularly sub-Saharan African countries.

Member states welcomed the communication emphasising its balanced and thorough approach. Member states who intervened strongly supported the focus on Africa and the Mediterranean, though some also noted that it was important not to forget the importance of other geographic regions, such as Russia and the Eastern Neighbourhood. Adequate resources were considered particularly important for demonstrating real political will to implement actions.

The Mixed Committee was chaired by Iceland and they invited the presidency to bring forward a compromise proposal on the Exchange of Information and Intelligence between Law Enforcement Authorities, including a new recital on the application of Article 11(2) (indicating that it should be interpreted so as to allow for the exchange of information on at least minor offences linked to terrorism and organised crime) and a Council declaration (noting that Article 11 would be reviewed on the basis of a report from the Commission). I was pleased to note agreement to a general approach on the draft Framework Decision (as in document 13986/5/05 CRIMORG 124) with the two changes agreed.

The draft Directive on Data Retention was discussed throughout the second day of the Council and I am pleased to be able to say that, on this vital piece of legislation for the EU's citizens, we were able to reach an agreement as to the Council's position. The new text proposed: language on the retention for the purpose of serious crime, where that term was defined by national law; the inclusion of data on unsuccessful call attempts (connected unanswered calls) only where it is stored or logged for business purposes; the exclusion of unconnected calls; limited provisions on data protection, data security; and sanctions against abuse of powers to access retained data. The European Parliament held a debate on data retention on 13 December and voted on 14 December to adopt amendments identical to those of the Council.

In the area of civil justice, the Council reached a general agreement on the text of the draft: Regulation Creating a European Order for Payment. Member states agreed that the proposal should be limited to cross-border cases. These are defined as being those in which at least one of the parties is domiciled or habitually resident in a member state other than the member state of the seized court. This is a significant decision with important implications for judicial co-operation in civil matters. It represents an emerging consensus among member states as to how "cross-border" should be defined. This will help to unblock progress on future measures. The European Parliament voted on 13 December to adopt amendments identical to those of the Council. This is the first complete civil justice procedure to be agreed by the EU and will make it easier to obtain judgments on uncontested claims across EU borders and so help the internal market grow further. Following the consensus reached at the Informal JHA Council in September, member states agreed to a number of key principles essential to a simplified, accelerated and cost-effective procedure for resolving small claims across European borders. Among other things, the procedure will be conducted primarily in writing, with modern communications technology used when a hearing is necessary; legal representation will not be mandatory; and costs will be kept proportionate to the claim. Finally, the Council agreed a common understanding on the draft Directive on Certain Aspects of Mediation in Civil and Commercial Matters. Promoting access to justice has been a key theme of the UK presidency. Civil justice issues have rightly achieved a higher priority than ever before in recent years, and the achievements in Council confirm the importance of their place in an agenda for citizens.

On the European Evidence Warrant, following a debate, member states were not able to remove all their reserves. The presidency concluded that it would not be possible to make further progress on the outstanding issues and remitted the dossier back to ambassadors.

The incoming Austrian presidency said that it would give priority to completing work on the Framework Decision.

On Procedural Rights, the Council took note of the state of play on negotiations as in documents 14642/05 DROIPEN 59 and 14248/05 DROIPEN 54 REV 1. I noted that there had been substantial work on the draft Framework Decision over the last year but that it had not been possible to complete this within the UK presidency. Discussions are underway with the incoming Austrian presidency on how to take forward the need for a political debate on this dossier.

The Commission gave a brief update on the state of play in the technical development of SIS II at a central level indicating there were difficulties concerning the overall timetable of the project but that the Commission was committed to meeting the timetable. The Commission also noted it was open to making the draft legal instruments on the SIS II more flexible as some of the member states wished and was committed to ensuring the EU7 had sufficient financial support from the Schengen facility until SIS II was running in 2007.

Following a Commission presentation on the Interoperability of EU JHA Databases it was noted that they had been brought forward to meet the Council's timetable. The Commission considered both to be a contribution to making information available more widely with a view to implementing the principle of availability.

In the margins of the Council member stats also agreed intergovernmental Conclusions on security standards on identity cards. As an A point the Council also agreed the EU Action Plan on Human Trafficking. This is a focused plan which details the objectives, a timetable and assessment tools. It is aimed at establishing common standards best practices and mechanisms to prevent and combat trafficking in human beings, and will drive forward practical action and co-operation in the EU.

There was also agreement from JHA Ministers to commit to an additional €250 million for assistance and the provision of additional trainers and personnel to counter narcotics in Afghanistan. Ministers also agreed conclusions on the roll out of biometrics under the Visa Information System to countries of high risk.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Uganda

The Secretary of State for International Development (Hilary Benn): I have decided to reduce UK budget support this year to Uganda by £20 million. Some £15 million of this money will be used to provide humanitarian relief in northern Uganda, and £5 million will be held back until after the elections in February (when a decision will be taken on whether to disburse it). Overall this will cut UK Poverty Reduction Budget Support (PRBS) to Uganda to £30 million, below the 2004–05 figure of £35 million.

The UK and Ugandan Governments signed a new Poverty Reduction Budget Support (PRBS) arrangement in December 2004 for a grant of up to £145 million over three years. This arrangement links budget support to reforms detailed in Uganda's Poverty Eradication Action Plan (PEAP), including macro-economic management and governance. The criteria which guide our disbursement are drawn directly from the PEAP and include both the "prior actions" agreed for the World Bank's Poverty Reduction Support Credit (PRSC) and specific indicators on governance.

We disbursed £35 million out of our £40 million allocation in 2004–05, but cut £5 million due to concerns about the progress of Uganda's political transition leading up to multi-party elections in 2006.

The disbursement decision for 2005–06, which has just been made, follows a further assessment of Uganda's performance. In a number of respects this is still strong. Growth in 2004–05 was 6 per cent. and Uganda is on track to meet almost half of the MDG targets, although additional efforts will be required to achieve them all. Negotiations of the PRSC with the World Bank have now concluded. Ten of the eleven "prior actions" have been successfully completed, but worryingly a "prior action" on the execution of the budget has only been partially met because expenditure on public administration significantly overran. Our governance assessment has highlighted concerns about: delays in putting in place the legal basis for multi-party elections; the continuation of state financing for the Movement system in a new era of multi-party politics; and more recently, and particularly worryingly, about issues associated with the arrest and trial of the leader of the Forum for Democratic Change, one of the main parties that plans to contest the election.

The decision to reduce the PRBS commitment to £30 million in 2005–06 takes into account the need to ensure that Uganda's budget is still able to finance key expenditures that are crucial to improve the lives of poor people.

The decision to reallocate £15 million to humanitarian assistance provided through the UN reflects our concern about the serious humanitarian situation in northern Uganda. This is not being fully addressed by the Ugandan Government or the finance that has so far been committed to humanitarian agencies. Our additional assistance will be focused on providing food and improving access to basic services, especially health care.

A decision on the remaining £5 million will be made after the elections in February.

We will continue to monitor Uganda's performance closely. I will make a decision on our PRBS commitment to Uganda in 2006–07 in the light of our assessment of Uganda's continuing commitment to the partnership objectives set out in "Partnerships for Poverty Reduction: Rethinking Conditionally".

European Development Fund

The Secretary of State for International Development (Hilary Benn): The European Council on 15–16 December agreed to establish a 10th European Development Fund (EDF) to provide development assistance to African, Caribbean and Pacific (ACP) countries that are signatories to the ACP-EU Partnership (Cotonou) Agreement.

I am pleased to announce that the 10th EDF will provide €22,682 million (£15,536 million) over the period 2008–13. This is a significant increase on the value of the 9th EDF and the EDF will remain as an EU intergovernmental fund, both important objectives of the UK Government. The UK share of the 10th EDF will be 14.82 per cent. rising from a 12.69 per cent. share of the 9th EDF, reflecting our recognition of an upward trend in the effectiveness of the Fund, and our commitment to increasing EU assistance to Africa.

I believe that this represents a good outcome for our ACP partners and I am delighted that the UK Presidency was able to deliver this positive agreement after lengthy negotiations. Member States will now negotiate an intergovernmental agreement on the structure, allocation, programming and management arrangements of the 10th EDF. This will present an opportunity to further enhance the effectiveness of the EDF. I will keep the House informed fully on progress.

Tsunami Follow-up

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for International Development (Mr. Gareth Thomas): I am placing in the Libraries of both Houses a copy of a discussion paper, "The EU's contribution to the international response to the 2004 Asian Tsunami: Achievements, next steps and lessons learned".

The paper has been written by the Department for International Development and the European Commission to inform discussions at a high-level meeting in Brussels on 20 December 2005. The meeting will examine the international humanitarian and reconstruction response to the 26 December 2004 South East Asian tsunami, with a particular focus on the EU.

Invited participants include the European Commissioners for Humanitarian Aid and External Relations, representatives of the Council of Ministers, Members of the European Parliament, countries affected by the disaster, the United Nations, international financial institutions, the International Federation of the Red Cross and civil society organisations.

The paper examines EU activity in three main areas: financial assistance for humanitarian and reconstruction needs; support for peace building via reconstruction work; and reinforcing preventive measures, early warning and disaster preparedness. The paper highlights a number of issues that continue to influence the effectiveness of aid delivery. These include conflict sensitivity, co-ordination, monitoring, accountability, local ownership, communication, strengthening the humanitarian system, ensuring funds continue to flow, equity in distribution and early warning and disaster preparedness.

The aim of the meeting is to identify lessons learned from the EU's response that could guide the international community's response in the tsunami-affected countries and in other disaster-affected countries in the future.

PRIME MINISTER

Appointments

The Prime Minister (Mr. Tony Blair): I am pleased to announce that Her Majesty in Council has approved the appointments of Janet Paraskeva as the First Civil Service Commissioner and Janet Gaymer CBE as the Commissioner for Public Appointments. Janet Gaymer is also being appointed as a Civil Service Commissioner.

Janet Paraskeva is currently the Chief Executive of the Law Society. Janet Gaymer is currently a senior partner with Simmons and Simmons.

In announcing these appointments, I would also like to record my appreciation to their predecessors, Baroness Prashar CBE and Baroness Fritichie DBE, who have come to the end of their terms of appointments. I am grateful to them for the contributions that they have made in ensuring the highest standards in their work.

Review of Business Appointment Rules

The Prime Minister (Mr. Tony Blair): In summer 2004, I commissioned Sir. Patrick Brown to undertake a review of the Business Appointment rules. The terms of reference were:

> "To review the Business Appointment Rules to ensure that they are compatible with a public service that is keen to encourage greater interchange with the private and other sectors which is essential for effective delivery in today's public service. The review will consider the operation of the system, taking account of practice overseas. It will also consider the current machinery for dealing with applications and the necessary resources".

I am today placing copies of Sir Patrick's report in the Library of the House and would like to place on record my thanks to him for his careful consideration of the issues. The report makes a number of recommendations relating to handling of the business appointments rules for civil servants and other public servants. The report does not cover Ministers.

The Government are attracted to some of Sir Patrick's recommendations. However, it is conscious that the Public Administration Select Committee (PASC) is currently undertaking an Inquiry into the role and independence of the ethical regulation of Government, which includes the Business Appointments processes. We would therefore welcome the views of PASC before providing a substantive response to this report.

In particular, we would welcome the views of PASC on the proposal to transfer responsibility for business appointments processes for crown servants to the Civil Service Commissioners which would involve increasing the numbers of Commissioners and providing additional support. This would have a cost and would disperse the oversight and administration of the rules to more than one body.

The Government would also welcome the views of PASC on the proposals that there should effectively be one test and that where this test is satisfied that there should be one form of restriction placed upon public servants who are proposing to move to other jobs.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Competitiveness Council

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Trade and Industry (Barry Gardiner): I chaired the extraordinary Competitiveness Council in Brussels on 13 December 2005 on the draft regulation for the registration, evaluation, authorisation and restriction of chemicals (REACH), and establishing a European chemicals agency. This followed the constructive debate held at the 28–29 November Competitiveness Council.

The Competitiveness Council reached unanimous political agreement on the draft REACH regulation following a policy debate based on the UK presidency compromise text and additional proposals presented by the presidency directly to the Council. The Council will formally adopt its common position at a later session once the legal text has been finalised. The common position will be forwarded to the European Parliament for a second reading under the co-decision procedure.

Reform of the EU Structural and Cohesion Funds

The Minister for Industry and the Regions (Alun Michael): As the Prime Minister explained in his statement to Parliament of 19 December, the European Council of 15–16 December 2005 succeeded in achieving agreement on the next EC budget for the 2007–13 Financial Perspective. As part of the package, the Member States reached agreement on future Structural and Cohesion Funds spending for the 2007–13 budgetary cycle. The deal is now subject to an Inter-Institutional Agreement with the European Commission and the European Parliament.

The European Council has agreed that there should be a Structural and Cohesion Funds budget of €308 billion, representing 0.37 per cent. of EU Gross National Income (GNI), for the 2007–13 Financial Perspective. This will be focused on three Objectives: a Convergence Objective for regions with a Gross Domestic Product (GDP) below 75 per cent. of the EU average; a Competitiveness Objective for other regions; and a Co-operation Objective for cross-border and trans-national projects.

The agreement constitutes an increase of 31 per cent. or around €73 billion in comparison with the current Structural Funds budget of around €235 billion for the 2000–2006 Financial Perspective, excluding expenditure under the European Agricultural Guidance and Guarantee Fund (EAGGF) and the Financial Instrument for Fisheries Guidance (FIFG). The new Structural Funds budget is 8.3 per cent. less than in the Commission's initial proposals of July 2004. The reformed budget will enable the EU to address priorities in the new Member States while still maintaining some funding for richer Member States, in particular their poorer regions.

In summary, the European Council has agreed to allocate: €252 billion (or 81.9 per cent. of the Structural Funds budget) to the Convergence Objective, including €62 billion for the Cohesion Fund (for Member States with a GNI below 90 per cent. of the EU average) and €12 billion for so-called "phasing-out regions" (the regions that no longer qualify for full Convergence funding, but would have done without enlargement); €48 billion (or 15.7 per cent. of the Structural Funds budget) to the Competitiveness Objective, including €10 billion for so-called "phasing-in regions" (the regions that no longer qualify for full Convergence funding, and would no longer qualify even if enlargement had not taken place); and €7.5 billion (or 2.4 per cent. of the Structural Funds budget) to the Co-operation Objective.

The Government have argued consistently that, following enlargement, it is right that the Structural Funds should be focused to a greater extent on the poorest EU Member States. Overall the 10 new Member States, together with Bulgaria and Romania, will receive a total of €158 billion in Structural Funds (or €174 billion including transfers to the EAGGF and FIFG). The 10 new Members will see a more than 250 per cent. increase in their Structural Funds receipts from an average of €7 billion per annum during the 2004–06 period to an average of €19 billion per annum in the 2007–13 period. We estimate this to be equivalent to an average increase in their domestic public sector expenditure of up to 7 per cent. In per capita terms, the new Member States will receive an average per citizen of around €1,500 in Structural and Cohesion Funds, and around €2,500 including other spending, over the next Financial Perspective.

The older EU Member States (the EU15) will face reductions in spending compared with current levels, reflecting their comparative prosperity and the need to support the economic convergence of the new Member States. However, the UK will continue to receive substantial funds for its poorest regions. We estimate that the UK will receive a total of approximately €9.4 billion (in 2004 prices) in Structural Funds receipts from 2007–13, in comparison with approximately €15.85 billion (in 1999 prices) in the current Financial Perspective, excluding funds now transferred to the EAGGF and FIFG.

Of this, the UK will receive approximately €2.6 billion in Convergence funding for its poorest regions. Cornwall and West Wales and the Valleys will receive full Convergence funding, while the Highlands and Islands will receive phasing-out Convergence funding averaging approximately two-fifths of the intervention rates for the UK's future full Convergence regions. The UK will also receive approximately €6.2 billion in Competitiveness funding for its other regions. Of this, South Yorkshire and Merseyside will receive phasing-in Competitiveness funding averaging approximately one-third of the intervention rates for the UK's future full Convergence regions. It will be for the Government, in agreement with the Commission, to decide how the UK's remaining Competitiveness funding should be allocated between its nations and regions. Finally, the UK will receive approximately €0.6 billion in Co-operation funding. The Government will also need to agree with the Commission how this should be allocated.

At this stage it is not possible to provide precise figures for the amounts to be received by UK regions. We will only know the precise figures after an Inter-Institutional Agreement has been reached on the final EC budget and once the European Commission has produced official Structural Funds allocations for the UK and its regions. Our initial estimate is that Cornwall is likely to receive full Convergence funding of approximately one-third higher than current allocations, West Wales and the Valleys should receive full Convergence funding approximately equal to current allocations, the Highlands and Islands should receive phasing-out Convergence funding of over half its current allocations, and South Yorkshire and Merseyside should receive phasing-in Competitiveness funding of approximately one-third of current allocations. These comparisons are in real terms and exclude allocations that have now been transferred to the EAGGF and FIFG.

In the light of this outcome, which means that the UK and its poorer regions will continue to receive substantial Structural Funds, the conditions for application of the domestic funding Guarantee, set out in the written statements to Parliament by the then Secretary of State, my right hon. Friend the Member for Leicester West (Ms. Hewitt), on 17 September and 11 December 2003, do not apply. As those statements made clear, the purpose of the Guarantee was to ensure that our nations and regions would not lose out if the Member States agreed a reform package where the Structural Funds were focused solely on the poorest countries, and it would apply only if the richer Member States no longer received Structural Funds allocations in the next Financial Perspective. It should be noted that spending on regional development from the UK's own resources already far exceeds the contribution from Europe as a result of increased allocations over recent years. Domestic regional spending allocations will be considered further in the Comprehensive Spending Review, taking into account the outcome of the negotiations, the needs of the regions and the overall fiscal context. The Devolved Administrations will receive the normal formula shares of changes in overall departmental provision.

As part of the reform negotiations, the Member States have agreed to strengthen the strategic focus of future Structural Funds spending by establishing Community Strategic Guidelines on Cohesion and National Strategic Reference Frameworks, which will set out the broad objectives for future programmes. The Government plan to consult on the UK's draft National Strategic Reference Framework early in 2006 and, as part of the consultation, they will also seek views on the methodology for allocating the UK's Competitiveness funding.

WALES

Olympic Games

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will make a statement on the discussions he has had with his colleagues in Cabinet and with the Welsh Assembly Government regarding the promotion of the 2012 Olympics in Wales. [31917]

Mr. Hain: I have had many useful discussions regarding the 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Games.

The Welsh Assembly Government has expressed its full support for the Games. The Nations and Regions Group of London 2012 will work to ensure that the benefits of London's successful bid are spread to all parts of the United Kingdom.

Cardiff hosted a highly productive meeting of the UK Sports Cabinet on 2 November, which was attended by Lord Coe.

SOLICITOR-GENERAL

Aborted Prosecutions

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Solicitor-General how many prosecutions have failed owing to the failure of witnesses to reach court in each of the last five years. [31617]

The Solicitor-General: The figures for the year from April 2004 to March 2005 are as follows: 4,945 cases failed because the victim unexpectedly failed to attend court, equivalent to 2.1 per cent. of failed cases; 1,935 failed because of the unexpected failure of other witnesses to attend, equivalent to 0.8 per cent. of failed cases; and 1,593 cases failed because of the unexpected failure of police witnesses to attend court, equivalent to 0.7 per cent. of failed cases.

No comparable information is held for earlier periods.

Mr. Bone: To ask the Solicitor-General how many and what percentage of prosecutions were aborted in (a) England and (b) Northamptonshire in 2004–05. [31440]

The Solicitor-General: In 2004–05, 202,370 prosecutions resulting in an early termination in England, amounted to 17.3 per cent. of all completed prosecutions. This compared with a figure of 1,789 for CPS Northamptonshire, or 12.6 per cent. of all prosecutions completed in the Area.

Carbon Management Programme

Norman Lamb: To ask the Solicitor-General whether his Department will sign up to the Carbon Trust's Carbon Management programme. [23731]

The Solicitor-General: I am answering this question on behalf of the Departments for which I am ministerially accountable—the Crown Prosecution Service (CPS), Treasury Solicitors Department (TSol), Serious Fraud Office (SFO), Revenue and Customs Prosecutions Office (RCPO) and HMCPS Inspectorate (HMCPSI).

All my Departments work together to share best practice in relation to sustainable development. None has immediate plans to adopt the Carbon Trust's scheme in its own right, although the CPS, which already uses renewable energy (climate levy exempt) on a large part of its "controlled estate" will be using the Carbon Trust to carry out energy surveys in their offices with a view to identifying further ways of reducing energy use.

TSol occupies 80 per cent. of a single building for which the landlord provides mechanical and electrical services. The landlord is using cleaner energy, which contributes to reducing carbon emissions. Although the landlord does not currently intend to sign up to the Carbon Management programme, to a great extent they believe that they have already undertaken the five steps required.

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Solicitor-General if the Crown Prosecution Service will revisit the papers relating to the conduct of Dr. Ann David, following the completion of her disciplinary case before the General Medical Council, in relation to deaths of patients at Basildon hospital for whom she had responsibility. [31637]

The Solicitor-General: Yes. Essex police have delivered a comprehensive file relating to Dr. Ann David to the Crown Prosecution Service in Essex. A senior and experienced casework lawyer will review all the available evidence in accordance with the Code for Crown Prosecutors. Advice will be provided to the police as soon as practicable and commensurate with the complexity and sensitivity of the case.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Agricultural Levy Boards

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what discussions she has had with the European Commission on the application of state aid rules in relation to the expenditure of the Agricultural Levy Boards. [29735]

Mr. Bradshaw: As part of ensuring that all UK's levy board activities comply fully with EU state aid rules, officials have had regular contacts with the European Commission. Except in those specific cases covered by special arrangements agreed as part of the UK's accession to the European Community, our levy bodies' activities are covered by European Commission state aid approvals.

Avian Influenza

Mr. Ian Austin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps she is taking to ensure that strains of avian influenza do not enter the UK chicken population. [15375]

Mr. Bradshaw: Trade in animals, birds and products within and into the European Community is controlled by Community law, which aims to prevent the introduction of disease.

All imports of poultry and poultry products from EU countries must be accompanied by a health certificate as specified in Community Law, stating that they show no signs of disease. Poultry must originate from approved establishments and come from flocks which have been held in Community establishments for 21 days prior to export. Poultry must have undergone a health examination by an official or authorised veterinarian prior to despatch.

All imports of poultry and poultry products into the EU from third countries must enter at designated border inspection posts where they are subject to documentary and identity checks. A physical check must be carried out to observe the state of health and behaviour of either the whole group or a representative sample of the animals. For poultry products, a proportion of consignments undergo physical checks. These checks ensure that the animals or products meet Community import requirements. Captive birds (e.g. canaries, budgies, parrots and birds of prey) must undergo a period of quarantine.

The situation in affected countries is kept under review and controls on imports are modified in line with Community decisions. Safeguard measures are currently in place to ban or restrict imports of animals, meat and other products of susceptible species in respect of Highly Pathogenic Avian Influenza (HPAI) in Cambodia, Indonesia, Laos, Malaysia, Mongolia, Pakistan, the People's Republic of China, including the territory of Hong Kong, North Korea, Thailand, Vietnam, Russia, Kazakhstan, Romania, Croatia, and Turkey.

However careful we are, disease may get into European countries carried by migrating wild birds. Whatever the source of an outbreak, European legislation lays down the action member states have to take to eradicate it.

Defra monitors the disease situation globally and will take action to respond to disease outbreaks in other countries where a risk assessment justifies it.

If there is an outbreak of disease in an exporting country likely to present a risk to human or animal health, Community legislation allows us to take appropriate safeguard action, pending action at Community level. This may include a ban on imports of animals and meat from all, or parts, of the affected country.

Farmers also need to ensure that they are vigilant looking for signs of disease and ensure that they report any suspicions to their local Animal Health Divisional Office. All keepers of birds should ensure they maintain high standards of biosecurity. The Government has published guidance to poultry keepers stressing the importance of good biosecurity.

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment she has made of the genomic characteristics which determine the virulence of the avian influenza virus H5N1. [25464]

Mr. Bradshaw: The virus contains multiple basic amino acids at the cleavage site (PRQRRRKRGLF) of the haemagglutinin gene and therefore contains a sequence consistent with highly pathogenic avian influenza.

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the clade designation was of the first isolated strain of H5N1 avian influenza identified in the UK. [25470]

Mr. Bradshaw: The H5N1 virus from Norfolk in 1992 belonged to a clade of contemporary European viruses (distinct from the three clades of 'Asian' viruses), descendants of which are still present in wild birds and poultry in Europe.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what her policy is on the EU-wide ban on the trade of wild caught birds as a response to the threat of avian influenza. [30487]

Mr. Bradshaw: On 25 October the Commission proposed a temporary ban on the importation of live captive (wild) birds, following calls for action by UK Ministers. The ban, due to last until 30 November 2005, was agreed by the Standing Committee on the Food Chain and Animal Health (SCoFCAH), On 16 November SCoFCAH agreed a Commission proposal to extend the ban until 31 January 2006. This was supported by the UK.

Defra continues to keep the global disease situation under review. When we are officially notified of a new disease incident in an EU member state, a country on the border of the EU or one of the UK's third country trading partners, we carry out a qualitative risk analysis. These are published on our website at: http://www.defra.gov.uk/animalh/diseases/monitoring/riskassess.htm

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether type A human influenza can be transmitted to poultry. [30724]

Mr. Bradshaw: There is no substantial scientific evidence to suggest that type A human influenza viruses are transmitted to poultry.

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs on how many occasions in each of the last five years officers from her Department have inspected the quarantine facility in Essex from which isolates of H5N1 avian influenza virus have been isolated. [30746]

Mr. Bradshaw: From January 2000 to date, SVS records show there have been five inspection visits by a VO at the quarantine facility in the past five years:

One in May 2000 (this was in its capacity as primate quarantine premises at the time, not birds)

One in December 2001—initial approval visit to become captive birds quarantine premises and then yearly bird quarantine facility re-approval visits

One in November 2002—routine inspection one in December 2003—routine inspection and

One in December 2004—routine inspection.

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether highly pathogenic avian influenza virus is transmissible from bird to bird via (a) fomites and (b) other contamination passed by humans who have been in contact with those birds. [30747]

Mr. Bradshaw: Highly pathogenic avian influenza viruses can be transmitted in excretions of infected birds, particularly faeces. It is possible for viruses to be spread on contaminated objects such as utensils, shoes and clothes.

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the answer of 7 November 2005, Official Report, column 6W to the hon. Member for Brecon and Radnorshire (Mr. Williams), on avian influenza, where the suitably engineered commercial licensed landfills will be located; and what research has been evaluated on the safety of deep burial of avian-influenza-infected carcasses. [30753]

Mr. Bradshaw: In consultation with the Environment Agency, officials are currently reviewing the suitability for poultry carcase disposal of all commercial licensed landfills where Pollution Prevention and Control (PPC) permits have been applied for. Once this review is complete a list of potentially suitable sites will be made public. A landfill protocol designed to mitigate any public health, animal health and environmental risks is being drawn up by representatives from Government, the environmental agencies and the landfill industry. This protocol draws on the experiences obtained from the deep burial of large number of animal carcases during the 2001 outbreak of foot and mouth disease—it also draws on published data on virus survival and Environment Agency research.

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the answer of 15 November 2005, Official Report, column 1048W, on avian influenza, what discussions she has had with (a) the National Farmers Union, (b) local authorities and (c) the Local Government Association on (i) the work that will be undertaken and (ii) funding for the work; what the timetable is for reaching decisions; and what estimate has been made of the likely costs to local authorities. [30763]

Mr. Bradshaw: Officials in the Department have had discussions with the National Farmers Union and other bodies representing poultry keepers about the responsibilities of keepers of poultry and the Government's disease control arrangements in the event of an outbreak of avian influenza.

Discussions will be held with the Local Government Association about the role local authorities would play in an outbreak of avian influenza.

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether, for the purpose of determining the presence of H5N1 avian influenza in birds, Veterinary Laboratories Agency standard operating procedures (a) permit and (b) consider it good practice to pool samples for laboratory analysis from different (i) batches, (ii) species and (iii) origins of birds. [30770]

Mr. Bradshaw: Veterinary Laboratories Agency (VLA) standard operating procedures prescribe that for laboratory analyses, where possible samples from the same unit in the quarantine centre should be batched into five birds per batch according to species. However, provision is made that when the total consignment from a single unit consists of mixed species and comprises five birds or fewer, these may be conveniently grouped into a single batch.

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment she has made of the availability of capacity within the rendering sector to cope with a potential outbreak of avian influenza; and if she will make a statement. [30928]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department is in close contact with the United Kingdom Renderers Association (UKRA) and has assessed the current available capacity and maximum likely capacity. The available capacity at any time will depend on the time of year, breakdowns and other demands. Some 2,500 tonnes per week (equivalent to 1.25 million chickens) would be available very quickly and a further 10–15,000 tonnes could be brought on stream within about two weeks.

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment she has made of the conditions under which the Mesias, in whose samples the avian influenza virus was isolated at the quarantine facility in Essex were imported into this country, with particular reference to (a) the form of transport and (b) other birds which were imported in the same cargo space. [31064]

Mr. Bradshaw: The bird shipment from Taiwan, which included the Mesias, was transported in cages that complied with IATA (International Air Transport Association) live animal regulations. They were flown as manifest freight (cargo) in one of the cargo holds of the aircraft.

The only other birds that were imported on the aircraft with the Mesias were the laughing thrushes and mynah birds that were part of that particular consignment.

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps her Department has taken to minimise the chances of the H5N1 virus entering the UK through the import of live birds; and what changes have been made to (a) the rules for the transport of live birds and (b) the procedures relating to the quarantine of birds. [31066]

Mr. Bradshaw: On 25 October the commission proposed a temporary ban on the importation of live captive (wild) birds, following calls for action by UK Ministers after the incident of avian influenza found in a quarantine premises. The ban, due to last until 30 November 2005, was agreed by the Standing Committee on the Food Chain and Animal Health (SCoFCAH). On 16 November SCoFCAH agreed a commission proposal to extend the ban until 31 January 2006.

DEFRA continues to keep the global disease situation under review. When we are officially notified of a new disease incident in an EU member state, a country on the border of the EU or one of the UK's third country trading partners, we carry out a qualitative risk analysts. These are published on our website.

There have been no changes to the rules for the transport of live birds. All birds are required to be transported in cages that comply with IATA (international Air Transport Association) standards.

We are currently awaiting the outcome of an independent review of the quarantine system, which is expected to report early in December, to see whether quarantine procedures need to be reviewed.

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs in relation to the pooled sample of 30 Mesias in which the presence of avian influenza virus H5N1 has been detected, how the exact date of death was determined; and how was the (a) time and (b) source of infection determined. [31067]

Mr. Bradshaw: Six pooled samples from the 30 Mesias were examined virologically. As indicated in the published epidemiology report the exact dates of death of these birds is unknown, but they are believed by the keeper to be before 7 October. Neither the time nor the source of infection have been determined.

Badgers

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment her Department has made of the relative suffering caused to badgers when they are killed by means of (a) carbon monoxide, (b) carbon dioxide and (c) other gases. [29877]

Mr. Bradshaw [holding answer 21 November 2005]: The Government will shortly be making an announcement on preventing the further spread of bovine TB. The evidence considered in developing the Government's approach will be published at the time.

Bird Imports (Border Procedures)

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what procedures are undertaken at border inspection posts to ensure that the documentation accompanying imported captive birds is genuine. [30723]

Mr. Bradshaw: Before the ban on captive birds was implemented, the only third countries that could export captive birds to the EU had to be members of the World Organisation for Animal Health (the OIE). The OIE's Terrestrial Animal Health Code lays down the standards of certification members have to apply.

Captive birds imported into the EU from third countries must enter at designated Border Inspection Posts where they are subject to veterinary inspections. All consignments are subject to documentary and identity checks to ensure that import conditions are met.

The captive birds must be accompanied by a health certificate, as laid down in Community law. The Official Veterinary Surgeon at the border inspection post will check to ensure that the certificate accompanying the birds conforms to this model, has been completed correctly, has been signed and stamped, and is genuine.

Bovine Tuberculosis

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent assessment she has made of the risk to cattle herds in Northamptonshire from bovine tuberculosis. [30863]

Mr. Bradshaw [holding answer 22 November 2005]: Statistics on bovine TB are aggregated according to the office structure of the state veterinary service (SVS). Northamptonshire is not currently a recognised region within the SVS structure. As a result it is not possible to disaggregate data on bovine TB in cattle herds in this manner We are, however, able to provide data for the Leicester Animal Health Divisional Office (AHDO) which covers Northamptonshire.

Our latest assessment shows that in the Leicester AHDO area there were 39 new TB incidents in the first nine months of 2005, compared to 30 in 2004. Supplementary data also show that 1.8 per cent. of herds were restricted due to a TB incident in the first nine months of 2005, compared to 1.3 per cent. in 2004.

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment she has made of the effectiveness of the polymerase chain reaction test for M. bovis DNA in (a) identifying infected material around badger setts and (b) combating bovine tuberculosis; and if she will make a statement. [29866]

Mr. Bradshaw: The detection of Mycobacterium bovis directly from live badgers and their excretions using techniques based on the polymerase chain reaction (PCR) is complex and difficult. Largely this is because of the low levels and intermittent nature of excretion of M. bovis by infected animals. Currently the most robust PCR techniques for use on any sample (cattle, badger or environmental) are specific for M. tuberculosis complex and not M. bovis. Small scale use of this technique on environmental samples has highlighted the practical difficulties in obtaining good quality DMA and specificity is a further problem. The results so far have not been encouraging, but we are looking to see if improvements can be made.

Research using conventional laboratory-based PCR has shown that the technique is not yet able to perform as well as conventional bacterial culture in the detection of M. bovis. However, the PCR technique may well have a future role to play in helping to combat the disease in cattle by helping to reduce the time taken to confirm a herd breakdown. Our research is designed to look more closely at this aspect of disease control.

Brazilian Beef

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what representations her Department has made on ensuring that Brazil's animal traceability systems are improved following recent incidents of foot and mouth disease in that country; and if her Department will introduce a full ban on Brazilian beef imports. [30082]

Mr. Bradshaw: Each consignment of imported meat must be accompanied by appropriate health certification. The certificate confirms the territory from which the animals originated. In addition the animal must have been subjected to ante and post-mortem inspection and the meat must be deboned and matured. This process ensures that imported meat does not present a risk.

All meat imported into the EU from third countries must enter at designated border inspection posts (BIPs) where it is subject to veterinary inspections. All consignments are subject to documentary and identity checks and at least 20 per cent. of consignments undergo physical checks. These ensure import conditions are met and that the products remain in a satisfactory condition during transport.

Following recent outbreaks of foot and mouth disease, the Brazilian authorities have imposed additional internal movement controls on animals from the affected area.

The European Commission's Food and Veterinary Office is responsible for carrying out inspections in the third countries from which meat is imported into the Community. An inspection visit was carried out in Brazil in September. The outcome of that inspection is not yet available, but Commission Services would have taken immediate action to protect animal and public health if they thought this was necessary.

WTO rules allow protective measures to be taken on the basis of scientific evidence and these measures must be adapted to regional conditions. Therefore, following notification of the recent outbreak, immediate action was taken to ban imports of meat from the affected regions.

Calf Exports

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what her policy is on the resumption of the export of live calves to Europe. [31018]

Mr. Bradshaw [holding answer 22 November 2005]: The Government is working towards lifting the current ban on exports of UK beef, bovine products and live cattle and we expect the European Commission to submit proposals to other EU member states to lift the ban. Our objective is to be able to trade on the same basis as other EU member states for cattle born after July 1996 and for products derived from them.

If the ban is lifted, any live exports would be subject to the rigorous application of health and welfare rules.

Contaminated Land Capital Projects Programme

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) how long it took for each eligible area to receive funding from her Department's Contaminated Land Capital Projects Programme from the time that her Department was notified of payment of the funding to the affected area; [30569]

(2) how many contaminated land areas have been eligible for funding under her Department's Contaminated Land Capital Projects Programme; [30573]

(3) how many contaminated land areas have been rectified by identified class A polluters without recourse to her Department's Contaminated Land Capital Projects Programme in the last five years; [30575]

(4) what the criteria are for eligibility of contaminated land areas for funding under her Department's Contaminated Land Capital Projects Programme. [30576]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department's Contaminated Land Capital Projects Programme (CLCPP) provides financial assistance to English local authorities for contaminated land capital projects. It covers both investigation and remediation work by authorities. It does not fund work by other parties. It is delivered to successful authorities as supported capital expenditure (revenue) via the next available revenue support grant settlement after expenditure by the authority. In 2004–05 we approved 163 bids. Approval times vary, but two months is common for straightforward cases. Sites and projects may involve more than one bid, for example where work is in stages.

The eligibility criteria for this programme are at section 2 of CLAN1/05, "A Guide for English Local Authorities". Local authorities were made aware of the guide. A copy is on DEFRA's website at: http://www.defra.gov.uk/environment/land/contaminated/approvals/index.htm, which is updated each year.

We do not hold information about investigation or remedial work undertaken without recourse to our programme. Where the case is the subject of action under part 11A of the Environmental Protection Act 1990, then information is placed on the relevant public register held by each local authority. The DEFRA website details overall numbers of part 11A cases at http://www.defra.gov.uk/environment/land/contaminated/faq.htm This data on part 11A regulatory activity is regularly updated. Many contaminated sites are dealt with through the development of land and the grant of planning permission, and applications and decisions are placed on the local planning register.

EU Committees

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether the UK representatives on the EU Sugar Management Committee and Special Committee for Agriculture will support the proposal that the EU price used for calculation of the export refunds for manufactured goods containing sugar should include the proposed restructuring levy. [29436]

Jim Knight: The European Commission's proposals for reform of the EU sugar regime provide for the difference between world prices and prices in the Community to be covered by export refunds to the extent necessary to enable trade to take place. The setting of refunds is delegated to the Commission through the Management Committee procedure. UK representatives at that Committee will judge proposals for the calculation of refunds on their merits and in the light of appropriate consultations with stakeholder interests.

EU Directives

Mrs. Villiers: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment the Department has carried out of the impact on costs of the (a) EU end of life vehicles directive and (b) EU waste electrical equipment directive; and if she will place copies of the assessments in the Library. [29770]

Malcolm Wicks: I have been asked to reply.

The Department has published final Regulatory Impact Assessments of the costs of the UK implementing regulations for the end of life vehicles directive, and partial Regulatory Impact Assessments for the planned implementation of the waste electrical and electronic equipment directive, all of which have been placed previously in the Libraries of the House.

Fly-tipping

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what volume of waste she estimates was illegally fly-tipped in each year since 1992, broken down by the nature of this waste. [27886]

Mr. Bradshaw: No national data are currently available on the volume of waste illegally fly-tipped over the whole of the period specified. Flycapture, the national fly-tipping database, was established in April 2004 and although it does not record the specific volume of incidents, average data are gathered.

	Number of tips	Size of tip/m3	Volume/m3	Type
Single Item	333,055	0.25	78,954.5	assumption
Car boot or less	246,468	1	242,335.0	guidance
Van load	194,904	4	759,172.0	guidance
Transit van load	96,943	10	941,320.0	guidance
Tipper lorry load	20,987	40	777,640.0	assumption
Significant multi loads	6,860	100	569,900.0	assumption
Total/m3			3,369,321.5

Note:
1. Data in the table is from waste collection authorities and the Environment Agency for England as recorded on the Flycapture database from April 2004–March 2005.
2. Volume details are an estimate only as the database records summary numbers linked to average sizes rather than reporting specific volumes in an incident database. 'assumption' indicates an average size that can be assumed, whereas 'guidance' indicates that a suggested size is proposed in the database guidance.

The Environment Agency also keeps more detailed information on the incidents they deal with. The total number of substantiated fly-tipped incidents attended by the Environment Agency is:

	Number
2001	2,437
2002	4,636
2003	4,967
2004	3,658
2005	[1]1,932

[1] 1 January 2005 to 10 November 2005

Note:
1. Environment Agency data capture on the nature of wastes fly-tipped and available for 2001 to 2005 is in the table. The number of pollutants identified will exceed the number of incidents due to single incidents with multiple pollutants.
2. Environment Agency volumetric data capture commenced last year It is therefore as yet detailed will not provide as complete a picture as Flycapture.

Household Waste

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate the Government have made of the financial implications for local authorities of its proposed household duty of care on waste. [26925]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Waste (Household Waste Duty of Care) (England and Wales) Regulations 2005 give local authorities a new power to take action against householders for breaches of the duty of care. There is no duty on local authorities to enforce this requirement or to prosecute offenders. Therefore, the extent to which this new power is used will be a matter for individual local authorities based on their enforcement and prosecution policies, and the financial implications will vary accordingly.

As many local authorities have enforcement teams to deal with fly-tipping and other local environmental quality offences, there will be no additional cost as this is simply another power they can use to target offenders. Local authorities have been requesting this power for some time. They currently spent around £44 million from April 2004 to March 2005 on clearing fly-tipping, 55 per cent. of which was household waste. Enforcing the household waste duty of care will help to reduce illegal dumping and could lead to resource savings for authorities.

Landfill

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment her Department has made of the landfill requirement arising from the use of bottled water; and if she will make a statement. [27428]

Mr. Bradshaw: No specific assessment has been made by Defra of the landfill requirements arising from the use of bottled water. Both plastic and glass bottles are recyclable and there is no need to landfill them.

Live Animal Exports

Sir Patrick Cormack: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps she is taking to enforce the rules governing the export of live animals. [30814]

Mr. Bradshaw: Any live exports will be subject to the rigorous application of the health and welfare rules. Any evidence of non-compliance should be brought either to the attention of the relevant local authority or Defra so that it can be investigated.

Livestock Farmers (Levy)

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what her response is to the recommendation of the Committee of Public Accounts, Ninth Report of 2005–06, HC563, page 5, that a levy on livestock farmers be introduced to pay for the cost of disease outbreaks. [29356]

Mr. Bradshaw: The introduction of a levy that enables livestock producers to share the risks of animal disease outbreaks is one of the options that will be examined under an industry/government partnership in the context of the soon to be published Farming Regulation and Charging Strategy.

Mobile Phones/Printer Cartridges

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many (a) mobile phones and (b) printer cartridges she estimates were (i) recycled, (ii) reused overseas and (iii) disposed of within the United Kingdom waste stream in each year since 1990. [27888]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department does not collect recycling or reused information on mobile phones or printer cartridges.

Nappies

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what plans her Department has to continue to fund campaigns to encourage the use of cloth nappies. [28633]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Waste and Resources Action Programme is running the re-usable nappy programme on behalf of Defra. Funding for this programme includes support for schemes encouraging the use of re-usable nappies.

The current funding with WRAP finishes the end of March 2006. We are currently in discussion with WRAP about their programmes, including the Real Nappy Work after this date.

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment her Department has made of the environmental effects of the use of cloth nappies on maternity wards. [28634]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Life Cycle Analysis published in May this year by the Environment Agency stated that there was no overall environmental benefit in using either disposable or re-usable nappies.

However, the use of re-usable nappies, including those from maternity wards, will help to reduce the amount of biodegradable waste sent to landfill and therefore contribute towards the meeting of targets to reduce such waste under the Landfill Directive.

Pet Fairs

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether she plans to bring forward a ban on pet fairs. [30489]

Mr. Bradshaw: We have been in contact with interested parties, both for and against the banning of pet fairs, in order to prepare proposals in relation to these events. We have now had an opportunity to consider the responses to this first consultation and our proposal to license pet fairs is detailed in a Regulatory impact Assessment which Defra published alongside the Animal Welfare Bill. We also intend to undertake a wider public consultation before any legislation in this area is finally introduced.

New measures to help prevent the spread of avian influenza have been agreed by the European Commission. Decision 2005/745/EC, adopted by the EU on 21 October, requires member states to ban birds at markets, shows, fairs and similar events. Domestic legislation bringing these measures into effect has been in force since Friday 28 October. The EU decision will be reviewed on 30 November.

Pigeons

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the answer of 15 November 2005, Official Report, column 1067W, on pigeons, what criteria will be used in the die-off assessment to calculate response times; and what assessment she has made of the capacity of the State Veterinary Service to deal with carcase collection. [30754]

Mr. Bradshaw: A die-off involving more than three to four birds from the same species or five to six birds from different species will be referred, by the Defra helpline, to a laboratory specialist (during normal working hours) or to a veterinary officer from the State Veterinary Service (out of normal working hours). The decision as to whether carcases are required for examination is made during this second, more detailed assessment. The criteria to determine the time until collection will depend on factors including the scale of the die-off, other possible causal factors and the location of the carcases.

In order to enable the State Veterinary Service to make response times as short as practicable, all animal health offices have increased the number of staff on call out of hours by arranging for an additional Animal Health Officer to be available from each office out of hours specifically to carry out this work.

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the answer of 15 November 2005, Official Report, column 1067W, on pigeons, what discussions she has had with veterinary organisations on arrangements for carcase collection in the event of an outbreak; and what representations veterinary surgeons have made to her on the safety implications of transporting carcases to incineration sites. [30755]

Mr. Bradshaw: Plans for carcase collection and disposal are set out in Defra's Exotic Disease Generic Contingency Plan which was laid before Parliament in July 2005. The plan was issued for public consultation in February and the Royal College of Veterinary Surgeons, British Veterinary Association and British Small Animal Veterinary Association were all formally consulted—a summary of responses is available on the Defra website.

The Department has developed stringent protocols and arrangements for the safe collection and transportation of carcases for off-site disposal which are based on veterinary risk assessments and build on the experiences of the 2001 foot and mouth outbreak. This includes the use of appropriately sealed and covered specialist vehicles which comply with the requirements of the EU Animal By-Products Regulation. All trucks are leak tested prior to use and all loads are escorted.

Private Sewers

Paddy Tipping: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent discussions she has had with Ofwat on the cost models involved in the adoption of private sewers; which is the preferred model; when the process of adopting private sewers will begin; and if she will make a statement. [30865]

Mr. Morley: Following discussions with Defra, Ofwat has provided financial analysis for potential implementation options should ownership of private sewers and lateral drains be transferred to water and sewerage companies. The implementation options were decided on following discussions with key stakeholders.

The Government now expects to publish a decision on transfer in the new year and does not rule out further consultation on the options for implementation.

Quarantine

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what plans she has to change the quarantine arrangements involving (a) bird traders and (b) importers of birds. [30488]

Mr. Bradshaw: An Independent Review chaired by Professor Nigel Dimmock has been established to review avian quarantine arrangements. We expect to receive his report, which we will publish, in early December.

Veterinary Surgeons Bill

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when she expects to be in a position to publish the Veterinary Surgeons Bill. [32211]

Mr. Bradshaw: A draft Bill will be introduced when parliamentary time is available. We are developing options on which to base a draft Bill and will ensure that there is appropriate consultation of stakeholders.

Waste Management

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the total volume of (a) domestic, (b) commercial and (c) other waste was in each region in each year since 2001–02; what this represents per head of population; and what proportion was (i) sent to landfill, (ii) incinerated and (iii) disposed of by other means. [27890]

Mr. Bradshaw: Results for municipal waste, of which approximately 90 per cent. is domestic waste, are taken from the annual Defra Municipal Waste Management Survey. The results for both commercial waste and industrial waste are taken from the Environment Agency Commercial and Industrial Waste Survey and are available for 2002–03 only. Results for other types of waste are not available broken down at regional level. Totals may not add due to rounding.

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when officials from her Department last discussed with Northamptonshire county council its waste disposal strategy. [30861]

Mr. Bradshaw [holding answer 22 November 2005]: Defra officials have not met with Northamptonshire county council but are aware of their intention to submit an Expression of Interest for waste PFI credits. As part of that process, Defra will be assessing the status and quality of Northamptonshire's Municipal Waste Management Strategy.

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if she will make a statement on plans for the future of the Waste and Resources Action Programme. [27520]

Mr. Bradshaw: Earlier this year we advised the Waste and Resources Action Programme (WRAP) of their indicative funding from Defra until the financial year 2007–08. We are currently reviewing all aspects of our waste strategy, including how the work of WRAP contributes to our objectives. We hope to publish a substantial progress report on this for consultation early in the New Year.

World Trade Organisation

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment she has made of the likely effect of the EU's most recent offer in the World Trade Organisation trade negotiations on (a) applied EU agricultural tariffs and (b) total levels of EU agricultural subsidy. [29489]

Mr. Bradshaw: For most EU tariffs, the general 'most favoured nation' (MFN) applied tariffs are the same as the bound tariffs. This means that, in general, the cuts in the bound tariffs will translate into equivalent cuts in the general MFN applied tariffs. (The most notable exceptions are some of the tariffs in the cereals, rice and fruit and vegetables sectors.)

For some countries EU applied tariffs are less than the applied MFN tariffs. These lower applied tariffs are granted to groups such as the African, Caribbean and Pacific countries (for least developed countries most tariffs are already zero under the everything but arms agreement). At present there is no proposal for any specific reduction in these preferential tariff rates. Neither is there any proposal for a reduction in the concessionary within-quotas tariffs which already exist.

Total agricultural support consists of two broad categories: market price support (keeping domestic agricultural prices above world prices), which involves costs to consumers and Government expenditure; and direct payments by Government. The two aspects of the EU offer which will have the most impact on consumer costs are the elimination of export subsidies and the reductions in tariffs. The elimination of export subsidies and the reductions in tariffs will allow prices to fall, resulting in a decrease in the overall level of subsidy due to a decrease in consumer costs. However, it is difficult to predict the magnitude of this effect because of the complex interactions between domestic support reforms, trade reforms, and reforms in other major agricultural producing countries.

The EU's offer on domestic support will consolidate the 2003 CAP reforms. The result of the offer would be a real reduction in trade-distorting subsidy from both the pre-2003 position and the current position. However, the non-trade-distorting direct payments are not affected by the EU's offer in the WTO negotiations as these are eligible for the WTO 'green box'.

PRIME MINISTER

Al-Jazeera

Adam Price: To ask the Prime Minister what information he received on action that the United States Administration proposed to take against the Al-Jazeera television channel. [32183]

The Prime Minister: None.

Commission for Africa

Andrew George: To ask the Prime Minister what criteria he used to decide on the appointment of members of the Commission for Africa; and what assessment he has made of whether the commissioners still meet these criteria. [32184]

The Prime Minister: I established the Commission for Africa in February 2004. Commissioners were invited to participate in a personal capacity. Criteria included the desirability of a broad geographical balance both within and outside Africa, and a mix of those with political, civil society, private sector and international community backgrounds. Nine of the seventeen commissioners were from Africa; three commissioners were women.

The Commission for Africa report and the commission's consultation process have been widely praised, suggesting that the composition of the commission was and remains appropriate. I am grateful for the personal contribution of all of the commissioners.

Peerage

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Prime Minister how many persons elevated to the peerage in each year since 1997 were resident at the time of their elevation in (a) each region of England, (b) Scotland, (c) Wales and (d) Northern Ireland. [32503]

The Prime Minister: I refer the hon. Member to the answers I gave the hon. Member for North Shropshire (Mr. Paterson) on 24 March 2005, Official Report, column 939W and 14 September 2004, Official Report, column 1565W.

Since 25 March 2005, 38 people have been elevated to the peerage. Their place of residence at the time of their elevation is shown in the following table. Information for judicial peers is not held in the format requested.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Animal Experiments

Dr. Evan Harris: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department at what stages the scientific validity of an animal experimentation project is assessed before it can be licensed by his Department; by whom; and by what methods. [30414]

Andy Burnham: The use of animals in scientific procedures in the United Kingdom is strictly regulated by the Home Office under the Animals (Scientific Procedures) Act 1986. Licences are granted for animal experiments undertaken for specific permissible purposes. There must be no alternative to the use of animals, the potential benefit of the work has to outweigh the adverse effects on the animals involved and the number of animals used and any suffering that may be caused must be minimised.

Under the conditions attached to a certificate of designation under the 1986 Act, proposals to conduct a programme of work involving animal experiments must first be considered by the local ethical review process at the establishment concerned. One of the functions of the Ethical Review Process is to examine the efficacy and conduct of work to be undertaken. In addition, research councils and charities fund many research projects carried out under the 1986 Act and such work is evaluated by and reported to those organisations. A licence application is only submitted to the Home Office once participants in the local ethical review process are satisfied that the work can be justified.

Applications received by the Home Office are thoroughly assessed by the Animals (Scientific Procedures) Inspectorate, to ensure compliance with the criteria laid down in the 1986 Act. To comply with section 5(4) of the Act, any application to use protected animals in research must be subjected to a detailed cost/benefit assessment by Home Office inspectors. Here, the likely adverse effects on the animals concerned are weighed against the benefit likely to accrue as a result of the proposed programme of work. Inspectors are either medical or veterinary professionals. They usually have first hand experience of biomedical research and possess higher scientific or clinical postgraduate qualifications. They advise the Secretary of State on whether and on what terms licence authorities should be granted. Some applications are also referred for advice to the Animal Procedures Committee.

Dr. Evan Harris: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent advice he has received from (a) the Animal Procedures Committee and (b) other sources of independent advice on the scientific validity of animal experiments. [30415]

Andy Burnham: Three major United Kingdom inquiries have reported since 2002 on the contribution of animal research to science and medicine.

In 2002 the House of Lords Select Committee on Animals in Scientific Procedures held that

> "On balance, we are convinced that experiments on animals have contributed greatly to scientific advances, both for human medicine and for animal health. Animal experimentation is a valuable research method which has proved itself over time. Toxicological testing in animals is at present essential for medical practice and the protection of consumers and the environment, as it often provides information that is not currently available from any other source."

The Animal Procedures Committee carried out a review of the cost-benefit assessment in the use of animals in research and reported on this in June 2003. That report clearly states that > "An absolute position that all animal experiments are scientifically invalid is untenable examples of scientifically dubious or invalid animal experiments do not add up to a general proof that animal experimentation as a whole is flawed science."

In 2005 the Nuffield Council on Bioethics, in their report "The Ethics of Research Involving Animals", stated that

> "Animal research has been, and can potentially be, scientifically valid, in that it is possible to extrapolate from animal models to humans (or other animals) in specific cases (and) certain animal models have played significant roles in the study of particular diseases and led to the discovery of treatments for human diseases".

The report also states that > "producing a new medicine is a lengthy and complex process, and that decisions on the compounds that should proceed to the next stage are taken using a wide range of information. Tests on animals play a vital role, but they are not the only source of information that is used to determine safety and efficacy."

We believe these views reflect those of the great majority in the wider scientific community.

Asylum/Immigration

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many failed asylum seekers have been deported to Zimbabwe from the UK since 2001. [19378]

Mr. McNulty: Information on the destination of asylum removals has only been recorded since the start of 2004.

The latest published information on removal of asylum seekers covers the second quarter of 2005.

Information on removals of asylum seekers for the third quarter of 2005 will be published later this year on the Home Office website at http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/immigration1.html

[3] Provisional.
[4] Including persons departing 'voluntarily' after enforcement action had been initiated against them.
[5] Persons who had sought asylum at some stage, excluding dependants.
[6] Due to a change in the working practices of IND all asylum removals are now classed as enforced removals. Therefore there are no longer any asylum removals classed as "Refused entry at port and subsequently removed", and so the figures for 2004 are not directly comparable with previous years. This reclassification has no affect on the total removals recorded for 2004. This reclassification occurred in February 2003 and so applied to all asylum removals conducted in 2004. This change does not affect non-asylum removals.
[7] Excludes assisted voluntary returns.
[8] Persons leaving under assisted voluntary return programmes run by the International Organisation for Migration. May include some on-entry cases and some cases where enforcement action has been initiated.

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what his Department's policy is on the deportation of failed asylum seekers from the UK who are (a) enrolled in a school or college and (b) due to sit examinations for (i) GCSEs or (ii) A-levels in the year they were deported; and if he will make a statement. [30073]

Mr. McNulty: We will seek to remove failed asylum seekers who have no lawful basis of stay in the UK and who do not choose to leave voluntarily. In cases involving families, pastoral visits will normally be undertaken prior to removal to establish any factors which may impact on the timing of any removal. This may include any imminent examinations leading to a significant qualification.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what proportion of female asylum seekers were pregnant on application for asylum in each of the last five years. [31004]

Mr. McNulty: Information on how many female asylum seekers are pregnant on application for asylum is not available. Information on asylum applications by sex is published annually. Copies are available from the Library of the House and on the Home Office Research Development and Statistics Directorate website at http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/immigration1.html.

David Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the immigration and nationality directorate's protocol is for returning personal documentation to failed asylum seekers. [31182]

Mr. McNulty: The immigration and nationality directorate will take all reasonable steps to return personal documentation to asylum seekers whose claims have been rejected. The process for returning these documents depends on the circumstances of the person's case.

Mr. Benyon: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) whether the immigration and nationality directorate review of managed migration routes has resulted in (a) the suspension of and (b) delay to applications from Commonwealth citizens residing in the UK under the ancestral visa scheme for indefinite leave to remain; [25345]

(2) how many individuals from each Commonwealth country have had applications through the ancestral visa scheme for indefinite leave to remain (a) delayed and (b) suspended since the outset of the review of managed migration routes. [25346]

Mr. McNulty: Concern about possible abuse of the UK ancestry route was identified during the course of the top-to-bottom review of managed migration routes launched by the Prime Minister in April 2004. The review found evidence of suspected abuse of the ancestral visa route from Zimbabweans, which has therefore resulted in suspension and delay of these applications. The suspension on decision making relates only to those UK ancestry cases submitted by Zimbabwean nationals and has affected approximately 300 indefinite leave to remain applications.

It is only right that the immigration and nationality directorate (IND) should take all actions necessary to identify the level of abuse and put in place measures to prevent it, and I regret any delay this creates for bona fide applicants. However I am pleased to announce that the investigation is now at such a stage that consideration of UK ancestry cases from Zimbabwean nationals can now be resumed.

We are currently consulting on a new points based system for managed migration to cover routes to work, study and train in the UK. As we develop the new system, we will consider how it relates to existing routes such as UK ancestry, and will assess the possible impact before making changes.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the penalty is for lorry drivers who allow illegal immigrants to enter the UK in their lorry. [26457]

Mr. McNulty: The civil penalty regime, as amended by the Nationality, Immigration and Asylum Act 2002, enables the imposition of a penalty on drivers, owners, operators and hirers of transporters of up to a maximum of £2,000 per clandestine entrant carried to the UK or to a UK immigration control operated in a prescribed zone. In cases where liability is incurred, the level of penalty: code of practice sets out the factors to be taken into consideration when setting the amount of penalty.

Basic Command Units

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department which 20 basic command units have showed the greatest improvement in respect of (a) crime detection rates and (b) reported crime levels over the last 12 months. [23222]

Hazel Blears: The most recently published statistics for crime and detections in a local area are those for 2004–05, which show a 6.2 per cent. reduction in recorded crime and a 1.8 per cent. improvement in crime detection. Compared with the previous year, the 20 police basic command units (BCUs) showing the greatest improvements in detection rate for this period are shown in table A.

The 20 BCUs with the greatest reductions in recorded crime levels are shown in table B.

BCUs are shown as they are currently constituted and the figures are adjusted for previous boundary changes.

British Crime Survey

Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what proportion of Londoners were recorded by the British Crime Survey as (a) having a high level of worry about violent crime, (b) perceiving local levels of disorder as high and (c) experiencing a high level of perceived anti-social behaviour in (i) 2002–03 and (ii) 2003–04, broken down by borough. [11947]

Hazel Blears: The British Crime Survey (BCS) is not able to provide estimates at more local level than police force area (PFA). Regional data are, however, available.

In 2003–04, 22 per cent. of people in the London region had a high level of worry about violent crime and 25 per cent. of people perceived a high level of disorder in their local area, compared to 29 and 34 per cent. respectively in 2002–03.

Perceiving a high-level of disorder (also termed the overall antisocial behaviour measure) is defined here from responses to five disorder strands (the BVPI 122 measure). Perceiving a high-level of disorder has since been redefined, and is now derived from responses to seven individual disorder strands, see Dodd et al. 2004 (HOSB 10/04) for further detail.

Call Centres

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many call centres were run by his Department and its agencies in (a) 2003–04, (b) 2004–05 and (c) 2005–06 to date; and how many and what proportion of calls (i) were handled by an adviser, (ii) were received but abandoned and (iii) received an engaged tone in each year. [23300]

Mr. Charles Clarke: The Home Office has eight call centres as defined by the DTI and their performance since March 2003 is shown in the table.

An abandoned call (also referred to as a lost call) is taken as one where the caller has hung up before an agent has answered due to the caller choosing to discontinue the call for any one of a variety of reasons, including wrong numbers and waiting times. No records are held in respect of the number of callers who received an engaged tone.

The Home Office's central Public Enquiry Service and Adelphi Service Centre do not fall within the DTI definition of call centre.

Correspondence

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when he will answer question 18435 tabled on 13 October 2005; what the reason is for the delay in replying; and if he will make a statement. [27145]

Andy Burnham: A reply to question 18435 has now been published. I apologise for the delay, which was solely due to administrative error.

Clare Short: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when he will reply to the letter dated 6 April from the right hon. Member for Birmingham, Ladywood, (acknowledgement ref B8243/5 dated 1 June) on behalf of Dr. Zade Limondein, Home Office reference H1080798. [32276]

Mr. McNulty: The immigration and nationality directorate replied to my right hon. Friend on 24 November.

Court Statistics

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) pursuant to his answer of 12 July 2005, Official Report, column 910W, on off licence sales, what the equivalent figures were for 2004; [20727]

(2) pursuant to his answer to the hon. Member for Brent East (Sarah Teather), of 12 September 2005, Official Report, column 2508W, on abductions, what the equivalent figures were for 2004; [20725]

(3) pursuant to his answer of 12 September 2005, Official Report, column 2621W, on under-age drinking and alcohol sales, how many convictions there were in (a) England, (b) each Government office region and (c) each London borough in 2004. [20672]

Hazel Blears: Statistics on court proceedings are due to be published in late November.

Crime (Hemel Hempstead)

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps the Government are taking to address the movement of experienced criminal investigators from Hertfordshire to other police forces; and if he will make a statement. [25802]

Hazel Blears: Police officers may choose to move from one force to another if they are successful in applying for posts. The Hertfordshire Constabulary, like all forces, has a range of pay and other incentives to retain officers in particular posts. These include the south east regional allowance and special priority payments.

Departmental Employees

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will list the 10 highest-paid employees in his Department; what the (a) job title and (b) salary including bonuses is of each; and whether the individual concerned is (i) a civil servant and (ii) a contractor in each case. [27577]

Mr. Charles Clarke: It is not possible to list the 10 highest paid employees in the Home Office broken down by the criteria requested. Such an approach would identify individual jobholders and their remuneration details.

The 10 posts listed are the 10 highest paid in the Home Office. Jobholders in these posts are paid within the quoted pay bands. All are Civil Servants:

Permanent Under Secretary of State pay scale

Payband £130,350 to £264,250 p.a.

Permanent Under Secretary of State

Senior Civil Service Payband 3

Payband £93,139 to £198,197 p.a.

Chief Executive, Forensic Science Service

Director General, Crime Reduction and Community Safety

Director General, Criminal Justice Systems IT

Director General, Finance and Commercial

Director General, Immigration and Nationality Directorate

Director General, HM Prison Service

Legal Adviser

Senior Civil Service Payband 2

Minimum £75,607 to £159,659 p.a.

Senior Director Managed Migration, Immigration and Nationality Directorate

Director of Strategy

Bonus payments are available to Home Office senior civil service jobholders, in accordance with guidance issued annually from Cabinet Office.

Bonus arrangements for the appraisal year 2004–05 are summarised in the following list:

75 per cent. of the SCS jobholder group were eligible for consideration under the bonus arrangements

Bonus payments ranged between £3,000 and £15,000

Information about civil service reward, including arrangements for colleagues at senior levels, is available at:

Departmental Funding

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much funding was allocated by his Department to Hemel Hempstead constituency for (a) capital projects and (b) revenue funding in each of the last eight years. [25757]

Mr. Charles Clarke: The answer to the question is in the following table.

The location where Government funds are spent is a matter for Departments to decide. Chapter 8 of Public Expenditure Statistical Analysis shows the outturn of public expenditure by region. However while, generally, there are no records of funding spent specifically on Hemel Hempstead there has been funding sent to Hertfordshire county council (CC) and similar equivalent bodies for which the following information is given. N/A means not applicable and except for the Home Office Police Grant and the Police Capital grant all the 1997–98 figures are the same as the 1998–99.

[1] The Crime Reduction Programme (CRP) was a multi-million pound intervention programme running for three years from April 1999 was never calculated down to constituency level. The effectiveness of each initiative was evaluated to add to the knowledge base of what works in reducing crime in England and Wales. Over £340 million has been committed to over 1,470 projects in England and Wales under the various initiatives that formed part of the Crime Reduction Programme. Figures are not available for constituency or CDRP level. The CRP funded projects rather than allocated money to CDRPs.

[1] As of April 2000, the Metropolitan Police District was reduced in size by a transfer of responsibility for policing some areas to the surrounding forces, including Hertfordshire. These changes need to be borne in mind when comparing figures before and after April 2000.
[2] General police grant includes Home Office police grants plus QDPM Revenue Support Grant and NNDR. The figures provided exclude the amounts from ODPM. Figures include £3.0 million in 1999–2000, £2.75 million in 2000–01, £627,000 in 2001–02 and £300,000 in 2002–03 for the transitional costs associated with changes in boundaries of the Metropolitan Police District from April 2000.
[3] Specific grants include Crime Fighting Fund, DNA Expansion Programme, BCD Fund, South East Allowance, Community Support Officers, Special Priority Payments, Airwave and Premises Improvement Fund.

Departmental Press Office

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many phone calls his Department's press office has (a) received and (b) answered in each month since January 2004. [29358]

Mr. Charles Clarke: The Home Office does not collate data on the number of calls received or answered across the whole of the press office. However an automated call log system is in place for its Newsdesk which receives a significant proportion of calls from the press. Data on these calls, received and answered, from January 2004 until October 2005, are contained in the following table.

[6] Due to the Home Office's move from Queen Anne's Gate to 2 Marsham Street, the call log equipment was not in operation for the full month.

Note:

Due to data error, daily call logs for 1 and 2 March 2004, 1 July 2004, 1 October 2004 and 1 December 2004 have been added twice to the respective monthly totals. Additionally, data for 31 January 2005 is not retrievable and consequently is missing from that month's total.

Departmental Spending

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 10 November 2005, Official Report, column 650W, on departmental spending, how much his Department paid to Annes Gate Property plc for the development of the new building at 2 Marsham Street. [31081]

Mr. Charles Clarke: 2 Marsham Street is occupied under a PFI contract which provides for an annual combined charge that covers land cost, design and construction costs, fit out costs, whole life maintenance and facilities management services. The combined charge for financial year 2005–06 is estimated to be £32.7 million.

Departmental Staff

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment he has made of the (a) literacy and (b) numeracy skills of new recruits to his Department. [21003]

Mr. Charles Clarke: In accordance with the Cabinet Office guidance, the Home Office uses a variety of methods to assess an applicant's literacy and numeracy skills during the recruitment process.

These include competency based application forms, the use of specific tests of ability, aptitude or potential, and Assessment Centres for staff entering the service at Higher Executive Officer (HEO) and Grade 7 level. For both of our Assessment Centres, candidates are presented with materials in written form and this provides a substantial test of literacy skills. Certain exercises we use include numerical material also.

Mr. Maples: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department who the director of human resources in his Department is; what relevant specialist qualifications he or she holds; and what the details of his or her career are to date. [26309]

Mr. Charles Clarke: The group director of Human Resources is John Marsh. He has a postgraduate degree in industrial relations. He has been Human Resources director in the Home Office since 2003. He was previously head of the Personnel Management group in Her Majesty's Prison Service, and has held a variety of posts across Government since 1986.

Mr. Maples: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department who is responsible for managing the estates of his Department; what relevant specialist qualifications he or she holds; and what the details are of his or her career to date. [26310]

Mr. Charles Clarke: Responsibility for managing the central estate of the Department rests with the Buildings and Estate Management Unit. Responsibility is otherwise devolved to the respective business areas, for instance the National Offender Management Service and the Immigration and Nationality Directorate who manage their respective estates, working within the policy guidance issued by the Buildings and Estates Management Unit. This unit is headed by Tony Edwards FRICS, an experienced and senior chartered surveyor with extensive estate management experience.

The organisation of estate management within the Department is the subject of a reform programme which will establish a small group head quarters estates team responsible for policy and estates strategy and two new estates shared services which will manage respectively the Department's general office estates and its custodial estates. The shared services are planned to start operating from summer 2006.

Deportees

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will list people who have been deported from the UK to face terrorist charges overseas since September 2001, broken down by country to which they were deported; and whether each was deported willingly. [30917]

Mr. McNulty: Under current immigration law there are no provisions to deport anyone solely to face terrorist charges abroad.

Pursuant to extradition requests, one individual was surrendered to Italy in 2002 on charges of dealing in false documents, purportedly for terrorist purposes. Another individual was surrendered to the Netherlands in July 2005 for terrorist related charges.

Detentions

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people have been detained indefinitely under the Anti-Terrorism Crime and Security Act 2001. [29867]

Mr. Charles Clarke: Part four of the Anti-Terrorism, Crime and Security Act 2001 was repealed in March 2005. No one is therefore detained under this power.

Farj Hassan Faraj

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 16 November 2005, Official Report, columns 1259–66W, on Farj Hassan Faraj, when he expects to complete his consideration of Farj Hassan Faraj's immigration position; and under what powers he is being detained. [31184]

Mr. McNulty: On 10 October 2005, the Italian authorities withdrew their extradition request for Mr. Farj Hassan Faraj.

Mr. Farj was then transferred to immigration custody and continues to be detained under immigration powers. Mr. Farj's immigration position is currently under active review.

Funding (Milton Keynes)

Dr. Starkey: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much funding was allocated by his Department to Milton Keynes for (i) capital projects and (ii) revenue funding in each of the last five years. [23506]

Mr. Charles Clarke: The answer to the question is in the following tables:

The location where Government funds are spent is a matter for Departments to decide. Chapter eight of Public Expenditure Statistical Analysis shows the outturn of public expenditure by region. However, the following information is given concerning Milton Keynes.

[2] The 2005–06 funding is £55,984
[3] Further estimated funding for 2005–06 is £303,672. No funding specifically allocated by the Local Performance and Delivery Support Unit to Milton Keynes. Funding has been provided to Thames Valley Local Criminal Justice Board but information is not held centrally on whether or not any of the revenue funding was spent specifically on Milton Keynes.

Notes:

1. The Drug Strategy Funding figures are for direct annual expenditure for tackling drug misuse and include allocations to Milton Keynes Drug Action Team from the following funding streams:
Building Safer Communities
Drug Interventions Programme Main Grant
Drug Strategy Partnership Support Grant
Pooled Treatment Budget
Young People Substance Misuse Partnership Grant
2. Drug strategy funding for Milton Keynes Drug Action Team in 2005–06 is £1,844,791.

Handcuffs

Ms Keeble: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what guidance has been provided to secure training centres about use of handcuffs on trainees. [31058]

Fiona Mactaggart: Guidance on the use of handcuffs is contained in the manual on Physical Control in Care (PCC). It is for individual secure training centres to decide whether handcuffs will be used. As with all forms of physical intervention, it is necessary in each situation where handcuffs are applied to show that their use was reasonable in the circumstances.

Identity Cards

Mr. Khan: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether the identity cards scheme has been subject to a Gateway Review. [27898]

Andy Burnham: The Identity Cards Programme has been through a Gateway zero Review in January 2004 and Gateway one Review in July 2005. The next Gateway Review is currently planned for early 2006.

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how his Department plans to prevent the production of forged identity cards; and if he will make a statement. [31097]

Andy Burnham: The Identity Cards Scheme and the identity card itself, are being designed to prevent the successful production and use of forged identity cards.

The identity card will be supported by an individual's record on the National Identity Register. The ability to either confirm the validity of the card or verify information electronically against the register using secure technologies means that forged cards will be ineffective, as they will be unable to make a connection to a valid record on the register.

In addition to the electronic protection measures, the programme will endeavour to use physical characteristics which significantly reduce the viability of creating counterfeit or modified cards for simple visual verification.

The card will be designed in accordance with physical anti-fraud measures required by International Civil Aviation Organisation standard 9303 and EU Council regulation 2252/2004. These requirements will be supplemented with the implementation of successful measures in use in industry, the results of research currently being conducted and experience gained through co-operating with document fraud units across Government.

Illegal Immigrants

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many illegal immigrants have been found guilty of (a) murder and (b) violent offences in (i) Greater London and (ii) England and Wales in each of the last 10 years. [27124]

Mr. McNulty: The Prison Service does not record information on immigration status on the Inmate Information System.

KPMG Review

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to his answer of 25 October 2005, Official Report, columns 349–50W if he will publish the KPMG review; and if he will make a statement. [23088]

Andy Burnham: The executive summary of the report and the Home Office's response to the recommendations will be published shortly.

Leave to Remain

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many applicants from Poland have outstanding applications for leave to remain under the one-off exercise announced on 24 October 2003. [30656]

Mr. McNulty: Up to and including 30 September 2005 there were 745 applicants from Poland with outstanding applications under the exercise.

We will have completed consideration of the great majority of all outstanding cases by the end of April 2006.

Mohammed Zamir

Tony Baldry: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when Mohmmed Zamir (reference number LR1643012061/1) will be informed of the outcome of his application for a variation of leave to remain in the United Kingdom made in July 2004. [31354]

Mr. McNulty: I wrote to the hon. Member on 28 November 2005.

Parents (Learning Difficulties)

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what advice and support is available to a parent with learning difficulties when dealing with cases in the family court. [26980]

Bridget Prentice: I have been asked to reply.

In all family cases a parent with learning difficulties has the opportunity to be represented by a legal professional and given advice throughout proceedings.

In public law care proceedings, the parent(s) will be legally represented. The nature of these proceedings mean that local social services will have been involved before the case comes before the court. The particular needs of the parent(s) will be highlighted in the application. Depending upon the circumstances of individual cases, the Official Solicitor may be involved or a lawyer with suitable experience.

In private law proceedings, such as child contact cases, parties can seek a lawyer with suitable experience or the Official Solicitor may become involved if appointed by the court.

Police

Mr. Gauke: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether the Government would permit the amalgamation of two police forces located in different English regions. [27595]

Hazel Blears: We have made clear to the police service that the very strong starting presumption is that any new force areas should not cross Government Office regional boundaries. It follows that very strong arguments would need to be submitted in support of any merger proposals which were contrary to this presumption.

Andrew Selous: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment he has made of the implications for national security of recently retired senior police officers (a) commenting in the media about ongoing operational matters and (b) revealing intelligence to which they had access while serving as police officers. [30338]

Hazel Blears: The Government do not believe that any recent remarks by retired senior police officers have damaged national security.

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when he expects a new chief constable to be appointed to the Thames Valley Police Force. [30466]

Hazel Blears: Following the publication of HM Inspectorate of Constabulary's report 'Closing the gap', which concluded that the existing 43 force structure was no longer fit for purpose, police authorities and chief constables have been asked to submit proposals for restructuring by 23 December. Restructuring would commence in 2006 and be completed by April 2008. Against this backdrop, we have considered what arrangements should apply in the short term when chief officer vacancies arise. In his capacity as chair of the Senior Appointments Panel Sir Ronnie Flanagan, Her Majesty's Chief Inspector of Constabulary, recently wrote to police authorities advising, except where specific approval had already been granted, not to proceed with existing or future plans to recruit new chief constables. Currently there are discussions between the Thames Valley police authority and Sir Ronnie Flanagan on how to address this particular situation and I would expect the police authority to make an announcement in due course.

Politically Exposed Persons

Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many investigations by law enforcement agencies resulting from suspicious activity reports in relation to (a) corrupt activity overseas and (b) foreign politically exposed persons have been (i) initiated, (ii) completed and (iii) abandoned in the last 12 months. [29695]

Mr. Charles Clarke: This information is not held centrally.

Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many suspicious activity reports have been received by the National Criminal Intelligence Service relating to (a) corrupt activity overseas and (b) foreign politically exposed persons in the last 12 months. [29696]

Mr. Charles Clarke: The number of Suspicious Activity Reports (SARs) received by the National Criminal intelligence Service (NCIS) which relate to the specified subjects since 1 February 2005 are as follows:

(a) Corrupt activity overseas—26 SARs

(b) Foreign politically exposed persons (PEPS)—199 SARs

The figures at (a) relate to UK companies or individuals engaged in overseas activities.

A database to register SARs referring specifically to PEPs was established by NCIS on 1 February 2005. The figures given here only reflect SARs recorded there since that date, and may involve single cases where activity is suspected in more than one jurisdiction.

Prisons

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what measures are being taken to tackle institutional racism in prisons. [29912]

Fiona Mactaggart: The Prison Service Associate Race Equality Scheme published in May 2005 sets out the actions that the service will be taking over the next three years to tackle institutional racism in prisons. A copy of the scheme has been placed in the Library.

Terrorism

Ms Butler: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what mechanisms are in place to monitor the operation by the police of detentions and arrests under the Terrorism Acts. [21568]

Mr. Charles Clarke: Schedule 8 to the Terrorism Act 2000 governs the treatment and review of persons arrested and detained under section 41 of the Act. There are appropriate safeguards in place and detention is subject to regular review.

There is also a limited power to detain in the case of a stop and search under the Act. Section 45 of the Act confers the power to detain a person only for the amount of time reasonably required to conduct a search authorised by virtue of section 44 of the Act. The Home Office stop and search manual provides guidance to police on all forms of stop and search to ensure the powers are used fairly and appropriately.

The use of counter terrorism powers is also subject to the same PACE codes of practice where appropriate and where specific counter terrorism guidelines are not already in place.

Under the Act, the Secretary of State is required to place a report on the operation of the whole Act before Parliament at least once every 12 months. The powers in the Act are thoroughly reviewed by an independent reviewer, currently Lord Carlile of Berriew QC, to ensure they are necessary, proportionate and used appropriately by the police.

Mr. Blunt: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what discussions he had with the Association of Chief Police Officers (ACPO) on extending the maximum pre-charge detention period for suspect terrorists to 90 days; if he will list each date the discussions took place; and who proposed that ACPO contact their members about possible correspondence with hon. Members. [30323]

Hazel Blears: Home Office Ministers and officials have had regular discussions with ACPO about the content of the Terrorism Bill.

In the debate in the House of Commons on Wednesday, 2 November, my right hon. Friend, the Home Secretary, suggested that over the weekend hon. Members discuss the counter-terrorism issues with their constituents, and highlighted the importance of professional advice from local police. On Thursday, 3 November, he suggested to ACPO that chief constables write to MPs in their police authority area, making themselves or relevant senior officers available to MPs, of all parties, who wanted to know their local police attitude to these issues. He naturally made clear that this should not be on a party political basis.

Chief constables responded to this in a number of different ways ranging from doing nothing to setting out their views. The Government believes that it is entirely proper for the police service—who are tasked with protecting our security—to make the case for new powers which they have sought and which they feel are necessary to protect the nation, as they have done since July.

Vandalism

Rosie Cooper: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many convictions there have been for acts of vandalism in the West Lancashire area in each year since 1997. [27707]

Hazel Blears: There is no specific offence of vandalism. Most behaviour, which we understand as vandalism, would probably be covered by the offence of criminal damage, although the two might not always be exactly the same.

The available information from the Home Office court proceedings database on the number of offenders found guilty of criminal damage in Lancashire police force area is contained in the table. It is not possible to identify those convicted in the West Lancashire area, as the data is not collected at this level of detail.

Statistics for 2004 will be available late November.

War Criminals

Mr. Llwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what his Department's policy is on the bringing to justice of suspected war criminals where evidence exists. [30416]

Fiona Mactaggart: The Government takes all allegations of war crimes and crimes against humanity very seriously and is fully committed to its obligations under international law, which it has implemented through the Geneva Conventions Act 1957, the International Criminal Court Act 2001 and section 134 of the Criminal Justice Act 1988.

The prosecution of particular cases in England and Wales is a matter for the police and the Crown Prosecution Service. The recent successful trial of Faryadi Zardad, found guilty in July 2005 of torture and hostage taking in Afghanistan, demonstrated the commitment on the part of the police and CPS to pursue major war crimes cases.

CABINET OFFICE

Departmental Assets

Mike Penning: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster pursuant to the answer of 14 November 2005, Official Report, column 963W, on departmental assets, what the (a) five items of art and antique furniture and (b) freehold properties are; and what the (i) value and (ii) annual cost of insurance is for each item or property. [32051]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The five items of art and antique furniture valued on the basis of insurance value are:

1. Set of five carved gilt wood armchairs worth £500,000.
2. Carved gilt wood furniture suite worth £500,000.
3. Harewood commode worth £350,000.
4. White marble bust of Oliver Cromwell worth £350,000.
5. Antique wooden table known as the "Treasury Table" worth £250,000.

Insurance value represents our valuer's view of the likely cost of replacing the item valued with as near a comparable item as is available for purchase second hand. In many cases, direct replacement of the items would not be possible.

The freehold properties stated at accounting net book value are:

1. 22–26 Whitehall at a value of £42,351,345.
2. 70 Whitehall at a value of £27,535,750.
3. Admiralty Arch at a value of £25,932,875.
4. No. 10–1, Downing street at a value of £23,625,942.
5. Admiralty House at a value of £9,971,052.
6. Emergency Planning College at The Hawkhills, Easingwold, Yorkshire at a value of £7,401,302.
7. 36 Whitehall at a value of £7,111,243.
8. 53 Parliament street at a value of £3,705,684.
9. Civil Service Club, 13–15 Great Scotland Yard at a value of £3,079,655.
10. Properties at Sunningdale Park, Ascot, Berkshire at a value of £2,182,391.

These properties are valued on the basis of existing use value. The Government are unlikely to place certain of these properties onto the open market for sale.

The Government do not purchase commercial insurance for the risks it faces as, in general, it is cheaper for the Government to cover its own risks.

Freedom of Information

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many Freedom of Information applications his Department has received; how many have taken more than 20 days to process; and how many of these gave rise to complaints about the time taken. [31224]

Mr. Jim Murphy: Between January and June 2005 the Cabinet Office received 967 Freedom of Information requests. Of these requests 157 took more than 20 working days to process but had an agreed extension and 180 took more than 20 working days to process with no agreed extension. The Cabinet Office does not hold information regarding the number of complaints about the time taken to process Freedom of Information requests.

The Department for Constitutional Affairs is committed to publishing quarterly updates in relation to departmental performance under FOI, including information on both the volume and outcomes of requests. The bulletin for the second quarter was published on 30 September 2005 and can be found on the DCA website at http://www.foi.gov.uk/statsapr-jun05.htm and in the Library. The next bulletin will be published before Christmas, while an annual report will be published in early 2006.

SCOTLAND

Consultants

Martin Horwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what mechanisms are in place to assess the effectiveness of consultant-led projects in his Department; what sanctions are available to penalise consultants who run unsuccessful projects; how many projects conducted by consultants were assessed as unsuccessful in each year since 2000; and what sanctions were imposed in each case. [29069]

David Cairns: All projects in the Scotland Office are led by senior responsible owners who are civil servants; they may engage consultants to provide advice and assistance with the delivery of a project.

When engaging consultants, the Office would include, as part of the contract, terms and conditions that would provide sanctions should they fail to meet their contractual obligations. That, in conjunction with appropriate robust contract management arrangements, ensures that consultants deliver work within the terms and conditions of their contract. If they were to breach their contract, the Office would exercise its legal rights under the contract.

Media Relations

Mr. Salmond: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how much his Department spent on external media relations in each year since 2001. [29574]

David Cairns: The Scotland Office has incurred no expenditure on external media relations since 2001.

Ministerial Travel

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how much has been spent in each year from 1 May 1997 on ministerial travel, broken down by (a) provision and running costs of vehicular transport, (b) first class travel by rail, (c) standard class travel by rail, (d) first class travel by air, (e) club or equivalent class travel by air and (f) economy class travel by air. [27675]

David Cairns: My hon. Friend the Parliamentary Secretary at the Cabinet Office, has asked Roy Burke, Chief Executive of the Government Car and Despatch Agency (GCDA) to write to the hon. Member with details of the costs of ministerial vehicles provided to Departments in 2004–05. Copies of his letter will be placed in the Library of the House.

For information for the financial years 2000–01 to 2003–04, I refer the hon. Member to the letters from the GCDA chief executive to the hon. Member for Buckingham (John Bercow) dated 10 January 2005 and to the then hon. Member for Arundel and South Downs (Howard Flight) dated 13 September 2003. Copies of these letters are available in the Library.

In respect of overseas travel by Ministers, since 1999 the Government have published an annual list of all visits overseas undertaken by Cabinet ministers costing£500 or more during each financial year. The Government have also published on an annual basis the cost of all ministers' visits overseas. Copies of the lists are available in the Library of the House. These report information for the financial years 1995–96 to 2004–05. Information for 2005–06 will be published as soon as it is ready after the end of the current financial year. Detailed analysis of other forms of ministerial travel could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

All ministerial travel is undertaken in accordance with the rules set out in the "Ministerial Code and Travel by Ministers", copies of which are available in the Libraries of both Houses.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Aflatoxin

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assessment he has made of the impact of EU regulations on trace elements of the chemical aflatoxin on African producers of (a) nuts, (b) cereals and (c) dried fruits. [30501]

Hilary Benn: DFID supports a multi-donor funded programme that assists developing countries in improving their expertise and capacity to analyse and implement international sanitary and phytosanitary standards. It is a joint initiative between the World Trade Organisation, the World Health Organisation, the World Bank, the World Organisation for Animal Health, and the Food and Agriculture Organisation. DFID is the biggest donor, contributing £850,000.

The programme responds to developing countries' own priorities. Analysis of the impact of EU regulations on trace elements of the chemical aflatoxin on African producers, specifically on nuts, cereals or dried fruits would be supported through this programme at the request of African countries. This project, for example, supported a request from Malawi and Zambia to assist them to address post-harvest aflatoxin contamination in the paprika and groundnut sectors.

The EC has provided technical assistance to developing countries to meet the EU regulations on aflatoxins and residues through seminars and technical workshops. Additionally a specific workshop for African countries will take place in Brussels next spring and there are additional opportunities for developing countries to become familiar with EU legislation on aflatoxins.

DFID is currently strengthening its own capacity to assess the impact of existing and proposed EU sanitary and phytosanitary legislation, such as the regulations on trace elements of aflatoxin, for agricultural products on developing country producers.

Central Asia

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if he will increase aid to the Central Asia region (a) between 2005–06 and 2007–08 and (b) after 2007–08. [31651]

Mr. Thomas: In 2005–06, DFID has committed £9.43 million in bilateral aid to countries in the Central Asia region. We have also committed £4.52 million to a regional programme in Central Asia that aims to help prevent the spread of HIV and AIDS.

DFID aims to increase bilateral aid to two focal countries in Central Asia, the Kyrgyz Republic and Tajikistan. Bilateral aid allocations to these countries in 2005–06 are £5.6 million for Kyrgyz Republic and £3 million for Tajikistan. Allocations for the next two financial years have not yet been finalised. DFID aims to increase assistance to these two countries both bilaterally and through multilateral organisations, beyond 2007–08.

Commission for Africa

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development (1) what steps the Government have taken to implement the recommendations of the Commission for Africa; [30233]

(2) what assessment he has made of progress in meeting the recommendations of the Commission for Africa. [30232]

Hilary Benn: I refer the hon. Member for St. Ives (Andrew George) to the response I gave the hon. Member for Vale of York (Miss McIntosh) on 3 November 2005, Official Report, columns 1295–96W.

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assessment he has made of the contribution of the Commission for Africa to the objectives of achieving (a) conflict resolution, (b) good governance and (c) transparent and accountable government structures in African countries since the Commission reported in March. [30712]

Hilary Benn: The Commission for Africa (CfA) report emphasises the progress that has been made in Africa in recent years. Its recommendations have helped to clarify development objectives and emphasise the importance of peace and security, and good governance.

On conflict resolution for example, the CfA recommended building the capacity of the African Union to prevent and resolve violent conflict. This was subsequently reflected in agreements at the G8 summit at Gleneagles to support the African Union's peace support operations, build up the African Standby Force for resolving conflicts, support development of an early warning system and establish a Panel of the Wise to mediate conflicts before they erupt into violence.

The CfA took a strong line on good governance, stating that improvements are first and foremost the responsibility of African countries and people. But action by rich nations is also essential. This was also reflected in G8 agreements at Gleneagles, such as that to help the African Peer Review Mechanism (APRM) build African political and financial capacity and help African countries tackle their own issues.

The CfA was also clear about the need for Africa and its partners to tackle corruption. Once again, this was reflected in commitments at Gleneagles, including increasing support to the Extractive Industries Transparency Initiative and early ratification of the UN Convention against Corruption.

The UK Government have regular meetings at ministerial level to discuss and monitor progress with implementing such G8 commitments and Commission for Africa recommendations. At the international level, the Africa Partnership Forum will be monitoring delivery of commitments on the basis of a joint action plan now being prepared.

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what on-going contribution the Commission for Africa is making to help deliver the recommendations of its report. [30713]

Hilary Benn: The Commission for Africa (CfA) was established in February 2004 and provided an opportunity to take a fresh look at Africa's past and present, the international community's role, and agree recommendations on the future. In line with the original design that the Commission for Africa would not be a permanent institution, the independent Secretariat closed on 1 August 2005. The UK Government have committed to reflect CfA recommendations in their policy and we are working with African and donor partners to support and monitor implementation.

Mr. McGrady: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what the time scale is for implementing the findings of the Commission for Africa report published in March; and if he will make a statement. [29447]

Hilary Benn: The Commission for Africa (CfA) report makes a wide range of recommendations with different time scales. When my right hon. Friend, the Prime Minister, launched the Commission for Africa (CfA) report on 11 March 2005, he committed to reflecting CfA recommendations in UK policy and proposed a mechanism to monitor implementation year by year.

Many CfA recommendations have been reflected in commitments made by the G8 at Gleneagles and by the UN at the Millennium Review summit. The UK Government have regular meetings at ministerial level to discuss and monitor progress on G8 commitments and Commission for Africa follow up. The Prime Minister chaired such a meeting on 18 October and the next one is scheduled for 8 December.

At the international level, the Africa Partnership Forum will be monitoring delivery of commitments on the basis of a Joint Action plan now being prepared. This will bring together the commitments of Africa and its development partners for the first time.

Consultants

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how many contracts have been awarded by his Department to external consultancies in each year since 1997; and what the total value of such contracts was in each year. [31153]

Hilary Benn: The figures for financial years 1997–98 to 2004–05 are presented in the following table:

Financial year	Number of contracts awarded	Value of contracts awarded (£ million)	Number of consultants used
1997–98	1,995	242	816
1998–99	2,213	235	866
1999–2000	2,036	257	811
2000–01	1,610	224	655
2001–02	1,082	282	514
2002–03	833	262	407
2003–04	768	228	349
2004–05	668	186	310

This does not include lower-value contracts issued by DFID's overseas offices. This information could be obtained only by incurring a disproportionate cost.

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development which contracts let to external consultants in each of the last five years included strategies for (a) local knowledge transfer and (b) capacity building. [31154]

Hilary Benn: DFID consultants' terms of reference commonly require them to promote knowledge transfer and help with capacity building in order to achieve programme objectives. DFID does not maintain a separate record of contracts with these specific purposes and the information required could not be produced without incurring a disproportionate cost.

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how many and what proportion of the contracts let by his Department to external consultants for work under the value of £100,000 (a) have and (b) have not been let competitively in each of the last five years. [31159]

Hilary Benn: The figures for the proportion of the contracts let by DFID to external consultants for work under the value of 100,000 which (a) have and (b) have not been let competitively in each of the last five years are set out in the table:

	Contracts under £100,000	Let competitively	Proportion (percentage)
2000–01	1,321	74	5.5
2001–02	902	52	5.7
2002–03	672	69	10.2
2003–04	631	38	6
2004–05	572	26	4.5

The EU public procurement directives do not require mandatory competition in respect of business estimated to cost under £100,000.

In practice, a large proportion of DFID's contracts worth less than £100,000 are called down from competitively tendered framework arrangements.

DFID takes care to ensure value for money is achieved in all cases.

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if he will list the contracts awarded in each of the last five years to (a) Maxwell Stamp plc, (b) HTS Consultants, (c) the British Council, (d) Adam Smith International Ltd. and (e) the Crown Agents for Overseas Governments and Administrations Ltd.; and what (i) the purpose for which the contract was awarded, (ii) the total value of the contract and (iii) the total expenditure on hosting consultants in the recipient country for the project was in each case. [31160]

Mr. Thomas: I shall arrange for copies of the document entitled "Contracts awarded to Maxwell Stamp plc, HTS Consultants, British Council, Adam Smith International Ltd. and Crown Agents for Overseas Governments and Administration Ltd. between 2000–2005" to be placed in the Libraries of the House. The table detailed in this document does not include lower-value contracts issued by DFID's overseas offices, of which there is no consolidated central record. It would require disproportionate cost to produce a list of those contracts.

Responsibility for arrangements and expenditures in the recipient country rests entirely with the consultants.

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how many external consultants used by his Department since 2001 have been based in (a) the recipient country for the project and (b) other countries. [31161]

Hilary Benn: The purpose of untying aid in 2001 was to enable DFID to engage consultants in any country to obtain best value for money. The required data have been recorded since April 2003. Information before that date and details of the contracts issued by DFID overseas offices is not held centrally, and could not be obtained without incurring a disproportionate cost.

	Consultant based in recipient country	Consultant based elsewhere
2004–05	186	482

Departmental Contracts (Direct Mail)

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how many contracts for direct mail were signed by the Department in (a) 2005–06 to date and (b) 2004–05; and what the value was in each case. [27779]

Hilary Benn: None.

Departmental Estate

Mr. Maples: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development who is responsible for running his Department's estate (a) in the UK and (b) overseas; what relevant specialist qualifications he or she holds; and what the details are of his or her career to date. [26328]

Mr. Thomas: Responsibility for the running of DFID's estate in the UK falls to our Office Services and Security Department, headed by Gary James. He has over 20 years experience working in four Government Departments and has been in the current post for five years. He has received training in Health and Safety issues and holds an Institute for Occupational Safety and Health (IOSH) certificate, but professional advice on general estates issues is provided to DFID by external consultants under framework agreements established by the Office of Government Commerce.

The majority of our overseas offices are part of the Foreign and Commonwealth Office estate. Office Services and Security Department also provide guidance and information to our remaining overseas offices but direct responsibility for managing these falls to our geographical Departments.

Departmental Finance

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what the real terms percentage increase in allocated resources for his Department (a) was for the period 1997–98 to 2004–05 and (b) is estimated to be between 2005–06 and 2007–08 (i) for each period and (ii) for each year. [31039]

Hilary Benn: The real terms increase in DFID's resource spending within the departmental expenditure limit (DEL) between 1998–99 and 2004–05 was 50.8 per cent. on a full resource budgeting basis. Direct comparisons cannot be made with 1997–98 as resource budgeting figures are not available for that year.

Current plans are for resource spending within the DEL to increase by 17.7 per cent. in real terms between 2005–06 and 2007–08.

The year on year changes in outturn and planned spending are shown in the following table:

			Outturn
	1998–99	1999–2000	2000–01	2001–02	2002–03	2003–04
Resource DEL in nominal terms (£ million)	2,445	2,729	2,985	3,043	3,433	3,710
Percentage change in real terms[1]	—	+ 11.2	+9.2	+1.9	+12.5	+7.8

	2004–05 Estimated outturn	2005–06 Plans	2006–07 Plans	2007–08 Plans
Resource DEL in nominal terms (£ million)	3,868	4,452	4,987	5,281
Percentage change in real terms[1]	4.2	+14.8	+11.7	+5.7

[1] Real terms increases calculated using GDP deflators published by the Treasury.

Departmental Websites

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if he will take steps to ensure the Department's websites attain the W3C AAA standard of accessibility for people with visual and other disabilities; and if he will set a target date for this standard to be achieved by. [30958]

Mr. Thomas: The DFID website (www.dfid.gov.uk) has been rated AAA for accessibility in a Government-wide report[1], one of only four central Government sites to achieve this.

It is DFID's policy to ensure compliance with the World Wide Web Consortium's (W3C) Web Content Accessibility Guidelines, and Cabinet Office's e-government unit guidelines. Every HTML page that is published on the DFID website is checked using Bobby web accessibility checking software. Pages are only published when there are no errors at Priorities 1, 2 or 3. In 2005, our e-communications team was trained by the Royal National Institute for the Blind (RNIB) in order to ensure that we continue to meet best practice.

DFID's two standalone country sites DFID India (www.dfidindia.org) and DFID Bangladesh (www.dfidbangladesh.org) will meet accessibility requirements when they are integrated into the main DFID site in 2006.

Earthquake (Kashmir)

Mark Simmonds: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if he will make a statement on the outcome of the international donor conference on the earthquake in Kashmir. [32270]

Mr. Thomas: On 19 November, I attended the Pakistan earthquake donor conference in Islamabad and announced that the United Kingdom would contribute £70 million, (approximately $120 million), over three years for the reconstruction effort. This money will be used to support the Government of Pakistan's reconstruction programme, which includes the rebuilding and repair of schools, hospitals, electricity and water supplies, houses, and support for restoring people's livelihoods. In total, over $5.8 billion was pledged by the international community.

For further information, I refer the hon. member for Boston and Skegness to the written statement made on 22 November 2005, Official Report, columns 104–06WS by my right hon. Friend, the Secretary of State for International Development.

Ethiopia

Ms Keeble: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what representations he has made to the Government of Ethiopia on the recent shootings of civilians. [31025]

Hilary Benn: I spoke to Prime Minister Meles Zenawi of Ethiopia on Sunday 6 November and expressed my deep concern at the use of live ammunition and the shooting of civilians. I made it clear that the events of the week beginning 31 October were profoundly affecting Ethiopia's international situation and that the international community was very concerned. I also encouraged Prime Minister Meles to give the International Committee of the Red Cross (ICRC) or appropriate international representatives, access to detainees and to ensure that medical needs of detainees were being met.

In addition, the UK, as EU presidency and international donors to Ethiopia, have issued public statements expressing serious concern about recent events, calling for restraint and dialogue, and announcing a review of development assistance.

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what action he has taken in respect of the United Kingdom's aid to Ethiopia in light of recent events in the country; what plans he has for such aid; and if he will make a statement. [32161]

Hilary Benn: The UK has a planned programme to Ethiopia of £90 million this year and remains committed to reducing poverty in Ethiopia.

Following election-related disturbances in June, I announced that I was putting on hold, a £20 million increase in Poverty Reduction Budget Support. No general budget support has been provided to Ethiopia from the UK so far this financial year. Following recent incidents in November, the UK is further reviewing its development assistance programme in close collaboration with other donors.

The international donors in Ethiopia, including the UK, have issued a public statement (and a more detailed follow-up letter to the Government of Ethiopia) expressing serious concern about recent events, calling for restraint and dialogue, and announcing a review of development assistance.

I have also spoken directly to Prime Minister Meles Zenawi, expressing concern over the current situation and urging restraint.

EU Aid Commitments

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what steps the UK presidency has taken (a) to follow up and (b) to monitor implementation of EU commitments on aid to developing countries. [30979]

Mr. Thomas: The European Commission has a mandate from the Council of Ministers to report annually on EU commitments related to the Millennium Development Goals. The Commission sends out a questionnaire to each member state covering the aid volume and related commitments that were initially agreed in March 2002 and updated in May 2005. The Commission issued its questionnaire last month. The results will feed into a Commission Communication that is due to be published by March 2006. Development Ministers will discuss progress and agree conclusions on the communication when they meet in April 2006. This process provides a good opportunity for collective benchmarking and ensures that action taken by the Union is transparent.

The annual monitoring process falls during the first half of each year. But throughout the UK presidency, I and other Ministers have used speeches, information materials and meetings such as the informal meeting of EU Development Ministers in Leeds on 24–25 October, to publicise the commitments and maintain pressure on member states to deliver on them. On 21 November 2005, the conclusions from the General Affairs and External Relations Council re-affirmed the EU's commitment to monitoring the implementation of the aid volume and related commitments.

Europe and Central Asia Programme

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how his Department intends to use the £5.7 million savings that will be made from the Europe and Central Asia Programme over the 2005–06 and 2007–08 period. [31638]

Mr. Thomas: DFID's support to Europe and Central Asia is planned to decrease in line with our policy of focusing our resources in countries where we can have the biggest impact on poverty reduction. The consequent reductions in planned budgets for Europe and Central Asia, as set out in DFID's Departmental Report 2005, copies of which are available in the Libraries of the House, increased the resources available for other DFID programmes alongside DFID's increasing budget which is set to rise from £4.5 billion in 2005–06 to £5.3 billion in 2007–08.

DFID operates an annual review of its programme allocations based on the total of available resources.

Africa

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assessment he has made of the European Commission's Africa Communication. [30978]

Hilary Benn: The European Commission's Africa Communication "Towards a Euro-African Pact to accelerate Africa's Development", is a crucial contribution to the EU Strategy for Africa to be discussed at the December European Council. The communication was discussed by EU Development Ministers at the General Affairs and External Relations Council (GAERC) on 21–22 November and comprehensive conclusions were agreed in response to the communication. The conclusions are available under the title 2,691st External Relations Council Meeting on the EU Council website at: http://ue.eu.int/cms3_fo/showPage.ASP?lang=en.

Development Ministers welcomed specific elements of the document, notably points on the themes of peace and security, governance, economic growth and trade, investing in people and development assistance.

Ministers also identified specific priorities that they wish to see pursued in the EU Strategy to be discussed in December.

Illegal Drugs

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what role his Department is playing in restricting the production of (a) cocaine and (b) heroin in developing countries for sale in the UK. [30537]

Hilary Benn: Afghanistan currently accounts for 90 per cent. of heroin production worldwide. Our primary contribution to counter-narcotics is through promoting alternative livelihoods to drug cultivation, for which we will contribute £45 million in 2005–06. DFID's livelihoods programme addresses a range of issues including the development of alternative crops, access to agricultural services, as well as broader rural development issues such as market access, access to credit, skills development and improving Government planning at the provincial level. DFID is also working to strengthen the capacity of the Government of Afghanistan's counter-narcotics institutions which are essential for sustaining progress with counter-narcotics objectives and for long-term poverty reduction.

Our principal contribution to counter-narcotics in coca-growing countries in Latin America is through European Commission assistance, of which the United Kingdom share is 18 per cent. The Commission provides assistance to tackle drug production to a number of Andean countries, including Bolivia, Peru and Colombia. For example, the Commission is providing €45 million in support to the Government of Bolivia to promote alternatives to coca production, including in economically depressed areas, from where unemployed Bolivians migrate to coca-growing regions. EC work is in addition to major US efforts to tackle drugs production in the region.

Experience has shown that, to tackle illicit drug production effectively, developing countries need to reduce poverty and provide alternative economic opportunities, establish effective and accountable state mechanisms which provide adequate services to the poor, as well as develop the capacity to disrupt drugs production and trafficking networks. DFID's work to reduce poverty and build state capacity in drug-producing countries, even when not explicitly targeted at drug production, helps to provide the environment in which incentives to produce drugs are reduced.

DFID's activities to address illicit drugs production are not dependent on whether the ultimate destination of the drug is the United Kingdom.

Land Mines

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what progress is being made on international land mine clearance under the Ottawa Convention. [31916]

Mr. Thomas: At the Review Conference for States Parties to the Mine Ban Treaty held in Nairobi last year there was unified acknowledgement that this treaty had been successful but it was also acknowledged that there was more work to be done in the aim of a world free of anti-personnel land mines (APIs). An eight point action plan was agreed on how to take the work further.

144 countries have now signed the convention. Land mine casualties continue to decrease and the trade and manufacture of these weapons is virtually finished apart from some illicit activity. The ban is in practice universal, such is the stigma attached to the use of APLs.

Through DFID, the United Kingdom continues to be a major donor in global mine action. In 2005–06, DFID will spend some £10 million in this area. A further sum of approximately £5 million will be attributed as the United Kingdom spend via European Community programmes on mine action in the same period.

Lesotho

Mrs. James: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what Lesotho's remaining debt to the international community is; and if he will make a statement. [30769]

Hilary Benn: According to the Government of Lesotho, the Kingdom of Lesotho's public and publicly guaranteed external debt stood at US $768 million in the financial year ending in March 2005. Of this 82 per cent. ($630 million) was owed to multilateral creditors, 13 per cent. ($97 million) to bilateral creditors and 5 per cent. ($41 million) to private sector creditors. The following table breaks the debt down further.

Of bilateral creditors, 82 per cent. ($80 million) of the total bilateral debt was owed to Paris Club creditors such as France, Norway, South Africa, and Sweden, and 18 per cent. ($17 million) to the non-Paris Club creditors such as China, and the Arab funds.

Of multilateral creditors, 53 per cent. ($334 million) of the total multilateral debt is owed to the World Bank, 30 per cent. ($188 million) to the African Development Bank, 5 per cent. ($32 million) to the International Monetary Fund (IMF) and the remaining 12 per cent. to other multilateral creditors.

Lesotho: external debt

	$ million
Multilateral Debt
World Bank	333
African Development Bank	188
IMF	32
Others	77
Total	630
Bilateral Debt
Paris Club	80
Non-Paris Club	17
Total	97
Private Sector
Total	41
Total External Debt	768

In June 2005 the IMF conducted a debt sustainability analysis (DSA) and concluded that Lesotho's debt levels were sustainable. This means it does not classify as a heavily indebted poor country (HIPC). Although it will not have its debt written off as part of the G8 proposal for multilateral debt cancellation, it will, however, benefit from the increased resources provided under the proposal. When the World Bank, the IMF and African Development Bank write off debts of HIPCs, donors including the UK, will compensate these institutions for the money they lose. This additional money will be allocated through those institutions' systems to all poor countries, including Lesotho, irrespective of whether they are HIPC countries or not.

The UK also operates a multilateral debt relief initiative (MDRI). Under this initiative, the UK is prepared to pay its share of the debt servicing costs of non-HIPC low-income countries like Lesotho. A key feature of this initiative is for countries to have demonstrable robust public financial management systems to ensure the savings are used for poverty reduction. The UK is providing support to Lesotho to improve its financial management systems to help it achieve this.

Mrs. James: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much financial aid the United Kingdom Government have given to Lesotho since 1997; and if he will make a statement. [30771]

Hilary Benn: DFID's primary development objective in Lesotho is to assist the Government to implement its Poverty Reduction Strategy, published in 2004. DFID support focuses on: strengthening Government efforts to address the HIV/AIDS pandemic; raising revenue more efficiently; developing financial management capacity to deliver public services; improving the enabling the environment for investment and growth, food security and governance and co-ordinating efforts with other development partners to achieve poverty reduction outcomes.

DFID's bilateral and multilateral financial aid to Lesotho since 1997 is set out in the following table.

Financial year	Total bilateral gross public expenditure	Total multilateral shares	Grand total
1997–98	4,986	2,507	7,493
1998–99	4,166	2,164	6,330
1999–2000	2,974	77	3,051
2000–01	2,258	2,100	4,358
2001–02	2,718	2,100	4,818
2002–03	2,848	2,254	5,102
2003–04	3,318	1,838	5,156
2004–05	3,522	3,687	7,209

Malaria

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development when he expects malaria to be eliminated from sub-Saharan Africa at the present rate of progress of disease eradication; and if he will make a statement. [30480]

Hilary Benn: Working in partnership with the World Health Organisation (WHO) and the international community, DFID is committed to halving the burden of malaria by 2010 and reducing malaria mortality by 75 per cent. by 2015. Given that 90 per cent. of malaria deaths in the world today occur in sub-Saharan Africa, the attainment of these goals will go someway to eliminating malaria from this region. There is however, no internationally agreed target for the elimination of malaria from sub-Saharan Africa.

To combat malaria in sub-Saharan Africa, DFID works at both the bilateral and multilateral level. Since 1999, DFID has provided over £48 million to the WHO in support of its Roll Back Malaria campaign. At the country level, for example, DFID has pledged £27.8 million between 2002 and 2006 towards the distribution of heavily subsidised nets to target populations in Kenya.

Malawi

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assessment his Department has made of the effectiveness and speed of its response to the food crisis in Malawi in 2002. [31158]

Hilary Benn: DFID carried out a comprehensive review of the response to the crisis with the assistance of experts from the Overseas Development Institute in the latter half of 2003. This review took account of the report on the Southern Africa regional crisis by the House Committee on International Development and of reports by a wide range of international academic and agency reports. Among the lessons learnt and implemented were the development of the Malawi Vulnerability Assessment Committee which has informed decisions about food aid requirements and the integration of NGOs into food aid operations. Both these developments have played an important part in enabling the Government of Malawi to respond promptly and appropriately to this year's food shortages.

Maldives

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if he will cease all non-humanitarian aid to the Maldives in response to the human rights abuses there. [30907]

Mr. Thomas: We are seriously concerned about the human rights situation in the Maldives. The UK has raised these concerns with the Government of the Maldives, bilaterally and with EU partners and will continue to do so.

The UK provides a small allocation of non-humanitarian aid to the Maldives from the Small Grants Scheme.

The UK has no current plans to cease this non-humanitarian aid to the Government of the Maldives. Such actions are most appropriate where existing efforts at dialogue and co-operation are not able to lever positive progress. We note recent moves from the Government of the Maldives to establish dialogue with all political parties and we look forward to seeing early progress on democratic reform.

Ministerial Travel

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much has been spent in each year from 1 May 1997 on ministerial travel, broken down by (a) provision and running costs of vehicular transport, (b) first class travel by rail, (c) standard class travel by rail, (d) first class travel by air, (e) club or equivalent class travel by air and (f) economy class travel by air. [27778]

Mr. Thomas: My hon. Friend the Parliamentary Secretary at the Cabinet Office (Jim Murphy) has asked Roy Burke, Chief Executive of the Government Car and Despatch Agency (GCDA) to write to the hon. Member with details of the costs of ministerial vehicles provided to Departments in 2004–05. Copies of his letter will be placed in the Library.

For information for the financial years 2000–01 to 2003–04 I refer the hon. Member to the letters from the Chief Executive of the GCDA to the hon. Member for Buckingham (John Bercow) dated 10 January 2005 and to the then hon. Member for Arundel and South Downs (Howard Flight) dated 13 September 2003. Copies of these letters are available in the Library.

National Minimum Wage

Ms Katy Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how many employees in his Department were affected by the rise in the national minimum wage on 1 October. [28973]

Mr. Thomas: There were no DFID employees affected by the rise in the national minimum wage on 1 October 2005.

Niger

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development pursuant to the answer of 7 November 2005, Official Report, column 3–4W, on Niger, what discussions he has had with his foreign counterparts about the need to strengthen the existing international early warning systems used for the prediction of food crises. [30974]

Hilary Benn: In Niger and the wider Sahel region, DFID recently sent a humanitarian advisor to engage in discussions with the US, the French and the European Commission about how to improve existing early-warning systems, particularly through broadening the data collected to reflect vulnerability beyond food production.

Globally, DFID supports international and national efforts to improve early warning capacity. We see a strong role for co-ordination by the UN at the international level but recognise that responsibility for implementation rests primarily with Governments and stakeholders at local, national and regional level.

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development pursuant to the answer of 7 November 2005, Official Report, columns 3–4W, on Niger, what representations his Department received before June regarding a food crisis in Niger from (a) the Government of Niger, (b) other African Governments and (c) non-governmental organisations. [30975]

Hilary Benn: DFID received no representations from the Government of Niger regarding a food crisis, nor from any other African Governments. One non-governmental organisation (NGO) appealed to DFID at the end of 2004 for funds to help tackle the localised impact of drought and locusts, but did not predict a food crisis. Another NGO alerted DFID in April 2005 to worrying nutritional trends that did point to an emerging food crisis. That NGO was offered funding support to help tackle the crisis, but declined.

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development pursuant to the answer of 7 November 2005, Official Report, columns 3–4W, on Niger, what assessment his Department has made of the effectiveness of the United Nations Food and Agricultural Organisation Global Information and Early Warning System. [30976]

Hilary Benn: The United Nations Food and Agricultural Organisation's Global Information and Early Warning System is just one of many sources of early warning information that DFID consults. We have not made any in-depth evaluation of its effectiveness, but since it is based primarily on food-production data, we are aware that it does not always capture a complete picture of food-insecurity and vulnerability. Its failure to forewarn of the Niger crisis is evidence of this. However, used alongside complimentary information from other sources, it is useful.

Pakistan

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what aid effort to date his Department has offered to the victims of the recent earthquake in Pakistan. [30507]

Mr. Thomas: My hon. Friend, the Secretary of State for International Development, provided a written statement to the House on 24 October announcing that the Government are providing a further £25 million of humanitarian assistance for those affected by the 8 October earthquake. This brings DFID's contribution to the relief effort to £58 million, and our overall contribution, including support for reconstruction to £128 million.

We will continue to keep hon. Members informed of our response. In addition, specific details of our support to the relief effort are given in our regular Situation Reports, available at www.dfid.gov.uk.

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what (a) financial and (b) other aid his Department has given to Pakistan following the earthquake; and if he will make a statement. [32656]

Mr. Thomas: My hon. Friend, the Secretary of State for International Development, provided a written statement to the House on 24 October announcing that the Government are providing a further £25 million of humanitarian assistance for those affected by the 8 October earthquake. This brings DFID's contribution to the relief effort to £58 million, and our overall contribution, including support for reconstruction, to £128 million.

Specific details of our support to the relief effort are given in our regular Situation Reports, available at www.dfid.gov.uk.

Parliamentary Questions

Mark Simmonds: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how many written parliamentary questions to his Department were unanswered as at 14 November; and if he will make a statement. [29812]

Mr. Thomas: At the last Prorogation in April 2005 DFID had no parliamentary questions (PQ)s outstanding. Between then and 11 November 2005, a total of 1,324 parliamentary questions were tabled to the Department for International Development, of which there were eight unanswered questions.

South Asia Earthquake

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if he will make a statement on the outcome of the conference in Islamabad on 19 November to consider further international assistance in relation to the South Asia earthquake. [32145]

Hilary Benn: I refer my right hon. Friend for Oxford, East to the Written Ministerial Statement I made on 22 November 2005, Official Report, columns 104–06WS.

Trade Negotiations (Developing Countries)

Mark Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what steps he is taking under the UK presidency of the EU to assist the participation of developing countries in trade negotiations. [31494]

Mr. Thomas: I refer the hon. member for Ceredigion to the response I gave on 19 October 2005, Official Report, columns 1065–66W to my right hon. Friend for Oxford, East (Mr. Smith).

Western Sahara

Anne Snelgrove: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what steps he is taking to help the people in the Western Sahara. [31204]

Hilary Benn: DFID has no bilateral aid programme in the Western Sahara.

World Trade Organisation

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what measures the UK presidency of the EU has taken to achieve a favourable outcome for developing countries from the Doha development round. [30977]

Mr. Thomas: I refer my hon. friend to the response I gave to my right hon. Friend the Member for Oxford, East (Mr. Smith) on 19 October 2005, Official Report, columns 1065–1066W.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Pensioners

16. Mr. Dodds: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what steps he is taking to improve the situation of women pensioners. [31697]

Mr. Timms: We have made a number of changes that are improving women's pension position. Pension credit is helping millions of pensioners on low incomes, two-thirds of whom are women. And the state second pension is extending second-tier pension rights, for the first time, to women who are caring for young children or a disabled adult.

We realise that, despite these successes, more needs to be done. Fairness is one of the key tests for a lasting pensions settlement for the 21st century. That is one reason why we published our report "Women and Pensions: The evidence", to provide a basis on which to build consensus on the way forward and achieve fair outcomes for women.

We are looking forward to the recommendations of the Pensions Commission on Wednesday. We will look to build on our successes in helping women pensioners when we come forward with proposals for reform next year.

Mr. Heathcoat-Amory: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what proportion of pensioners are eligible for means-tested benefits. [31695]

Mr. Timms: It is estimated that around a half of pensioners living in private households in Great Britain are eligible for means-tested benefits.

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how much on average pensioners in Wales receive in state pensions and benefits; and if he will make a statement. [32567]

Mr. Timms: The latest available information is in the following table.

Average benefit income including state pension 2001–04

	Pensioner couples	Single pensioners
Great Britain	173	126

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many and what percentage of female pensioners in Wales are entitled to the full basic state pension; and if he will make a statement. [32568]

Mr. Timms: The information is not available in the requested format. The number of female pensioners in Wales who are in receipt of a full basic state pension as at 31 March 2005 is 177,900. This represents 49 per cent. of women in Wales who are getting any state pension or graduated retirement benefit.

2. The figure for the number of recipients is rounded to the nearest hundred.
3. A full basic state pension (£79.60 in 2004–05) is paid to those who fully satisfy the contribution conditions either in their own right or where applicable, on the basis of their late or former spouse's contributions.

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what proportion of women pensioners in Tamworth constituency are (a) in receipt of a full basic state pension, (b) in receipt of a basic state pension of (i) 75 per cent. to 99 per cent., (ii) 50 per cent. to 74 per cent., (iii) 25 per cent. to 49 per cent. and (iv) 1 per cent. to 24 per cent. of the value of a full basic state pension and (c) not entitled to any basic state pension. [29293]

Mr. Timms: The information is not available in the form requested as population estimates are not available at constituency level. The information in the table shows the number of women in receipt of basic state pension in Tamworth constituency.

Percentage of basic state pension	Number of women as at 31 March 2005 in Tamworth constituency getting basic state pension

Incapacity Benefit

17. Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will make a statement on incapacity benefit reform. [31698]

Margaret Hodge: The numbers of people claiming incapacity benefits has been falling for the first time in nearly 30 years, with a drop of 41,000 in the year to May 2005.

Our reforms of the benefit will build on this success by introducing the strong rights and appropriate responsibilities sorely lacking in the present system where long-term inactivity was actively created to cover for a failing economy.

Our benefit reform will continue the success of our ground-breaking Pathways to Work pilots that have already resulted in nearly 20,000 job starts. We are going to look at what works and introduce a national system that will, for the first time, help to fulfil the aspirations of the nearly 9 in 10 people coming onto incapacity benefit who want to work again.

22. Mrs. Dorries: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what role he expects the private and voluntary sectors to play in his reform of incapacity benefit. [31704]

Margaret Hodge: Helping people on incapacity benefits back to work requires the concerted effort of all sectors working in partnership. The success of our ground breaking Pathways to Work pilots has shown what can be achieved with this approach. We will be using the lessons and best practices learnt in these pilots in the development of our welfare reform policy.

Child Support Agency

18. Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many cases of maladministration there have been by the Child Support Agency over the last eight years. [31699]

Mr. Plaskitt: The information the hon. Member is requesting is not held for all of the last eight years. However, since April 2002, 706 cases of maladministration have been found by the Parliamentary Commissioner for Administration and 1,334 by the Independent Case Examiner.

In the period 1 December 2001 to 10 November 205, a total of 35,558 special payments for maladministration were made by the agency.

Maladministration ranges all the way between an unanswered letter and failure to collect maintenance.

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) what estimate he has made of the change in the annual maintenance payments of the Child Support Agency which would result from full compliance of all assessed claims in Scotland; [31631]

(2) what the backlog of Child Support Agency claims made by claimants resident in Scotland was under (a) the old system and (b) the new system for each month since January 2004; [31633]

(3) what estimate he has made of the (a) annual running costs of the Child Support Agency in Scotland and (b) annual savings in benefits in Scotland as a consequence of Child Support Agency maintenance payments for each year since 1996; [31634]

(4) what the average time taken is to process new Child Support Agency maintenance claims made by claimants resident in Scotland. [31635]

Mr. Plaskitt: The information requested is not available.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many non-resident parents there are with outstanding Child Support Agency cases where the main source of income comes from self-employment; in how many of these cases money has been received since 1997; and what the average amount is of maintenance paid by (a) non-resident parents overall and (b) non-resident parents who are self-employed. [18784]

Mr. Plaskitt: The administration of the Child Support Agency is a matter for the chief executive. He will write to the hon. Member.

Letter from Stephen Geraghty to Mr. David Laws dated 28 November 2005:

In reply to your parliamentary Question about the Child Support Agency, the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the chief executive.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, how many non-resident parents there are with outstanding Child Support Agency cases where the main source of income comes from self-employment; in how many of these cases money has been received since 1997; and what the average amount is of maintenance paid by (a) non-resident parents overall and (b) non-resident parents who are self-employed.

Information relating to outstanding Child Support applications cannot be broken down by employment status. This is because cases may not have reached the point in the information gathering process where the employment status details are obtained. Where such applications are outstanding, no maintenance will have been received.

Over the quarter ending August 2005, across all schemes, the average amount of maintenance received per case in which maintenance was due (via the collection service) was 328. The average amount of maintenance paid per case in which the non-resident parent was self-employed was 449.

Notes:

1. Quarterly figures are provided because this is consistent with the Agency's compliance measurement. It also takes account of the variations in NRP payment patterns which make it difficult to produce an accurate average over a shorter time frame
2. This excludes cases for which no maintenance was due via the collection service (e.g. cases with a nil liability and maintenance direct).
3. The figures quoted relate to the average amount of maintenance received per case, as opposed to the value of the average calculation. A non-resident parent can pay maintenance in respect of more than one case.
4. The figures for the self-employed presented reflect the status of the non-resident parent currently held on the system as of the last intervention by the Agency. This will not necessarily reflect the current status of the non-resident parent if the Agency has not been informed of (or not yet actioned) a change of circumstances.
5. Figures are rounded to the nearest pound.

I hope you find this information helpful.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the ratio between the annual costs of the Child Support Agency and the annual maintenance paid through the Agency has been in each quarter since 1995–96; and if he will make a statement. [21443]

Mr. Plaskitt: The administration of the Child Support Agency is a matter for the Chief Executive. He will write to the hon. Member.

Letter from Stephen Geraghty to Mr. David Laws, dated 28 November 2005:

In reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about the Child Support Agency, the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Chief Executive.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the ratio between the annual costs of the Child Support Agency and the annual maintenance paid through the Agency has been in each quarter since 1995–96; and if he will make a statement.

The figures in the table below are given on an annual basis, as reported in the Annual Report and Accounts. The information is not held on a quarterly basis. The table shows the ratio of net administration costs to maintenance paid. The net administration costs cover all activities, including both the assessment and collection of maintenance.

	Agency annual costs (£ million)	Maintenance paid (£ million)	Ratio
2004–05	325.60	578.70	1 :1.8
2003–04	323.00	580.09	1 :1.8
2002–03	294.30	570.69	1 :1.9
2001–02	290.40	526.80	1 :1.8
2000–01	250.00	498.86	1 :2.0
1999–2000	260.30	457.44	1 :1.8
1998–99	231.20	389.96	1 :1.7
1997–98	225.90	298.80	1 :1.3
1996–97	224.50	207.75	1 :0.9
1995–96	199.30	128.63	1 :0.6

I hope you find this information helpful.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions when the National Audit Office last signed off the Child Support Agency's accounts; and if he will make a statement. [21446]

Mr. Plaskitt: The administration of the Child Support Agency is a matter for the Chief Executive. He will write to the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Stephen Geraghty to Mr. David Laws, dated 28 November 2005:

In reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about the Child Support Agency, the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Chief Executive.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, when the National Audit Office last signed off the Child Support Agency's accounts.

Both the Agency Administration and Client Funds Accounts were signed by John Bourn, Comptroller and Auditor General of the National Audit Office, on 15 July 2005 and published on 20 July 2005.

I hope you find this helpful.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what his Department's (a) target and (b) latest performance is for the time taken to process new Child Support Agency maintenance claims. [21449]

Mr. Plaskitt: The administration of the Child Support Agency is a matter for the Chief Executive. He will write to the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Stephen Geraghty to Mr. David Laws, dated 28 November 2005:

In reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about the Child Support Agency, the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Chief Executive.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what his Department's (a) target and (b) latest performance is for the time taken to process new Child Support Agency maintenance claims.

The Child Support Agency currently has not set a target time for processing applications. This is because the Agency currently has a backlog of work and is endeavouring to clear this as quickly as the necessary information becomes available.

At the end of September 2005, the average age of new-scheme applications at clearance[1] was 180 days (26 weeks).

Of those applications that had been cleared, 25 per cent. took 6 weeks or less; 22 per cent. took between 6 weeks and 3 months; 22 per cent. between 3 and 6 months; 18 per cent. between 6 months and a year; and 14 per cent. took a year or more. These figures exclude 80,000 applications that came through the Jobcentre Plus interface and have been cleared, but for which insufficient management information exists to enable age at clearance to be determined.

I hope you find this helpful.

[1] An application is defined as cleared if the case is closed, a maintenance calculation has been carried out and a payment arrangement between the parent with care (PWC) and the non-resident parent is in place, the PWC is identified as claiming Good Cause or subject to a Reduced Benefit Decision or the application is identified as being a change of circumstances on an existing case as opposed to a new application.

Disabled People (Civil Rights)

19. Mrs. Hodgson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what steps the Government have taken to improve the civil rights of people with disabilities; [31701]

Mrs. McGuire: The Disability Discrimination Act 2005, which starts to come into force from 5 December, provides important new rights in areas such as transport, education, access to private clubs and community participation. It delivers our commitment to comprehensive and enforceable civil rights for disabled people.

Financial Assistance Scheme

20. Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of the financial assistance scheme. [31702]

Mr. Timms: The official notification period for pension schemes to apply to the Financial Assistance Scheme began on 1 September 2005. The Secretary of State will lay before Parliament a report on the operation of the Financial Assistance Scheme for each financial year. In particular the report must deal with the number of people who have received assistance payments and the total amount of such payments.

The first report will cover the period 1 September 2005 to 31 March 2006.

In addition, we have said that we shall review the operation of the Financial Assistance Scheme including its funding, in the next spending review.

Pensions

21. John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will make a statement on the rate at which the state pension will be uprated in 2006–07. [31703]

Mr. Timms: The rates of state pension from April 2006 will be announced shortly (as part of the general uprating statement).

However, we have given a commitment that the basic state pension will be increased by at least 2.5 per cent. or in line with the Retail Prices Index if higher.

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will link the value of the basic state pension to average earnings. [31334]

Mr. Timms: I refer the hon. Member to the written answer I gave the hon. Member for Lagan Valley (Mr. Donaldson) on 21 November 2005, Official Report, column 1678W.

Occupational Health Strategy

23. Miss Begg: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what work is being done with external organisations to deliver the occupational health strategy. [31705]

Margaret Hodge: The engagement of stakeholders, particularly organisations representing healthcare professionals, employers and employees, was an essential element in the development of the Health, Work and Well-Being strategy published last month. The successful delivery of the strategy will depend on this continued engagement and close partnership working.

Child Support Cases

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to the written statement of 20 July 2005, Official Report, column 103WS, whether the 260,000 child support cases yet to be cleared include the backlog of new scheme cases mentioned by the Independent Case Examiner in her annual report 2004–05. [18789]

Mr. Plaskitt: The type of new scheme cases described by the Independent Case Examiner in her annual report 2004–05 are included in the 260,000 child support cases yet to be cleared, as referred to in the written statement made by my right hon. Friend the former Secretary for Work and Pensions (Mr. Blunkett) on 20 July 2005, Official Report, column 103WS.

Council Tax

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what arrangements his Department has made to publicise the arrangements for claiming the £200 council tax rebate among those not eligible for winter fuel payment. [30740]

Mr. Timms: We are running an extensive publicity campaign which includes advertisements in both national and regional press. We have posters displayed in, and leaflets available from a variety of venues including doctor's surgeries, Citizen Advice Bureaux and benefit offices. Information is also available on the Pension Service website and from the winter fuel payment helpline.

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions when pensioners in Hendon will receive their financial support for council tax bills due for 2005; how many pensioners in Hendon he expects to receive this help; and if he will make a statement. [31448]

Mr. Timms: The £200 payment to help with council tax bills is being issued with the winter fuel payment. Payments commenced in early November and will continue until Christmas. Eligible people who do not receive a winter fuel payment will need to make a claim which must be received by 30 March 2006. We expect around 11,000 pensioners residing in Hendon will receive the £200 payment.

Inactive Benefits

Mr. Love: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many recipients of inactive benefits moved back to work in 2004–05. [31700]

Margaret Hodge: The Government's successful stewardship of the economy has ensured a steady and concurrent growth in employment. This has meant we have been able to support people who had not previously looked for a job to move into the jobs market. Over the last year the number of people classed as economically inactive, excluding students, has fallen by 180,000.

Pension Service

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many letters have been sent by the Pension Service this year advising pensioners to pay outstanding contributions in national insurance in order to increase the total value of their pensions; how many responses have been received from pensioners; how many responses had been processed at 31 October; how many responses had been received but are yet to be processed at 31 October; what the average time period is for fully processing one of these payments; and if he will make a statement. [28727]

Mr. Timms: Over a 12 month period from September 2004, 414,427 deficiency notice letters were issued by the Pension Service to pensioner customers in Great Britain and abroad. As at 31 October, 191,756 customers had responded.

As at 31 October, 26,433 customers had been awarded state pension for the first time or received arrears and an increase in their state pension. 31,370 responses were awaiting action from the Pension Service to calculate potential entitlement or revise the pension award and make payment. The Pension Service was awaiting further information on 9,207 responses from, for example, the customer or partner agencies.

76,214 customers had responded indicating that they did not wish to take any action. Not everyone will be better off by paying deficient years nor do all decide to progress their initial inquiry to payment stage.

On average, once a customer has paid their voluntary contributions, they can expect the Pension Service to make a payment in eight weeks.

The remaining information is not held in the form requested.

Winter Fuel Allowance

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many complaints his Department has received in the last month concerning non-payment of winter fuel allowance claims at post offices owing to receipt of insufficient cash. [32385]

Mr. Timms: We are aware of a small number of isolated incidents where customers have not received all the money that was available to them because of insufficient post office funds.

This Department and Post Office Ltd. are working closely together and sharing information to ensure that customers are able to collect this year's winter fuel payment from post office branches.

TREASURY

Capital Gains Tax

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he last assessed the merits of using capital gains tax relief to encourage new landlords to offer alternative accommodation to retiring farm tenants; and what his conclusions were. [32581]

John Healey: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the answer my right hon. Friend the Paymaster General gave him on 21 November 2005, Official report, column 1571W.

Child Trust Fund Vouchers

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many Child Trust Fund vouchers have (a) been issued, (b) been invested and (c) failed to be invested in the Bridgend county borough council area; and if he will make a statement. [32344]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The information requested is available only at disproportionate cost. UK-wide information on the number of Child Trust Fund vouchers issued and the number of accounts opened are published on the HMRC website at http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/child_trust_funds/child-trust-funds.htm. The latest set of figures was published on 31 August 2005. Data showing activity to 20 November will be published on the 30 November 2005.

Nick Herbert: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what proportion of child trust vouchers issued have not been invested by parents. [31887]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: UK-wide information on the number of Child Trust Fund vouchers issued and the number of accounts opened are published on the HMRC website at http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/child_trust_funds/child-trust-funds.htm.

The latest set of figures was published on 31 August 2005. Data showing activity to 20 November will be published on the 30 November 2005.

Civil Service

Mike Penning: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the total operating expense of the UK civil service was in the last period for which figures are available; how many civil servants are employed in the UK; and what the rates were in each year since 1997. [32203]

Mr. Des Browne: Spending on gross and net controlled administration costs for Whitehall Departments is shown in table 4 of the Public Expenditure Outturn White Paper 2004–05 (Cm 6639) which has been put in the Library of the House.

Administration costs does not include MOD. However, the MOD civil pay bill for 2004–05 can be found in the MOD 2004–05 annual report (HC464).

Spending on administration by the devolved Administrations is a devolved matter.

Data on civil service employment levels can be found in table 1 of the National Statistics quarterly publication "Public Sector Employment First Release", published on the ONS website. This publication includes figures since 1997. The latest release can be found at the following web address http://www.statistics.gov.uk/pdfdir/psc0905.pdf.

Economic and Monetary Union

Mike Penning: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Romford of 14 November 2005, Official Report, column 879W, on economic and monetary union, what the pay grades of the civil servants concerned are; and what estimate he has made of the man hours per week each spends on the work in question. [32045]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: As a range of officials from across the Treasury contribute to this work, disaggregated information of the kind requested is not available.

EU Budget

Mr. Francois: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the UK's net contribution to the EU budget was in (a) 2004–05 and (b) 2005–06; and what he expects it to be in 2006–07. [31862]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The UK's net contribution to the EC Budget in 2004–05 can be found in footnote 1 to Table 2 of the "Provisional Expenditure Outturn" White Paper (Cm 6639) published in July 2005. The Government's latest estimates for 2005–06 and 2006–07 can be found in Table 3.2 of the "European Community Finances" White Paper (Cm 6580) published in June 2005.

Mike Penning: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how often financial transfers were made from the UK Treasury to contribute to the Government's share of the EU budget in each of the last three years; what mechanisms are used; and what the last sum transferred was. [32194]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The UK, like every other member state, makes two contributions to the EC budget each month. The first of these is made on the first working day of each month and relates to VAT-based and GNI-based contributions and also takes account of the UK abatement. The second payment is made on the first working day after the 19th of each month and relates to traditional own resources (e.g. customs duties). Payments are made direct from the consolidated fund into a European Commission account held in the UK and administered by HM Treasury under Section 2(3) of the European Communities Act 1972. The latest payment was made on 21 November 2005 and was for £153 million.

Finance Act (No. 2)

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what measures he has put in place to assess the impact on business and inward investment in the UK of the measures contained in the Finance Act (No. 2) 2005. [28612]

Dawn Primarolo: The measures contained in Finance Act 2005 meet the Government's objectives for a modern and fair tax system which encourages work and saving, keeps pace with developments in business practices and the global economy and provides the foundation for building world-class public services.

The Government keep all taxes under review, ensuring they continue to meet these objectives, and any changes to taxation are considered as part of the normal Budget process.

Framework for National Statistics

Paul Clark: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make a statement on the review of the Framework for National Statistics. [33324]

Mr. Gordon Brown: Having reviewed the Framework for National Statistics, we will publish plans by early in the New Year to legislate to make the Office for National Statistics independent of government, making the governance and publication of official statistics the responsibility of a wholly separate body at arms length from government and fully independent of it. We propose to legislate for:

the creation of an independent Governing Board for the Office for National Statistics, with delegated responsibility for meeting an overall objective for the statistical system's integrity;

the appointment of external members to the Board, drawn from leading experts in statistics and including men and women from academia and business; and a new accountability to Parliament through regular reporting by the Board to explain and to be questioned by the Treasury Select Committee on their performance.

Incorrect Tax Demands

Anne Snelgrove: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what mechanisms are in place to compensate people for expenses they incur in challenging incorrect tax demands. [31645]

Dawn Primarolo: There are long-standing published procedures under which HMRC will give consideration to reimbursing the additional expenses customers incur directly as a result of mistakes and unreasonable delays caused by the Department. These are set out in the code of practice 1 and notice 1000, available on the HMRC website.

Inter-generational Equity

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment his Department has made of the inter-generational equity of the current tax and benefits system; and if he will make a statement. [31290]

Dawn Primarolo: HM Treasury's long-term public finance report provides an assessment of long-term fiscal sustainability and the inter-generational fairness of current policies. An updated version of the long-term public finance report will be published alongside the pre-Budget report on December 5.

Maldives (Asset Seizures)

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will (a) freeze the bank accounts and (b) seize the assets of members of the Government of the Maldives in response to human rights abuses. [30906]

Dr. Howells: I have been asked to reply.

The Government has no current plans to impose sanctions, such as the freezing of assets and bank accounts, or travel bans against members of the Government of the Maldives. Sanctions are most appropriate where existing efforts at dialogue and co-operation are not able to lever positive progress. We note recent moves from the Government of the Maldives to establish dialogue with all political parties. We look forward to seeing early progress on democratic reform.

We are, however, seriously concerned about the human rights situation in the Maldives. We continue to raise those concerns, including in September when the British High Commissioner in Colombo accredited to the Maldives did so personally with President Gayoom. The High Commissioner and his deputy also separately made representations to the Maldivian Foreign Minister in late October. We will continue to do so.

Mortgage Loans

John Mann: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the average new mortgage loan was in (a) the UK and (b) East Midlands in each of the last five years. [32310]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The average value of loans for house purchases are available on the Office for the Deputy Prime Minister' website, and are reproduced as follows.

Average new mortgage loan (£)

	UK	East Midlands
2000	70,606	57,839
2001	76,258	61,005
2002	84,489	71,074
2003	98,254	84,913
2004	109,920	95,459

National Debt

Mike Penning: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the size is of the national debt; and what the cost of servicing it was in the last period for which figures are available. [32191]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Outturn figures for public sector net debt and the cost of servicing debt are available on the Office for National Statistics website: http://www.statistics.gov.uk/pdfdir/psf1105.pdf and http://www.statistics.gov.uk/StatBase/Expodata/Spreadsheets/D8885.xls (Series ANLO).

Red Diesel (Derogation)

Bob Spink: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what plans he has to ask the European Union for an extension of the current derogation allowing the use of red diesel for leisure purposes; what (a) representations he has received and (b) discussions he has held on the extension; if he will list the bodies he will be consulting on the extension; and when the consultation will commence. [31260]

John Healey: I refer the hon. Member to what I said on the Floor of the House on 26 May 2005, Official Report, column 865W.

We have received a number of representations on this subject and officials from HM Revenue and Customs have discussed the issues concerning the expiry of the derogation with a number of stakeholders including the Royal Yachting Association and the British Marine Federation. These discussions have been very helpful and are continuing.

Stamp Duty Land Tax

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what percentage of stamp duty land tax returns were not processed in 2004–05 resulting in fines being levied, broken down by region. [31925]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The following table lists the number of land transaction returns received by the Rapid Data Capture Centre at Netherton between April and October 2005 and the number which were returned to sender without being processed as the form omitted basic details. A regional breakdown is not available.

2005	Total received	Total rejected	Percentage rejected
April	136,436	3,381	2.48
May	147,221	3,127	2.12
June	163,109	3,390	2.08
July	152,174	3,993	2.62
August	174,845	4,513	2.58

2005	Total received	Total rejected	Percentage rejected
September	148,555	4,387	2.95
October	155,356	4,359	2.81
Cumulative total	1,077,696	27,150	2.52

Under stamp duty land tax an automatic penalty will be imposed if a completed land transaction return and payment of the tax due are not received until after 30 days from the effective date of the transaction.

In addition there are returns which are not returned to sender but which cannot be processed without further information being supplied. Such returns, if the original return is delivered on time, do not result in the imposition of a penalty if the information requested is supplied after the filing date.

Stamp Office

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many calls were made to the Stamp Office inquiry line in the last period for which figures are available, broken down by (a) region and (b) reasons for call. [31924]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: A table giving a quarterly breakdown of the number of calls taken on the stamp taxes inquiry line since 1 December 2003 is included in an answer I gave to the hon. Member for Portsmouth, South (Mr. Hancock) on 10 October 2005 at column 318W. Detailed analysis of regional origins of, and reasons for, these calls is not available.

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the efficiency of the Data Process Unit at the Stamp Office; and if he will make a statement. [31926]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for Carmarthen East and Dinefwr (Adam Price) on 17 October 2005, Official Report, column 722W.

Tax Credits

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) how many full-time equivalent staff have worked (a) in the tax credit office and (b) on the tax credit helpline in each of the last 12 months; [18641]

(2) how many staff have been employed on the tax credit helplines in each month since April 2003; and if he will make a statement. [19292]

Dawn Primarolo: The information requested is as follows:

(a) The number of full-time equivalent (FTE) staff employed in the TCO over the last 12 months is around that shown in the following table:

	Staff numbers[1]
2004
September	2,500
October	2,400
November	2,200
December	2,200
2005

February	2,300
March	2,400
April	2,400
May	2,500
June	2400
July	2,300
August	2,300

[1] Full-time equivalent.

(b) The number of FTE staff employed to work on the dedicated tax credit helpline in each of the last 12 months is detailed in the following table. In addition, HMRC can use another 1,150 FTE staff to answer tax credits calls at peak times.

The number of full time equivalent staff employed on tax credits helplines in each month since April 2003 is detailed in the following table. In addition, HMRC can use another 1,150 staff (FTEs) to answer tax credits calls at peak times.

	Staff numbers[1]
2003
April	1,750

[1] Full-time equivalent.

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many complaints he has received regarding miscalculated tax credit sums; how many people have had to pay back money after their tax credits were miscalculated; how much money has been overpaid as a result of problems with the tax credits system; and how much overpaid money from tax credit miscalculations (a) has been recovered and (b) remains to be recovered. [23212]

Dawn Primarolo: HM Revenue and Customs does not hold information on the number of complaints received or the value of overpayments that specifically relate to the miscalculation of tax credits awards.

For the value of overpayments, I refer the hon. Gentleman to the answer given to the hon. Member for St. Albans (Anne Main) on 13 October 2005, Official Report, column 428.

The Department's Code of Practice 26, "What happens if we have paid you too much tax credit?" describes their approach to overpayments and is available on the internet at: http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/leaflets/cop26.pdf

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recommendations have been made by HM Revenue and Customs Internal Audit in relation to the gathering of information on the possible targeting of tax credits by organised criminals; and if he will make a statement. [24587]

Dawn Primarolo: It would be inappropriate to disclose information about measures to counter tax credit fraud, as this would prejudice HMRC's ability to prevent or detect crime, recover fraudulently claimed tax credits and prosecute those involved.

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the cost of paying tax credit was as a percentage of each pound of tax credit paid in each year since 1999; and what the capital costs of administration of working tax and child tax credits have been to date. [26815]

Dawn Primarolo: The following table shows the cost of paying tax credit as a percentage of each pound of tax credit, which can be found in table 1 of the Annual Report and Accounts 2004–05.

	Percentage
1999–2000	3.29
2000–01	2.94
2001–02	2.53
2002–03	[1]2.21
2003–04	2.96

[1] Excludes costs of preparing for child and working tax credits, if these are included the ratio is 4.58 pence per pound paid.

Note:

A figure for total tax credits payments in 2004–05 and the cost of managing and paying tax credits can be found in note 3.

Department for Work and Pensions' figures show the cost of managing and paying family credit was £66 million in 1996–97, £59 million in 1997–98 and £72 million in 1998–99. In these three years total expenditure on family credit was: £2,084 million, £2,326 million and £2,429 million. These figures imply that the cost per £ paid of administering family credit was broadly in line with that for tax credits at about 3 pence.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many families have been contacted as part of the Inland Revenue's tax credit outreach programme; how many awards have been adjusted in-year as a result of contact; and when the next wave of contacts will begin. [30006]

Dawn Primarolo: HM Revenue and Customs are undertaking a long-term pilot to identify the most successful ways of encouraging customers to keep their records up to date. The pilot aims to contact 15,000 customers in writing and 15,000 customers by telephone on three separate occasions between July 2005 and February 2006.

The first two waves of contact are now complete and the third is due to start in late January/early February 2006.

Information from analysis of the first wave, which took place in July 2005, shows that HMRC contacted 15,000 people in writing and around 7,500 by telephone. HMRC found that, as a result, around 1,200 additional families notified a change of circumstances that led to a change in their entitlement.

Analysis of the second wave will be completed in January 2006 and a further report, following the third wave, is due in April/May 2006. A final analysis will take place after the renewals cycle for 2005–06 awards is complete.

Tax Revenue

Lembit Öpik: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the total tax revenue collected by the Government from British taxpayers and businesses was in 2004–05. [30098]

John Healey: Table C8 in Budget 2005 provides details of total tax revenue for the UK.

Lembit Öpik: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what the total tax revenue collected by the Government from (a) taxpayers in Wales and (b) businesses in Wales was in 2004–05; [30099]

(2) what estimate he has made of the percentage of Government revenue during the year 2004–05 which was derived from businesses and taxpayers in Wales. [30100]

Dawn Primarolo: The following figures from the ONS 2005 publication of household income show estimates of income tax, council taxes and vehicle taxes paid by households in Wales and the United Kingdom for 2003. They were produced by ONS for the estimation of sub-national gross disposable household income and were published in April 2005.

Taxes paid by households in 2003 [1]

	Estimate
Wales (£ million)	4,742
United Kingdom (£ million)	137,255
Wales percentage of total	3.5

[1] Taxes paid by households and non-profit institutions serving households.

No corresponding information is available on taxes paid by organisations or on other taxes paid by households. Information for 2004 is not yet available.

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the proportion of UK tax revenues raised in Wales in each of the last 10 years. [31384]

Dawn Primarolo: For years from 1997,1 refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Leominster (Bill Wiggin) on 22 November 2005, Official Report, columns 1914–15W.

The information for years 1995 and 1996 are as follows:

Estimate of taxes paid by households[1]

£ million

	1995	1996
Wales	3,052	3,187
United Kingdom	86,252	87,070

[1] Taxes paid by households and non-profit institutions serving households.

These figures show estimates of income taxes, council taxes and vehicle taxes paid by households and were produced by ONS for the estimation of sub-national gross disposable household income (GDHI). Sub-national GDHI was published in April 2005. No corresponding information is available on taxes paid by organisations, or on other taxes paid by households.

Valuation Office Agency

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what depreciation policy the Valuation Office Agency will apply to the recently purchased desktop valuation software system. [28620]

Dawn Primarolo: The Valuation Office Agency depreciates all of its in-house software on a straight line basis over 10 years and this policy will also be applied to the Automated Valuation Model (AVM) software.

Welsh Assembly (Funding)

Lembit Öpik: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much funding was allocated to the Welsh Assembly in the form of a block grant under the Barnett formula in each tax year since 1997–98. [30102]

Mr. Des Browne: Information on the Welsh Assembly's DEL and grant are published in Public Expenditure Statistical Analyses, the most recent version of which was published in April 2005 (Cm 6521), and the Wales Office Estimates. Further details can also be found in the Wales Office departmental reports.

Working Tax Credit

Anne Milton: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) how many working families tax credit applications are being processed; [17686]

(2) how many working tax credit applications being processed were received (a) up to six months ago and (b) more than six months ago. [17687]

Dawn Primarolo: Working families tax credit was replaced by the child tax credit and the working tax credit in April 2003.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Arts Funding

David Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much Arts Council funding has been provided to organisations in the city of Cambridge in the last five years. [31581]

Mr. Lammy [holding answer 24 November 2005]: The following information provided by Arts Council England provides a breakdown of the information requested.

	2000–01	2001–02	2002–03	2003–04	2004–05	Total
Regular funding for organisations	864,948	1,081,285	1,225,195	1,349,224	1,422,954	5,943,606
Other funding for regularly funded organisations including grants for the arts and recovery	591,895	381,518	878,848	1,333,910	606,461	3,792,632
Regional arts lottery programme (November 2000 to July 2003)	[1]457,070	421,452	—	—	421,452
Grants for the arts—organisations (£25,000 and above)	—	—	—	467,628	242,753	710,381
Total	1,456,843	1,4628,03	2,525,495	3,150,762	2,272,168	10,868,071

[1] 2000–02 available only as a countywide figure—not included in final totals.

In addition, the Junction has received £5,529,608 in capital grants up to 2004–05. The total Arts Council England funding to organisations in Cambridge during the period was £16,397,679.

British Library

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many redundancies are planned for the British Library. [32215]

Mr. Lammy: The British Library anticipates there will be 47 redundancies during the remainder of the financial year 2005–06. A further reduction in posts of 60 is planned for financial year 2006–07.

Broadcasting Standards

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what recent discussions she has had with (a) Ofcom and (b) the BBC about the screening of (a) sex, (b) violence and (c) bad language on television. [32366]

James Purnell: Decisions on broadcast programme standards are a matter for Ofcom, the BBC and S4C to determine independently of Government, according to the provisions of the Broadcasting and Communications Acts.

My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State was briefed by Ofcom about their proposals for the regulation of standards in broadcast content prior to publication of the new programme code which came into effect on 25 July.

Civil Service Relocation (Scotland)

Stewart Hosie: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many departmental civil service jobs have been relocated to Scotland in each year since 2001. [32374]

Mr. Lammy: None.

Departmental Expenditure

Ed Balls: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much her Department has spent on sports and recreation projects in (a) West Yorkshire and (b) Normanton constituency since 2001. [31561]

Mr. Caborn: The table sets out the funding for sport and recreation projects that has been made available in the West Yorkshire region and the Normanton constituency since 2001 from both lottery and Exchequer sources.

	Lottery	Exchequer
West Yorkshire	33,401,776	[1]2,035,176
Normanton constituency	473,403	—
Total	33,875,179	2,035,167

[1] £2,035,167 includes £1,630,167 Community Club Development Programme (CCDP) funding; this funding is not broken down beyond the regional level, so it is not possible to say how much, if any, was spent in the Normanton constituency. The £2,035,167 also includes two projects (£50,000 Active School Development Officer and £60,000 Groundwork Trust) which were awarded to the Wakefield area of the West Yorkshire region. Details of Exchequer funding are not available at constituency level.

Departmental Finance

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what the real terms percentage increase in allocated resources for her Department (a) was for the period 1997–98 to 2004–05 and (b) is estimated to be between 2005–06 and 2007–08 (i) for each period and (ii) for each year. [31035]

Mr. Lammy: The Department for Culture, Media and Sport (DCMS) do not have comparable figures for 1997–98 and 1998–99. The real terms percentage increase year-on-year of allocated resources for the DCMS for 1999–2000 through to 2007–08 are as follows:

	Percentage
1999–2000	5.9
2000–01	0.9
2001–02	7.6
2002–03	14.9
2003–04	4.4
2004–05	3.2
2005–06	2.9
2006–07	1.9
2007–08	0.9

For the six-year period 1999–2000 to 2004–05 the increase was 35.5 per cent. and within the period 2005–06 and 2007–08 the expected increase will be 2.9 per cent.

Departmental Staff

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many staff in her Department have been relocated into London and the South East in each of the last five years for which records are available. [31771]

Mr. Lammy: No staff from the Department have been relocated into London and the South East over the last 5 years.

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what plans she has to relocate staff in her Department and related agencies into London and the South East. [31772]

Mr. Lammy: There are no plans to relocate staff from the Department or the Royal Parks Agency into London and the South East.

Departmental Websites

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if she will take steps to ensure the Department's websites attain the W3C AAA standard of accessibility for people with visual and other disabilities; and if she will set a target date for this standard to be achieved by. [30963]

Mr. Lammy: My Officials are currently working to attain W3C AA standard for all its websites. The main website is being re-developed and we aim to achieve AAA compliance by 2007.

Digital Broadcasting

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what her most recent estimate is of the date by which households across Tamworth constituency will be able to receive digital terrestrial broadcasts. [32027]

James Purnell: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State has confirmed the regional timetable for digital switchover; it will take place between 2008 and 2012 by ITV region in the following order:

2008—Border

2009—West Country, HTV Wales, Granada

2010—HTV West, Grampian, Scottish Television

2011—Yorkshire, Anglia, Central

2012—Meridian, Carlton/LWT (London), Tyne Tees, Ulster

Digital Switchover will enable coverage for digital terrestrial television to reach the same level as that of the current analogue signals. It will take place in the Tamworth constituency (Central region) in 2011.

Engagements

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what plans she has to visit Coventry in the next 12 months. [31427]

Tessa Jowell: I have no plans to visit Coventry at present.

English Heritage

Robert Key: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what the income was from all sources at the English Heritage properties at (a) Stonehenge, (b) Old Sarum and (c) Wardour Castle in each of the last five years. [31343]

Mr. Lammy: Earned income at these three sites is as follows:

	2000–01	2001–02	2002–03	2003–04	2004–05
Stonehenge	3,839,138	3,602,585	3,924,347	4,825,050	5,154,289
Old Sarum Castle	242,172	240,418	219,395	212,213	203,778
Old Wardour Castle	41,141	53,123	67,986	81,774	83,618

This includes income from admissions, retail, catering, corporate events and membership subscriptions (paid at the sites).

Government Art Collection

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport pursuant to the answer of 15 November 2005, Official Report, column 1136W, on departmental spending, if her Department will publish the guidelines issued to the Government Art Collection relating to the purchase of art. [31353]

Mr. Lammy: The Government Art Collection (GAC) is part of DCMS; its acquisition policy is guided by the advisory committee on the GAC, which is a non-departmental public body. This meets three times a year, members being both independent and ex-officio, including three national collection directors.

The Department does not issue guidelines to the GAC relating to the purchase of works of art. There is a formal acquisitions policy approved by the advisory committee and the DCMS management board and I am arranging for copies of that document to be placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

Licensing Applications

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what guidance she has issued on the circumstances that would require a person holding a charity fundraising event in their (a) home and (b) garden to need to apply for a licence. [31242]

James Purnell: My Department has not issued any specific statutory guidance, however it has issued supplementary advice and guidance on its website in respect of garden fêtes and this information can be found at:

www.culture.gov.uk/alcohol_and_entertainment/

The provisions of the Act mean that garden fêtes, or functions or events of a similar nature, are exempt from the requirement for a licence when providing public entertainment provided they are not being promoted or held for purposes of private gain. However, if alcohol or late night refreshment is to be sold, a licence will be required for those activities. These events would generally require a temporary events notice.

National Endowment for Science, Technology and the Arts

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what review has been carried out of the effectiveness of the National Endowment for Science, Technology and the Arts. [32288]

James Purnell: On 25 February 2004 the National Audit Office (NAO) published the findings of its value for money investigation of the National Endowment for Science, Technology and the Arts. The NAO found that

> "NESTA has established generally sound approaches to selecting which projects to support and to managing its portfolio of awards and two of its three funding programmes have done well to generate interest and applications."

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport (1) whether she plans to change the emphasis placed on (a) science, (b) technology and (c) the arts by the National Endowment for Science, Technology and the Arts; [32289]

(2) whether she plans to amend the aims of the National Endowment for Science, Technology and the Arts; and if she will make a statement. [32290]

James Purnell: Pursuant to Section 17 (3) of the National Lottery Act 1998 my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State can only make such amendments by order at the request of NESTA. To date, no such requests have been received.

NESTA's role will continue to be to support and promote talent, innovation and creativity in the fields of science, technology and the arts. NESTA has full autonomy to determine the emphasis in each area.

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what the return on investment generated by the National Endowment for Science, Technology and the Arts has been in each year since its inception. [32293]

James Purnell: The return on NESTA's investments is listed as follows for both Fund A (NESTA's core endowment, invested on their behalf by the Commissioners for the Reduction of the National Debt in accordance with NESTA's Financial Directions) and Fund B. (the Endowment's income, invested by NESTA), for each year for which audited figures are available.

	1999–2000	2000–01	2001–02	2002–03	2003–04	2004–05
Fund A	11,618	11,599	9,006	8,005	9,189	12,852
Fund B	161	591	656	-3,089	2,658	2,191
Bank interest	20	23	49	47	70	90
Total	11,799	12,213	9,711	4,963	11,917	15,133

National Lottery

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport whether lottery monies may be used to fund community sports and leisure centres. [33149]

Mr. Caborn: Yes, lottery monies may be used to fund community sports and leisure centres.

Sick Leave

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many of her Department's employees who are within one year of the official retirement age are on extended sick leave. [32604]

Mr. Lammy: There are no employees in the Department on extended sick leave who are within one year of the official retirement age.

Sport England

Mr. Andy Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much funding Sport England has committed to projects for 2005–06; and how much funding has been allocated by her Department for those projects in that year. [32209]

Mr. Caborn: As at month six (September), a total of £188,650 million has been committed to projects for 2005–06. This is broken down as £35,370 million Exchequer, and £152,650 million lottery funding.

The Department for Culture, Media and Sport is only responsible for the allocation of Exchequer funding to Sport England which, for 2005–06 awards, is £58,469 million.

Television Access Services (Ofcom Code)

Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if she will make a statement on the use of sanctions by Ofcom on broadcasters which do not meet their targets under the Ofcom Code on Television Access Services; and what discussions she has had with the chief executive of Ofcom on such sanctions. [31962]

James Purnell: Ofcom has powers to impose sanctions if it believes that a broadcaster has breached licence obligations, including those relating to compliance with the Code on Television Access Services. Compliance with licence requirements is a statutory obligation.

My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State has had no recent discussions with the chief executive of Ofcom on the use of such sanctions.

Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many of the broadcasters that are covered by the Ofcom Code on Television Access Services are on track to meet their targets for television access services in 2005. [31963]

James Purnell: The matter raised is the responsibility of Ofcom, as independent regulator. Accordingly, officials have asked the Chief Executive to respond directly to the hon. Member. Copies of the letter will be placed in the Libraries of the House.

Television Licences

Mr. Kemp: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many households in Houghton and Washington, East are in receipt of free television licences. [32872]

James Purnell: TV Licensing, who administer free television licences for people aged 75 or over as agents for the BBC, are not able to provide geographical breakdowns of the number of free licences issued. However, the number of households with at least one person aged 75 or over claiming the winter fuel payment in the Houghton and Washington, East constituency in 2004–05 was 4,490, according to Department for Work and Pensions records.

Tennis Courts

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what guidance she has issued to local authorities on making their tennis courts available free of charge to young people. [31330]

Mr. Caborn: I have issued no such guidance.

Leisure services are a discretionary area of local authority provision and as such it is up to individual local authorities to make a service free of charge if they so wish, taking into account the needs of their local communities.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Article 133 Committee Meetings

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if the Government will make the outcomes of the Article 133 committee meetings it has chaired during its EU presidency available on the presidency website. [29455]

Ian Pearson: No. However, the Council Secretariat publishes outcomes from the Article 133 Committee in accordance with Council Regulation 1049/2001 (Regulation of the European Parliament and Council regarding public access to European Parliament, Council and Commission documents). These documents can be accessed through the Council's website: http://ue.eu.int.

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if he will list for each member state the (a) full and (b) deputy representative of the Article 133 Committee of the Council of Ministers. [29460]

Ian Pearson: Details of those attending meetings of the Article 133 Committee are not published; and information relating to the identity of individuals is an issue for the respective member states. It is therefore not appropriate for the UK to publish a list of representatives from other member states.

The UK's full member of the Article 133 Committee is Edmund Hosker, Director of World Trade, DTI. The UK's deputy member of the Article 133 Committee is Ray Symons, Head of the EU Trade Negotiations Unit, DTI.

Bio-fuels Industry

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what grants will be available for those producers who wish to build new plant to supply the British bio-fuels industry. [32284]

Malcolm Wicks: There are no grants available from the Department of Trade and Industry towards the capital cost of building new plants to supply the transport bio-fuels industry. There may however be support available through Regional Selective Assistance. Support for research and development into transport biofuels may also be available under the Department's Technology Programme.

Transport biofuels benefit from a duty reduction of 20 pence per litre, and the Department of Transport has recently announced its intention to bring forward a Renewable Transport Fuels Obligation to further stimulate the market for transport biofuels.

Carbon Dioxide Capture/Emissions

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what research he has evaluated on turning captured carbon dioxide back into calcium carbonate. [30925]

Malcolm Wicks: DTI has noted work carried out by the IEA, IPCC and EPSRC which all concluded that the mineralization of carbon dioxide into solids such as calcium carbonate had scale-up problems, but may be regarded as a long-term option for carbon dioxide sequestration.

Stephen Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what recent estimate the Government have made of the carbon dioxide emissions of the building, maintenance and decommissioning of new (a) onshore wind farms and (b) offshore wind farms over (i) 10, (ii) 20 and (iii) 50 years; and if he will make a statement. [25666]

Malcolm Wicks: The House of Lords Science and Technology Committee's Fourth Report on Renewable Energy Practicalities included an estimate of the energy payback from wind farms and other technologies.

Dr. Gibson: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what assessment he has made of the likely impact on the timetable for reducing carbon dioxide emissions of commencing building work on new nuclear power stations in the 2005–06 year. [31500]

Malcolm Wicks: My right hon. Friend the Prime Minister has said that the Government will be publishing proposals on energy policy next year. In developing these proposals, we will be looking at the impact of new nuclear build on helping us to meet our energy White Paper goals, including reducing carbon dioxide emissions. The review will be examining a wide range of options for helping us meet these goals.

Carbon Trust Survey

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry pursuant to the answer of 9 November 2005, question reference 23735, if he will place in the Library a copy of the Carbon Trust's survey findings on energy efficiency. [28769]

Alan Johnson: DTI have made arrangements for the Carbon Trust report to be placed in the Libraries of the House.

Carpal Tunnel Syndrome

Mr. Todd: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry when he expects the Medical Reference Panel to decide on the eligibility claims for carpal tunnel syndrome associated with vibration white finger claims where the diagnosis followed the initial medical examination. [30828]

Malcolm Wicks: This issue remains under discussion between the Department and the claimants' solicitors. We are working to resolve this matter in order to avoid the need to refer the issue to the Medical Reference Panel at all.

Chronic Obstructive Pulmonary Disease (Compensation)

Huw Irranca-Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many chronic obstructive pulmonary disease claims were submitted later than the official cut-off date of 31 March; and what the name of the claim handler and solicitor was in each case. [29482]

Malcolm Wicks: 269 claims were received by the Department's claims handlers, Capita, after the cut-off date of 31 March 2004. These claims are listed by solicitor in the following table.

Huw Irranca-Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many claims handlers and solicitors (a) had been working in the Chronic Obstructive Pulmonary Disease scheme prior to the announcement of the cut-off date and (b) began offering their services after the announcement of the cut-off date; and how many of each category failed to submit claims by the cut-off date. [29483]

Malcolm Wicks: 516 claimants' representatives firms had submitted claims in the Chronic Obstructive Pulmonary Disease scheme before the cut-off date was announced; 141 submitted their first claims after the announcement and a further 20 submitted their first claim after the cut-off date.

Huw Irranca-Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if he will list (a) the names of solicitors and claims handlers who have represented clients under the chronic obstructive pulmonary disease scheme, (b) the number of cases handled by each organisation, (c) the number of complaints against each organisation and (d) the month and year in which each organisation began operating within the scheme. [29484]

Malcolm Wicks: 657 claimants' representatives firms have submitted claims under the COPD scheme. A table containing the answers to (a), (b) and (d) above will be placed in the Libraries of the House. Complaints against solicitors are not a matter for the Department but for the Law Society.

Huw Irranca-Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what (a) legal and (b) financial assistance is available to an individual who believes that a solicitor or claims handler under Department's chronic obstructive pulmonary disease scheme was negligent in failing to submit a claim before the cut-off date for the scheme. [29485]

Malcolm Wicks: If an individual believes that a solicitor or claims handler under the Department's chronic obstructive pulmonary disease scheme was negligent in failing to submit a claim before the cut-off date, then the Law Society should be able to provide names of specialist solicitors who may be able to advise that individual as to whether he or she has a claim in law. It would not be appropriate for the Department to provide legal advice in relation to the conduct of any such potential claims. Alternatively, he or she may also consider seeking independent legal advice from a citizens advice bureau or a local law centre, who would be able to discuss the matter free of charge.

Clear Skies Programme

Mr. Chaytor: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry (1) what representations he has received from the micro renewables industry on ensuring continuity of support to community scale projects under his Department's clear skies programme; [27768]

(2) what assessment he has made of the commercial impact of the UK micro renewables sector of the decision to confirm 4 November as the final deadline for community applications to the Clear Skies programme. [27947]

Malcolm Wicks: We worked closely with industry on the last round of community applications to Clear Skies; they were aware of the final round for seven months. In response to representations from industry we have brought forward £750,000 of the low carbon buildings programme £30 million budget in order to allow further householder applications. We will continue to support community projects when the Low Carbon Buildings programme starts in April 2006, subject to EU state aids clearance.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many (a) schools and (b) other educational institutions received funding under the Clear Skies programme. [30483]

Malcolm Wicks: The information is as follows.

(a) I refer my hon. Friend to the reply I gave to my hon. Friend the Member for Lewisham, Deptford (Joan Ruddock) on 16 November 2005, Official Report, column 1342W.

(b) Four other education institutions have received grant funding under Clear Skies.

Coal Freighting

Gordon Banks: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how much coal mined in Scotland was transported by (a) rail and (b) road freight in each of the last five years. [30894]

Malcolm Wicks: The Department does not collect this data.

Departmental Programmes

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry when was the final deadline for community applications to the Department's Clear Skies programme; and from which date community applications to the Low Carbon Buildings programme will be accepted. [30482]

Malcolm Wicks: The final deadline for community applications to Clear Skies was 4 November. It is not possible to give an exact date of when applications to the new Low Carbon Buildings programme will be accepted. The programme is due to start April 2006, subject to EU state aids clearance, and it is expected that applications will be accepted shortly after.

Electricity Demand

John Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what recent assessment he has made of the proportion of electricity demand in the United Kingdom in (a) 2006, (b) 2010, (c) 2015 and (d) 2020 that will be met by electricity generated using (i) gas, (ii) coal, (iii) nuclear power and (iv) renewable fuels. [30775]

Malcolm Wicks: DTIs most recent assessment of the future proportion of electricity demand is contained in the following table.

Percentage

	2005	2010	2015	2020
Gas	37	41	47	58
Coal	32	26	23	16
Nuclear	22	18	11	7
Renewables	4	11	16	15
Other	4	3	3	3
Total	100	100	100	100

Energy Costs

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what recent assessment he has made of the effects of energy costs on competitiveness in the UK; and if he will make a statement. [29755]

Malcolm Wicks: The Government take the recent increases in energy prices very seriously, and particularly their impact on the competitiveness of UK industry. In January this year the Department set up the Gas Prices Working Group with the Energy Intensive Users Group and Ofgem, with the remit of examining the workings of the gas market and developing ideas for improving its operation. The group has now agreed a list of action points for the short to medium term, such as maximising gas supplies, encouraging demand side response and pursuing energy market liberalisation in the EU.

The impact on UK businesses of increases in gas and electricity prices will depend on a variety of factors, including how much gas or electricity a particular company uses, the degree of their exposure to spot and forward prices and the duration of high prices. It will also be affected by the energy prices paid by their competitors. A further sector-specific issue is whether they are in a competitive market where international trade sets the price or in a sector where prices are determined more locally and rising energy costs could be passed on.

In making decisions about phase 2 of the EU emissions trading scheme the Government are determined to minimise the impact on the UK's international competitiveness. The evidence to date suggests that the impact of the scheme on electricity prices in the UK is around the average for the EU as a whole.

Despite recent rises, UK gas and electricity prices for industrial users at July 2005 were at or below the EU median. However, individual companies will have agreed commercially confidential contract terms and prices which might differ from these averages. There is anecdotal evidence that, for very large users of gas, gas prices in the UK are above those on the continent, as they buy gas at wholesale prices. On 16h May DTI held a seminar with major users to discuss forward gas prices. We and Energywatch are planning a further seminar with smaller users on 30 November 2005 to discuss energy purchasing strategies.

Energy Imports

Mr. Meale: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if he will list contracts in place for the import of live energy into the UK. [30899]

Malcolm Wicks: This is a commercially confidential matter. Historical information about actual energy imports can be found in the Digest of UK Energy Statistics, which is available at http://www.dti.gov.uk/energy/inform/dukes/dukes2005/index.shtml and also in the Libraries of the House and from TSO.

Energy Supply

Mr. Pelling: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what steps the Government have taken to promote the generation of energy closer to the point of consumption. [24211]

Malcolm Wicks: The Government have taken a number of measures to support the development of small and micro generation technologies connected to the distribution networks close to the point of demand. Not least of these was the creation of the industry-wide Distributed Generation Coordinating Group (DGCG) which operated over a three-year period to November 2004 and which initiated a range of projects designed to address barriers to the integration of distributed generation. Building on the valuable work of the DGCG, the DTI together with Ofgem established in January 2005 the Electricity Networks Strategy Group (ENSG), which looks more widely at issues relating to the electricity networks while maintaining a focus on the development of distributed generation.

In addition, to the above activities, the Department provides financial support to industry-led projects aimed at increasing the deployment of distributed generation via its technology programme.

EU Anti-dumping Measures

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what discussions he has had with the Department for International Development on the effects of EU anti-dumping measures on developing countries. [30499]

Ian Pearson [holding answer 21 November 2005]: Officials in the Department and the Department for International Development discuss the impact which anti-dumping measures may have on developing countries.

Export Credits Guarantee Department

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if he will make a statement on the Export Credits Guarantee Department's (ECGD) negotiating position at the OECD Working Group on Export Credits and Credit Guarantees' negotiations for revisions to the Action Statement on Bribery and Officially Supported Export Credits; and what new measures the ECGD believes should be included in this Action Statement. [28568]

Ian Pearson: ECGD's historic commitment to securing agreement to enhanced standards in the OECD Action Statement on Bribery and Officially Supported Export Credits is well-known. The deadline for comments on ECGD's interim response to its anti-bribery and corruption consultation was 18 November. ECGD is considering the representations it has received to assist it in formulating a final response. Once ECGD's final response is published, the UK will be able to take a position at the OECD Working Group on Export Credits and Credit Guarantees' negotiations for revisions to the action statement.

First-class Mail

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what percentage of first class mail has been delivered the next day in each of the Northern Ireland Royal Mail area offices in Northern Ireland in 2005. [32525]

Barry Gardiner: This is an operational matter for Royal Mail and the Chief Executive has been asked to reply direct to the hon. Member.

Flexible Working

Mr. McGovern: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry (1) how many respondents to the February 2005 consultation document "Work and Families: Choice and Flexibility" gave a response to question 22; and what proportion of those responses were supportive of the case for extending the right to request flexible working to parents of older children; [32718]

(2) how many respondents to the February 2005 consultation document "Work and Families: Choice and Flexibility" gave a response to question 20; and what proportion of those responses were supportive of the case for extending the right to request flexible working to carers of adults. [32719]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Government received 79 responses to question 20 of the Work and Families consultation, which asked what the case is for extending the right to request flexible working to carers of adults. Of these responses just over 90 per cent. were supportive of extending the law to carers of adults.

The Government received 67 responses to question 22 of the Work and Families consultation, which asked what the case is for extending the right to request flexible working to parents of older children. Of these responses 80 per cent. were supportive of extending the law to parents of older children.

Gas Production/Supplies

Mr. Meale: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what the levels of (a) North sea and (b) Irish sea gas production were in each of the past five years. [30898]

Malcolm Wicks: Annual gross gas production figures over the past five years are shown in the following table.

Million cubic metres

	North sea	Irish sea	Total
2000	99,970	15,151	115,121
2001	96,271	14,765	111,036
2002	94,913	13,906	108,819
2003	94,199	14,069	108,268
2004	87,865	13,170	101,035

Source:
These data are derived from the same source as table F2 of the Digest of UK Energy Statistics (DUKES) 2005.

John Hemming: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if he will assess the merits of stipulating a requirement for gas wholesalers to contract for a minimum supply percentage from outside the UK's own resources to guarantee supply levels through interconnectors and liquid natural gas shipments. [31497]

Malcolm Wicks: The regulatory/commercial framework for the gas supply industry, overseen by Ofgem, gives strong financial incentives for companies to have sufficient gas supplies, on a day-by-day basis, to meet their contractual commitments. It is in companies' interests to source gas supplies from a diverse range of sources and supply routes.

John Hemming: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what estimate he has made of the total imported gas capacity in millions of cubic metres which will be available per average day in each quarter from Q1 2006 to Q4 2008. [31498]

Malcolm Wicks: The information requested is available within my right hon. Friend's "First Report to Parliament on Security of Gas and Electricity Supply in Great Britain" (July 2005). This can be found on the DTI's energy website: http://www.dti.gov.uk/energy and in the Libraries of the House.

John Hemming: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what estimate he has made of the likely (a) average price and (b) total gas consumption within the UK for each quarter from Q1 2006 to Q4 2008. [31499]

Malcolm Wicks: Wholesale gas prices will vary on a daily basis, determined by market conditions. The Department has not made forecasts of quarterly gas prices.

The Department's scenarios for future gas consumption were reported to Parliament in my right hon. Friend's "First Report to Parliament on Security of Gas and Electricity Supply in Great Britain" (July 2005). This can be found on the DTIs website:

http://www.dti.gov.uk/energy

International Trade Agreements

Geraldine Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what action his Department is taking within the European Union to ensure developing countries are not required to open their markets through international trade agreements. [27397]

Ian Pearson [holding answer 11 November 2005]: The UK regularly presses its position on trade in discussion with other EU member states and with the European Commission. The Government believe that:

no demands for market liberalisation should be made of LDCs;

although properly designed and sequenced trade liberalisation in developing countries has great potential to spur development, developing countries themselves have to be convinced of the case for particular reforms; special and different treatment should be available for developing countries. This should include less than full reciprocity in reduction commitments, and acceptance that developing countries need flexibility to plan and sequence liberalisation in line with national development plans and poverty reduction strategies.

Liquefied Gas Imports

Mr. Meale: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what the projected levels are of liquefied gas scheduled to be imported into the UK for the next three years. [30901]

Malcolm Wicks: Great Britain has one operational LNG (Liquefied Natural Gas) import terminal, at Isle of Grain. Two additional terminals, at Milford Haven, are scheduled to commission in 2007–08. Their projected import capacities are published in my right hon. Friend's "First Annual Report to Parliament on Security of Gas and Electricity Supply" (July 2005), available at: http://www.dti.gov.uk/energy/publications/policy/sec_supply_first_report.pdf.

The actual flows of gas are a commercial matter.

Low Carbon Buildings Programme

Mr. Chaytor: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry when he expects to set the date of the first funding round for the Low Carbon Buildings programme. [27766]

Malcolm Wicks: The new low carbon buildings programme will start in April 2006, subject to EU state aids clearance. We expect to set a date for the first funding round early next year, once a management contractor is in place.

Manufacturing

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what recent assessment he has made of manufacturing industry in Staffordshire. [29373]

Alun Michael: At the start of 2004, the latest year for which figures are available, there were 24,710 VAT registered businesses in Staffordshire of which 2,505 (10.1 per cent.) were manufacturing businesses. This picture is broadly similar to 2003 when 2,560 VAT registered businesses were manufacturers out of a total of 24,370 (10.5 per cent.).

During 2003 150 new manufacturers registered for VAT out of 2,460 new registrations (6.1 per cent). In the same year 200 manufacturers de registered out of a total number of de registrations of 2,125 (9.4 per cent.).

Business Link Staffordshire provided general advice and assistance to 2,057 manufacturing businesses in 2004–05, nearly 20 per cent. more than the previous year (1,718) and 226 business received more detailed advice (the figure the previous year being 224). Since its creation, the Manufacturing Advisory Service (MAS) has provided assistance to 518 businesses in Staffordshire, including Stoke on Trent and during the last year it has responded to 165 enquiries in Staffordshire, conducted 109 manufacturing reviews, and referred 84 manufacturers to other programmes. Businesses benefiting from MAS assistance were spread across Staffordshire including Cannock, Cheadleton, Gailey, Uttoxeter, Tamworth, Stafford, Rugeley and Penkridge.

Micro-bikes

Kerry McCarthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if he will take steps to ensure that retailers of micro-bikes make clear to customers the full legal position on the use of micro-bikes at the point-of-sale. [19356]

Hazel Blears: I have been asked to reply.

Where micro-bike nuisance has been identified as a problem locally, we would expect a local strategy to address it. This could involve the local police working with retailers to ensure that customers are aware of the law on the use of micro-bikes.

Mineworkers' Damages

Mr. Todd: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what the basis is of payment to solicitors acting as the claimants' group representing mineworkers' damages claims; and what sums were paid to the group as a whole in performing this function in each year since 1998. [29039]

Malcolm Wicks: As defendants in litigation cases, the Department is required to meet the legal costs of the co-ordinating group of claimants' solicitors. Figures for sums paid are listed as follows:

	Total paid (£ million)
1999	10.8
2003	1.6
2004	7.3
2005	1.3

These include costs for the original litigation.

Newspapers and Magazines

Angela Watkinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if he will ask the Competition Commissioner to review the news and magazine market. [31624]

Mr. Sutcliffe [holding answer 24 November 2005]: The question of whether or not a market should be referred to the Competition Commission for in depth investigation is initially a matter for the Office of Fair Trading (OFT) to consider. The respective powers of the OFT and Ministers to make references to the Competition Commission are set out in sections 131 and 132 of the Enterprise Act 2002. The OFT has been looking at the newspaper and magazine market in the context of its work to consider the compatibility with the law of distribution agreements for newspapers and magazines. The OFT published a provisional opinion on this matter in May 2005. A final opinion is unlikely to issue until early 2006.

Nightshifts

Anne Snelgrove: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what (a) steps his Department is taking and (b) discussions his Department has had with other Government Departments on protecting employees from the possible adverse effects of nightshift work. [31656]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Department for Trade and Industry implemented the Working Time Regulations in October 1998. These include limits on working time for night workers, free health assessments for night workers, and other provisions related to patterns of work. The Health and Safety Executive (HSE) was given powers by the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry under the Working Time Regulations 1998 to enforce working time limits and health assessment requirements (for night workers).

DTI and HSE work closely on Working Time Regulation issues, helping to ensure effective implementation and enforcement of the Working Time Directive.

DTI has provided training for HSE's Working Time Officers and Infoline Contact Centre staff, to improve further the quality of information to inquirers.

Nuclear Energy

John Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what steps his Department is taking to ensure the nuclear energy option remains open. [31509]

Malcolm Wicks: Maintaining nuclear skills and a research base are key areas for maintaining nuclear power as an option for the future.

Cogent Sector Skills Council was launched in March 2004. It is taking a strategic view of the nuclear sector to ensure that education and training can meet the nuclear employers current and future needs.

Opportunities for fission research are available as part of the Research Council's "Towards a Sustainable Energy Economy" initiative. Up to £6 million is being made available over four years.

The UK is continuing to participate in the development of the next generation of reactors through the Generation IV International Forum (GIF) international research programme. DTI funding of £5 million a year has been set aside in 2006–07 and 2007–08.

John Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what estimate his Department has made of the time between ordering and completion of a new build nuclear energy power station. [31510]

Malcolm Wicks: The Department has carried out no assessment on the time taken to build a new nuclear power station since publication of the 2003 Energy White Paper.

The following papers, which include a timeline on new nuclear build, were prepared for the DTI's Energy Advisory Panel and contributed to the "keeping the nuclear option open" work on the Energy White Paper:

KNOO Scoping Paper (EAP 11.06.02—P3)

KNOO Summary Paper (EAP 01.10.02—P3)

KNOO Miniprojects

These papers were placed in the Libraries of the House at the start of this year in response to a written parliamentary question from the hon. Member for Blaenau Gwent (Peter Law) on 23 February 2005, Official Report, column 648W.

John Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what arrangements he plans to make for an informed public debate on new nuclear build; and if he will make a statement. [31519]

Malcolm Wicks: As part of our general policy to focus on the climate, reliability of energy supplies and affordability for the customer, the Prime Minister has said that we will be publishing proposals on energy policy next year. We will make an assessment of all options, including civil nuclear power. The arrangements, including mechanisms for consultation, for the review are still being considered. The terms of reference will be announced shortly.

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how much nuclear energy he expects to be produced in the United Kingdom by 2020. [31714]

Malcolm Wicks: The current estimate for the percentage of electricity produced by nuclear generation in 2020 is 7 per cent. of the total.

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what assessment he has made of the implications for the Government's renewables policy from the decision to reassess the role of nuclear energy. [31715]

Malcolm Wicks: The Government remain committed to their renewables target and to the Renewables Obligation, as well as the goals set out in the energy White Paper. In announcing that proposals on energy policy will be brought forward next year, my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister made clear that the Government would be examining all options for meeting our longer-term goals, including civil nuclear power. We expect to announce the terms of reference of the review shortly.

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what assessment he made of the merits of making provision for nuclear power when introducing into Parliament the Bill for the Energy Act 2004. [31716]

Malcolm Wicks: The July 2002 White Paper, "Managing the Nuclear Legacy: A strategy for action" set out Government proposals for reforming nuclear clean up through the creation of a new public body—the Nuclear Decommissioning Authority (NDA), and for reconstituting the UKAEA Constabulary (ABAC) as a standalone force independent of the nuclear industry.

In part 1 of the Energy Act 2004 provisions were made regarding the Civil Nuclear Industry.

There were primarily two areas which the Act made provision for:

1. The establishment of the Nuclear Decommissioning Authority (NDA). The Nuclear Decommissioning Authority (NDA) was established on 1 April 2005, giving it responsibility for driving forward the clean-up of 20 UK civil nuclear sites.

2. The establishment of the new Civil Nuclear Police Authority, which is responsible for the establishment and maintenance of the new Civil Nuclear Constabulary. This authority is directly accountable to the Secretary of State and these changes have provided improved governance arrangements and greater transparency.

Nuclear Inspectorate

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what assessment has been made of the effectiveness of fines levied by the Nuclear Inspectorate on polluters in preventing (a) further incidences of pollution by the polluters and (b) incidences of pollution from others who have not previously polluted; what changes are planned; and if he will make a statement. [27793]

Malcolm Wicks: Incidents at nuclear sites giving rise to environmental pollution are generally investigated by the Environment Agency (England and Wales) or SEPA (Scotland), though joint investigations with the Nuclear Installation Inspectorate are carried out if the circumstances demand it. Prosecution cases relating to environmental pollution incidents are usually taken by the appropriate environment agency.

In cases of environmental pollution there are no statutory limits on the level of fines that a Crown court can impose. However, fines are only one of the adverse impacts of prosecution that serve as deterrents to potential offenders. The Environment Agency publicises cases where companies have received heavy fines in its annual "Spotlight on Business Performance" publication to ensure the message is received by others.

The Environmental Audit Committee considered the issue of fines and sentencing practice in 2004 and recommended that fines should be raised for environmental crimes. (House of Commons, Environmental Audit Committee: Environmental Crime and the Courts. Sixth Report of Session 2003–04). The Environment Agency has indicated that it is in broad agreement with this recommendation.

Oil Stocks

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry whether there is a difference between the levels of compulsory strategic oil stocks required to be held by companies refining in the UK and those that import; and what discussions have taken place regarding the retaining of a differential under plans to simplify UK compulsory strategic oil stockholding arrangements. [31776]

Malcolm Wicks: The UK meets its international obligations to hold stocks of oil for use in the event of disruption of supplies by imposing obligations on commercial companies. These obligations are currently based on companies' deliveries into final consumption, and we impose a heavier obligation on oil company refiners than on other companies.

Under our proposed new system, where the obligations will be based on products from refineries or entering the UK as imports, our aim is to establish a system which is fair to all parties, transparent and simple to administer. My Department issued a public consultation on the future of the UK oil stocking system in December 2003 and has since then had a series of discussions of this and other issues with interested business sectors.

Pakistan

Mr. Malik: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if the Government will encourage the European Union to suspend anti-dumping duties imposed on the export of bed linen from Pakistan. [27470]

Ian Pearson: My right hon. Friend the Prime Minister is contacting the member states of the European Union and Trade Commissioner Peter Mandelson, seeking support for the suspension of anti-dumping duties on exports of bed linen from Pakistan.

Mr. Malik: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if the Government will urge the European Union to include Pakistan in its Generalised System of Preferences Plus scheme, following the earthquake. [27472]

Ian Pearson: The UK is fully committed to doing what we can to help Pakistan recover from the impact that the earthquake has had on its industry. My right hon. Friend the Prime Minister has written to EU Heads of State to encourage them to consider trade measures which could assist Pakistan following the earthquake. These trade measures include the Generalised System of Preferences Plus scheme, among others.

Jim Cousins: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what steps he is taking during the UK presidency of the EU (a) to extend to Pakistan the benefits of inclusion in its generalised system of preferences plus scheme and (b) to suspend anti-dumping duties imposed on the export of bed linen from Pakistan to the EU. [30457]

Ian Pearson [holding answer 21 November 2005]: The UK is fully committed to doing what we can to help Pakistan recover from the impact that the earthquake has had on its industry. My right hon. Friend the Prime Minister has written to EU Heads of State to encourage them to consider trade measures which could assist Pakistan following the earthquake. These trade measures include the generalised system of preferences plus scheme and suspension of anti-dumping duties imposed on the export of bed linen from Pakistan.

Mr. Malik: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry pursuant to the answer of 16 November 2005, Official Report, column 1352W if he will use the EU presidency to press for Pakistan to be included in the Generalised System of Preferences scheme. [30780]

Ian Pearson: The UK is fully committed to doing what it can to help Pakistan recover from the impact of the recent earthquake. To this end, my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister has written to all other EU Heads of Government to encourage them to consider supporting aid and trade measures which could assist in this.

Post Offices

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what funding the Government plan to continue to allocate to facilitate the operation of post offices after 2008. [29965]

Barry Gardiner [holding answer 21 November 2005]: The Government have made it clear that it will make informed decisions about the longer-term future of the rural post office network in light of the Post Office Ltd. Report into their trials of new and innovative means of delivering postal services to rural communities. The report is due to be delivered to Government by the end of this year. This will be considered alongside analysis of the network currently being conducted.

Mary Creagh: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what is the cost of the deposit of bond needed to open a new post office. [28266]

Barry Gardiner [holding answer 14 November 2005]: This is an operational matter for Post Office Ltd (POL). I have therefore asked, the chief executive of POL, to provide a direct reply to the hon. Member.

Postcodes

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what estimate he has made of (a) the number of errors and (b) the number of properties not identified in the Postcode Address File (i) in 2005 and (ii) in the 2001 Census. [30115]

Barry Gardiner: The management of the Postcode Address File (PAF) is an operational matter for Royal Mail. I have therefore asked the Chief Executive of Royal Mail, Adam Crozier, to provide a direct reply to the hon. Member.

I understand from the Office for National Statistics that the PAF was not used directly as the basis for the enumeration of the 2001 Census. The enumeration planning was conducted using the August 1998 version of the AddressPoint, which is an Ordnance Survey product that uses the PAF.

Power Stations

Mr. Meale: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry whether he plans to extend the operational life cycles of current UK based (a) oil, (b) gas, (c) coal and (d) nuclear power stations. [30900]

Malcolm Wicks: This is a commercial decision for the owners of those power stations. It falls to them to seek the necessary permissions for such extensions.

Protection of Trading Interests Act

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many (a) males and (b) females have been (i) charged and (ii) convicted in England and Wales of offences under sections (A) 1 and (B) 2 of the Protection of Trading Interests Act 1980 in each year since 1984. [28268]

Ian Pearson: No persons, either male or female, have been either arrested or convicted under any Article of the UK's Protection of Trading Interests Act since its introduction in 1980, and subsequent revision in 1996.

Registration, Evaluation and Authorisation of Chemicals Directive

David Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what discussions his Department's officials have had with representatives of the World Trade Organisation on the provisions of the EU's registration, evaluation and authorisation of chemicals directive. [29445]

Ian Pearson: The Department has not held any discussions with the World Trade Organisation (WTO) on the above matter. The proposed Regulation on Registration, Evaluation and Authorisation of Chemicals (REACH) is a proposal for European Community legislation and responsibility lies with the European Commission to ensure that the WTO and its members are aware of the proposal and, where provided, have the opportunity to comment.

The Commission notified the WTO membership about REACH under the Technical Barriers to Trade (TBT) Agreement on 21 January 2004. This notification was followed up with a series of bilateral meetings between the Commission and WTO members on 30 June 2004. The Commission subsequently provided a formal response on 21 October 2004 to comments received from WTO members in reply to the TBT notification. DTI officials were in attendance at the meetings of the TBT Committee where the EC's notification of REACH was discussed.

Renewable Energy

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what steps he is taking to support (a) schools and (b) other community ventures with regard to renewable energy projects. [30484]

Malcolm Wicks: I refer my hon. Friend to the reply I gave to the hon. Member for North Norfolk (Norman Lamb) on 16 November 2005, Official Report, column 1356W.

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what assessment he has made of the (a) technical, (b) economic and (c) environmental effects of operating an offshore wind facility in conjunction with a wave power facility. [30916]

Malcolm Wicks: The Department has made no assessment of the technical, economic and environmental effects of operating an offshore wind facility in conjunction with a wave power facility. This is primarily a matter for renewable developers.

Rover (Former Employees)

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what estimate he has made of how many former workers at Rover are in full-time employment; what their average earnings are; how many are claiming unemployment benefit; and of these how many are in (a) full-time and (b) part-time education. [28571]

Alun Michael: On 8 April the Secretary of State announced the creation of the Rover Task Force to decide how best to allocate the Government support package being provided and oversee its effective implementation. Some, but not all of the requested information is being monitored by the Rover Task Force, and I can provide the following details:

> Of those 6,160 Rover and supplier employees made redundant as a result of MG Rover and 344 former supplier workers have now found jobs.
> As regards training, a total of 3,677 training plans have been developed, 3,411 former employees have been booked on courses and 2,260 have started training courses.

There is, of course some overlap between, on the one hand, those booking and starting training and on the other, those undertaking training and those starting work.

Service Liberalisation

Anne Snelgrove: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if he will make a statement on EU plans to introduce compulsory targets for service liberalisation in developing countries. [31652]

Ian Pearson: The EU proposal on services aims to substantially improve market access. It recognises a distinction between developed and developing countries in setting targets and the need for balance in the negotiations.

The UK's established preference is for a settlement that avoids all new mandatory requirements on developing countries to liberalise services. We will continue to work towards this goal. We are particularly determined to ensure the maintenance of flexibilities to reflect the individual circumstances of developing countries and preserve members' ability to respond to targets based on their own national policy objectives.

Social Enterprises

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what steps he is taking to encourage the growth of social enterprises in the most deprived areas of Tamworth constituency. [29374]

Alun Michael: In July 2002 the DTI published the Government's social enterprise strategy: 'Social Enterprise: A Strategy for Success'. The Government's vision is of > "dynamic and sustainable social enterprise strengthening an inclusive and growing economy."

The strategy sets out how successful social enterprises can play an important role in helping deliver on many of the Government's key policies.

In 2004, Advantage West Midlands funded the development of a framework to guide investment in the social enterprise sector over the next 10 years and the resulting West Midlands social enterprise framework, provides a West Midlands perspective to the DTI's national social enterprise strategy. The framework is designed to assist social enterprises across the West Midlands.

Within the last two years Business Link Staffordshire has provided intensive support to 47 social enterprises and basic information to many more. The way that the Business Link code their services make it impossible for these statistics to be disaggregated within Staffordshire. Supporting the growth of social enterprises within Tamworth and the rest of Staffordshire will remain an important part of the Business Link's support and development of Staffordshire businesses.

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many initiatives in (a) Staffordshire and (b) Tamworth have been awarded funding from the Phoenix Development Fund; and if he will extend funding to encourage the growth of social enterprises in disadvantaged communities. [29375]

Alun Michael: The Phoenix Development Fund awarded funding to two projects in Staffordshire. There are no projects covering the Tamworth area. Business support activities and funding for social enterprises, are now part of the remit of regional development agencies, who seek to promote the growth of enterprises, including social enterprise, in the parts of their region that lag economically as well as the region as a whole, on the basis of the regional economics strategy.

Organisation with which have receive Phoenix funding in Staffordshire include:

Arch (North Staffs) (community enterprise and homelessness), received £239,000 (completed)

Business Link Staffordshire (social enterprises in disadvantaged communities) received £221,000 (completed)

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry (1) how many new jobs have been created through social enterprise in (a) Staffordshire and (b) Tamworth since 1997; [29376]

(2) how much Government funding social enterprises in (a) Staffordshire and (b) Tamworth have received in (i) the 2005–06 financial year and (ii) in 2004–05. [29377]

Alun Michael: Our support for social enterprise is provided through the Regional Development Agency in each region. To date, Advantage West Midlands, has invested more than £5 million on almost 100 regional and sub regional initiatives to support social enterprise. It has not been possible to disaggregate those project statistics on a sub regional level and AWM has not distinguished between jobs created by social and other enterprises. It has therefore not been possible to provide separate information on job creation in social enterprises.

A key example of the assistance that has been provided through the projects is the advantage community loan fund which provides access to loans for community, social and 'not for profit' enterprises.

Telephone Preference Service

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what recent discussions his Department has had with the Information Commissioner's Office regarding the enforcement of breaches of the telephone preference service; and if he will make a statement. [28554]

Alun Michael: Officials from this Department regularly discuss the enforcement of the TPS with the Information Commissioner's Office.

Tidal Power

Mrs. James: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if he will make a statement on the development of tidal lagoon facilities in United Kingdom waters to generate electricity. [30764]

Malcolm Wicks: Tidal lagoons, as with other forms of large-scale barrage, are technically feasible and are applications of available and well understood technologies. The technology has a potential to contribute to the UK's renewable energy targets and is eligible for support through the renewables obligation. The environmental impacts and economies of any proposed scheme would need to be assessed by the developers and planning authorities on a case-by-case basis.

UK Trade and Investment

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry whether his Department has commissioned further research by Ernst and Young following their preliminary findings on the expenses of employees in UK Trade and Investment. [28662]

Ian Pearson: The Department has not commissioned further research by Ernst and Young.

UK-US Trade

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what the average tariff levied on (a) agricultural and (b) non-agricultural products (i) from the UK to the US and (ii) from the US to the UK was in 2004–05. [30498]

Ian Pearson [holding answer 21 November 2005]: Tariffs for the UK are those set at the European Union level. The latest data available is reported as follows—2004 for the United States and 2005 for the EU. These are average applied tariffs, obtained from the World Trade Organisation Statistical database.

(a) (i) average agricultural tariff applied by the US: 6.8 per cent.

(a) (ii) average agricultural tariff applied by the EU: 5.9 per cent.

(b) (i) average non-agricultural tariff applied by the US: 3.3 per cent.

(b) (ii) average non-agricultural tariff applied by the EU: 4.0 per cent.

Wave Energy

Joan Ruddock: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry pursuant to the answer of 25 October 2005, Official Report, column 305W, on wave energy, whether he plans to support the Ocean Wave Master via the Marine Renewables Development Fund. [31201]

Malcolm Wicks: In January 2005 the Department published proposals for the allocation of the £50 million 'Marine Renewables Deployment Fund' that will support the continued development of the marine renewables sector.

At the core of those proposals was a £42 million Wave and Tidal Stream Energy Demonstration Scheme for which the eligibility criteria are available on the DTI website. The demonstration scheme is expected to commence in the first quarter of 2006 and to receive applications on set dates throughout the year. It will be for device developers to demonstrate that they meet the eligibility criteria for the demonstration scheme. As the allocation of funding is on a competitive process it is not possible at this stage to allocate funds to individual proposals.

The balance of Marine Renewables Deployment Fund will support underpinning research into the impacts of the demonstration projects (up to £2 million) and infrastructure projects (up to £6 million).

Wind Farms

Mr. David Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry whether he has received objections from National Air Traffic Services to the proposed development of the Gwynt Y Mor offshore wind farm in North Wales. [29272]

Malcolm Wicks: No application for consent has been received in respect of the proposed Gwynt y Mor offshore wind farm and, there is, therefore, no formal objection process in place. However, I am aware that National Air Traffic Services (NATS) has considered the potential impact of the project as part of its initial review of all round 2 offshore wind farm projects.

NATS will be consulted on any consent application that is received by the Department and will be able to prepare their formal response in the light of the information contained in the environmental statement which will be submitted by the developer in support of its application.

WTO Negotiations

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what assessment he has made of the likely effect of the EU's most recent offer in the World Trade Organisation trade negotiations on (a) applied EU non-agricultural tariffs and (b) services trade liberalisation. [29490]

Ian Pearson: The EU's second offer sought agreement on a simple Swiss tariff formula for industrial goods. This is a non-linear, harmonising formula that is effective at reducing high tariffs and peaks and narrowing tariff escalations. Such a formula would lead to a substantial improvement in real market access through cuts in the applied duties of developed and more competitive developing countries, on the understanding that developing countries should do less. The UK is working hard within the EU to ensure no new obligations are imposed on LDCs and that any NAMA agreement for developing countries respects the principle of less than full reciprocity and maximises Special and Differential Treatment. We recognise the importance for developing countries of maintaining flexibility.

The EU proposal on services aims to substantially improve market access, and recognises a distinction between developed and developing countries in setting targets and the need for balance in the negotiations. The UK's established preference is for a settlement that avoids all new mandatory requirements on developing countries to liberalise services, and we will continue to work towards this goal. We are particularly determined to ensure the maintenance of flexibilities to reflect the individual circumstances of developing countries and preserve members' ability to respond to targets based on their own national policy objectives.

Mr. McGrady: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if he will press for trade justice rather than free trade at the meeting of the World Trade Organisation in Hong Kong in December. [29523]

Ian Pearson: In his open letter of 2 November to the Trade Justice Movement, the Secretary of State emphasised our commitment to securing the best possible deal for developing countries at Hong Kong.

For ease of reference I set out the full text of his letter here:

This has been a big year for international development. In June, Gordon Brown's deal with world finance ministers cancelled large chunks of the debt that has crippled the poorest countries and held back their development. In July, at the G8 summit in Gleneagles, the Prime Minister secured an agreement that pledged $50 billion extra in aid.

The third crucial area with which to tackle world poverty is fairer trade. The World Trade Orgapisation talks in Hong Kong in December offer an opportunity for the world community to address the imbalances in the world trading system and to deliver an outcome that will enable developing countries to trade their way out of poverty.

Trade offers huge potential for developing countries. Inequities in the world trading system disadvantage poor countries. Boosting Africa's share of world trade by just 1 per cent. could deliver seven times as much income as the whole continent currently gets in aid. So increasing the opportunity to trade is vital. But there are risks in trade liberalisation for developing countries—dislocation, job losses and income volatility—if it is done too quickly and not as part of a broader development strategy. So we oppose forced liberalisation.

Today, as thousands of campaigners are lobbying Parliament to make poverty history by delivering trade justice, I want to record Government's support for your objective of no forced liberalisation. We want to ensure better access to Western markets, as well as removing the hidden barriers to trade faced by developing countries and other inequalities that remain in the world trading system.

The Trade Justice Movement is asking the UK government to use its influence within the EU to deliver on four key concerns:

Stop pushing poor countries to open their economies through world trade talks. We agree. The UK believes that developing countries should not be forced to open up their markets either through trade negotiations or aid conditionality.

Respect poor countries' right to decide on trade policies to help end poverty and protect their environment. We agree. It is for developing countries to make their own decisions on the timing, pace, sequencing and product coverage of any market opening in line with their own national development plans and poverty reduction strategies.

Allow developing countries to shape trade policies that protect vulnerable farm sectors and promote national industries. We agree. A pro-development agreement at Hong Kong should include meaningful provision for special and differential treatment, including special products, that enables developing countries to promote food security, rural development and the protection of livelihoods.

Allow countries to choose the best policies for poor people and the environment in services such as water, health and education. We agree. We strongly support the current voluntary arrangement for trade in services precisely because it allows liberalisation of services to take place in a way that supports national development plans. In the run up to Hong Kong, we are pushing other developed countries to ensure that the Hong Kong deal gives developing countries the flexibility that they need to plan and sequence trade reform in line with their national development plans. It may not be possible to deliver all that we would like to see, but we are committed to use our influence to secure the best possible deal for developing countries.

It will be challenging to build the consensus around a package at Hong Kong that truly delivers on the promises of the Doha Development Agenda, but, as the Prime Minister has said, we will not let this opportunity pass without a monumental struggle.

WTO Talks

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what specific aims and objectives the Government will press the EU to take up at the World Trade Organisation talks in Hong Kong. [30103]

Ian Pearson: The Government are committed to achieving an ambitious package at the Sixth World Trade Organisation Ministerial Conference in Hong Kong that is pro-development will allow a conclusion to the round by the end of 2006 and helps build—through liberalising developed world markets—a more competitive European economy.

DEFENCE

Afghanistan

Mr. Robathan: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what units are planned to be deployed to Afghanistan in 2006; and on what date. [31421]

Mr. Ingram [holding answer 24 November 2005]: On current plans, the Headquarters Group of the Allied Rapid Reaction Corps and supporting forces will deploy to Afghanistan to command the International Security Assistance Force from May 2006 to February 2007. Joint Force Harrier personnel, predominantly from IV (AC) Squadron, Royal Air Force, will remain in Kandahar until February 2006 when they are planned to be relieved by 1 (F) Squadron. Work to prepare for a possible commitment of British forces to Southern Afghanistan in 2006 is also under way but, as I made clear in my recent statement of 14 November 2005, Official Report, columns 41–42WS, no final decisions have yet been made on such a deployment.

Army Board

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 28 October 2005, Official Report, column 1259W, which case the Army Board requested the Attorney-General to review; and on what date. [26128]

Mr. Touhig: The answer of 28 October stated that on one occasion the Army Board had requested the Attorney-General to review a case. In fact, the Army Board as a formed body did not request that review and has requested no other review. Rather on 25 March 2004, the Adjutant-General, who is a member of the Army Board, requested that the case involving Trooper Williams of 2nd Battalion Royal Tank Regiment be passed to the Attorney-General. The request came after discussion with other senior army officers. Ministers were not involved in the decision to make the request for referral.

Avian Influenza

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what steps he has taken to provide vaccines for the armed forces in the event of an epidemic of avian influenza. [30354]

Mr. Touhig: On 20 July, the Department of Health (DH) announced its intention to purchase a limited amount of H5N1 vaccine as part of its ongoing preparations for a possible influenza pandemic in humans and the Ministry of Defence is ensuring that these plans take account of Defence needs. The MOD has ordered H5N1 vaccine from the DH, who have noted our requirement and included it in the tender bid. However, supplies of this vaccine are not currently available. Nor is it known with certainty that it would give protection against an influenza pandemic should the pandemic strain be a variant of the H5N1 influenza that is currently circulating in birds.

The current MOD policy with respect to offering flu vaccine is based on the NHS policy of only offering it to specific groups of personnel (such as key workers in the Defence Medical Services), in accordance with guidelines in the Department of Health Green Book "Immunisation Against Infectious Disease".

Civil Service Relocation

Mr. Djanogly: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the capitation cost is of (a) relocating a civil servant in his Department on public interest terms and (b) an average redundancy compensation payment for non-mobile civil servants. [31865]

Mr. Ingram: Both transfer and redundancy costs are dependent upon a wide range of individual factors and arithmetic averages are likely to be of limited relevance and, potentially, misleading if applied to any single site closure or relocation programme.

However, in answer to part (a), the Department does use an overall average figure of £28,000 as an approximate guide to the costs that might arise when a mobile civil servant moves home at public expense. It is important to understand that this figure is a UK average and covers a span from the relatively inexpensive transfer of a single non-householder (costing around £5,000) up to a married owner occupier (costing some £36,000). But when individual moves are in prospect, the actual costs will depend upon the relative housing costs within the existing and new areas as well as upon the individual personal circumstances of those being transferred. Where a transfer is made to a new location within what is deemed to be reasonable daily travel of the existing home, the value of the allowances paid will generally be lower.

Turning to part (b), the provision of a meaningful redundancy cost is equally problematic. This is because the amount paid will depend on factors such as length of service, salary and age. To illustrate this, in a recent redundancy exercise involving 17 non-mobile civil servants, the highest total redundancy liability cost was £77,000 and the lowest was £1,000. The overall average for that particular exercise was £24,500.

Commissioner Reports

Mr. Mullin: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to his answer of 21 November 2005, Official Report, column 1565W where the reports of (a) the Office of Surveillance Commissioners and (b) the Information Services Commissioner are made publicly available; what estimate he has made of the cost of inspections by HM Inspector of Constabulary; and what budget provision has been made to meet the costs. [31662]

Mr. Ingram: The reports on the service police produced by the Office of the Surveillance Commissioners and Information Services Commissioner refer to police investigations, operations and/or procedures, and for this reason their reports are not made publicly available.

We are still discussing with HMIC the possibility of inspections and in advance of any agreement it is not possible to say what costs will arise. No specific funds have been set aside for any inspection that may be agreed.

Defence Aviation Repair Agency

Mr. Gerald Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) what assessment he has made of the likely effect the closure of the fast jet business at the Defence Aviation Repair Agency St. Athan will have on his Department's ability to meet a sudden increase in workload; [29223]

RAF Bases

(2) what assessment he has made of the capacity at the RAF's bases at (a) Cottesmore and (b) Marham to deal with a sudden increase in (i) Harrier and (ii) Tornado maintenance work. [29222]

Mr. Ingram [holding answer 21 November 2005]: The concentration of logistic support 'forward' to MOBs is specifically designed to provide the flexibility to absorb urgent tasking in addition to scheduled maintenance and future upgrade work. Indeed RAF Cottesmore is currently undertaking additional maintenance of Harrier GR7 aircraft in support of operational flying in Afghanistan.

Departmental Estate

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence which buildings and sites used by his Department and related agencies (a) have ceased to be used in the last year and (b) will be closed under current plans for relocation. [31781]

Mr. Touhig: The information requested is currently being obtained from a number of separate sources and will take a little time to collate. I will write to the hon. Member and place a copy of my letter in the Library of the House.

Departmental Finance

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the real terms percentage increase in allocated resources for his Department (a) was for the period 1997–98 to 2004–05 and (b) is estimated to be between 2005–06 and 2007–08 (i) for each period and (ii) for each year. [31030]

Mr. Ingram: The period 1997–98 to 2004–05 covers the transition from cash accounting to resource accounting and budgeting (RAB). Using figures on a comparable basis, the defence budget has grown over the period 1997–98 to 2004–05 by 2.6 per cent. in real terms.

For the period 2005–06 to 2007–08, the real terms percentage increase in the Defence total departmental expenditure limits is predicted to be 2.7 per cent. The annual average growth for each year of this period is 1.4 per cent.

Mr. Gerald Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will list the programmes covered by the capital commitments which are contracted for, but not provided for, in 2004–05. [32712]

Mr. Ingram: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 9 November 2005, Official Report, column 555W, to the right hon. and learned Member for Devizes (Mr. Ancram).

Falkland Islands (Land Mines)

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what progress is being made in clearing landmines from the Falkland Islands. [31915]

Mr. Ingram: Under the Ottawa Convention, the United Kingdom is required to clear all anti-personnel mines from its territory by March 2009. The only UK territory affected is the Falkland Islands. Discussions are taking place with the Government of Argentina to agree a joint feasibility study, including a field survey of the Islands. A decision on how to proceed will be made once the results of the feasibility study are known.

Helicopters

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many RAF helicopters have been cannibalized over the last 12 months; and if he will make a statement. [31027]

Mr. Ingram: Cannibalisation is a recognised and long standing activity within the repair and maintenance function. Cannibalisation may apply as much to an uninstalled assembly, for example an engine, as it does to the platform itself and refers to the removal of components of any size down to a single nut.

The number of RAF helicopters which have been cannibalised is not held centrally. Records are only maintained on the total number of times cannibalisation has taken place. The following table shows this information, by aircraft type, for the period November 2004 to October 2005.

Aircraft type	Total cannibalisations in last 12 months
RAF Chinook	742
RAF Merlin	243
RAF Puma	368
RAF Sea King	246

Income Tax

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what recent assessment he has made of the likely impact of allowing service men and women not to be liable for income tax during operational tours, with particular reference to retention. [29606]

Mr. Touhig: No such assessment has been made. The long-standing rule recognised by successive governments is that crown servants, including members of the armed forces, are chargeable to income tax on their Government salaries wherever they are serving.

Iraq

Mark Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many (a) servicemen and (b) servicewomen from Welsh regiments have been (i) killed and (ii) wounded in military service in Iraq since 20 March 2003. [29393]

Mr. Touhig: Three members of Welsh Regiments serving in Iraq have died or been killed while on Operation TELIC, but owing to the nature of the operation, centralised casualty data have not routinely included the unit with which injured members of armed forces serve.

Landing Ships Dock Project

Mr. Gerald Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when the decision was taken to replace the Integrated Project Team leader for the Landing Ships Dock (Auxiliary) project. [29781]

Mr. Ingram [holding answer 21 November 2005]: A decision to change the Integrated Project Team leader for the Landing Ships Dock (Auxiliary) project was made on 28 October 2005.

Mr. Gerald Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what his reasons were for changing the Integrated Project Team leader for the Landing Ships Dock (Auxiliary) project. [29782]

Mr. Ingram [holding answer 21 November 2005]: It is not Ministry of Defence policy to discuss the specifics of individual official's appointments.

Military Airfields

Mr. Meacher: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to his answer to the right hon. and learned Member for North-East Fife (Sir Menzies Campbell) of 17 November 2005, Official Report, column 1415W, on military airfields, if he will list the occasions in the last five years when his Department has recorded the pilot and aircraft details of aircraft transiting through military airfields. [31590]

Mr. Ingram: The information requested has not been recorded centrally over the last five years and could be provided only at a disproportionate cost.

Nuclear Weapons

Mr. Kilfoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what discussions he has had with the US Administration on the replacement of Trident. [32350]

John Reid: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for New Forest East (Dr. Julian Lewis) on 9 November 2005, Official Report, column 560W.

Mr. Kilfoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make a statement on his plans to facilitate a national debate on the replacement for Trident. [32351]

John Reid: I have nothing to add to the answer that I gave to the Member for Berwickshire, Roxburgh and Selkirk (Mr. Moore) on 14 October 2005, Official Report, column 619W.

Mr. Kilfoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what estimates he has made of the likely cost of replacing Trident, broken down by cost of new (a) platforms, (b) delivery systems and (c) warheads. [32352]

John Reid: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer that I gave to my hon. Friend the Member for Pendle (Mr. Gordon Prentice) on 20 October 2005, Official Report, column 1217W.

Poland

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what plans the Royal Navy has to conduct joint exercises with the Polish navy. [30824]

Mr. Ingram: Under current plans, the Royal Navy expects to participate in six multinational exercises alongside the Polish navy in 2006, and in NATO's exercise Noble Mariner, which will take place in Poland in 2007.

Public Service Agreements

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the specific time scales are for measurement of each aspect of performance against 2004 public service agreement target number 6. [29934]

Mr. Ingram: The Ministry of Defence provides quarterly reports to the Treasury on performance against public service agreement (PSA) targets. PSA performance is also reported to the House in the spring and autumn performance reports and the annual report and accounts as appropriate.

RAF Bases

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many people are employed in a (a) military and (b) civilian capacity at RAF Leeming. [30981]

Mr. Ingram: In the answer which I gave to the hon. Member on 7 April 2005, Official Report, column 1763W, I said that there were approximately 1,570 service posts and 280 civilian posts at Leeming. The figure for service posts covered the main station establishment, but not the lodger units there. Including these units, the service posts figure would have been 1,800.

On a like-for-like basis, the current figures are approximately 1,590 service and 270 civilian posts. The reduction in service posts from 1,800 to 1,590 is primarily the result of the disbandment of XI(F) Squadron on 31 October 2005.

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when RAF Leeming first became operational for Royal Air Force purposes. [30982]

Mr. Ingram: RAF Leeming became operational as a Royal Air Force bomber station in July 1940.

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assessment he has made of the implications for (a) employment at RAF Leeming and (b) the local economy of (i) the closure of the base and (ii) its conversion to an army base. [30983]

Mr. Ingram: As I previously advised the hon. Member on 17 October 2005, Official Report, column 626W, RAF Leeming has a future and a number of strands of work beyond the Defence Airfields Review could benefit the station. No decisions have yet been made.

Mr. Djanogly: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) what the cost was of the relocation of work from Harrogate and RAF Swanton Morley to RAF Wyton that took place between 1994 and 1996; [31867]

(2) if he will place in the Library a copy of the Post Project Evaluation for the relocation of works from Harrogate to RAF Wyton which took place between 1994 and 1996. [31866]

Mr. Touhig: I will write to the hon. Member and place a copy of my letter in the Library of the House.

Recruitment (Fiji)

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many Fijian citizens have been recruited by the British armed forces since 1997; and if he will make a statement. [30931]

Mr. Ingram: The number of Fijian nationals recruited by the United Kingdom regular Army from civilian life between 1 January 1997 and 30 September 2005 is 2,125.

Historic nationality data for the naval service and the RAF cannot be provided as data are not centrally held in individual records.

Security/Defence Review

Mr. Kilfoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will undertake a comprehensive security and defence review; and if he will discuss with the Foreign Secretary linking such a review with a review of foreign policy. [32348]

John Reid: The Ministry of Defence routinely reviews long term security and defence policy and does so in consultation with the Foreign Commonwealth Office and other Government Departments.

Skyguard Survey

Adam Price: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will publish the results of the Skyguard survey in the Cwmifor area. [32266]

Mr. Touhig: The Defence Flying Complaints Investigation Team (DFCIT) are tasked to carry out covert monitoring operations using a Skyguard radar system to monitor low flying military activity. The DFCIT has not released the outcome of the Skyguard survey for the Cwmifor area at present, as the results are still being analysed. I will write to the hon. Member as soon as the results are available and will place a copy of my letter in the Library of the House.

Territorial Army

Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many of the Territorial Army Infantry private soldiers available for Operation Telic 7 on 1 June remained available following the deployment, broken down by regiment. [29535]

Mr. Touhig: This information is not held centrally and can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Trident

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the cost was of the Trident missile system in 2004–05. [30330]

John Reid: In 2004–05, the capital and operating costs of the Trident nuclear deterrent, including the costs for the Atomic Weapons Establishment Aldermaston, were just under 4 per cent. of the Defence budget.

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what studies his Department has undertaken on a possible replacement for the UK's Trident nuclear missile capability; whether information from the studies will be placed in the public domain; and if he will make a statement. [31629]

John Reid: Initial preparatory work is being undertaken by officials on possible options for any replacement of the UK's nuclear deterrent capability. However, while decisions are likely to be necessary in the current Parliament, they are still some way off and Ministers have not yet begun to consider the position on this issue in any detail. It is therefore premature to speculate on the range of options that might be available and when and how we might place additional information in the public domain.

Vanguard Submarines

Mr. Kilfoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assessment he has made of the impact of (a) changed operational practices of the Vanguard type submarines and (b) changed strategic circumstances in which they are deployed. [32354]

John Reid: The operational posture of Vanguard-class submarines, including a reduced day-to-day alert state with a reduced load of warheads, detargeted missiles and a normal 'notice to fire' of several days, was set out in the 1998 strategic defence review. This posture remains appropriate to the strategic environment.

CONSTITUTIONAL AFFAIRS

1911 Census

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs pursuant to the answer of 24 October 2005, Official Report, column 6W, what the (a) statutory and (b) other basis is for the 100-year census closure policy. [30155]

Ms Harman: Requests to view information contained in the 1911 census returns are considered under the Freedom of Information Act 2000. So far it has not been possible to grant any requests received because they have all been covered by the S.41 exemption relating to breach of confidence.

The Government believe that a closure period of 100 years strikes the correct balance between the right of citizens to have information about themselves kept confidential and the rights of family historians and other researchers to have access to that information.

Since 1981 explicit assurances have been given on census forms that the returns will be kept confidential for 100 years. Opening the 1911 census before 100 years have elapsed could undermine public confidence in those assurances.

Asylum Law Provision

Mr. McGovern: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs how many legal providers have gained accreditation to operate in the field of asylum law since April 2004 in (a) England, (b) Wales, (c) Scotland and (d) Dundee. [32717]

Bridget Prentice: The Immigration and Asylum Accreditation Scheme was introduced in April 2004 in England and Wales. As at 24 November 2005 there were 1,555 accredited caseworkers including 22 caseworkers registered with suppliers in Wales. Legal aid is a devolved matter but I understand that while the Law Society of Scotland operates an accreditation scheme in various types of law this does not cover immigration and asylum law. I understand the Law Society of Scotland's records show that there are 112 firms that provide a service in immigration and nationality law, four of which are based in Dundee.

Mr. McGovern: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs how many asylum cases have been undertaken by lawyers who had (a) gained accreditation and (b) not gained accreditation since April 2004. [32730]

Bridget Prentice: The Legal Services Commission records claims by contracted supplier and not individual caseworker and therefore it is not possible to specify the number of cases undertaken by accredited caseworkers since 1 April 2004.

The Immigration and Asylum Accreditation Scheme was introduced in April 2004 and was fully implemented in August 2005. Any contracted supplier who from 1 August uses non-accredited caseworkers to perform work on new cases in the immigration category is not eligible to claim for this work and contract sanctions may be enforced. The Legal Services Commission has terminated or is in the process of terminating the immigration contracts of suppliers who do not have the requisite accredited staff.

Compensation Claims

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what guidance her Department has given local authorities on handling compensation claims. [29713]

Ms Harman: The Department has not issued any guidance to local authorities on handling compensation claims. We are coordinating a programme of work across Government to stop a compensation culture developing and to improve the compensation system for people with a valid claim. Part of that work involves encouraging defendants such as local authorities to resist bad claims. The Office of the Deputy Prime Minister is one of the Departments involved in this work.

Correspondence

Clare Short: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs when she will reply to the letter of 23 May from the right hon. Member for Birmingham, Ladywood (acknowledgement reference 184337–1) regarding Birmingham magistrates court. [32275]

Ms Harman: I am sorry that the hon. Member has not received a response to her letter. I have now sent a reply.

Courts Service Estate Review

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs if she will list the (a) national, (b) regional and (c) area level reports published as part of the HM Courts Service National Estate Review. [31008]

Ms Harman: I am continuously reviewing the provision of court estate across England and Wales to see that it is satisfactory. There are no such published reports.

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what plans she has for the consultation process on the review of courts within South Wales, with particular reference to the Cabinet Office code of practice on consultation. [31009]

Ms Harman: I am continuously reviewing the provision of court estate across England and Wales. Should I propose a change to that provision that requires consultation, I shall carry out a consultation in full accordance with the Cabinet Office code of practice on consultation.

Data Protection

John Hemming: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs if she will increase individuals' rights under the Data Protection Act 1998. [30686]

Ms Harman: The Data Protection Act 1998, which accurately reflects the requirements of the Data Protection Directive (Directive 95/46/EC), puts in place a firm regulatory structure to ensure the legitimate processing of individuals' personal data. It provides substantial rights for individuals in respect of their personal data, including the right of subject access, the right to prevent processing likely to cause damage or distress, the right to prevent processing for the purposes of direct marketing, rights in relation to automated decision-making, compensation for failure to comply with certain of the Act's requirements, and the right to have data rectified, blocked, erased or otherwise destroyed in certain circumstances. The Freedom of Information Act 2000 also extended individuals' right of subject access, in respect of all public authorities, to include a much wider range of non-computerised records. We currently have no plans to review the Act.

John Hemming: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what the (a) number and (b) average size of awards by the courts for compensation for breaches of the Data Protection Act 1998 was in the last year for which figures are available. [30687]

Ms Harman: The information requested is not held centrally and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Salaries

Mike Penning: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs if she will list the 10 highest-paid employees in her Department, broken down by (a) job title and (b) salary including bonuses; and whether the individual concerned is (i) a civil servant and (ii) a contractor in each case. [27574]

Bridget Prentice: It is not possible to provide the information in the way requested without revealing the identity of those concerned. I can, however, confirm that the eight highest paid senior civil service staff in the DCA and its agencies earn in excess of £120,000, as follows:

Salary range	Number of staff
£120,000 to £129,999	4
£130,000 to £139,000	1
£140,000 to £149,999	1
£150,000 to £159,999	2

Bonus payments in addition this year for these employees have ranged from nothing to £14,000.

All of these salaries are contained within the senior civil service pay ranges and paid in accordance with the arrangements for civil service reward, details of which can be found at http://www.civilservice.gov.uk/index.asp.

The two other highest paid employees in the DCA are specialists employed on a fee paid basis for particular projects whose daily remuneration is £800 and £2,100 retrospectively.

Departmental Spending

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs how much the Department spent on items of art in 2004–05. [23477]

Bridget Prentice: My Department has not incurred any expenditure on items of art in 2004–05. This will be confirmed once the Department's resource accounts are published.

EU Citizen Franchise

Mr. Bone: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs how many citizens of EU member states other than the UK exercised their right under Article 19 of the Treaty Establishing the European Community to vote at the last European, parliamentary and local elections within the United Kingdom. [31071]

Ms Harman: No record is kept of categories of electors who cast votes in UK elections based upon nationality. Elections are conducted on the basis of the relevant electoral register which does not identify the nationality of electors. Whilst there is no definitive data on turnout among electors of different national groups, the Office for National Statistics compiles and publishes each year the annual register of those entitled to vote in elections in the UK. Resident citizens of the Irish Republic or of other EU States like Cyprus and Malta that are also members of the Commonwealth are included indistinguishably with British citizens in the register of parliamentary electors. The register of local electors reveals that as of 1 December 2003 the number of citizens of other EU states who were eligible to vote in June 2004 at local elections in Great Britain was 407,145. No separate record is kept of such EU citizens who have opted to vote in the UK rather than in the state of which they are nationals at European parliamentary elections.

Freedom of Information Act

Mr. Heald: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs pursuant to the answer of 13 October 2005, Official Report, column 593W, on the Freedom of Information Act, what guidance has been produced on the status of non-judicial inquiries not established under the Inquiries Act 2005 as public authorities under the Freedom of Information Act 2000. [23636]

Ms Harman: My Department has not produced specific guidance on the status of non-judicial inquiries not established under the Inquiries Act as public authorities under the Freedom of Information Act 2000.

My Department has produced general guidance on coverage of the Act, which is publicly available on our website. It is not possible to produce specific guidance on the coverage of non-judicial inquiries not established under the Inquiries Act as they will be established in a number of different ways.

It is possible that most non-judicial inquiries will not be public authorities or part of other public authorities and so not covered by the Act. However, once an inquiry has been completed, its records are generally held by a public authority, such as a Government Department or the National Archives and become subject to the Act.

Human Rights Act

Mr. Cash: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs in what circumstances she would propose amendments to the Human Rights Act 1998. [32379]

Ms Harman: It is necessary from time to time to make amendments to the Human Rights Act 1998 consequential upon new legislation. For example, if the United Kingdom becomes party to any further Protocols of the European Convention on Human Rights, it may also be desirable to amend the Human Rights Act to append any new substantive rights to those listed in Schedule 1 of the Act. Otherwise, I do not intend to propose any amendments to the Human Rights Act at this time.

IT Projects

Dr. Cable: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs how many of the IT projects costing over £1 million in use in her Department and introduced since 1997 have been scrutinised by the Public Accounts Committee; and if she will list them. [26608]

Ms Harman: The only IT project costing over £1 million in use in her Department and introduced since 1997 which has been scrutinised by the Public Accounts Committee is Libra, which supplies modern IT services and infrastructure for the magistrates courts.

Dr. Cable: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs how many IT projects which cost over £1 million and were introduced since 1997 are in use in her Department. [26609]

Ms Harman: For my Department, expenditure on IT Projects in excess of £1 million since 1997 is contained within three separate contracts, namely LOCCS, the Libra contract and ARAMIS.

LOCCS refers to Local County Court Systems which provide operational IT systems to Her Majesty's Court Service.

Libra provides case management and Office Automation to magistrates courts, and it will deliver a standardised IT system.

ARAMIS is the Accounting Resource and Management Information System which provides accounting, financial, HR/payroll and management information services to the Department.

Legal Aid

Susan Kramer: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs how many solicitors in Richmond-upon-Thames borough and the Royal borough of Kingston-upon-Thames provide legal aid services for (a) housing, (b) social welfare, (c) mental health, (d) employment, (e) family and (f) criminal defence; and if she will make a statement. [31439]

Bridget Prentice: The Legal Services Commission contracts with suppliers throughout England and Wales to provide a range of legal and advice services across different categories of law.

The following numbers of contracted suppliers currently undertake legal aid work in Richmond-upon-Thames borough and the Royal borough of Kingston-upon-Thames:

	Richmond-upon-Thames	Kingston-upon-Thames
Housing	5	7
Social Welfare[1]	5	7
Mental Health	5	6
Employment	5	7
Family	1	3
Criminal defence	3	3

[1] 'Social Welfare' includes the contract categories 'Debt', 'Welfare Benefits' and 'Community Care'.

The Commission does not hold information about the number of solicitors employed in each office. Solicitors located in other areas may regularly undertake legal aid work in Richmond-upon-Thames and Kingston-upon-Thames.

Lyons Inquiry

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs pursuant to the answer of 17 October 2005, Official Report, column 753W, on the Lyons Inquiry, whether her Department has given guidance to the Lyons Inquiry on whether it is regulated by the Freedom of Information Act. [22326]

Ms Harman: No guidance was issued to the Lyons Inquiry by my Department.

Small Claims (Personal Injuries)

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs which organisations she plans to consult as part of the review of personal injuries limits for small claims. [31595]

Ms Harman: The Department for Constitutional Affairs to date has published two reports on the effects of the Civil Procedure Rules of April 1999, "Emerging Findings, an early evaluation of the Civil Justice Reforms" published in 2001 and "Further Findings, a continuing evaluation of the Civil Justice Reforms" published in 2002. Both reports concluded that it was still too early to provide a definitive view on costs with data difficult to obtain and conflicting anecdotal evidence. Where there was evidence of increased costs, the causes were difficult to isolate.

The Civil Justice Reforms were intended to divert cases from litigation or to ensure litigated cases are better prepared and provide more information relative to liability and quantum, so that an opponent could make a better informed offer to settle. This has resulted in the front loading of costs. However, it has enabled more cases to settle earlier, and where cases settle at an earlier stage the overall costs may be lower.

Staff Discipline

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs how many employees have been dismissed by her Department in each of the past five years for which figures are available. [29048]

Bridget Prentice: The number of employees dismissed over the last five years for the Department are:

	Number
2001	33
2002	42
2003	57
2004	56
2005	59

These figures are for the period April to March for each of the years shown.

Voter Registration

Adam Afriyie: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs if she will introduce individual voter registration. [30164]

Ms Harman: The Electoral Administration Bill, currently before Parliament, includes provision for the collection of personal identifiers such as individual signatures and dates of birth at the point at which a person registers to vote.

In order that the effect of this policy may be tested in order to obtain evidence as to whether it should be implemented or not, the Bill provides for personal identifiers to be first piloted at a local level, with the results to be evaluated by the Electoral Commission.

TRANSPORT

2012 Olympics

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what steps he has taken to ensure that the arrangements for transport for the 2012 Olympics will meet the requirements of the Olympic family. [31467]

Ms Buck: Our plans are based on the experience of previous host cities. 50 per cent. of athletes will be just five minutes from their venues and 75 per cent. less than 15 minutes. Olympic Family Transport plans will be supported by an Olympic Route Network (ORN) between the main venues, facilities and accommodation. A dedicated fleet of coaches and cars will run on this network, and one some 100 km there will be dedicated Olympic lanes. Following experience of Athens and Sydney, fines will be used to ensure that the network functions effectively.

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what steps he is taking to ensure that the Olympic delivery authority will be able to ensure that transport for spectators will be fully accessible. [31555]

Ms Buck: A key objective for Olympic transport is achieving an accessible and inclusive Games for every client group.

A Games mobility service based on the successful Manchester Commonwealth Games model, will operate throughout both Olympic and Paralympic Games. Among other things, this service will provide pre-booking of various forms of wheelchair, bookable access to individual electric buggies, provision of wide access at airport-style security screening, appropriate signposting, audio-visual information provision and induction loops at stations.

The Olympic delivery authority will consult with the Disabled Persons Transport Advisory Committee to ensure that their plans for Olympic transport meet the accessibility needs of all spectators.

In terms of the national picture and access to venues outside of London, all full-size single and double deck buses must be compliant with the Public Service Vehicle Access Regulations by 2016–17. This allows operators to achieve the full economic life from the fleet which existed before the regulations come into effect. To ensure the industry is well placed to meet these end dates, we have negotiated a voluntary agreement with the industry that 50 per cent. of the full size bus fleet should be low-floor and accessible by 2010. This should be sufficient for us to ensure fully accessible transport to all Olympic venues during the 2012 Games.

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what steps the Olympic Delivery Authority is taking to ensure that transport for spectators and Olympic family members will be fully accessible by those with disabilities. [30988]

Ms Buck: One of the key objectives for Olympic transport remains achieving an accessible and inclusive games for every client group. A games mobility service based on the successful Manchester Commonwealth games model, will operate through-out both Olympic and Paralympic games. Among other things, this service will provide pre-booking of various forms of wheelchair, bookable access to individual electric buggies, provision of wide access at airport-style security screening, appropriate signposting, audio-visual information provision and induction loops at stations.

We are accelerating the creation of accessible networks of rail, tube and surface transport. Transport for London is continuing to work to ensure that as many stations as possible will be accessible, with a target of at least 25 per cent. of underground stations having step free access by 2010.

All buses in London will be wheelchair accessible well before 2012. And the London taxi fleet has, of course, been wheelchair accessible since 2000.

In terms of the national picture and access to venues outside of London, all full-size single and double deck buses must be compliant with the public service vehicle access regulations by 2016–17. This allows operators to achieve the full economic life from the fleet which existed before the regulations come into effect. To ensure the industry is well placed to meet these end dates, we have negotiated a voluntary agreement with the industry that 50 per cent. of the full size bus fleet should be low-floor and accessible by 2010. This should be sufficient for us to ensure fully accessible transport to all Olympic venues during the 2012 games.

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what funds are available to pay for any cost over-run in the construction of transport infrastructure and services in connection with the 2012 Olympics. [30989]

Ms Buck: The Government's aim is to keep a tight grip on costs and ensure that there is no over-run. We expect specific projects to be managed rigorously and with clear accountability. The major schemes, which underpinned the Olympic bid and to which we were committed regardless of the bid's success, are either funded by the Department directly or by the Mayor through his five year investment plan. In addition, the Olympics is funding a number of specific additional transport schemes which are paid for from either the £2.375 billion public sector funding package or through revenue raised by the London Organising Committee for the Olympic Games (LOCOG).

In the unlikely event of an over-run arising for these specific Olympic schemes, a memorandum of understanding, agreed with the Mayor, makes it clear that any shortfall will be dealt with in a sharing arrangement with the Mayor and additional National Lottery funding.

A21

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will take steps to reduce the accident rate for vehicles on the A21 in East Sussex; and if he will make a statement. [31542]

Dr. Ladyman [holding answer 24 November 2005]: Each year an annual road safety review is undertaken for the A21. The review has identified a programme of works to improve safety.

This year the programme includes preparatory work for a safety scheme at Flimwell Cross Roads. The scheme will introduce signals at the junction for right turns and is due to be completed in summer 2006. Further safety work is also planned for next financial year at Ashdene Services near Hurst Green to improve right turns at the entrance to the [illegible]s.

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what funding has been made available for public consultation on the proposed A21 upgrade by the Highways Agency. [32144]

Dr. Ladyman: The Highways Agency have allocated for 2005–06 £855,000 to fund preparation work, including public consultation, for the A21 upgrade.

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) why the ministerial commitment to resurface noisy concrete surfaces in relation to the A417/419 Swindon to Gloucester road has been dropped; whether this was a uniform decision for all the roads listed in the original decision; and whether the Government will consider (a) new claims for blight from noise and (b) further remedial measures in relation to the A417/419; [32507]

(2) whether the A417/419 Swindon to Gloucester road will be resurfaced in the normal maintenance schedule; and whether the design, build, finance, operate provider will be responsible for the costs. [32508]

Dr. Ladyman: Following detailed scrutiny of departmental and the Highways Agency's budgets, Ministers agreed that the resurfacing of roads ahead of a maintenance need, for noise alleviation reasons, would not be allocated funding. This was a uniform decision across the entire motorway and trunk road network in England and is now the position up to 2007–08.

The Government cannot consider new claims for blight from noise as the noise assessments on which original blight claims were based, assumed a worst case and any noise insulation or compensation has already been provided on that basis.

While the Highways Agency will continue to consider remedial measures, these will have to take their turn in the regional priorities for trunk road improvement schemes.

The A417/A419 will be re-surfaced when maintenance need dictates and, if this is during the life of the DBFO contract, then the DBFO company will carry out the work and be responsible for the costs.

Air Navigation Order

Mr. Swayne: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when he plans to publish regulatory changes to the Air Navigation Order. [32536]

Ms Buck: The Air Navigation Order 2005 (S.I. 1970/2005) came into force on 20 August 2005. Copies may be obtained from the Stationery office (ISBN 0–11–073253–7).

Air Travel Levy

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what estimate he has made of the administrative cost to (a) the Government and (b) airlines of compliance with a £1 levy scheme collected through the same means as air passenger duty. [31454]

Ms Buck: In its advice to the Government, published on 22 September 2005, the Civil Aviation Authority said that a £1 levy could be implemented in such a way that it does not impose a large compliance cost either on airlines or tour operators, or the CAA. The Government has not made an estimate of these costs.

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what estimate he has made of the time that it would take for a £1 levy air passenger protection scheme to become self-financing from inception. [31455]

Ms Buck: The Government has not made an estimate of the time it would take for a £1 levy scheme to become self-financing. However, in its advice to the Government, published on 22 September 2005, the Civil Aviation Authority said that a £1 levy would have to be applied for three to five years in order to build up a reserve fund of £250 million.

Aircraft Environmental Effects

Mr. Llwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when he will reply to the Royal Commission on Environmental Pollution's report "The Environmental Effects of Civil Aircraft". [31551]

Ms Buck: The Royal Commission on Environmental Pollution's (RCEP) report "The Environmental Effects of Civil Aircraft in Flight" was their response to the Government's 2002 consultation on the future development of air transport in the UK. The Secretary of State for Transport met the chairman of the RCEP, Sir Tom Blundell, in March 2003 to discuss the report. The report was one of over 500,000 responses to the consultation, which informed decisions on "The Future of Air Transport" White Paper published in December 2003.

Airline Failures

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what estimate he has made of the number of UK passengers stranded overseas as a result of failure of UK and European airlines in each year since 2000. [31491]

Ms Buck: When EUjet failed in July 2005 about 12,000 of its customers were overseas and had to make other arrangements to return to the UK. As stated to the House of Commons Transport Committee on 2 November 2005, the Government was not called upon to repatriate any of these individuals. The Department does not hold data on previous incidents.

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what research he has undertaken on the extent to which pop-up messages on websites of UK airlines warn customers they are not financially protected in the event of the airline's insolvency. [31492]

Ms Buck: The Department of Transport is currently in the process of discussing with airlines the provision of website information on financial protection. A number of them have said they will include relevant advice so that customers will see it during the on-line booking process.

Automatic Number Plate Recognition

Tom Brake: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the answer of 11 July 2005, Official Report, column 759W, on automatic number plate recognition, what the reasons were for the inaccuracies in the Driver Vehicle Licensing Authority database; what the nature of each type of inaccuracy was; and what percentage of the total number of inaccuracies each type of inaccuracy represented. [31517]

Dr. Ladyman: The answer of 11 July 2005, Official Report, column 759W, on automatic number plate recognition, quoted figures from the assessment of Project Laser 2, a 13 month pilot project which commenced in June 2003. The inaccuracies in the data supplied by the Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency (DVLA) related primarily to the timeliness of information about vehicles that were evading Vehicle Excise Duty. At this time, DVLA often experienced delays of up to six weeks in the receipt of vehicle licensing information from post offices, resulting in vehicles being stopped unnecessarily. This timeliness issue has now been addressed through the introduction of an electronic link between DVLA and post offices and electronic vehicle licensing. Moreover, the data was conveyed to individual police forces via CD Rom and so was necessarily out of date. The police now have access to live data, and this facility is being rolled out to all forces. Those forces that still receive data on CD Rom currently do so every two weeks, soon to be weekly.

An assessment of accuracy of the DVLA databases conducted between May and September 2005 indicates that 97.4 per cent. of vehicle keepers can now be traced from information supplied by DVLA.

A database of vehicles with a valid MOT certificate is currently being created and is expected to be completed in 2007, as MOT computerisation is rolled out to all MOT garages and a full year cycle of MOT testing is complete.

The Motor Insurance Database is maintained by the insurance industry. The Serious Organised Crime and Police Act 2005 has given police access to the database, enabling them to identify uninsured vehicles. The insurance industry is investing significant resource in improving accuracy and timeliness of their database.

Blue Badge Scheme

Kerry McCarthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the answer of 29 June 2005, Official Report, columns 1552–53W, to the hon. Member for Sutton and Cheam (Mr. Burstow), on the Blue Badge Scheme, when he expects to bring forward draft regulations. [31567]

Ms Buck: Draft regulations incorporating a number of changes to the Blue Badge Scheme are currently being finalised. We intend to consult on the draft regulations early next year and to implement them as soon as we can once that process is complete.

Buses

Mr. Nicholas Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what obligations his Department places on bus companies to consult local residents about (a) changes in bus routes and (b) the establishment of new bus routes. [31614]

Ms Buck: Regulations require the operator of a local bus service to provide the Traffic Commissioner and all relevant local authorities with at least 56 days notice when they intend to introduce or vary the timetable or route of a registered local bus service.

In addition to the statutory requirements the Bus Partnership Forum has agreed a voluntary Service Stability Code which provides for more notice to be given to the local authority when changes are planned.

The notice period provides local authorities with time to consider the impacts of the changes in service levels and the need for any necessary promotional or publicity activities. We do encourage all parties to work together to ensure the interests of passengers and the community are taken into account.

Consultants

Mr. George Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) how much his Department has spent on information technology consultants in each year since 1998; [25625]

(2) how much his Department has spent on transport consultancy services in each year since 1998. [25626]

Ms Buck: The Department was formed in May 2002. A breakdown of spend by the Department and its executive agencies is shown in the following table:

[1] Committed spend. The 2002–03 figure for IT consultancy may be understated due to changes in the accounting system when the Department was created. The effect of this is that many IT consultancy orders were charged to a general consultancy code and cannot now be identified separately without incurring disproportionate costs. Transport consultancy is not currently recorded separately in the central Department's accounting system.

[2] Information not recorded in this format.

[3] VOSA was formed in April 2003.

[4] Spend on IT consultancy is not recorded separately by DVLA. The figures are the total spend with known IT consultants.

[5] Highways Agency spend for 2002–03 may be understated because of the difficulty in matching categories to those used in previous accounting system.

[6] DSA changed to a new accounting system in 2003–04. Information in respect of prior years is not readily available.

Martin Horwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what mechanisms are in place to assess the effectiveness of consultant-led projects in his Department; what sanctions are available to penalise consultants who run unsuccessful projects; how many projects conducted by consultants were assessed as unsuccessful in each year since 2000; and what sanctions were imposed in each case. [29060]

Ms Buck: The Department follows Office of Government Commerce (OGC) best practice programme, project and contract management procedures. Programmes and projects are subject to OGC's Gateway process which provides assurances at critical stages of a programme or projects lifecycle, and is applicable to programmes and projects managed by both internal and external resources.

The Department's internal guidelines also stipulate that consultancy assignments should be reviewed on completion to assess whether goals and objectives have been achieved, and to ensure that any lessons learnt are disseminated and incorporated in the Department's management systems.

By following best practice, the Department seeks to eliminate unsuccessful projects. Where a consultant fails to deliver the specified outcomes, they may be required to pay liquidated damages, the contract may be terminated, or payment withheld. The consultant may also be required to meet any additional costs incurred in completing the project.

Details of how projects are resourced and the outcome of any assessment against project-specific success criteria, together with details of any sanctions imposed on any consultants involved, are not held centrally and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Salaries

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will list the 10 highest-paid employees in his Department, broken down by (a) job title and (b) salary including bonuses; and whether the individual concerned is (i) a civil servant and (ii) a contractor in each case. [27436]

Ms Buck: The salary bands (including bonuses) and the numbers in each band for the senior civil servants in my Department are given in the Department for Transport Annual Report 2005 Table B3. The salaries for contractors/consultants are not readily available and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Staff

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many staff in his Department were (a) civil servants, (b) contractors and (c) other staff in each year since 1997. [27442]

Ms Buck: The civil servant staffing levels for the Department are contained in Table C of Civil Service Statistics. Civil Service Statistics is available in the Library of the House.

The numbers of contractors and other non-civil servants is not readily available and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Websites

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will take steps to ensure the Department's websites attain the W3C AAA standard of accessibility for people with visual and other disabilities; and if he will set a target date for this standard to be achieved by. [30957]

Ms Buck: The Cabinet Office Government website guidelines, which govern the conduct of Government websites, specify that 'All UK Government websites are expected to achieve, as a minimum, and adhere to the single 'A' (Priority 1 items) level'.

Considerable effort is spent in improving the accessibility of all the DfT family of websites. DfT gov.uk sites comply with single 'A' and the majority are working toward achieving 'AA'. This is an ongoing process, as standards for accessibility evolve and change. As such there is no target date to achieve 'AAA'.

The Department regards achieving 'AA' throughout our websites as a benchmark. All of the DfT family of sites fulfil at least some of the criteria needed for 'AAA' rating.

Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many requests for information have been received other than from the police and local authorities under Regulation 27 of the Road Vehicles (Registration and Licensing) Regulations 2002 (SI 2002/2742) citing reasonable cause in each month since the regulations came into force; how many were (a) acceded to and (b) refused in each month; if he will list the private companies who secured information in this way; and what the total financial receipts obtained by the Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency from this process have been. [31879]

Dr. Ladyman: The following figures represent the number of requests accepted monthly under the 'reasonable cause' provisions since 2002 are:

2002–03

Month	Number
April	75,641
May	76,890

The number of requests refused is not available.

A list of all the private companies that secure information this way is not available. Requests are considered on a case-by-case basis. However, a list of private car parking enforcement is available. A list has been placed in the Libraries of the House.

Revenue collected for all requests handled since 2002 is around £9 million.

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the national performance targets are for Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency (DVLA) offices and test centres; and what the performance of DVLA offices and test centres in Devon and Cornwall has been against those targets. [32058]

Dr. Ladyman: The following table shows the performance of the Exeter and Truro offices against the relevant internal targets for the current financial year.

Driver and Vehicle Licensing Authority

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what was the total number of private cars in London registered with the Driver and Vehicle Licensing Authority in (a) 1999–2000 and (b) 2004–05. [31882]

Dr. Ladyman: At the end of December 1999 there were 2,162,000 cars owned privately in the Greater London area. At the end of December 2004 the figure had risen to 2,365,000.

Emergency Procedures (Test Exercises)

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will place in the Library the results which do not relate to terrorist attacks of bi-national exercises to test emergency procedures held on (a) 15 April 2004 at Folkestone Fire Station (UK COMEX), (b) 30 June 2004 on the French side of service tunnel (VALEX) and (c) 19 September 2004 (UK led annual exercise BINAT 15). [30445]

Derek Twigg: The reports of these exercises do not distinguish the results in this way. The exercises test the emergency services' response to particular sets of circumstances regardless of whether those circumstances are assumed to have resulted from an accident or terrorist attack. The reports are matters for the UK and French emergency services and Eurotunnel rather than the Department.

Fuel Sales

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many (a) petrol stations and (b) other outlets sell (i) diesel and (ii) petrol that has a renewable content in each region. [32301]

Dr. Ladyman: We are aware of around 100 outlets selling biodiesel, usually in a blend of 5 per cent. with fossil diesel. These are listed by region on the Energy Savings Trust's website at http://www.est.org.uk/fleet.

Following the introduction of a 20p per litre fuel duty derogation in January, on average around 7 million litres of bioethanol is being sold in the UK each month. It is blended at up to 5 per cent. with fossil petrol in line with fuel quality standards. We understand that this fuel is being sold at 100 or so outlets in the South East of England, but retailers are generally not distinguishing the fuel as renewable and we therefore do not have precise information on the number of outlets selling it.

Light Rail and Trams

Mr. George Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) if he will list the light rail and tram schemes approved by his Department since 1998; and what conditions were attached to each; [25617]

(2) what agreement he has entered into in respect of light rail schemes in relation to contingency funding for cost overruns for each scheme since 1998; and if he will place copies of such agreements in the Library. [25643]

Derek Twigg: Since 1998, the Department has approved the following schemes:

Manchester Metrolink renewals and capacity enhancements;

Merseytram Line 1;

Leeds Supertram;

South Hampshire Rapid Transit;

Midland Metro Phase 1 extension (City Centre and Brierley Hill Lines);

Manchester Metrolink extensions;

Tyne and Wear Metro Sunderland extension;

Nottingham Express Transit;

Manchester Metrolink renewals and capacity enhancements

Conditional approval was granted in 2005. The approval letter was issued on 28 July 2005 with the following conditions:

Government funding was capped at £58 million (in cash terms). Any inflationary risks as a result of delay to the scheme would be for GMPTE to meet.

Government funding was conditional upon the whole scheme being delivered as set out in the proposals sent to the Department by GMPTE.

If at any time prior to full approval the promoters found that the agreed funding would not be sufficient to carry out the work set out in their proposal, they must, at that point, let the Department know and discuss with the Department the implications.

If the promoters found that the funding profile set out in the letter was no longer workable, they must let the Department know at that point and discuss with the Department the implications.

Full approval would not be given until final prices had been fixed and process and risk allocations were known. A request for full approval would need to include:

Details of the tender exercise and any resulting changes to the proposal.

That the key elements remained unaltered

The promoters approach to monitoring and evaluation.

The total costs, including that required from Government (which the Department expected to be no more than £58 million), and

Availability of other financial contributions.

Merseytram Line 1

Provisional approval was granted in 2002. The approval letter was issued on 19 December 2002 with the following conditions:

An updated appraisal would have to be prepared if the authority obtained TWA powers.

A cap of £170 million (in cash terms) would be set on central Government contributions.

Were the public sector costs to increase above the current estimate of £225 million, the entirety of the excess would have to be met through local sources.

DfT would need to obtain assurances at the appropriate time from Section 151 officers of the authorities contributing towards the costs that they had considered the impact of potential cost overruns on the future finance of the authority and, as a matter of judgment, were satisfied that it would be affordable, bearing in mind that the Government contribution would be capped.

Leeds Supertram

Full approval was granted in 2001. The approval letter was issued on 28 March 2001 with the following conditions:

The local contribution would be 25 per cent. of the amount of public sector funding.

The final amount of public sector support would only be known once the tendering process had been completed. Once tenders had been received, the promoters would need to agree with the Department and Treasury the amount of public sector funding required. If the public sector funding requirement was more than the cap of £355 million (in present value terms), the promoters, the Department and Treasury would need to consider the available options, including whether the project should proceed as currently planned.

South Hampshire Rapid Transit

Full approval was granted in 2001. The approval letter was issued on 28 March 2001 with the following conditions:

> The local contribution would be 25 per cent. of the amount of public sector funding.
> The final amount of public sector support would only be known once the tendering process had been completed. Once tenders had been received, the promoters would need to agree with the Department and Treasury the amount of public sector funding required. If the public sector funding requirement was more than the cap of £170 million (in present value terms), the promoters, the Department and Treasury would need to consider the available options, including whether the project should proceed as currently planned.

Midland Metro extensions

Provisional approval was granted in 2000. The approval letter was issued on 12 December 2000 with the following conditions:

> An updated appraisal would have to be prepared if the authority obtained TWA powers.
> Final approval would depend on whether an updated economic appraisal confirmed that the scheme represented good value for money and on satisfactory funding arrangements being agreed.

Manchester Metrolink extensions

Full approval was granted in 2000. The approval letter was issued on 19 July 2000 with the following conditions:

> Local contribution would be increased to meet any increase in the public sector funding requirement resulting from higher capital costs or a lower concession value at the end of the tendering process compared to the assumptions set out in the approval letter, or from lower than assumed developer contribution.
> In cases where the public sector funding requirement was increased by more than 10 per cent., GMPTE, the Department and the Treasury would need to consider the available options, including whether the project should proceed as currently planned.

Once it became apparent that the tender bids would come in significantly above the previously anticipated funding requirement, the Department agreed that the public sector contribution would be increased to £520 million (in cash terms). This followed confirmation from the section 151 officers of each district council that, as a matter of professional judgment, they were satisfied that the contributions that would fall to be made by their authorities were affordable. They had borne in mind that the Government's contribution was capped at £520 million (in cash terms). A letter was sent to the promoters on 20 December 2002 with the following conditions:

> If the net public sector costs exceeded £520 million, GMPTE would meet the entirety of the excess.
> Government would not be prepared to make any additional contribution towards the cost of the scheme.

Tyne and Wear Metro Sunderland extension

Full approval was granted in 1999. The funding allocation was set out in the Tyne and Wear settlement letter on 16 December 1999. No separate approval letter was issued.

Nottingham Express Transit

Full approval was granted in December 1998. The approval letter was issued on 5 January 1999. It confirmed that the project would be issued with PFI Credits of £167 million following contract signature if the project went forward as planned. In August 1999, the Department agreed an increase in public sector funding of £10 million. This was provided on the basis that:

> No further Government funds would be provided for the project.
> If the negotiations failed to reach financial close by the end of August, the Council or Arrow would have to bear any resulting costs or interest increases themselves.
> As this was a PFI funded scheme, the Department would need to be satisfied that the necessary value for money criteria had been met and that the risk transfer was acceptable.

No further agreements were made in regards to contingency for cost over runs.

Light Rail Schemes

Mrs. Ellman: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will list the local authorities which he has required to give legally binding unconditional financial undertakings as a condition of approval for light rail in their area. [31871]

Derek Twigg: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer given to the hon. Member for Knowsley, North and Sefton, East (Mr. Howarth) today [UIN 25617].

London Underground

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when he plans to meet the Mayor of London to discuss the renegotiation of the public private partnership deal for London Underground. [28394]

Ms Buck: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State regularly meets the mayor.

There is no intention to re-negotiate the PPP and the Government remains committed to the 30-year contracts. The first of three 'periodic reviews', built into the PPP contracts at seven and a half yearly intervals, will be completed in 2010. This provides an opportunity for LU to review its output requirements under the contracts, but is not a review of the PPP structure itself.

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the total legal and administrative costs since 1997 have been of changes to the status of London Underground. [32193]

Ms Buck: Since 1997 the major changes to London Underground have been the implementation of the Public Private Partnership and its transfer to Transport for London.

The National Audit Office, in their report "London Underground PPP: Were they good deals?" and their evidence to the Public Accounts Committee (PAC) (published in the PAC's Seventeenth Report of Session 2004–05 "London Underground Public Private Partnerships") have provided detailed breakdowns of the London Underground's costs for the PPP. These can be summarised as:

Breakdown of London Underground's PPP costs

£ million

Activity (Consultants/advisers)	Cost
Legal (Freshfields)	29.2
Commercial (PricewaterhouseCoopers)	21.4
Reorganisation (Arthur Anderson)	13.8
Reorganisation—Engineering (PA Consultants)	12 5
Engineering advice (Ove Arup)	6
Miscellaneous (project management, audit, insurance, property, pensions, technical and other advice)	26.5
Internal costs	61
Discounting by National Audit Office	-10
Unsuccessful bid costs	25
Tube Lines successful bid costs	134
Metronet successful bid costs	116
Total	455.4

The Department's costs in relation to the PPP and transfer of London Underground are provided in the following table. These do not include the Department's internal costs such as staff and accommodation.

M2

Mr. Gale: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) between which dates the M2 motorway has been free of roadworks since 1985; [32382]

(2) upon which sections of the M2 roadworks are in progress within the seven-mile coned-off section between junction 6 and Brenley Corner; [32383]

(3) when he expects work on the M2 motorway between junction 6 and Brenley Corner to be complete. [32384]

Dr. Ladyman: During the past 20 years, the M2 motorway was free of major roadworks in 1985, 1986, 1992, 1995 and 1997.

There are currently no road works on the M2 between junction 6 and Brenley Corner (junction 7). However, there is one set of roadworks on the M2 between junctions 5 and 6, which is approximately four miles in length and another separate set of roadworks between junctions 4 and 5, which is 1.6 miles long.

The roadworks between junctions 5 and 6 are due for completion on the 30 November 2005.

The roadworks between junctions 4 and 5 are to be completed in two phases. The first phase is programmed to complete on 17 December 2005 to ensure there are no roadworks on the M2 over Christmas and the new year. The second phase will commence on 7 January 2006 and is due for completion by the end of February 2006.

Media Relations

Mr. Salmond: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much his Department spent on external media relations in each year since 2001. [29576]

Ms Buck: The Department has press officers who handle much of its media relations with the support of the Government News Network in the regions. In addition, the Department spent the following amount in each year since it was established on consultancy fees for external media relations, primarily to support our marketing activities, for example the THINK! road safety campaign.

	DfT
	Central	Agencies
2002–03	496,004	302,250
2003–04	357,146	503,788
2004–05	438,210	373,328

Merseytravel

Mrs. Ellman: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment he has made of the efficiency and stability of Merseytravel. [31872]

Derek Twigg: It is primarily for the Merseyside Passenger Transport Authority, whose members are drawn from the districts, to assess these matters.

The Department has assessed progress in delivering the first Merseyside local transport plan (which is a partnership between Merseytravel and the district councils). This has been assessed as being either 'well above average' or 'above average' in each of the last three years. Merseytravel has been designated as a centre of excellence for transport planning and for delivering its transport plan.

Millward Brown Group

Mr. Duncan: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much his Department has paid to Millward Brown Group for consultancy advice in each year since 1997. [31179]

Mr. Darling [holding answer 22 November 2005]: The Department was formed in May 2002. The Department has made no payments to Millward Brown Group for consultancy advice.

In common with other public and private sector organisations we do undertake research to understand the effectiveness of our communications. My Department has bought media research services from Millward Brown at a total cost of £248,031.40 since the creation of DfT to date. The reports are available on the Department's web site at: http://www.dft.gov.uk/stellent/groups/dft_foi/documents/divisionho mepage/041073.hcsp.

Ministerial Engagements

Mr. George Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will place in the Library a list of the ministerial engagements of the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State, the hon. Member for Halton since 1 June to date. [25618]

Derek Twigg: I have carried out a wide range of ministerial engagements including meeting MPs and delegations from their constituencies. I have held discussions with a range of stakeholders including cycling organisations, local councils, rail organisations, light rail groups, unions and train operating companies.

I have made various visits related to the rail industry and to promote cycling. I have also made visits to the European Parliament.

Mobile Phones

Susan Kramer: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what estimate he has made of the number of accidents caused by drivers using hand-held mobile phones since January 2003. [31435]

Dr. Ladyman: The information requested is not available. However, from 1 January 2005, information on contributory factors to accidents have been collected for personal injury road accidents reported at scene by a police officer. One of the factors is "driver using mobile phone". Subject to quality tests, first results should be available in autumn 2006.

Motorways (Litter)

Mr. Holloway: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) what assessment he has made of the level of litter on motorways in Kent; [31198]

(2) what the arrangements are for the removal of litter from (a) motorways and (b) trunk roads in Kent; [31199]

(3) what measures are in place to monitor the effectiveness of litter removal on motorways and trunk roads in Kent. [31232]

Dr. Ladyman: In Kent the Highways Agency is responsible for litter picking on the motorway network and the A2 from its junction with the M25 to the M2 Junction 1 with local authorities responsible for the remainder of the trunk road network.

The Highways Agency monitors the level of litter as part of its routine inspection regime to ensure that it complies with the code of practice set out in the Environmental Protection Act 1990.

Although general performance targets for litter collection have been met there has been a site-specific problem identified on the A2 at Gravesend. Litter at this location has now been removed and a new contractor employed to remedy any future reoccurrence.

Night Flights

Susan Kramer: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment he has made of the impact of night flights from and to Heathrow airport on the London economy. [31460]

Ms Buck: The Government's consideration of the economic impact of night flying takes account of the combined effects on the national economy of night flights at the designated airports, Heathrow, Gatwick and Stansted.

A broad statement on the economic importance of night flying at the designated airports was made in the draft regulatory impact assessment published in the stage two consultation document on night flying restrictions at Heathrow, Gatwick and Stansted, published on 10 June 2005,

We acknowledged in the stage two consultation that responses to the stage one consultation had not provided a comprehensive picture of the economic impact of night flights and of night restrictions. The stage two consultation therefore made a specific request for further information to inform the Government's decision-making. The consultation closed on 16 September 2005 and the Department for Transport is analysing responses from consultees.

Pedestrian Deaths

Steve Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many pedestrian deaths in road accidents there were where the pedestrian had over 100 mgs of alcohol per 100 mls of blood in each year since 1997; and what percentage of all pedestrian road accident deaths in (a) England and (b) each region this represents in each case. [32007]

Dr. Ladyman: Information on the blood alcohol levels of pedestrians is available for less than half of those who died in personal injury road accidents. The proportions of fatally injured pedestrians aged 16 or over with a blood alcohol level of over 100 mg/100 ml out of those for whom a blood alcohol level has been provided by the coroners are shown in the following tables.

Estimated percentage of pedestrian fatalities aged 16 and over with more than 100 mg of alcohol per 100 ml of blood

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many (a) pedestrians, (b) cyclists, (c) motorcyclists, (d) car drivers and (e) car passengers have been (i) injured and (ii) killed in Staffordshire in road traffic accidents in each of the past six years for which figures are available. [32010]

Dr. Ladyman: The number of pedestrians, cyclists, motorcyclists, car drivers and car passengers killed and injured in personal injury road accidents in the county of Staffordshire, excluding Stoke on Trent Unitary Authority for the years 1999–2004 are shown in the table.

Project Cyclamen

Peter Law: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what steps have been taken to implement Project Cyclamen on the monitoring of road transport for illicit radioactive material; what has been the costs to date of this implementation; and whether the principles of protection established via experience with the project are being developed to apply to monitoring other modes of transport. [28898]

Mr. Charles Clarke: I have been asked to reply.

Programme Cyclamen is a cross-governmental counter-terrorism initiative, which began in April 2003. It uses fixed detection portals at UK borders and mobile screening units covering all traffic types to detect and deter the illicit importation of radiological materials into the UK. The mobile units will be deployed primarily at UK borders, but can also be deployed inland. We cannot go into the specific details of the programme, but are working with key stakeholders to ensure that the impact of operations on legitimate traffic is kept to a minimum. For security reasons, we do not generally disaggregate spending on specific counter-terrorism measures or projects.

Public Service Agreements

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) when 2004 public service agreement target number four will be fully specified; [29803]

(2) when 2004 public service agreement target number one will be fully specified. [29805]

Dr. Ladyman: The information is as follows.

Congestion target specifications

The congestion target for urban roads (Department for Transport PSA 4) was published on 5 July 2005 in the Department's public service agreement. The target is that,

> "by 2010–11, the ten largest urban areas will meet the congestion targets set in their Local Transport Plan relating to movement on main roads into city centres".

Local authorities will publish final local transport plans containing targets in March 2006, so the public service agreement target for urban congestion will be fully specified then.

The congestion target for strategic roads (Department for Transport PSA 1) was fully specified in the Technical Note published on 28 July 2005. This document is on the Department's website at: www.dft..gov.uk/stellent/groups/dft_about/documents/page/dft_about_030578–01.hcsp#P61_1195.

Quality Contract Schemes

Mr. Nicholas Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many quality contract schemes have been given ministerial approval since the introduction of the scheme in the Transport Act 2000. [31615]

Ms Buck: We have to date received no applications for a bus quality contracts schemes for approval.

Railways

Mrs. James: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what recent discussions he has had with train operating companies on passenger safety on late night services. [30730]

Derek Twigg: The Department liaises with train operating companies on personal safety issues for both passengers and staff through regular meetings and relevant research project steering groups.

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many rail passengers used (a) Birmingham New Street, (b) London Victoria and (c) Liverpool Lime Street station in 2004. [32560]

Derek Twigg: The latest complete-year data published by Network Rail for these stations covers the 2004–5 financial year. Birmingham New Street was used by 30.5 million passengers, London Victoria by 92.5 million passengers and Liverpool Lime Street by 12.8 million passengers.

Mr. George Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the levels of crime have been on the railways since 1997; and what measures his Department has taken to minimise these levels. [27944]

Derek Twigg: The number of crimes recorded by the British Transport police on the railways (excluding London Underground) from April 1998 is shown in the following table.

Financial year	Number of crimes recorded
1998–99	57,395
1999–2000	57,521
2000–01	55,610
2001–02	59,594
2002–03	63,404
2003–04	65,051
2004–05	63,377

Note:
Data is not available prior to April 1998, as the comparison is not meaningful due to a change in Home Office counting rules.

In 1998 we launched the Secure Stations Scheme, which is designed to improve security at overground and underground stations for passengers and staff, and we have recently published guidance on improving personal security on trains. Also we are continuing to raise the profile of transport crime among Crime and Disorder Reduction Partnerships.

The British Transport police (BTP) play an important role in keeping Britain's railways safe and secure, and pleasant to use. The force works closely in partnership with those who manage the railway, staff and tenants, and local police forces. It also takes a lead in combating the antisocial behaviour that can impact so much on those who use and work on the railway.

I recently launched South Eastern trains' team of railway enforcement officers which has been accredited under the RSAS. The Department encourages the participation of all TOCs in this scheme.

Mr. Alan Reid: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will make a statement on ministerial responsibility for maintaining and improving the railway infrastructure in Scotland. [32654]

Derek Twigg: The railway infrastructure is owned and managed by Network Rail. The Secretary of State is responsible for the legislative framework for the provision and regulation of railway services including rail safety. The Scottish Parliament have legislative competence over the promotion and construction of new railways wholly within Scotland. The Railways Act 2005 provides for the specification of network outputs and financing of infrastructure costs in Scotland to be the devolved executive responsibility of the Scottish Ministers.

Road Charging (Tyne and Wear)

Jim Cousins: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) whether Tyne and Wear authorities will be required to implement (a) road charging and (b) pricing schemes as part of their proposals to reduce congestion; [31574]

(2) whether road charging is being considered for any part of the A1 Western Bypass in Newcastle and Gateshead. [31575]

Dr. Ladyman [holding answer 24 November 2005]: As my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State announced today, the Tyne and Wear authorities have bid successfully for pump priming funding, to support the development of innovative packages of measures to tackle congestion. All of the seven bidders which are to receive pump-priming funding propose to explore the feasibility of road pricing in their areas among other demand management options. This work will help inform the development of a coherent national framework for road pricing. We are not however requiring the implementation of any particular scheme or solution.

Road Gritting

Martin Horwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what estimate he has made of the cost of road traffic accidents on (a) gritted and (b) un-gritted roads in each year since 2000, broken down by local authority area. [32647]

Dr. Ladyman: Although the Department for Transport does not hold information on actual costs incurred as the result of road accidents, it does estimate the value of prevention of road accidents in its annually published "Highways Economics Note No.1". Estimates for the total value of prevention of all road accidents 2000–04 are as follows:

Estimated total cost

	£ million
2004	18,004
2003	18,094
2002	17,760
2001	17,420
2000	16,959

The Department is unable to provide information on costs disaggregated by local authority and by gritted and un-gritted roads as this data is not collated centrally.

The Department strongly recommends that local highway authorities carry out winter maintenance in accordance with section 13 of "Well-maintained Highways: Code of Practice for Highway Maintenance Management" published by the UK Roads Liaison Group earlier this year.

Road Safety

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much his Department spent on road safety in each year between 1994 and 2004; and what percentage of the budget of his Department was in each year. [29894]

Dr. Ladyman: The Department for Transport was formed in July 2002. Around £40 million (0.5 per cent.) in 2002–03 and £42 million (0.4 per cent.) in 2003–04 was spent on road safety against the departmental expenditure limits of £8.8 billion and £10.8 billion respectively. These figures exclude expenditure on the national safety camera programme, which is funded from fine revenue from speed and red light offences. In addition, much of the expenditure by the Department's agencies and local authorities, which is funded through block funding by the Department, contributes to road safety.

Road Traffic

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what were the total vehicle miles driven in London by private motor cars in (a) 1999–2000 and (b) 2004–05. [31885]

Dr. Ladyman: The total vehicle miles driven in Greater London by private motor cars, including taxis, are available for calendar years only. The figures for each year since 1999 are shown in the following table:

Millions

	Vehicle miles
1999	16,644
2000	16,569
2001	16,559
2002	16,650
2003	16,389
2004	16,323

Anne Snelgrove: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) how many road traffic accidents were caused by drivers falling asleep in the last year for which figures are available; [31653]

(2) what steps the Government are taking to alleviate road traffic accidents caused by drivers falling asleep. [31654]

Dr. Ladyman: Research for the Department has established that driver sleepiness is a principle factor in around 10 per cent. of all accidents and about 15 to 20 per cent. of all accidents on motorways and other similar roads.

Separately, under a pilot scheme, 15 police forces collected data on contributory factors to accidents, 2000–04. The table shows the estimated proportion of accidents where driver fatigue was deemed to be a contributory factor.

Estimated[1] percentage of accidents where driver fatigue was a contributory factor: by severity: 2000–04

Percentage

	Fatal	Serious	Slight	All accidents
2000	5	2	1	1
2001	3	2	1	1
2002	3	2	1	1
2003	4	2	1	1
2004	4	2	1	1
2000–04	4	2	1	1

[1] Estimates are based on data from the pilot contributory factors scheme.

As a result of the pilot, from January 2005, police nationally are reporting contributory factor data.

The Department continues to research driver sleepiness topics and a publicity programme aims to help make drivers aware of the dangers of sleep related accidents using motorway variable message signs and through our THINK! publicity campaigns. Those include radio advertising, truck back advertising, partnership marketing and PR. Advice on how to avoid and combat driver tiredness is in the Highway Code and on the Department's THINK! road safety website at:

www.thinkroadsafety.uk/advice/drivertiredness.htm

A question on sleep disorders is included in the medical report that all lorry and bus drivers must submit when applying for a licence. In addition, those drivers who have a medical condition likely to cause them to fall asleep at the wheel are required by law to notify the Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency. Following such a notification, an assessment is carried out to determine whether the driver should retain his or her licence.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will make a statement on the operation of the Road Traffic Reduction Act 1997. [29854]

Dr. Ladyman: The Department issued guidance, related to the Act, to local authorities for consultation in January 1998 and in final form in March 2000, as part of the 'Guidance on Full Local Transport Plans'. Local authorities outside London produced Road Traffic Reduction Act reports in 2000 as annexes to their first five year local transport plans and in London in association with their integrated transport plans.

Department of Transport guidance issued in December 2004 for the second five year local transport plans includes a requirement for authorities covering each plan areas to each set a target for area wide road traffic levels. The final second transport plans, including the targets, are due to be completed by local authorities outside London by March 2006.

Roads (East Sussex)

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what plans he has to announce funding for the Bexhill to Hastings link road in East Sussex. [32148]

Dr. Ladyman: We are currently considering a request from East Sussex county council for a funding contribution towards the preparatory costs for the Bexhill to Hastings link road. We will be informing the council of our decision in due course.

Special Advisers

John Hemming: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will list the special advisers in post in his Department, broken down by pay band; and what the total budgeted cost to his Department of special advisers is for 2005–06. [29420]

Ms Buck: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given by my hon. Friend the Parliamentary Secretary for the Cabinet Office on 16 November 2005, Official Report, column 1257W. Information relating to costs for 2005–06 will be published after the end of the current financial year.

Trains

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many trains were overcrowded in each region of the United Kingdom in each year between 1994 and 2004, broken down by train operating company; and what the average percentage of passengers in excess of capacity (PIXC Factor) was for each month in each case. [29033]

Derek Twigg: The Department does not hold information on how many trains were overcrowded by region in the UK.

Passengers in Excess of Capacity (PIXC) applies to weekday commuter trains arriving in London between 7.00 am and 9.59 am and those departing between 4.00 pm and 6.59 pm. The measure is derived from the number of passengers travelling in excess of capacity on all services divided by the total number of people travelling, expressed as a percentage. PIXC counts are carried out once a year, on a typical week day during the autumn. I have placed the appropriate tables in the Library.

Transport for London

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether the Government plan to reintroduce legislation to transfer responsibility for train services coming into Greater London to Transport for London. [29712]

Ms Buck: The Secretary of State for Transport is currently considering plans to consult on the possibility of extending the London Mayor's powers to include services to some stations just outside the Greater London Authority boundary. There are no plans to reintroduce legislation to transfer responsibility for train services coming into Greater London to Transport for London.

Transport Spending

Mr. George Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what his Department's per capita spending is on (a) all transport, (b) light rail and tram schemes and (c) bus subsidies for each local authority area in England. [25624]

Ms Buck: The information requested is as follows.

(a) The Department does not hold information on all of its transport spend at local authority area level in England.

It does however allocate capital funding to local authorities[1] in England outside London. The per capita allocations[2] for 2004–05 as made in December 2003 are shown in table 1, which has been placed in the House Libraries. Some of the allocations relate to individual major projects, so for some authorities per capita allocations vary substantially between years.

[1] Per capita figures are shown for each metropolitan county as the Department allocates funding to both the county wide passenger transport authorities and the district councils. Combined figures are shown for a few other local authorities, as they have joint plans. The equivalent funding for London authorities is the responsibility of the London mayor.

[2] The figures include funding for capital highways maintenance, the integrated transport block (for improvement schemes each costing less than £5 million) and for major transport projects (excluding light rail, which is covered elsewhere in this answer). These are allocations not actual spend—authorities have flexibility to spend more or less—and some parts of the allocations were conditional on further progress being made on particular projects.

(b) For light rail in 2004–05, the Department provided:

£6 million for Leeds Supertram—£2.85 per capita in the West Yorkshire area;

£9.7 million for Manchester Metrolink—£3.82 per capita in the Greater Manchester area;

£4.2 million for Merseytram line 1—£3.08 per capita in the Merseyside area; and £18 million for Tyne and Wear Metro—£16.58 per capita in the Tyne and Wear area.

The Department does not directly fund light rail in London and so it is not possible to calculate the per capita spending on light rail schemes in London.

(c) Most of the public funding support for bus services outside London is provided either to operators or through the revenue support grant, administered by ODPM, and is not identifiable at local authority level. The Department does provide some grants directly to local authorities for bus services and the per capita distribution of these in 2004–05 is shown in table 2, which has also been placed in the Libraries of the House.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH AFFAIRS

Chagos Islands

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps his Department is taking to expedite a visit of Chagos Islanders to the Chagos Islands. [32185]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office, via the British high commission in Port Louis is currently exploring with the Government of Mauritius the possibility of chartering a Mauritian vessel for a humanitarian visit by members of the Chagossian community to the Chagos Islands in the first half of 2006. The high commission remains in regular contact with the leader of Chagos Refugee Group, Olivier Bancoult, over the logistics for the visit.

Civil Service Relocation (Scotland)

Stewart Hosie: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many departmental civil service jobs have been relocated to Scotland in each year since 2001. [32258]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: While the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) has not relocated any civil service jobs to Scotland since 2001, UK Trade and Investment will be re-locating some 12 posts from London to Glasgow during 2006. UK Trade and Investment is the lead Government organization that supports companies in the UK trading internationally and overseas companies seeking to locate in the UK. It is a joint FCO and the Department of Trade and Industry organisation and draws its staff from both Departments.

Departmental Websites

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will take steps to ensure the Department's websites attain the W3C AAA standard of accessibility for people with visual and other disabilities; and if he will set a target date for this standard to be achieved by. [30966]

Ian Pearson: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) follows Government policy on publication on the web which means following the guidelines for UK Government websites and compliance with the Web Content Accessibility Guidelines Version 1. Neither these guidelines, e-Accessibility communications from the European Union or advice from the RNIB have ever suggested that Government websites should attain and maintain Level AAA.

The FCO websites have been designed to be as accessible as possible in line Government guidelines, which currently indicate that websites should meet Level A of the Web Content Accessibility Guidelines that is the Priority One Checkpoints. They also identify a significant number of the Priority Two and Priority Three Checkpoints, from the Level AAA requirement, that have been deemed to be best practice. For example FCO websites use access-keys (P3 Checkpoint 9.5), provide a site map (P3 Checkpoint 13.3) and search facilities (P3 Checkpoint 13.7).

EU Budget

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on progress of European Union budget discussions. [31425]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The UK presidency has completed formal bilateral consultations on the EU budget for 2007–13 with all member states, as well as Romania and Bulgaria. EU Foreign Ministers have also now had substantive discussions on this issue at the General Affairs and External Relations Councils on 7 November and 21 November. On the basis of those discussions, the UK presidency will table comprehensive proposals in early December, and work towards agreement at the European Council on 15–16 December. As my right hon. Friend, the Foreign Secretary told the European Parliament on 16 November, significant changes will be needed to the proposals tabled in June if we are to reach agreement.

EU Committees

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representation the United Kingdom has on the EU's Article 133 Committee. [30502]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The Article 133 Committee is a council body established under Article 133 of the EC treaty to assist the Commission in the conduct of the EU's trade policy. The committee is attended by one representative of each EU member state as well the European Commission and the General Secretariat of the Council of the EU.

The Article 133 Committee meets weekly—once a month in full members format, with attendance by the senior trade official of each member state and three times a month in deputy members format, with attendance by less senior officials. It meets also, although less regularly, in specific sectoral formations, namely services, textiles and steel.

The UK's full member of the Article 133 Committee is Edmund Hosker, Director of World Trade, the Department of Trade and Industry (DTI). The UK's deputy member of the Article 133 Committee is Ray Symons, Head of the EU Trade Negotiations Unit, DTI.

EU Trade Policy Meetings

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make representations to the EU Commission to publish the minutes of EU trade policy meetings. [30497]

Mr. Douglas Alexander [holding answer 21 November 2005]: The General Secretariat of the Council of the European Union publishes outcomes from the Article 133 Committee in accordance with Council Regulation 1049/2001 (Regulation of the European Parliament and Council regarding public access to European Parliament, Council and Commission documents). These documents can be accessed through the Council's website at http://ue.eu.int. Outcomes from the Article 133 Committee that lead to proposals for EU legislation are agreed by the Council and subject to the normal procedures for parliamentary scrutiny.

European Court of Human Rights

Tony Lloyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether he has received a copy of the Internal Auditor's Report on the European Court of Human Rights; and if he will place a copy in the Library. [32372]

Dr. Howells: I can confirm that the Foreign and Commonwealth Office has received a copy of the Council of Europe's Internal Auditor's report on the European Court of Human Rights.

As the report is classified confidential by the Council of Europe, we are currently unable to place a copy in the Library. However, we are seeking permission from the Secretary General of the Council of Europe to have this document de-classified. If this request is granted, it will allow us to place a copy of the report in the Library of the House.

Festivals

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps his Department took to celebrate and promote the events of (a) Ramadan, (b) Diwali and (c) Chinese new year in 2005. [31169]

Dr. Howells: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) took the following steps to celebrate and promote:

Ramadan: an evening reception at the FCO to mark Eid-al-Fitr (the end of Ramadan) on 22 November 2005. I also hosted a lunch to mark Eid-al-Fitr.

Diwali: no event hosted by the FCO. However, an official attended a Diwali event hosted by the Hindu Forum Britain at the House of Commons on 27 October 2005 and officials attended a Diwali reception hosted by the Home Office on 14 November 2005. On 11 November a senior FCO official met the President of the Hindu temple at Bhaktivedanta Manor and lit a candle of remembrance on behalf of the FCO for victims of the recent New Delhi bombings.

Chinese new year: an evening reception at the FCO, hosted by my hon. Friend the then FCO Minister of State (Bill Rammell), on behalf of my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary, on 9 February 2005.

The FCO intends to host a multi-faith reception in early in 2006.

Foreign Office Appointments (Advertisements)

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs which Foreign Office appointments, other than the post of UK Ambassador to the Holy See, have been advertised in (a) The Economist, (b) The Guardian, (c) The Daily Telegraph, (d) The Independent and (e) The Times in the past five years; which of these were also advertised in national newspapers of Scotland; and if he will make a statement. [29589]

Dr. Howells: As the information requested is lengthy, a list will be placed in the Library of the House.

Global Fund

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether the EU will be able to give further funding to the Global Fund under external action. [30263]

Mr. Thomas: I have been asked to reply.

The EU (including the EC) is the largest contributor to the Global Fund providing US$2.4 billion up to 2005. At the Global Fund replenishment conference in September 2005 a number of EU donors, including the European Commission, were unable to announce firm pledges for the full two-year period (2006–07) due to the timing of their budgetary procedures. Nevertheless US$2 billion was pledged by EU countries excluding the EC. The European Commission's 2006 budget is still being finalised and the Financial Perspectives governing the budget from 2007 are yet to be agreed. We expect the details of the Commission's communication about thematic programmes in the next Financial Perspectives, which proposes that a human and social development programme would address health including AIDS issues, will be discussed early next year.

The EU set out their political commitment to future financing of the Global Fund in the Council Conclusions of May 2005. DFID will continue to encourage donors to do as much as they can to substantially increase their contributions to the Global Fund. A follow-up conference will be held in June 2006 to secure additional pledges to meet the Global Fund's resource needs in 2006–07.

Human Rights

Mr. Streeter: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what formal procedures are in place within his Department for taking into account for the purposes of UK foreign policy the human rights record of a country. [31864]

Ian Pearson: Human rights are "mainstreamed" within the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO). British missions abroad, geographic and relevant functional departments in London, are asked to monitor the human rights situations of the countries they are accredited to or work with, and to reflect this in their policy advice to Ministers, their project work and wider engagement with those countries. Mainstreaming is underpinned by regular training on human rights issues for FCO staff, and by support and advice from the FCO's Human Rights, Democracy and Governance Group.

Iraq

Sir Menzies Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many of the 13,500 detainees held by multi-national forces in Iraq are under the age of 18 years; and if he will make a statement. [29046]

Mr. Straw [holding answer 23 November 2005]: The number of security internees fluctuates due to the continuous review and release programme and the continuing need to detain individuals for imperative reasons of security. On 18 November 2005, the UK did not hold any individuals under the age of 18 years of the total (33) held by the UK. The US Government has told us that, on 14 November 2005, they were holding approximately 250 security internees who are aged under 18 years old.

Sir Menzies Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many detainees held by multi-national forces in Iraq have been transferred to other countries; and to (a) which countries and (b) what authorities such detainees have been transferred. [29047]

Mr. Straw [holding answer 23 November 2005]: We are not aware that any security internees have been transferred from Iraq to other countries.

Israel

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether he has apologised to his Israeli counterpart for the incident involving General Almog at Heathrow airport on 11 September. [31060]

Dr. Howells: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary spoke with the Israeli Foreign Minister Silvan Shalom in September this year. He stated that this had been a private prosecution and that the Government had not played a role in issuing the arrest warrant for General Almog. The Foreign Secretary apologised as a matter of courtesy.

We are committed to honouring our international obligations under the Geneva Conventions.

Maldives

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on the human rights of prisoners of conscience in the Maldives, with particular reference to (a) Mohamed Nasheed and (b) Jennifer Latheef. [29038]

Dr. Howells: The Government monitor developments in the Maldives closely. We make clear our concerns about democracy and human rights to the Government of the Maldives. The British high commissioner in Colombo accredited to the Maldives did so personally, to President Gayoom in September. The high commissioner and his deputy also separately made representations to Foreign Minister Dr. Ahmed Shaheed in late October.

The British high commission in Colombo is also active in co-ordinating EU action locally. As Presidency, we led an EU fact-finding mission to the Maldives in August that met Government Ministers, officials and detainees, including Mohamed Nasheed. An EU statement issued on 2 September emphasised the Maldivian authorities' responsibility to uphold the right of political parties to meet freely and to carry out peaceful political activities. It noted the seriousness of the charges against detainees, calling for due process and making clear that the credibility of trials would come under close scrutiny. We will continue bilaterally and with our EU partners to underline to the Government of the Maldives its democracy and human rights obligations.

We strongly support continued democratic political reforms in the Maldives. We welcomed the legalisation of political parties in June 2005. We are, however, seriously concerned by the Government of the Maldives approach towards the opposition, including the trials of Mohamed Nasheed and Jennifer Latheef, which appear to have political motivations. Freedom of association and expression are essential to the reform process. I discussed these cases with Mohammed Latheef (father of Jennifer Latheef), the Maldivian Democratic Party's (MDP) Chief Spokesman on 8 November. Mohammed Latheef told me that, in spite of the manner of her incarceration, her treatment by the Maldivian authorities was of an acceptable standard. I trust this will continue to be the case. I assured him of the UK's support for the democratic reform process and human rights in the Maldives. I underlined the importance of the MDP remaining engaged and peacefully committed to the democratic process. We welcome recent moves from the Government of the Maldives to establish dialogue with the MDP. We look forward to seeing early progress. We commend the offices of the Commonwealth Secretary-General's Special Envoy in this regard.

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will take steps to stop the supply of (a) arms and (b) other weaponry to the Maldives. [30908]

Dr. Howells: We monitor the supply of arms and weaponry through export controls. The respect of human rights and fundamental freedoms in the country of final destination is one of the key criteria. Export licences will not be issued if there is a clear risk that the proposed export might be used for internal repression. The UK has no current plans to impose sanctions, such as an arms embargo, against the Government of the Maldives. We are, however, seriously concerned about the human rights situation in the Maldives. We continue to raise those concerns bilaterally and with EU partners.

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will place an immediate travel ban on members of the Government of the Maldives entering the United Kingdom. [30910]

Dr. Howells: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave today (UIN 30906).

Niger

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations he has made to the Government of Niger concerning the reported persecution of Christians in Niger State since the imposition of Shariah law. [30603]

Ian Pearson: We are concerned by all incidents of inter-religious conflict and violence in Nigeria, including persecution of individuals on the grounds of their religious belief.

Representatives of the British high commission in Abuja regularly raise such issues with both the federal and state authorities when they come to our attention and are verified.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations he has made to the Government of Niger concerning the reported attack on and torture of the Christian convert Sardauna Anaruwa Sashi by police officers in Niger State in September. [30604]

Ian Pearson: The case of Sardauna Anaruwa Sashi had not previously been drawn to our attention, either through the Nigerian media or by human rights organisations based in Nigeria.

We are concerned by all incidents of inter-religious conflict and violence, including persecution on the grounds of religious belief. We will undertake inquiries in order to verify the reports of this case and, if necessary, will make representations to the Federal Nigerian Government or the Government of the State of Niger.

Overseas Missions

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many (a) embassies, (b) high commissions and (c) consulates the United Kingdom operates; and how many it operated in 1997. [30504]

Dr. Howells: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) currently operates 102 embassies, 42 high commissions and 99 consulates and trade offices. In 1997 the FCO operated 99 embassies, 46 high commissions and 92 consulates and trade offices. Like any well-run organisation, the FCO continues to move its resources flexibly in line with UK interests.

Pakistan (Earthquake)

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what response the EU has made to the recent earthquake in Pakistan. [30267]

Mr. Thomas: I have been asked to reply.

On 8 October, an earthquake measuring 7.6 on the Richter scale devastated the Muzaffarabad area of northern Pakistan, around 60 miles north-northeast of Islamabad. Approximately 30,000 square miles were severely damaged causing the destruction of 90 per cent. of buildings in the worst hit areas. The death toll has reached nearly 75,000, with approximately 70,000 injured. Nearly 2.5 million people have lost their houses.

The European Union's civil protection mechanism was activated on 8 October and operated for two weeks until the immediate search and rescue operation was over. Search and rescue teams from member states including the UK arrived within 36 hours and helped save many lives. The presidency had a representative in Islamabad from 10 October, co-ordinating assistance through this mechanism.

The European Commission Humanitarian Office (ECHO) despatched staff on 8 October, and within 72 hours the European Commission had made €3.6 million available for humanitarian relief operations. A further €10 million has been committed by the EC. The funds have already helped to deliver items including tents, blankets, bedding, water, food and medical supplies to the affected areas. The European Commission has requested a further €80 million (€30 million for humanitarian and €50 million for reconstruction) from the EU budgetary authorities. In addition to the €93.6 million from the European Commission, EU member states have pledged over €500 million for humanitarian and reconstruction activities.

The presidency issued two official statements in the first few days after the earthquake expressing the EU's condolences and willingness to provide as much assistance as possible. The earthquake was discussed in October at meetings with Heads of Government, Finance, Foreign and Development Ministers. I represented the Council of Ministers at the 19 November donor conference in Islamabad and reported back to the 21–22 November General Affairs and External Relations Council in Brussels. At that meeting, Development Ministers agreed on the urgent need to provide practical support to the survivors of the earthquake and the importance of continuing to strengthen the international community's capacity to respond to major natural disasters.

Predictive Diallers

John Hemming: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many calls were made from call centres in his Department in 2004–05 using predictive diallers; how many such calls resulted in contact being made with the recipient without a Government agent available to talk to them; and what assessment he has made of the likely impact of Ofcom's policy on silent calls on the use of predictive diallers in departmental call centres. [28171]

Dr. Howells: The call centres operating within the Foreign and Commonwealth Office do not deal directly with the public and do not use predictive dialling facilities.

Royal Family (Visits)

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer of 31 October 2005, Official Report, column 754W, on Prince of Wales (United States visit), what was the cost of the private jet used to convey HRH the Prince of Wales and the Duchess of Cornwall between Washington DC and New York during their recent visit to the United States; and whether this sum was included in the £330,000 referred to. [31870]

Dr. Howells: It is not possible to break down the cost for flying between Washington and New York. The aircraft for the Prince of Wales and Duchess of Cornwall's visit to the USA was put out to tender on the basis of a set itinerary which included flying London-New York-Washington-New Orleans-San Francisco-London. I can confirm that the cost of the journey between New York and Washington was included in the £330,000 referred to in the answer my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary gave my hon. Friend on 31 October 2005, Official Report, column 754W.

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what unofficial visits abroad by the royal family over the past 12 months have involved (a) overnight stays at UK ambassadors' residences and (b) receptions (i) hosted and (ii) attended by his Department's staff; and if he will make a statement. [32734]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The information is as follows.

Working visit by the Earl of Wessex to the Czech Republic 18–19 July 2005: Reception at the residence for Duke of Edinburgh's Award in the Czech Republic.

Working visit by the Duke of Kent to Washington on behalf of Imperial War Museum 10–12 May 2005: Overnight stay and reception at the residence.

Working visit on behalf of the International Olympic Committee by the Princess Royal to Singapore 3–9 July 2005: Her Royal Highness attended a reception at the residence.

Private visit by Princess Alexandra to Austria 18–22 November 2005: Her Royal Highness stayed at the residence and attended charity reception at the residence in aid of children in Ethiopia (Bohm Trust).

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what official visits abroad are planned for members of the royal family in each of the next six months; and if he will make a statement. [32735]

Dr. Howells: An announcement has already been made on the Royal website concerning the Duke of York's forthcoming official visit to Egypt from 28–30 November 2005. Proposals and dates for other official visits overseas by members of the royal family are kept under constant review. It is not the practice to announce such visits until they are firm and all parties concerned have agreed that they can proceed.

Saddam Hussein Trial

Sir Menzies Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whose responsibility it is to ensure the protection of (a) prosecution and (b) defence lawyers involved in the trial of Saddam Hussein; and if he will make a statement. [29045]

Dr. Howells [holding answer 23 November 2005]: The prosecution of Saddam Hussein is being conducted under the Iraqi domestic legal process and therefore the Iraqi Government is responsible for the security of its citizens, including the prosecution and defence lawyers at the trial.

Sir Christopher Meyer

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether Sir Christopher Meyer submitted the manuscript of his recent book to his Department for (a) comment and (b) clearance; and if he will make a statement. [26840]

Mr. Straw: Under the diplomatic service regulations, which are based on home civil service codes of conduct, all former ambassadors remain bound by a continuing duty of confidentiality after they have left Crown employment. The regulations require that former members of the diplomatic service should consult their Department before writing memoirs based on their experience and should submit any part of them which draws on official information or experience for clearance by their Department before publication. Departments are required to assess texts for any harm to national security or defence; international relations; and confidential relationships within Government. The first two categories are based on the Official Secrets Act. The third category broadly reflects the common law of confidence. These categories were established in 1976 following the Report of the Committee of Privy Counsellors on Ministerial Memoirs, chaired by Lord Radcliffe, which also set a period of 15 years for maintaining confidences within Government. In practice there is a high threshold to establish a breach of the regulations, which are based as much upon well established conventions and standards of conduct expected of all civil servants as on actual legal obligation.

In the case of Sir Christopher Meyer's memoirs, there was no prior consultation by the author with the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) before he entered into a commitment with a publisher and began writing. Following the appearance of a trailer for the book on the Amazon website in May, Sir Christopher Meyer was contacted by the FCO, reminded of the publication rules and repeatedly asked to submit his text to the Department when completed. In the event his book was only submitted to the Cabinet Secretary for comment by his publisher on 7 October, some four weeks before planned publication on 10 November.

The Cabinet Office sent a copy of the book to the FCO and both Departments reviewed it against the standard criteria for clearing publications under the rules. The judgment, with which I agreed, was made on the particular facts of this case that no changes should be sought primarily because the book posed no national security risk; it contained nothing substantially new which we judged would harm relations with the US; and nothing was specifically identified that was considered so damaging as to require consideration of legal action.

However, in his letter of 4 November to the publisher, the Cabinet Secretary made it clear that, while the Government had no comments to make on the book, it was disappointing that a former diplomat should disclose confidences gained as a result of his employment. The Cabinet Secretary stated that it was not the Government's responsibility to check the accuracy of remarks attributed to individuals in the book and emphasised that his response should not be taken to indicate any form of official or unofficial approval of the book. A copy of the Cabinet Secretary's letter has been placed in the Library of the House.

By deciding to write and publish this book, Sir Christopher Meyer has broken the trust placed in him as a former servant of the Crown. As I have already said publicly, it is completely unacceptable for former senior civil servants or diplomats to break such trust in this way. It undermines the key relationship between civil servants and Ministers. It is greatly to be regretted that Sir Christopher Meyer has chosen to reveal the substance of conversations with individuals at the centre of sensitive issues, especially as those individuals would not have expected that information to be revealed so soon after the event or in such terms. His disclosures fall well below the standard of discretion expected of former Officials and the conventions set out in the Radcliffe report.

I note from the comment on this book to date that this view is shared across a very wide political and public spectrum. It has also led to very great concern among the whole of the diplomatic service. The General Secretary of the PDA—the senior civil and public servants' union—has described the book as utterly wrong and a fundamental breach of trust and confidentiality. The Chairman of the Diplomatic Service Association has called Sir Christopher Meyer's action in publishing

> "wholly inconsistent with the high standards of professionalism and integrity of which the service is and should be justifiably proud."

As many have said, including their noble Lords on 17 November 2005, Official Report, columns 1187–89, this case calls into question the effectiveness of current publication rules, which depend for much of their effect on norms of conduct and behaviour rather than laws. I am currently examining the relevant diplomatic service regulations with a view to making changes so as to ensure that they more accurately reflect the overall purpose of the regulations and conventions in this field. I hope to make an announcement soon. There is also a wider Government review under way as well as one by the Public Administration Select Committee.

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether his call for Sir Christopher Meyer to resign as head of the Press Complaints Commission (a) was made in his ministerial capacity and (b) represents Government policy. [31620]

Mr. Straw [holding answer 24 November 2005]: I set out the Government's position on the book in the answer I gave my hon. Friend the Member for Pendle (Mr. Prentice) today (UIN 26840). My view is that the publication of Sir Christopher Meyer's memoirs also raises questions about his role as Chairman of the Press Complaints Commission, as I said in the course of the Today programme on Radio 4 on 11 November.

Uganda

Mary Creagh: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations he has made to the Ugandan President following the arrest of the opposition leader Dr. Kiiza Besigye on 14 November. [30554]

Ian Pearson: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer I gave the hon. Member for Boston and Skegness (Mark Simmonds) and my hon. Friend the Member for Falkirk (Eric Joyce) on 22 November 2005, Official Report, column 1901W. Subsequently, my noble Friend the Foreign and Commonwealth Office Minister for Africa (Lord Triesman of Tottenham) also spoke to the Foreign Minister Kutesa on 17 November regarding the situation, and on 18 November, the UK issued a statement on the situation on behalf of the EU.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on the implications of the arrest of Kiiza Besigye in Uganda. [30606]

Ian Pearson: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer I gave the hon. Member for Boston and Skegness (Mark Simmonds) and my hon. Friend the Member for Falkirk (Eric Joyce) on 22 November 2005, Official Report, column 1901W and to the answer I gave my hon. Friend the Member for Wakefield (Mary Creagh) today (UIN 30554). The UK, in common with our EU partners, views with deep concern the arrest of the Forum for Democratic Change (FDC) leader, Dr. Kiiza Besigye, and 22 others on charges including treason. The move to a pluralist democratic system in advance of the next elections in February or March 2006 is seen by the EU as a crucial step in the political development of Uganda. In this regard, the EU is concerned that all parties should be able, and be seen to be able, to compete in a fair and transparent manner. The UK therefore calls for the due legal process and protection guaranteed under the Ugandan Constitution to be made fully available to Dr. Besigye and the others charged, and for those charged to be granted an early, free and transparent trial.

Mr. Streeter: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations he has made to the Government of Uganda about the recent imprisonment of presidential candidate Dr. Kizza Besigye. [31863]

Ian Pearson: I refer the hon. Member to the answers I gave the hon. Member for Boston and Skegness (Mark Simmonds) on 22 November 2005, Official Report, column 1901W, and my hon. Friend the Member for Wakefield (Mary Creagh) and hon. Friend the Member for Stroud (Mr. Drew) today (UIN 30554 and 30606). The British high commissioner also raised this issue with the Ugandan Prime Minister on 23 November 2005.

EDUCATION AND SKILLS

Adult Education

Kelvin Hopkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what assessment she has made of the change in the level of enrolment on adult education courses in further education colleges in 2005–06; and whether she took this information into account when deciding funding priorities for adult education courses in (a) 2006–07 and (b) 2007–08, as set out in her Department's Press Notice 2005/0123. [23609]

Bill Rammell: Although detailed individual learner data about the current year, 2005/06, was not available when deciding funding priorities for 2006–08 we and the Learning and Skills Council (LSC) had initial information, based on local intelligence, available for the beginning of the academic year. The funding priority work was informed by local LSCs' planning data and trend from earlier years.

At Risk Register

John Hemming: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many children died due to mistreatment by an adult responsible for their care in each year since 1989; and how many were on the at risk register at the time. [26432]

Maria Eagle: The Commission for Social Care Inspection (CSCI) collect information on the number of deaths, illness and other events under Regulation 37 of the Care Homes Regulation 2001. Although CSCI's Regulation and Inspection of Notifiable Incidents database captures this information it is not possible to give a breakdown on the number of children that have died due to mistreatment by an adult responsible for their care as the database does not collect data by this specific category.

Details are shown as follows of the number of children and young people on child protection registers at 31 March since 1989.

Children on child protection registers at 31 March each year since 1989: England

[1] Figures for the years 1989 to 1998 have been estimated and are derived entirely from those councils responding in sufficient detail.

[2] Figures may not add due to rounding and the 'all children' figures including unborn children.

Building Schools for the Future Programme

Jim Cousins: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills whether assets, buildings and developments that are conventionally financed rather than by private finance initiative under the 'Building Schools for the Future' programme will be subject to the facilities management and maintenance arrangements agreed by local education partnerships. [32414]

Jacqui Smith: It is for the local authority as commissioner of services to determine the scope of services that it wishes the Local Education Partnership to be responsible for, including the provision of facilities management arrangements for conventionally procured schools.

Bullying

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what measures are in place to ensure that head teachers thoroughly investigate and act upon incidents of bullying; and if she will make a statement. [32076]

Jacqui Smith: We attach a high priority to helping schools prevent and combat bullying: it is a serious problem which puts the emotional well-being and educational achievement of pupils at risk. All schools should treat bullying seriously and take steps to combat it promptly and firmly whenever and wherever it occurs.

Since September 1999, head teachers of maintained schools have been under a duty to draw up measures to prevent all forms of bullying among pupils; this should include the making of rules and provision for enforcing them. Our detailed guidance "Don't Suffer in Silence" offers further advice on strategies and approaches schools can utilise in investigating and responding to incidents of bullying, alongside those that can be used preventatively. Additionally, many local authorities provide guidance on anti bullying to their schools to supplement and localise the guidance issued by the DfES nationally.

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many cases of bullying were recorded in (a) primary and (b) secondary schools in Cumbria in each year since 1997; and what the average figures were for English county councils. [32119]

Jacqui Smith: As data on bullying are not collected centrally, we do not have statistics relating to incidents of bullying at primary and secondary schools in Cumbria, nor average figures for England. Schools and local authorities are increasingly carrying out local surveys of children and young people's views of bullying to inform the development of their anti bullying strategies. Bullying cases do appear to be reported more often now than before but we have no hard evidence that bullying is increasing or that it is affecting more children.

However, any level of bullying is too high and we are determined to help schools tackle the problem. Our guidance "Bullying: Don't Suffer in Silence", the anti-bullying charter and the anti-bullying website www.dfes.gov.uk/bullying offer detailed advice on preventing and addressing bullying. Additionally, we have undertaken a number of public awareness campaigns, including anti bullying week, to encourage and support children to 'tell someone' and seek help if they are being bullied.

Consultants/Special Advisers

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many (a) consultants and (b) special advisers were employed by her Department in each year since 1997; what the cost of each was in each year; and if she will make a statement. [27422]

Maria Eagle: The number of consultants engaged by my Department is not collected centrally and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Within the Department for Education and Skills the cost of consultancy charged to administration budgets in each year since 1997 was:

	£ million
1997–98	4.0
1998–99	5.0
1999–2000	3.7
2000–01	4.3
2001–02	5.0
2002–03	4.5
2003–04	4.7
2004–05	3.9

The total cost of consultancy charged to programme budgets from November 2004 to March 2005 (five months) was £4.4 million. The cost charged to programme budgets before November 2004 was not recorded centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost. Consultancy in this context is defined as investigating problems, providing analysis or advice, or assisting with the development of new systems, new structures or new capabilities within the organisation.

For special advisers, I refer the hon. Member to the reply given by the Minister for the Cabinet Office on 16 November 2005, Official Report, column 1257W.

Contact Orders

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what research her Department has (a) commissioned and (b) evaluated (i) on how many (A) mothers and (B) fathers do not comply with contact orders after separation and (ii) what the reasons are for non-compliance. [28424]

Bridget Prentice: I have been asked to reply.

This information is not collected in the form requested. The Government have commissioned substantial research into residence and contact disputes in court. This research indicates that almost a quarter of cases lasted over a year or arose following previous proceedings, indicating that families could be experiencing difficulties with the contact arrangements in the original order. Court file analysis has shown that almost a quarter of cases have two or more repeat applications and about a third of these are the result of enforcement issues, while over a half are instead driven by the need to have a previous order updated. The Government intend to commission further research into how the courts deal with contact disputes and the court orders made.

Damages

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if she will list the 10 largest amounts of damages paid out by her Department in the last year for which figures are available, indicating in each case the nature of the claim. [27723]

Maria Eagle: No damages have been paid out by the Department for Education and Skills in the last year.

Domestic Violence

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what action she (a) has taken and (b) plans to take to ensure that statutory agencies provide appropriate protection for children who have experienced domestic violence. [30721]

Maria Eagle: The Government recognise the strong links between child protection concerns and domestic violence. We have published guidance, for all statutory agencies and other organisations and individuals with a relevant interest, in our inter-agency guidance 'Working Together to Safeguard Children' (1999).

'Working Together' helps to support the integration of effective local practice and stresses that everyone working with women and children should be alert to the frequent inter-relationship between domestic violence and the abuse and neglect of children. Working Together is being revised and updated and this includes further reinforcing the messages on the links of domestic violence and child protection.

The 'Every Child Matters: Change for Children' programme will improve the welfare of all children by putting in place arrangements for earlier and more effective assessment and intervention for vulnerable children, including those affected by domestic violence.

Education (Tamworth)

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many (a) classroom assistants and (b) full-time equivalent classroom assistant posts there were in schools in the Tamworth constituency in each year since 1997. [27488]

Jacqui Smith: The following table provides the full-time equivalent number of teaching assistants in maintained sector schools, including pupil referral units, in the Tamworth Constituency in January of each year.

The number of full-time equivalent teaching assistant posts in Tamworth is not collected centrally.

Full-time equivalent number of teaching assistants[1] in maintained sector schools[2] including pupil referral units, in the Tamworth constituency[3]

Education Research

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what research her Department has undertaken to compare the economic benefits of investing in 14 to 19 education with investment in adult education; and if she will make a statement. [27949]

Bill Rammell: The Department has commissioned a wide range of independent academic research into the economic benefits of education and skills and it is an important part of the Department-funded Centre for the Economics of Education (CEE) work programme. Investments in 14 to 19 and adult education may encompass a variety of different types of provision and therefore, any direct comparison of investments in each would have to include all of these different types of learning and the qualifications which they result in. Moreover, investments made in 14 to 19 and adult education are typically complementary rather than competing.

The economic returns for young people attaining qualifications at school are high with average returns to five or more GCSEs at grades A*-C estimated at 28 per cent. for males and 24 per cent. for females while two or more A levels earn an average return of 15 per cent. for both sexes (McIntosh, 2004).

While attainment rates at 14 to 19 are improving, there is still a stock of older adults in the labour force with low level or no qualifications that would benefit from access to learning in order to attain qualifications.

Returns to adult training are more varied with some low-level NVQs generating low or no returns for some individuals. However, the returns to low-level NVQs are higher in certain sectors, when gained in the workplace and for particular groups. For example, adults who undertake their NVQ level 2 through workplace training gain a 6 to 7 per cent. return compared to an individual with no qualifications. (Dearden at el, 2004). In light of this evidence the Government have introduced Employer Training Pilots, which subsidise employers to train low skilled employees to obtain a basic skills or first level 2 qualification. At the end of October 2005, the pilots had signed up 25,938 employers and 213,422 employees and 107,059 learners had successfully completed their learning. Evaluation has shown very high rates of employer and employee satisfaction and a range of benefits are reported by both. On 2 December 2004, the Chancellor announced in his Pre-Budget Report that there will be a National Employer Training Programme, to be rolled-out from April 2006. The programme will be applying the lessons learned from the successful Employer Training Pilots and give employers the opportunity to access publicly funded support to training their low skilled workers.

There is a current emphasis on improving qualification design to ensure consistently high returns for all qualifications by enhancing the role of employers in shaping provision through Sector Skills Agreements, Centres of Vocational Excellence and National Skills Academies.

Improving the qualification level of the adult labour force also benefits the economy in terms of improving our relative productivity performance at an international level. O'Mahony and de Boer (2002) estimate that up to 20 per cent. of our productivity gap with France and Germany can be explained by the UK's relatively low skills levels. There are also wider benefits from learning in terms of improved health, reduced crime and increased social cohesion. The Department funds the Centre for Research on the Wider Benefits of Learning which has produced some estimates of these benefits.

Faith Schools

Mr. Davey: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many non-religious state (a) primary and (b) secondary schools gained faith school status in each year since 1997. [31931]

Jacqui Smith: Non-religious schools cannot gain faith school status. It is possible for a non-religious school to close and for a new faith school to be established on the same site. This would require the following process. There must be local consultation followed by the publication of linked statutory proposals to close the school and open a new faith school. There would then follow a six-week period during which objections/ expressions of support may be registered. The school organisation committee would then consider the proposals taking into account a number of factors including the views of local parents and the community. If the committee could not reach unanimous agreement, the proposals would pass to the schools adjudicator to make a decision. Approved proposals must be implemented. Before 1999 these decisions were made by the Secretary of State.

The number of non-religious state primary and secondary schools that have closed and been replaced by faith schools in each year since 1997 is given in the following table:

	Primary	Secondary	Total
1998	0	1	1

Free School Meals

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what proportion of children receiving free school meals achieved five A*-C grades in (a) grammar schools, (b) non-selective schools, (c) academies, (d) city technology colleges, (e) foundation schools and (f) faith schools in (i) 2002, (ii) 2003, (iii) 2004 and (iv) 2005 where the proportion of children entitled to free school meals was (A) five per cent. and less, (B) greater than five but equal to and less than nine per cent., (C) greater than nine and equal to or less than 13 per cent., (D) greater than 13 per cent. and less than or equal to 21 per cent., (E) greater than 21 per cent. and less than or equal to 35 per cent., (F) greater than 35 per cent. and equal to or less than 50 per cent. and (G) more than 50 per cent. of the school's pupil numbers. [24282]

Jacqui Smith: The information requested is given for 2002, 2003 and 2004 in the following tables. Figures for 2005 are not yet available.

Further Education

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if she will reform career development loans to make them more accessible to further education students; and if she will make a statement. [31821]

Bill Rammell: Career development loans (CDLs) already provide support to students in further education (FE). We are aiming to test changes to CDLs to ensure that they are better able to support the aims of the 2003 Skills Strategy "21st Century Skills: Realising Our Potential", and in particular to make them more accessible to FE learners. We will be testing these new arrangements in 2006/07 and 2007/08 and evaluation of the outcomes will contribute to reform of the programme for the future.

Graduate Teachers Programme

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills whether she plans to reform the Graduate Teachers Programme; and if she will make a statement. [31877]

Jacqui Smith: No. The Graduate Teacher Programme (GTP) scheme has been a highly successful initial teacher training programme that continues to attract and recruit large numbers of new high quality trainees, many of whom train in secondary priority subjects and who are employed in schools in areas that find the recruitment of new teachers more difficult. During 2004/05 more than 5,400 new trainees were recruited on to the GTP scheme.

Learning and Skills Council

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the actual expenditure was of the Learning and Skills Council in each year since its inception, broken down into (a) the categories in the grant letter of the relevant year and (b) the categories set out in the grant letter of November 2005. [30813]

Bill Rammell: The following tables set out the information requested.

(a) Expenditure from 2001–02 to 2004–05 by the categories in the relevant grant letter[1]

The LSC expenditure totals up to 2003–04 are consistent with LSC published Annual Accounts. For 2004–05 the expenditure is as signed off by the NAO and contained on the Annual Report and Accounts which are due to be laid before Parliament on 28 November and issued more widely a few days later.

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what proportion of the money saved by changes to the structure of the Learning and Skills Council will (a) remain in the further education budget and (b) be allocated to further education colleges; and if she will make a statement. [31819]

Bill Rammell: The LSC has announced its funding plans for the academic years 2006/07 and 2007/08 through its document "Priorities for Success". The plans include a significant transfer of funds out of centrally-held budgets in both the DfES and LSC for consolidation into core sector funding and they reflect an assessment of efficiency savings. They will deliver an estimated 3 per cent. cash increase on allocations to colleges, schools and providers in each of 2006/07 and 2007/08. There will be variations around this average and the LSC will be working with individual colleges, schools and providers over the coming months on the implications for their own budgets.

The LSC is embarking upon a major transformation programme that will make it a smaller, more dynamic and more customer-focused organisation. It is currently in the process of consulting on the programme and will be developing its detailed plans once the consultation period has concluded.

Literacy

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if she will make a statement on progress with the review of the National Literacy Strategy. [32046]

Jacqui Smith: The National Literacy Strategy—now part of the Primary National Strategy—was introduced in 1998. Parts of the Primary National Strategy will be affected by the Rose review of best practice in the early teaching of reading and the renewal of the non-statutory frameworks for teaching literacy and maths. The Rose review will report in early 2006. The new frameworks will be available for schools in September 2006. The framework for teaching literacy will reflect the conclusions of the Rose review.

Looked-after Children (Safeguards)

John Hemming: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the evidential basis was for the statement in her Department's guidelines Safeguarding Children in Whom Illness is Induced or Fabricated by Carers with Parenting Responsibilities, on the likelihood of it being the correct explanation for a child's symptoms is the involvement of carers and that the case should be referred to social services. [30688]

Maria Eagle: The Government's guidance, "Safeguarding Children in Whom Illness is Fabricated or Induced" (2002), focuses on children when there is a concern that the child is or is likely to suffer harm as a result of their carer inducing or fabricating illness. The key issue is the impact of fabricated or induced illness on the child's health and development, and consideration of how best to safeguard the child's welfare. The guidance emphasises the importance of carefully evaluating the child's signs and symptoms of illness in order to understand the reasons for them and that profe sionals should be open to all possible explanations. The question refers to the consultation version of this guidance, the final version of which has an amended title and content. The sentence in question sets out the process that should be followed when there is a concern that illness in a child might be being induced or fabricated. It relates to the previous section on the medical evaluation of a child's signs and symptoms.

Marshall Aid/Scholarships

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if she will make a statement on the operation of (a) the Marshall Aid Commemoration Act 1953 and (b) the Marshall Scholarships Act 1959. [29842]

Ian Pearson: I have been asked to reply.

The Marshall Aid Commemoration Act 1953 and the Marshall Scholarships Act 1959 form the basis of the operation of the Marshall Scholarships Scheme. The scheme is functioning well and in full compliance with both Acts.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how much her Department spent on Marshall scholarships in each of the last 10 years for which figures are available. [29843]

Ian Pearson: I have been asked to reply.

The Foreign and Commonwealth Office has allocated the following funding, as Grant in Aid, to the Marshall Aid Commemoration Commission, in order to provide and manage the Marshall Scholarships scheme:

	Total
2005–06	2,178,000
2004–05	2,083,784
2003–04	1,962,000
2002–03	1,960,915
2001–02	1,833,743
2000–01	1,694,610
1999–2000	1,661,097
1998–99	1,518,000
1997–98	1,486,000
1996–96	1,401,000

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many (a) males and (b) females were refused scholarships under the Marshall Aid Commemoration Act 1953 in 2004–05; and what the reason for the refusal was in each case. [29845]

Ian Pearson: I have been asked to reply.

Of the 828 unsuccessful candidates for the 2004–05 competition, 396 were men and 432 were women.

A total of 871 applications for scholarships were received and 43 scholarships were awarded, of which 23 were awarded to men and 20 were awarded to women.

We cannot offer the reason for refusal in each case because to do so would require us to provide personal details of applicants and would incur disproportionate costs.

Milwaukee Charter Schools Programme

Dr. Whitehead: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what discussions her Department has held with representatives of the education sector in the state of Minnesota, US. [31015]

Bill Rammell: In March 2005, a delegation of teachers, principals and Minnesota State Education Officials visited the UK to meet local education authorities and schools in Southwark and Milton Keynes. In addition, the group held discussions with representatives from the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority, the Office for Standards in Education, the National Association of Educational Inspectors, Advisers and Consultants and the Department for Education and Skills. The aim of the visit was to discuss best practice in policy relating to course content, teaching methods and other instructional strategies in schools with diverse student populations.

Shortly afterwards, a group of teachers from Milton Keynes visited Minnesota to learn about good practice in the provision of English as an Additional Language (EAL) programming in the US. The visit was part of the Teachers' International Professional Development Programme (TIPD), funded by DfES and managed by the British Council.

MORI Poll

Kelvin Hopkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if she will publish the results of the MORI poll entitled Attitudes to Fees in Further Education, conducted during September and referred to in her Department's Press Notice 2005/0123. [23622]

Bill Rammell: In line with my Department's standard practice on research findings these results were published on the Department's website on 11 November 2005.

New Schools

Mr. Allen: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many (a) community, (b) voluntary aided, (c) voluntary controlled, (d) academy and (e) foundation schools have been opened in each of the last eight years, broken down by local education authority; and how many places there were in each school. [29261]

Jacqui Smith: Some 1,016 maintained primary and secondary schools have opened since January 1997, as follows:

	County[1]	Grant maintained	Community	Voluntary aided	Voluntary controlled	Foundation	Academy
1997	54	14	0	10	7	0	0
1998	64	0	0	9	4	0	0
1999	94	1	0	11	3	0	0
2000	46	0	42	13	6	0	0
2001	17	0	98	24	10	1	0
2002	3	0	81	17	7	2	2
2003	0	0	83	15	11	1	9
2004	0	0	94	23	5	1	6
2005	0	0	82	21	12	3	10
Total	278	15	480	143	65	8	27

[1] Opened prior to September 1999 (i.e. before the current Schools Framework was introduced.

The figures include schools that have opened as a result of an amalgamation or local reorganisation of schools and also those where the school has opened in place of a closing school e.g. to gain a religious character or a fresh start school.

A further table detailing the new schools by year, school category, local authority and number of places has been placed in the Library.

Ofsted Ratings

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what percentage of (a) faith schools and (b) non-faith schools have been awarded a (i) grade 3, (ii) grade 4 and (iii) grade 5 rating by Ofsted inspectors. [31607]

Jacqui Smith: This is a matter for Ofsted. HM Chief Inspector, David Bell, has written to my hon. Friend and a copy of his letter has been placed in the Library.

Letter from David Bell to Dr. Ashok Kumar, dated 24 November 2005:

Your recent parliamentary question has been passed to me, as Her Majesty's Chief Inspector, for reply.

Dr Ashok Kumar (Middlesbrough South & East Cleveland): To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills, what percentage of (a) faith schools and (b) non-faith schools have been awarded a (i) grade 3, (ii) grade 4 and (iii) grade 5 rating by Ofsted inspectors.

The tables attached show the percentage of schools by different levels of effectiveness, by faith and non-faith school, inspected during the academic year 2004/05. In addition to the specific grades you asked for, I have included 'grade 6', no schools fell into the 'grade 7' category.

A copy of this reply has been sent to Jacqui Smith and will be placed in the Library of both houses.

Overall effectiveness of primary schools: 2004/05

Percentage

	Faith schools	Non-faith schools
Effective (grade 3)	48	50
Fairly effective (grade 4)	26	28
Ineffective (grade 5)	4	4
Very ineffective (grade 6)	[1]—	1

[1] Indicates less than 0.5 per cent. but greater than 0.

Overall effectiveness of secondary schools: 2004/05

Percentage

	Faith schools	Non-faith schools
Effective (grade 3)	40	45
Fairly effective (grade 4)	27	23
Ineffective (grade 5)	4	5
Very ineffective (grade 6)	1	2

Note:
No primary or secondary schools were graded 7 2004/05.

Pay Restructuring

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills when she expects to introduce pay restructuring into schools; and if she will make a statement. [31874]

Jacqui Smith: Reforms to teachers' pay, which include the replacement of management allowances with teaching and learning responsibility payments and the introduction of a new excellent teacher grade, will come into effect from 2006. Schools have a three year period from the beginning of 2006 in which to implement these changes. It is for individual schools to apply these reforms in accordance with their three-year implementation plan, at a pace which best suits their needs, following a review of their staffing structures.

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what assessment she has made of staff morale following the announcement of the proposal to restructure pay in schools; and if she will make a statement. [31875]

Jacqui Smith: The reviews of staffing structures currently under way build on work force remodelling and enable the introduction of pay reforms. These have been developed with the co-operation and agreement of representatives of teachers and support staff who work in social partnership with the Department, and in line with recommendations from the independent School Teachers' Review Body. The reviews are a vital development providing a focus on raising the standards of teaching and learning in schools and rewarding teachers appropriately and fairly. With our partners we will continue to monitor the implementation of these changes.

Physical Education

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what definition she uses of high quality physical education and school sport in respect of the 2004 Public Service Agreement target number 9. [29179]

Jacqui Smith: The document, "High Quality PE and Sport for Young People" (DfES/DCMS, March 2004), provides a detailed description of the outcomes of high quality physical education and school sport. For the purposes of the joint DfES/DCMS PE and school sport public service agreement target, high quality PE and school sport produces young people with the skills, understanding, desire and commitment to continue to improve and achieve in a range of PE, sport and health-enhancing physical activities, in line with their abilities.

A further document, "Do You Have High Quality PE and Sport in Your School?" (DfES/DCMS, January 2005), helps teachers to use the pupil outcomes of high quality to carry out self evaluation of the quality of PE and sport they provide. Copies of these documents have been placed in the house Libraries.

Public Service Agreements

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) what recent assessment she has made of the attainability of 2004 public service agreement target number 10; [29197]

(2) what assessment she has made of the attainability of the 2004 public service agreement target number 7. [29180]

Jacqui Smith: Progress against the Department's outstanding public service agreements (PSAs) was most recently reported in the 2005 departmental report, published in June 2005, together with the Department's assessment towards achievement of the targets. A copy of the departmental report is available from the House of Commons Library. Further progress will be reported in the 2005 autumn performance report due to be published later this year.

Provisional results for 2005 GCSE and equivalent examinations were published in a statistical first release (SFR) on 20 October 2005. The data show 55.7 per cent. of pupils achieved five or more GCSE or equivalent at grades A*-C. This represents an increase of two percentage points compared with 2004 and an increase of 10.6 percentage points compared with 1997.

Provisional results for 2005 key stage 3 tests were published in an SFR on 8 September 2005. The data show 74 per cent. of pupils achieved level 5 and above in English; 74 per cent. in mathematics; 70 per cent. in science; and 69 per cent. in ICT. The corresponding figures for 2004 are: 71 per cent.; 73 per cent.; 66 per cent. and 67 per cent. respectively. In 1997, 57 per cent. of pupils achieved level 5 and above in English; 60 per cent. in mathematics; 60 per cent. in science; and 50 per cent. in ICT.

The numbers of schools below key stage 3 and GCSE and equivalent floor targets will be published in early 2006.

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the timescales are for the achievement of all aspects of 2004 Public Service Agreement target number 14. [29199]

Bill Rammell: The precise wording of the 2004 Public Service Agreement target number 14 is:

> "By 2010, increase participation in higher education towards 50% of those aged 18 to 30; and also make significant progress year on year towards fair access; and bear down on non-completion rates".

Only the first part of the target, on increasing participation, has a specific timescale. We measure the other aspirations year-on-year.

Reasoning

Mr. Davey: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if she will make a statement on the progress of the uniTEST trial; and whether the national launch is planned for 2007. [31932]

Bill Rammell: The UniTEST is a new test of aptitude for higher education, being developed jointly by Cambridge Assessment and the Australian Council for Educational Research. On the basis of information provided by Cambridge Assessment, I understand that the first small-scale trial of the test took place on 22 September 2005 and that their current plans are to carry out a validity study early in May 2006 with a view to offering the test from 2007 to higher education institutions who wish to participate.

Richmond-upon-Thames Group Schools Project

Stephen Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the (a) capital value and (b) total value is of the private finance initiative project for the Richmond-upon-Thames group schools project; and what percentage of the contract is attributable to capital value. [27112]

Jacqui Smith: The Richmond-upon-Thames group schools PFI project involved six primary schools, two of which were new build and four of which were re-modelled and expanded. The schools became operational in September 2004. According to information supplied by the local authority, whose contract this is, the capital value of the project was £23.8 million. The term 'total value' is usually taken to mean the total amount of payments to be made during the term of the contract; this is a commercial matter between the local authority and its private sector partner and we do not hold this information. The project was supported by central Government with the allocation of £16.77 million in PFI credits.

School Admissions

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what representations she has received from schools on the consultation period for the proposed change in admissions procedures; and if she will make a statement. [31873]

Jacqui Smith: The consultation period for the revised codes of practice for school admissions and school admission appeals complied with Cabinet Office guidelines. From 130 responses received from schools, only 17 expressed some concern that the consultation covered the summer break, although more than half of the overall period did not.

School Councils

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what proportion of schools allow pupil participation in the running of the school through school councils. [25659]

Jacqui Smith: The Department for Education and Skills does not collect this data. The Government's commitment to the role of school councils is reflected in the recently published White Paper, "Higher Standards, Better Schools For All". The Government are working closely with School Councils UK, to produce guidance for primary schools. The guidance for secondary schools will also be updated to give stronger encouragement for school councils to be engaged in decision-making. We have asked School Councils UK to establish a network for schools and their councils to talk to each other and share good practice. School councils have a vital role to play, alongside better parental engagement, in promoting schools as strong community institutions.

School Finance

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what estimate she has made of the number of (a) primary and (b) secondary schools in Tamworth which will have a budget surplus in the 2005–06 financial year. [32011]

Jacqui Smith: The information requested is not yet available. The Department is due to collect the section 52 outturn data relating to the 2005–06 financial year from October 2006.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the extent is of the funding gap between schools and colleges; and what plans the Government have to close this gap. [32359]

Bill Rammell: The Secretary of State announced on 16 November 2005 our plans for narrowing the funding gap between school sixth forms and further education (FE) colleges for like-for-like 16–19 provision. We recognise that the funding gap will not be easy to close but we have taken some important steps in the funding package we announced on 21 October 2005. We have confirmed that for young people in FE in 2006/07 we will match the schools' minimum funding guarantee, which will be announced later this year. We estimate that this, together with other measures to correct technical anomalies, will reduce the gap from 13 per cent. to 8 per cent. by 2006/07. From 2008 we will look to bring consistency to the treatment of student retention and achievement across school sixth forms and colleges which we expect to narrow the gap by a further 3 per cent. Beyond that we will work to establish a common funding approach across the two sectors as part of the Learning and Skills Council's agenda for change.

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the financial surplus or deficit for each (a) primary and (b) secondary school in each education authority in England was in each year since 1997. [32657]

Jacqui Smith: The information can be provided only at a disproportionate cost.

School Pupils

Mr. Davey: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many (a) primary and (b) secondary school age children there were in each local education authority in (i) 1990, (ii) 1997, (iii) 2000 and (iv) 2005; what the forecasted figures are for each authority in each year from 2006 to 2016; and if she will list the assumptions behind those forecasts. [30803]

Jacqui Smith: Information on the number of pupils in primary and secondary schools for 1990, 1997, 2000 and 2005 has been placed in the Library.

Local authorities provide the Department with forecasts of pupil numbers as part of the annual surplus school places survey. The forecasts cover four years for primary pupils and seven years for secondary pupils. For the purposes of this exercise all schools, including middle deemed schools are categorised as either primary or secondary schools.

The forecast figures for each authority from 2006/07 to 2007/08 (primary schools) and 2006/07 to 2010/11 (secondary schools) have been placed in the Library. We do not collect authorities' assumptions behind these forecasts.

School Transport

Paul Rowen: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what estimate she has made of school transport costs associated with the proposals contained in the Education White Paper. [31815]

Jacqui Smith: The White Paper proposes legislation to improve home to school travel and transport arrangements in three main respects:

By placing a general duty on local authorities to support choice and flexibility of educational provision, to assess the travel and transport needs of all pupils, and promote safe and sustainable travel to school;

By extending entitlement to free home to school transport for low income families (for secondary aged pupils to any one of the three nearest suitable schools, where the distance travelled is between two and six miles; and for primary aged pupils aged over eight, to their nearest school where this is more than two miles from their home);

By enabling a small number of local authorities to propose Pathfinder schemes to test innovative approaches to home to school transport to support school choice, reduce the distances pupils are expected to walk to school, and increase the proportion of pupils travelling by sustainable means.

The estimated cost of the new general duty is £4 million per annum; the extension of entitlement for low income families is estimated to be £40 million per annum; and the Department will support Pathfinder schemes with £4 million pump priming and annual revenue support building up over several years to £12 million. Full costings and related assumptions will be included in the Regulatory Impact Assessment that will accompany the Bill.

School Trips

Lembit Öpik: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many people under the age of 18 years have been killed in accidents during school trips in each of the last five years; and how many of these were killed while undertaking adventurous activities. [32115]

Jacqui Smith: The numbers of pupils under 18 years from schools in England dying from accidental injuries on educational visits in the last five years are as follows:

	Number
2005	1
2004	2
2003	2
2002	2
2001	7

One fatality occurred during a climbing, caving, trekking or water activity safety-inspected by the Government. One further fatality occurred during an activity overseas which the Government would have inspected in the UK.

Schoolchildren (Financial Assistance)

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) if she will take steps to provide assistance to children who are eligible for free school meals with the costs of (a) school uniforms and (b) school sports wear; [31331]

(2) if she will issue guidance to schools on limiting the cost of school uniforms. [31355]

Jacqui Smith: Local authorities have discretionary powers to provide school clothing and/or school clothing grants. They set their own eligibility criteria. Individual local authorities decide whether to provide grants, as they are best placed to determine the level of need in their area.

Current DfES guidance on school uniform advises governing bodies to give high priority to cost considerations when they set their school uniform policy. It advises that they should keep costs to a minimum by, for example, ensuring that uniform includes generic products that can be purchased in supermarkets and high street stores. It also states that no school uniform should be so expensive as to leave pupils or their families feeling socially excluded.

Schools (Hemel Hempstead)

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many (a) teachers and (b) full-time equivalent teaching posts there were in schools in Hemel Hempstead constituency in each year since 1997. [25563]

Jacqui Smith: The table provides the full-time equivalent number of teachers in service in maintained sector schools, including pupil referral units, in Hemel Hempstead constituency in each January since 1997.

The number of full-time equivalent teaching posts in Hemel Hempstead is not collected centrally.

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what property her Department owns in Hemel Hempstead constituency. [25564]

Maria Eagle: The Department does not own any property in Hemel Hempstead.

Schools Inspection Framework

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills when she expects to introduce the new inspection framework; what representations have been made to her by schools on this framework; and if she will make a statement. [31876]

Jacqui Smith: The new school inspection framework was published in July 2005 and came into effect from September 2005. The framework, and the new inspection arrangements more generally, were subject to extensive consultation and trialling, and received widespread support from schools, parents and others.

The Childcare Bill introduced on 8 November 2005 includes provision for a reformed and simplified inspection and regulation regime for early years. Subject to parliamentary approval, this will lead to changes in the inspection framework for all settings, including schools, catering for children aged 0 to 5 from 2008. There will be full consultation on the development of these new arrangements.

Special Advisers

John Hemming: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if she will list the special advisers in post in her Department, broken down by pay band; and what the total budgeted cost to her Department of special advisers is for 2005–06. [29411]

Maria Eagle: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given by the Minister for the Cabinet Office on 16 November 2005, Official Report, column 1257W.

Information relating to costs for 2005–06 will be published after the end of the current financial year.

Special Needs Schools

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many special needs schools have been established since 1997. [19374]

Maria Eagle: 298 schools have been established or registered to admit children with special educational needs since 1997.

This figure includes local authority maintained special schools—community special or foundation special schools; non-maintained special schools, which are run by charities or charitable trusts; independent special schools which are approved by the Department to make provision for pupils with SEN; and other independent schools that are registered with the Department as catering wholly or mainly for children with statements. Before a child with special educational needs can be placed at the latter, the Secretary of State's consent is required.

Teachers

Mr. Davey: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the average pay of (a) primary and (b) secondary school teachers holding (i) education degrees, (ii) master's degrees and (iii) doctorates was in 2004–05. [31382]

Jacqui Smith: The information requested is not held in the format requested.

Information on the average salary of teachers gaining qualified teacher status through undergraduate (education degrees) and post graduate (PGCE) routes into teaching was published by the department on 27 October 2005. The information was collected from a sample of teachers between three and a half and four years after they completed their undergraduate degrees in 1999. This shows that the average salary of teachers trained by the undergraduate route was £23,000 for primary teachers and £24,300 for secondary teachers. The figures for teachers with PGCEs were £20,700 and £21,900 respectively. The teachers may have entered teaching immediately after graduating or may have delayed entry. Teachers qualifying with a PGCE will generally have entered service later than those qualifying through undergraduate routes and will be on a lower point of the teacher's pay scale.

Mr. Davey: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what estimate she has made of the number of teachers who have a second source of income from work other than teaching. [31933]

Jacqui Smith: No such estimate has been made.

Mr. Davey: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many (a) schools and (b) local education authorities have submitted representations on planning, preparation and assessment time since the beginning of the autumn term. [32114]

Jacqui Smith: We and the National Remodelling Team (NRT), together with our partners on the Workforce Agreement Monitoring Group (WAMG), have engaged with a large number of schools and local authorities over our workforce reform programme—including on planning, preparation and assessment (PPA) time for teachers.

The latest information indicates that almost every school has successfully introduced PPA time. NRT and WAMG are working to address the handful of schools that still need support.

Temporary Classrooms (Gravesham)

Mr. Holloway: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many temporary classrooms are in use for lessons in schools in Gravesham. [32634]

Jacqui Smith: Data supplied to the Department by Kent local education authority in 2003 showed 87 temporary buildings at schools in Gravesham. Where these buildings are used for teaching, they may accommodate one or more classrooms.

Central Government capital support for investment in schools has increased from under £700 million in 1996–97 to £5.5 billion this year and will rise further to over £6.3 billion by 2007–08. Progress is being made year-by-year in improving the quality of the school building stock. The bulk of schools capital is now allocated by formula to authorities and schools so that they can address their local priorities, including the replacement of decayed temporary accommodation, on which we have set a high priority.

Truancy

Adam Afriyie: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many pupils were recorded as having at least one incident of truancy in 2004–05. [31391]

Jacqui Smith: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given to the hon. Member for Rugby and Kenilworth on 24 November 2005, Official Report, column 1652.

Under-achievement

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what assessment she has made of the impact of the home literacy environment upon underachievement (a) nationally and (b) by children from low socio-economic backgrounds. [26091]

Jacqui Smith: There is strong evidence on the importance of the home literacy environment for the achievement of children from all social backgrounds. Family learning schemes set up by the Adult Literacy and Basic Skills Agency in the mid 1990's, which focused on families with parents with poor literacy skills, resulted in sustained, statistically significant improvements in writing for both parents and children, and associated increases in their levels of confidence[1].

More generally, parental involvement in the form of at-home good parenting, which includes encouragement and participation in learning, has a significant positive effect on children's achievement. This is true even after all other factors shaping attainment have been taken into account. The impact is evident across all social classes and all ethnic groups. Good parenting helps shape the child's self concept as a learner and encourages high aspirations[2].

The Effective Provision of Pre-School Education Study found that the children whose parents actively engaged them in educational activities did better at the end of key stage 1[3]. Seventy per cent. of parents read to their children and almost three quarters think their role in their children's education is important[4]. However, the Skills for Life Survey showed that parents with lower literacy levels are much less likely to help and less likely to be confident in helping their children with reading[5]

In the light of such evidence the Department is actively supporting the development of literacy provision for adults, including family learning, within its Skills for Life programme. Other steps being taken to improve the home literacy environment for parents and their children from low socio-economic backgrounds in particular are outlined in my response to PQ no. 26092.

University Grants

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what percentage of students from (a) Tamworth, (b) Staffordshire and (c) England beginning university in the 2005/06 academic year are in receipt of a grant from their local education authority. [31793]

Bill Rammell: The numbers of new entrants to higher education in 2004/05 domiciled in Staffordshire, and England, in receipt of a statutory grant are shown in the table.

	Number
Staffordshire	1,900
England	108,100

Notes:

1. Grants included are the Higher Education Grant, Adult Dependent Grant, Care Leavers Grant, Childcare Grant, Disabled Students Allowance (equipment, non-medical helpers, general, or travel), Lone Parents Grant, and Parental Learning Allowance.

2. Numbers have been rounded to the nearest hundred.

Data are not available at a constituency level. Data for 2005/06 will be available in summer 2006.

The percentage of students receiving a grant is not calculable as the corresponding underlying population data for 2004/05 will not be available until early 2006.

University League Tables

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what assessment she has made of the effect of published university league tables on the recruitment by universities of (a) home and EU students and (b) international students. [32423]

Bill Rammell: None. The Government neither produce nor endorse any university league tables. But demand from all groups of students has risen to record levels with an extra 400,000 students accepted in 2005 to enter UK higher education institutions. We believe demand is helped by publicly available information about the performance of higher education institutions.

Victoria Centre, Gravesham

Mr. Holloway: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how much has been allocated to the Victoria Centre in Gravesham for adult education in 2006–07. [31200]

Bill Rammell: The Department has allocated more than £2.5 billion for adult education in 2006–07. This includes some £1,933 million for adult further education, £230 million for NETP/ETP, £210 million for personal and community development learning and £202.7 million for adult work based learning.

On the 21 October, I wrote to all MPs setting out the Government's strategic direction for the learning and skills sector for the coming period. The purpose of the announcement was to ensure the 2006/07 funding allocations process began with a clear and concise message on the principles that will underpin funding over the next two years.

While total funding going into the learning and skills sector will increase over the next two years there is a need to rebalance spending toward priority areas which include helping disadvantaged adults gain basic and level 2 skills for employability and progression to level 3.

As the allocations process for 2006/07 has only just begun we do not know how much funding will be allocated locally. However, allocations for FE and personal and community development learning to Kent county council, which the Victoria Centre is part of, will reflect our priorities.

DEPUTY PRIME MINISTER

Abuse (Insurance Premiums)

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister how much has been paid in insurance premiums by local authorities in relation to complaints of (a) sexual and (b) physical abuse arising out of residence in (i) care and (ii) residential schools in each year since 1992. [28791]

Maria Eagle: I have been asked to reply.

My Department does not hold this information.

Affordable Housing Units

Margaret Moran: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister how many affordable housing units expected to be built or procured through the Housing Corporation Approved Development Programme and Challenge Fund in the East of England Region will be (a) mixed funded social rented housing, (b) temporary social rented housing, (c) homebuy general market purchase, (d) homebuy general new build, (e) mixed funded low cost home ownership for sale, (f) miscellaneous works to registered social landlord stock, (g) reimprovements to rented RSL stock, (h) works only rehabilitation of rented RSL stock, (i) works only rehabilitation of RSL stock for sale, (j) intermediate rent for key workers, (k) homebuy market purchase for key workers, (l) homebuy new build for key workers, (m) mixed funded sale for key workers, (n) right to acquire, (o) voluntary purchase grant, (p) starter home initiative, (q) do-it-yourself shared ownership and (r) temporary intermediate and market rent housing in (i) 2005–06, (ii) 2006–07 and (iii) 2007–08; and how much he expects to be spent on each category in each year. [30633]

Yvette Cooper: The following tables show the latest estimated completions and expenditure in the East of England region for 2005–06 through the Housing Corporation Approved Development Programme, including Challenge Fund, for categories from (a) to (r). Funding and completions are not directly comparable, as funding will relate to projects running, not necessarily units completed, in any one year.

For 2006–07 and 2007–08 Regional Housing Boards have made recommendations to Ministers for the allocation of Regional Housing Pots funds. The Eastern Regional Housing Board has recommended that from their allocation of £432 million for the two years a total of £356 million should be allocated to the provision of affordable housing. However, the exact distribution of funding between programmes for 2006–08 will not be known until the completion of the Housing Corporation's bidding process.

In August 2005 the Housing Corporation launched the bidding round for the 2006–08 Affordable Housing Programme (AHP). This invited both registered social landlords and non-registered bodies to apply for funds to develop affordable housing based on priorities set by the Regional Housing Boards. The outcome of this bidding round will not be known until early in 2006.

Cabinet Appointment

Sarah Teather: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what the estimated cost to his Department is in 2005–06 of making the Minister of Communities and local government a Cabinet Minister. [28746]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Information about the level of individual ministerial salaries is available in the Library of the House.

Compulsory Purchase Orders

Margaret Moran: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister how many compulsory purchase orders have been made on empty properties by (a) Luton council and (b) the local authority recorded as the best performing in each of the last three years. [30636]

Yvette Cooper: Luton borough council has, in the last three years, made one compulsory purchase order on an empty property.

The Office of the Deputy Prime Minister does not collect data on the number of compulsory purchase orders made each year by local authorities.

Consultants

Mike Penning: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what the total cost to his Department was of hiring consultants in the last year for which figures are available; how many consultants were hired; and from which firms. [32197]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The total cost of consultants hired during the financial year 2004–05 was £79,831,087.

Correspondence

Sarah Teather: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister how many letters (a) he and (b) the Minister of Communities and local government have written since May. [28749]

Jim Fitzpatrick: My right hon. Friend the Deputy Prime Minister has written over 800 letters and my right hon. Friend the Minister for Communities and local government has written over 1,600 letters since May 2005.

The Cabinet Office, on an annual basis, publishes a report to Parliament on Departments' and Agencies' performance on handling Members' and peers' correspondence. The Report for 2004 was published on 6 April 2005, Official Report, column 137WS.

Council Bungalows

Ben Chapman: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what guidance he has issued to local authorities on eligibility for those other than pensioners for housing in council-owned bungalows. [31335]

Yvette Cooper: The Office of the Deputy Prime Minister has not issued guidance to local authorities on this matter.

It is for local authorities to ensure that they make the best use of their stock to meet the housing needs in their district, including accommodation which is accessible or readily adapted for use by people with access needs.

Local authorities must give reasonable preference to certain categories of people when allocating social housing, including those who need to move on medical and welfare grounds. The legislation has recently been amended to make clear that "medical and welfare" grounds include grounds relating to a disability. This was intended to ensure that people with access needs are given appropriate priority for social housing; and that accessible housing is allocated to those who need it most.

Council Tax Revaluation

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister whether the Valuation Office Agency is continuing to collect (a) dwelling house codes and (b) value significance codes data, following the postponement of the council tax revaluation. [29710]

Mr. Woolas: Listing officers of the Valuation Office Agency continue to collect data as required, as part of their statutory responsibility to maintain valuation lists for council tax purposes.

Design for Manufacture Competition

Sarah Teather: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister pursuant to the answer of 18 October 2005, Official Report, column 876W to the hon. Member for Meriden (Mrs. Spelman), on Design for Manufacture competition, how many of the 430 affordable homes being built on former NHS sites under the Design for Manufacture competition will be (a) social rented units, (b) for sale under a shared equity scheme and (c) for sale at £60,000. [28821]

Yvette Cooper: In my answer of 18 October 2005, Official Report, column 876W, to the hon. Member for Meriden (Mrs. Spelman), I stated the anticipated numbers of affordable housing units expected on each of the ten sites within the Design for Manufacture competition. It will not be possible to provide precise breakdowns of housing types and tenures until all final bids have been received and evaluated for all the sites, and planning processes completed.

Successful developers were announced by the Deputy Prime Minister on 3 November 2005 for four of the Design for Manufacture sites. This included Renny Lodge in Newport, Pagnell which is 1.5 ha of former NHS land that is now within English Partnership's hospital sites programme. It is proposed that it will have a housing mix of 21 social rented units, 21 built at a construction cost of £60,000, with the balance out of a total of 68 units being for open market sale. The preferred developer here is SIXTYK Consortium led by Crest Nicholson.

There are three other former NHS land sites in the competition: Park Prewett in Basingstoke, Linton in Maidstone and Rowan in Merton, London. Preferred developers for these sites are yet to be selected. However, it is envisaged that a good proportion of the homes on these site will be social for rent or other forms of affordable housing or shared ownership.

English Partnerships is also looking at including homes built through Design for Manufacture in its First Time Buyers Initiative, making some of the houses for sale available for first time buyers under which eligible people will be able to purchase an initial equity stake in the homes, with the residual equity held by English Partnerships. The number of first time buyer homes on each site has not yet been agreed.

Sarah Teather: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister pursuant to the answer of 17 October 2005, Official Report, column 807W, to the hon. Member for Meriden (Mrs. Spelman) on Design for Manufacture Competition, what English Partnerships' (a) estimated base valuations were for each of the sites under the Design for Manufacture Competition and (b) estimate was of projected sales prices for the mix of homes on each site. [28842]

Yvette Cooper: In my answer of 17 October 2005, Official Report, column 807W, given to the hon. Member for Meriden (Mrs. Spelman), I stated that English Partnerships has carried out base valuations of the sites before the commencement of the competition, which included an estimate of projected sales prices for the mix of homes. Currently, preferred developers have only been announced for four of the 10 sites and these legal agreements are being developed. Announcements will be made about the preferred developers for the remaining six sites in the near future. Thus, at this stage of the competition with final negotiations for the sites yet to complete, the precise valuations and estimates for each site remain commercially confidential. The final sales prices of individual homes will be determined by the developers in due course according to the local market circumstances that apply to each site.

The Office of the Deputy Prime Minister and English Partnerships are working to prepare a publication drawing out the lessons that have been learned from the Design for Manufacture Competition. This publication will include information about costs and values. We aim to publish this document in the spring of 2006.

English Partnerships

Vera Baird: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister (1) how much funding English Partnerships has allocated to local authorities in the Tees Valley for each of the next five years; [29514]

(2) which local authorities in Tees Valley have been in receipt of funding from English Partnerships in each of the past five years, broken down by amount. [29530]

Yvette Cooper: Distribution of English Partnerships investment nationally and including that in the Tees Valley is a matter for English Partnerships' Board, in accordance with their annual corporate plan priorities as approved by Ministers. Discussions are currently under way with English Partnerships on their future national programme and priorities for the years 2005–06 to 2008–09. Once these planning round discussions have been finalised, which is likely to be in the next two months, and Ministers have agreed English Partnerships corporate plan a summary of the plan will be published. Funding for the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister's programmes, including English Partnerships, for 2008–09 to 2010–11 will be dependent on the results of the Comprehensive Spending Review 2007.

The following allocations have been made to local authorities within Tees Valley Regeneration in each of the last five years (all figures rounded to nearest £000):

	2001–02	2002–03	2003–04	2004–05	2005–06 (annual forecast)
Middlesbrough BC	269,000	23,000	1,452,000	2,459,000	19,000
Hartlepool BC	0	116,000	621,000	1,429,000	1,760,000
Stockton BC	812,000	250,000	1,127,000	5,826,000	3,143,000
Redcar and Cleveland	0	0	0	4,000	0
Darlington BC	0	0	0	0	0

In addition, English Partnerships has made the following investments in the local authority areas within Tees Valley Regeneration (all figures rounded to nearest £000):

	2001–02	2002–03	2003–04	2004–05	2005–06 (annual forecast) [1]
Middlesbrough BC	5,619,000	2,356,000	923,000	324,000	[1]2,760,000
Hartlepool BC	1,000	706,000	105,000	126,000	[1]453,000
Stockton BC	1,207,000	2,503,000	5,190,000	2,995,000	[1]1,487,000
Darlington	0	0	177,000	1,639,000	[1]217,000

[1] There could be adjustments in the figures in 2005–06 between the two tables, as it is possible some spend for the remainder of the year on projects might be taken forward through allocation to the local authority rather than invested directly by English Partnerships.

Vera Baird: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister (1) whether English Partnerships funding is allocated (a) on a per capita basis to individual local authorities in the Tees Valley and (b) on a competitive bid basis to individual projects; [29527]

(2) what guidance he has issued on the relationship between the use of English Partnerships funding and private funding for council development projects; and whether the criteria for council development allow English Partnerships wholly to fund a building project; [29531]

(3) what the criteria are for grant funding by English Partnerships, with particular reference to the use of private finance. [30621]

Yvette Cooper: English Partnerships' funding is not allocated on a per capita basis to individual local authorities, nor through invitations to local authorities to bid in funding competitions. English Partnerships allocates its funding in accordance with its annual corporate plan and the priorities therein, as approved by Ministers. Investment decisions on specific projects are made in relation to a number of criteria, namely: the fit with their corporate plan; their available budgets; the quality and value for money of any proposed project; and its effectiveness in meeting sustainable communities objectives and the regeneration needs of the area. When considering the value for money of any proposed scheme, whether and to what extent the scheme attracts private sector investment, is among the factors which are taken into account. Attraction of private sector investment is also one of English Partnerships' key corporate targets.

There is no guidance specifically on the relationship between the use of English Partnerships funding and private funding for council development projects. When assessing projects, English Partnerships follows guidance by the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister, "Assessing the Impact of Spatial Interventions: Regeneration, Renewal and Regional Development".

which covers guidance on assessing interventions in a way that rigorously identifies value for money. It also follows HM Treasury's Green Book "Appraisal and Evaluation in Central Government".

English Partnerships may exceptionally wholly fund a project if it meets English Partnerships' criteria including fulfilling value for money considerations. In general, however, English Partnerships delivers its lead role in facilitating development through partnering with a range of public, voluntary and private sector bodies. Partnering allows for more efficient use of public and private sector investment, as well as bringing in a wider skills and experience base. It assists English Partnerships in focusing its activity where it can add most value and helps it to avoid replicating activities of the private sector or other public or voluntary bodies.

As regards the use of private finance, whenever English Partnerships supports regeneration development projects it generally aims to involve the market, and private sector investment, to the greatest extent possible. Private sector investment and involvement are often more likely to ensure that a regeneration project can be self-sustaining in the long term, allows for more efficient use of public and private investment, and ensures that risks can be borne and managed by those best placed to bear them.

Mike Penning: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what consultation he plans to hold with hon. Members on the future of English Partnerships. [30119]

Yvette Cooper: English Partnerships' status and functions were last reviewed in 2001–02 and the results announced in July 2002. The outcome confirmed English Partnerships' new role as a key delivery agency in the Government's sustainable communities agenda and the national regeneration agency for our towns and cities, an ongoing role which is still fully relevant. There are no plans for a further review of English Partnerships at this point in time, nor to consult Members or other stakeholders on its future.

Festivals

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what measures his Department took to celebrate and promote the events of (a) Ramadan, (b) Diwali and (c) Chinese New Year in 2005. [31162]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Office of the Deputy Prime Minister values the diversity of its staff and promotes awareness of religious festivals and events. The Equality and Diversity Unit provide information on the ODPM intranet about six major faiths: Buddhism, Christianity, Hinduism, Islam, Judaism, and Sikhism. This includes information about the major festivals which is regularly reviewed and updated. The Intranet also provides information about prayer rooms in ODPM. The Equality and Diversity Unit make available to staff a number of SHAP calendars of religious festivals every year. The most recent issue of the in-house Office magazine included a 'lifestyle' article on Diwali.

For the past two years, ODPM has organised a programme of seminars which have included seminars on faith communities. These were well attended and raised awareness of the positive contribution faith groups make to building sustainable communities. The seminars were accompanied by an exhibition which included stands and information on the major faith groups.

Furthermore, the ODPM coordinated a fire safety campaign to raise awareness of key fire safety issues with the celebrating communities during the 2005 religious festivals of Diwali and Eid Ul Fitr. Similar activity is also planned for the forthcoming 2006 Chinese new year.

Fire Services

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what the cost of maintaining existing radio systems used by the fire and rescue authorities was in each of the last five years. [30632]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The fire and rescue services (FRS) are responsible for normal maintenance to existing radio systems carried out either by FRS staff or contractors. The Office of the Deputy Prime Minister does not retain this cost information centrally. In addition, in England and Wales there is a programme of work to replace higher risk items of FRS existing wide area radio systems, thereby ensuring that they continue to be operationally effective until they can be replaced by the national wide area radio system, Firelink. Expenditure on operational continuity by the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister amounts to £54,000 in 2002–03, £652,000 in 2003–04 and £5,220,000 in 2004–05.

Mike Penning: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister if he will make a statement on the recent firemen's strike in the East Midlands area. [29901]

Jim Fitzpatrick: There has been no recent strike in East Midlands. The hon. Member probably intends to refer to the current strike in West Midlands.

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what estimate he has made of the cost to each local authority of regional fire control rooms over the first three years of operation; and how these costs will be met. [31710]

Jim Fitzpatrick: No estimates of these costs are available at the present time. This is because some elements of overall project costs are not yet confirmed—such as those relating to the technology/infrastructure services—and because the way in which costs will be apportioned to Fire and Rescue Authorities has not yet been agreed. The Office of the Deputy Prime Minister's financial models show that when established the new system will cost substantially less than the current arrangements. The Office of the Deputy Prime Minister will fund any net increased costs during the transition period in line with the New Burdens principle.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister how much the Government have spent in the last five years on the fire control centre for London. [31788]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Nothing. The fire control centre for London is paid for by the London Fire and Emergency Planning Authority.

Firelink Project

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what the total cost to his Department of consultants used for the Firelink Project was; and how many consultants have been employed to date. [30630]

Jim Fitzpatrick: For the period August 2002 to October 2005, the total costs of consultants employed on the Firelink project is just under £11 million. As of 19 November 2005 there were 30 consultants employed on the Firelink project. The number of consultants varies dependent on which stage the project is at.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister if he will list those areas of England and Wales that will not be covered by the Firelink project. [31102]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Firelink will provide coverage where it has been agreed with the fire and rescue services as being essential for operational purposes. The Firelink contractor has a responsibility to meet these agreed coverage levels.

Greenbelt (Bournemouth)

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister if he will make a statement on the future of Bournemouth's greenbelt. [30353]

Yvette Cooper: The South West regional assembly—as the regional planning body—are working to prepare the new regional spatial strategy for the south west which will look at housing need in the period to 2026. However, no proposed planned housing figures or locations for development have been made by either the regional assembly, the strategic planning authorities or the Government.

Home Information Packs

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what estimate he has made of the likely mean cost of producing a home information pack, including taxation. [24675]

Yvette Cooper: The Office of the Deputy Prime Minister estimate that the average cost of producing a home information pack for a 1930s semi-detached house in average condition located in a provincial town will be just under £700 including VAT (£653 excluding VAT). This amount, however, is not all an additional cost for consumers as the only new document to be required under the home information pack proposals is the home condition report. Most of the information is currently paid for by the buyer. In addition we estimate there will be considerable savings on failed transactions which currently cost consumers £1 million a day in total.

Sarah Teather: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what information will be included in home information packs to protect home-buyers from purchasing property on contaminated land. [30153]

Yvette Cooper: The draft home information pack regulations provide that the pack must include a search report that records the result of an inspection of the register of contaminated land that local authorities are required to maintain under the Environmental Protection Act 1990. The draft regulations also provide that the pack may include additional search reports relating to actual or potential environmental hazards, including contaminated land. The draft regulations are currently out to consultation until 30 December 2005.

Sarah Teather: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister in what percentage of house transactions (a) flood reports and (b) contaminated land reports were used in the latest year for which figures are available. [30154]

Yvette Cooper: The Government do not collect these figures.

Sarah Teather: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what discussions he has had with mortgage providers on the proposed home information packs; and whether mortgage providers have indicated to him that they will be willing to lend on the basis of a home condition report. [31557]

Yvette Cooper: The Government have been working closely with the Council of Mortgage Lenders and their members in the development of the Home Condition Report and the associated certification arrangements for Home Inspectors, to ensure that lenders can have confidence in the report and that it contains the information they need to generate valuations for mortgage purposes. Lenders will have a legal right to rely on the Home Condition Report. The Council of Mortgage Lenders has indicated that lenders are likely to use the report in the majority of cases. This will reduce significantly the number of cases where lenders require a separate inspection of the property and will mean reduced costs for home buyers.

Sarah Teather: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what estimate he has made of the likely number of homebuyers who will commission more detailed surveys than the Home Condition Report after the introduction of home information packs. [31560]

Yvette Cooper: Only a very small proportion of home buyers (our research suggests less than three per cent.) obtain a detailed building survey. Indications from the industry suggest this is not likely to change significantly when home information packs are introduced from June 2007. The Home Condition report in the pack will provide for prospective buyers a mid-range survey report on the condition of the property. This will involve a level of inspection similar to that for the current Homebuyer Survey and Valuation Report provided by Chartered Surveyors. Home buyers and their lenders will have a right to rely on the Home Condition Report, which will provide substantially more information about the property than a lender's valuation inspection report upon which most home buyers currently rely.

HomeBuy Scheme

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister whether any of the Government's HomeBuy schemes are planned to be piloted in Tamworth. [29383]

Yvette Cooper: At the present time it is not possible to say whether any of our new HomeBuy schemes will be piloted in Tamworth. I refer my hon. Friend to the answer given to the hon. Member for North East Milton Keynes on 21 November 2005, Official Report, column 1697W.

The limited number of early Social HomeBuy pilots starting this year, in advance of the Housing Corporation's National Affordable Housing Programme for 2006–08, do not include any provision in Tamworth.

Housing

Mr. Betts: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what the total capital receipts generated from right-to-buy sales were in (a) Sheffield and (b) Yorkshire and Humber in each year since 1980. [26402]

Yvette Cooper: The total capital receipts from right-to-buy sales of local authority dwellings in Sheffield and Yorkshire and the Humber in the years from 1996–97 onwards are tabulated as follows. These figures are net of discounts and are as reported by local authorities.

Capital receipts

£ million

	Sheffield	Yorkshire and the Humber

Quarterly P1(A/B) return received from local authorities.

The information for years prior to 1996–97 is not centrally available.

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister how many applicants are on the Tamworth housing waiting list. [27485]

Yvette Cooper: The number of households on the Tamworth housing waiting list as at 1 April 2005 is 2,772.

Local authorities in England report the numbers of households on their housing waiting list as at 1 April in their annual Housing Strategy Statistical Appendix returns. Local authorities sometimes maintain a common waiting list with the housing association/s in their district. However, information is not held centrally where a housing association maintains a separate waiting list to the local authority.

Mr. Holloway: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what additional funding he has allocated to transport infrastructure to support the proposed housing developments in (a) Kent and (b) Gravesham. [28381]

Yvette Cooper: The Thames Gateway, of which the Borough of Gravesham is part, is a particular focus for growth as part of the Sustainable Communities Plan.

The Government believe it is important to have the right infrastructure in place to support new homes and jobs. The Department for Transport (DfT) is working closely with other Government Departments and agencies as well as local and regional partners to ensure that transport provision in Kent is properly planned alongside the other aspects of growth. Funding is being made available to enable this to happen.

Kent's 2005–06 Local Transport Plan (LTP) settlement of £26.3 million represents an increase of 37 per cent. from 2001–02. This money is used for maintenance and smaller schemes and it is for Kent county council to decide the proportion spent in Gravesham. Kent has also received capital funding of £41.6 million for major transport schemes over the same five year period through the LTP process. In addition, the Highways Agency is investing in ongoing major schemes, including the £138 million A2/A282 Dartford improvements, £110 million Swale Crossing and £16 million A2 widening. Kent will also benefit from billions of additional investment in rail, in particular through CTRL domestic services from 2009. Also the Crossrail bill is currently going through parliament.

Alongside mainstream DfT funding, additional money is being committed to Gravesham as part of the Thames Gateway programme. The innovative public transport scheme Fastrack has so far received £4 million from the ODPM Growth Areas Fund (from a total of £15.4 million for transport projects in Kent since 2003) and additional funding for the project is currently being considered. In addition £200 million is available through the joint DfT/ODPM Community Infrastructure Fund (GIF) for transport schemes that support housing delivery in the growth areas. Proposals for GIF are currently being assessed with a likely decision by the end of 2005.

The Government are aware of various assessments by local delivery organisations of the cost of transport infrastructure over the longer term. However, the Government have made no such assessment by area and it will continue to determine such investment in the context of the public expenditure cycle.

Kent will continue to have access to increased levels of transport funding. The South East Regional Transport Board will advise on the allocation of between £138 million and £150 million per year until 2010–11 for major South East transport schemes. This represents about 10 per cent. of the funds that will be spent on transport in the region over that period. Furthermore, the DfT committed £600 million to transport schemes across the Thames Gateway for the three years following the 2004 spending review. It will also be crucial that the private sector make a significant contribution to help ensure the appropriate transport infrastructure is put in place to serve the new and exiting developments.

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister if he will allow councils to sell privately owned properties which fall into disrepair as a result of long-term disuse. [29157]

Yvette Cooper: Where a residential property has been left empty for longer than six months, provisions in the Housing Act 2004 will give local authorities the option to make an Empty Dwelling Management Order in order to secure the occupation of that property. However, where an Empty Dwelling Management Order has been made, ownership of that property does not transfer to the local authority, and nor therefore, the entitlement to sell. The making of an order may of course encourage an owner to sell voluntarily.

Existing legislation does provide public bodies, including local authorities, with the power to acquire ownership of privately owned property through compulsory purchase proceedings. Any local authority, responsible for acquiring private property through these proceedings would then be entitled to sell that property.

Mike Penning: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister how many council properties were sold under the right-to-buy scheme by Dacorum borough council in each year since 1997. [30117]

Yvette Cooper: The numbers of council properties sold under the right-to-buy scheme by Dacorum borough council in each financial year since 1997–98 as reported by Dacorum are shown in the table.

Dacorum: right-to-buy sales

Quarterly returns (P1B) to ODPM from local authorities

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what the (a) function and (b) powers of the Audit Commission's Housing Inspectorate are; and what its budget was in the last year for which figures are available. [30443]

Mr. Woolas: The Audit Commission has powers under section 10 of the Local Government Act 1999 to inspect a "best value" authority's compliance with Part 1 of that Act. Part 1 includes (among other things) a general duty on these authorities to make arrangements to secure the continuous improvement in the way that their functions are exercised, having regard to economy, efficiency and effectiveness. In addition, the Audit Commission has powers in relation to registered social landlords under the Audit Commission Act 1998. Sections 41A and 41B of the Audit Commission Act 1998 provide the Audit Commission with powers to carry out inspections of registered social landlords in relation to the quality of the services they provide and the arrangements they have put in place to secure continuous improvement in the efficiency, effectiveness and economy of those services.

The Housing Inspectorate is part of the Audit Commission and undertakes its inspection activities under these powers. The expenditure for the Housing Inspectorate's activities for 2005–06 is projected to be £7.98 million. This is part of the Commission's overall budget of £224 million.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister pursuant to the answer of 11 November 2005, Official Report, column 839W, on housing, what definition he uses of relevant proprietor. [30666]

Yvette Cooper: Relevant proprietor is defined in section 132(4)(c) of the Housing Act 2004 as the person who holds the freehold estate in the dwelling or, in the case of a dwelling let under one or more leases with an unexpired term of seven years or more, the lessee under whichever of those leases has the shortest unexpired term.

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister if he will make a statement on large scale housing developments in Bournemouth. [30352]

Yvette Cooper: The South West regional assembly—as the regional planning body—are working to prepare the new regional spatial strategy for the south west which will look at housing need in the period to 2026. However, no proposed planned housing figures or locations for development have been made by either the regional assembly, the strategic planning authorities or the Government.

Inspection Regimes

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what assessment the Government have made of the number of inspection regimes by which local authorities are regulated. [30444]

Mr. Woolas: The following bodies carry out inspections within local authorities in England:

Audit Commission (including the Housing Inspectorate)

Benefit Fraud Inspectorate

Office for Standards in Education

Commission for Social Care Inspection

Adult Learning Inspectorate

HM Inspectorate of Probation (Inspection of Youth Offending Teams)

Food Standards Agency

Health and Safety Executive

Office of the Surveillance Commissioner.

Significant progress has been made to better target inspections where they will do most good and to improve the timing and co-ordination of inspections. The effectiveness of inspection can still be improved, and we are working with all those who inspect local government to deliver this. The cost of these inspections are not borne by the local authorities directly.

IT Projects

Dr. Cable: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister (1) how many of the IT projects costing over £1 million in use in his Department and introduced since 1997 have been scrutinised by the Public Accounts Committee; and if he will list them; [26600]

(2) how many IT projects which cost over £1 million and were introduced since 1997 are in use in his Department. [26601]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Office of the Deputy Prime Minister (ODPM) was created in May 2002. There have been seven ODPM IT projects with a value in excess of £1 million which produced systems that are currently in use in ODPM, and which came into live service after that date.

None have been scrutinised by the Public Accounts Committee.

Licensing Act

Mark Hunter: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what assessment he has made of the implications of the Licensing Act 2003 in determining the 2006–07 revenue support grant for local authorities in England. [30174]

Mr. Woolas: The Licensing Act 2003 devolves power to local authorities. The aim is to set the level of fees to cover local authorities' responsibilities under the Act.

There is currently an independent review panel looking into the fees local authorities are collecting as part of the Act. We are waiting for the report from the panel which will assess if the fees set centrally to cover any additional setting up costs local authorities are facing for administration, inspection and enforcement are adequate. We will shortly be announcing the provisional local government finance settlement, which will cover 2006–07 and 2007–08.

Living Over the Shop

Sarah Teather: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister if he will make a statement on funding for the Living Over the Shop organisation. [28827]

Yvette Cooper: The Office of the Deputy Prime Minister awarded contacts to Living Over the Shop in June 2004 and June 2005 for consultancy advice on follow-up work to the report of the Housing Above Shops Task Force. Those contracts have concluded. Further consideration is being given to ways of to maximise use of the existing stock, including potential housing units from redundant commercial space.

Local Authority Funding

Mark Hunter: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what assessment he has made of the implications for local services in the event of an average increase of 1.5 per cent., not including education, to the 2006–07 revenue support grant to local authorities in England; and whether he would expect cuts to frontline services to ensue in such an event. [30175]

Mr. Woolas: The Government are committed to ensuring that local authorities can continue to deliver effective services without imposing excessive increases in council tax. We have yet to announce our proposals for the funding of revenue spending by councils in 2006–07. We have been working with the Local Government Association to identify the main pressures facing local authorities and how they can best be mitigated. We will shortly be announcing the provisional local government settlement for 2006–07 and 2007–08. It will then be up to individual authorities to set their budgets and council tax levels. It will not be possible for authorities to compare the increase in general grant to the increases provided in previous settlements because of the introduction of the Dedicated Schools Grant (DSG). DSG is funded wholly through grant from Government, so council tax will fund higher proportion of other services.

Mobile Telephone Masts

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister if he will take steps to bring mobile telephone masts of all sizes under stricter planning control; if he will apply the precautionary principle in doing so; and if he will make a statement. [31166]

Yvette Cooper: All ground based masts are already subject to planning control so that if the local authority considers that the development will pose a serious threat to amenity, it is able to refuse approval. For masts over 15 metres in height a planning application is required. For masts under 15 metres in height a prior approval application is required.

The Government have adopted the precautionary approach recommended by the Stewart Group.

National Brownfield Strategy

Sarah Teather: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister if he will make a statement on the progress of the National Brownfield strategy in bringing hardcore derelict sites into use. [28894]

Yvette Cooper: English Partnerships has been asked to develop a National Brownfield strategy in its role as expert adviser on brownfield land. The strategy will provide for the first time a coherent national vision for the future development of brownfield land and will act as a toolkit for site owners and developers. Good progress is being made. English Partnerships is developing a pilot programme of feasibility studies on 14 brownfield sites to help inform development of the strategy, an initial programme of workshops with leading stakeholders has been completed and a wider public consultation is planned for early 2006.

Olympics

Vera Baird: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what assessment he has made of the likely impact of public funding for the 2012 Olympic Games on the availability of English Partnerships funding for projects in the Tees Valley over the next five years. [29762]

Yvette Cooper: No such assessment has been carried out in relation to public funding for the 2012 Olympic Games and projects in the Tees Valley. English Partnerships, working with the Urban Regeneration Companies, including Tees Valley Regeneration, decide which projects to support in accordance with their Corporate Plan priorities as approved by Ministers, their available budgets, the quality and value for money of any proposed project, and its effectiveness in meeting sustainable communities objectives and the regeneration needs of the area.

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister whether the Olympic precept will be excluded from his calculations for the purposes of capping local authorities' budgets. [29833]

Mr. Woolas: Capping is applied to an authority's own budget requirement, which would not include any precepts local authorities were required to raise on behalf of precepting authorities. The element that relates to the 2012 Olympic games will be precepted by the Greater London assembly (GLA). If the GLA was judged to have set an excessive budget requirement, it is the GLA which would be capped—not London boroughs.

No decisions have been taken about capping in 2006–07 and beyond, but the Government will not hesitate to use their capping powers to protect council taxpayers from excessive council tax increases in future years.

Public Sector Leasehold Working Party

David Lepper: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister who the members are of the Public Sector Leasehold Working Party; when it last met; when it is next scheduled to meet; if he will place in the Library and on his Department's website the minutes of its meetings; and what its programme of work is. [29522]

Yvette Cooper: The Public Sector Leaseholders Working Party last met in May 2003. The party is currently being reconstituted as a smaller but sufficiently representative group, to be known as the Social Sector Leaseholders Working Party, under the Chairmanship of the Leasehold Advisory Service (LEASE). LEASE has recently sent invitations to a range of representative bodies seeking membership and is currently awaiting responses. The first meeting, which will be arranged as soon as possible, is expected to take place early in the new year, and the minutes of the meetings will be placed on the LEASE website.

Regeneration (Liverpool)

Mrs. Ellman: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister whether a health impact assessment has been carried out into regeneration projects in Liverpool; and if he will make a statement. [31647]

Yvette Cooper: This is a matter for local partners. The local Pathfinder advise that the Housing Market Renewal Programme is currently being assessed for its health impacts and the city council's housing strategy has been assessed and the results published. Further assessments will be carried out on a project-by-project basis.

Retford and Worksop Fire Station

John Mann: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister how many (a) fires and (b) road traffic accidents have been attended to by (i) Retford and (ii) Worksop fire station crews in each of the last five years. [32309]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Information on attendance for individual fire stations is not held centrally by the Office. The data tabled as follows was provided by Nottinghamshire Fire and Rescue Service.

Fires and road traffic accidents attended by crews at Worksop and Retford fire stations, 2000–04

	Fires	Road traffic accidents

Right-to-buy

Dr. Iddon: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister (1) if he will bring the maximum discount available under right-to-buy in areas of high demand for public sector rented accommodation into line with the £9,000 discount available to housing association tenants under their right to acquire. [30852]

(2) what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of the Housing (Right to Buy) (Limits on Discount) (Amendment) Order 2005 in helping areas facing housing pressure. [30853]

Yvette Cooper: The Housing (Right to Buy) (Limits on Discount) (Amendment) Order 2003 came into force on 27 March 2003. It reduced to £16,000 the maximum right-to-buy discount available to tenants in 41 areas in London and South of England that appeared to be under the greatest housing market pressure in terms of high levels of homelessness and high property prices. The Government are keeping the position on maximum right to buy discounts generally under review.

Shared Ownership

Andrew Selous: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister how many shared ownership dwellings there are in the South West Bedfordshire constituency. [29500]

Yvette Cooper: Figures are not available for the number of shared ownership dwellings for the South West Bedfordshire constituency. On 31 March 2005 there were 172 dwellings with ownership shared between the tenant and the registered social landlords in the South Bedfordshire district council area as reported in the Regulatory Statistical Return of the Housing Corporation.

Sir Christopher Meyer

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister whether his recent letter to Sir Christopher Meyer was sent in his official capacity; and if he will place a copy in the Library. [31539]

Jim Fitzpatrick: My right hon. Friend's letter expressed his personal view as Deputy Prime Minister. The Government's view was set out in the Cabinet Secretary's letter of 4 November which is in the Library of the House. My right hon. Friend has not placed his letter in the Library.

Staff Discipline

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister how many employees have been dismissed by his Office in each of the last five years for which figures are available. [29125]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Office of the Deputy Prime Minister was established following the Machinery of Government changes in May 2002. The data are, therefore, only available from this date.

The Department's staff handbook includes procedures for dealing with cases of misconduct, unsatisfactory performance and attendance. Dismissal is considered where after thorough investigation it is decided that the misdemeanour is of such a serious nature the member of staff can no longer work for the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister.

The number of staff who were dismissed as a result of the implementation of these procedures were as follows:

	Number
2002	1
2003	1
2004	4
2005[1]	1

[1] To date

Telephone Masts

Anne Milton: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister how many planning applications for mobile telephone masts in the Guildford constituency have been (a) granted, (b) granted on appeal and (c) refused in each year since 1997. [30188]

Yvette Cooper: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to my hon. Friend, the Member for Coventry, South (Mr. Cunningham) on 2 November 2005, Official Report, column 1066W.

Temporary Accommodation (Families)

Tim Farron: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what estimate his Department has made of the change in the number of families in temporary accommodation in the South Lakeland district council area since 2001; and what steps he is taking to reduce the number of families in temporary accommodation. [31552]

Yvette Cooper: Information provided quarterly by South Lakeland district council about its activities under homelessness legislation includes the number of households in temporary accommodation on the last day of the quarter, as arranged by the local authority. The number of these households which include dependent children or a pregnant woman has been collected since March 2002, and a summary of reported information is presented in the following table.

The Office of the Deputy Prime Minister has made major progress in tackling the worst forms of homelessness—reducing rough sleeping by 75 per cent. since 1998, with reduction sustained at lowest recorded levels (2005 estimate-459), and ending the long-term use of bed and breakfast accommodation for families with children.

The Office of the Deputy Prime Minister's strategy 'Sustainable communities: settled homes; changing lives' published in March 2005 sets out our aims to reduce homelessness further and halve the number of households in temporary accommodation by 2010.

The full version of the strategy is available in the Library of the House or on the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister's website at: www.homelessness.odpm.gov.uk

Trees

Sarah Teather: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister if he will publish the results of the survey on trees in towns and cities in England. [30308]

Yvette Cooper: Work is drawing to a close on the preparation of the final report on the project—"Trees in Towns II". The report, which assesses local authority resources and practices in tree planting and management as well as the quality and quantity of trees in towns and cities in England, will be published in due course.

Tyne and Wear Development Programme

Jim Cousins: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister if he will place in the Library the Tyne and Wear City Region Development Programme under the Northern Way; what the implementation and management arrangements are for the programme; and how hon. Members from the Tyne and Wear City Region and their constituents will be consulted on the programme. [32269]

Yvette Cooper: A copy of the Tyne and Wear City Region Development Programme (CROP) and its annexes can be found on the Northern Way website at http://www.thenorthernway.co.uk/cityregions.html

The Tyne and Wear CROP has been prepared by the Tyne and Wear City Region Working Group at the request of the Northern Way. The implementation and management of the CROP are a matter for the working group in discussion with the Northern Way. It is also a matter for the working group to make any decisions on how they further consult with their stakeholders on the programme.

Valuation Office Agency

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what guidance the Valuation Office Agency has issued to its staff and contractors on the personal safety of inspectors conducting a valuation of a property. [30701]

Mr. Woolas: The Valuation Office Agency provides full information and training relating to the personal safety of staff who may need to carry out property inspections. No contractors are engaged on property inspection work.

NORTHERN IRELAND

11/1 Forms

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland whether a sponsored walk in aid of charity in a public place requires the submission, acceptance and consideration of an 11/1 form; whether in the absence of such a form the event would be deemed unlawful and liable to prosecution; and if he will make a statement. [31187]

Mr. Woodward: There is no legal or singular definition of a 'sponsored walk'. Sponsored walks may assume many different forms, some of which will take on elements which give rise to the appearance of a public procession. If this is the case then organisers of such walks should submit an 11/1 giving notice of their intention to hold an event which has all the critical elements of a public procession.

It is important to remember that organisers are not seeking permission to parade but are rather simply giving notification so that both police and public are made aware and may consider the implications of such a public event.

In the absence of a notification of a sponsored walk as a public procession, the police would evaluate each case in the round before considering whether or not it appeared to be a public procession and whether or not it was necessary to take a view from the Public Prosecution Service as to further action.

Adoption

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what average time adults have waited from application to completion of adoption proceedings of a child in Northern Ireland in each of the last five years. [32220]

Mr. Woodward: The average time adults have waited from application to completion of adoption proceedings of a child in Northern Ireland in each of the last five years is not available centrally.

Alcohol-related Deaths/Illness

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many people in Northern Ireland under the age of 30 were treated for alcohol-related illnesses in each of the last five years. [31271]

Mr. Woodward: Information is not available on the number of people treated for alcohol-related illnesses. However, the number of admissions to hospital for alcohol-related illnesses is available. The table provides figures on the number of admissions to acute hospitals in Northern Ireland for people aged under 30 years with a primary or secondary diagnosis of an alcohol-related illness for each of the last five years for which data are available.

	Number of admissions[1] with an alcohol-related diagnosis
2004–05	842
2003–04	799
2002–03	805
2001–02	946
2000–01	959

[1] Discharges and deaths are used as an approximation for admissions. It is possible that any individual could be admitted to hospital more than once in any year and will thus be counted more than once as an admission.

Binge Drinking

Dr. McCrea: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what statistical evidence he has collated on whether binge drinking is affecting the number of mouth cancer cases in Northern Ireland. [31057]

Mr. Woodward: The Department has not collated any statistical evidence connecting the number of mouth cancer cases to levels of binge drinking. Incidences of lip, oral cavity and pharynx cancers in Northern Ireland has fallen steadily from 162 cases in 1993 to 127 cases in 2003.

Bus Passenger Numbers

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the change in bus passenger numbers on the Belfast to Londonderry route has been between 2000 and 2005. [31483]

Mr. Woodward: Translink has advised that the bus passenger numbers on the Belfast to Londonderry route are as follows:

	Passenger numbers
2003–04	514,171
2004–05	516,137

Complete figures for the present financial year are not available. However Translink has reported a 3 per cent. rise in passenger numbers on the corresponding period last year.

Translink has also advised me that bus passenger numbers for the period prior to 2003–04 are not immediately available. I shall write to the hon. Gentleman with the information as soon as possible.

Cancelled Operations

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many cancelled operations there have been for each hospital with a theatre in Northern Ireland in each of the last five years. [32225]

Mr. Woodward: The information requested is not available.

Car Parks

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much in (a) euros and (b) sterling was taken at pay and display car parks under the control of the Department for Regional Development in Northern Ireland where euros are accepted as valid payment during the first six months of (i) 2004 and (ii) 2005. [31451]

Mr. Woodward: The Chief Executive of Roads Services (Dr. Malcolm McKibbin) has been asked to write to the hon. Gentleman in response to this question.

Letter from Dr. Malcolm McKibbin to Mr. Gregory Campbell, dated 28 November 2005:

You recently asked the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland a Parliamentary Question regarding, how much in (a) euros and (b) sterling was taken at pay and display car parks under the control of the Department for Regional Development in Northern Ireland where euros are accepted as valid payment during the first six months of (i) 2004 and (ii) 2005. I have been asked to reply as these issues fall within my responsibility as Chief Executive of Roads Service.

In the first six months of (i) 2004 and (ii) 2005, car park ticket machines under the control of the Department for Regional Development, which accept both sterling and euro, have taken income as detailed in the following table.

Period	Sterling	Euro
January to June 2004	1,122,425.51	28,646.10
January to June 2005	1,293,917.85	44,691.63

I hope this information is helpful.

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the total (a) income taken as payment of car parking charges and (b) outgoings paid as salaries and other charges at Department for Regional Development car parks in Northern Ireland were in 2004. [31452]

Mr. Woodward: The Chief Executive of Roads Service (Dr. Malcolm McKibbin) has been asked to write to the hon. Gentleman in response to this question.

Letter from Dr. Malcolm McKibbin to Mr. Gregory Campbell, dated 28 November 2005:

You recently asked the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland a Parliamentary Question regarding what the total (a) income taken as payment of car parking charges and (b) outgoings paid as salaries and other charges at Department for Regional Development car parks in Northern Ireland were in 2004. I have been asked to reply as these issues fall within my responsibility as Chief Executive of Roads Service.

I should explain that Roads Service does not retain this information on a calendar year basis. However, the total income taken as payment for car parking charges in the financial year ending 31 March 2005 was £9,088,000. The total expenditure relating to car park activities for the same period was £8,782,000.

I hope this information is helpful.

Cardiac-related Emergencies

Mr. Peter Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many cardiac-related emergency cases have been treated in hospitals in Northern Ireland in each year since 1995. [31970]

Mr. Woodward: The number of emergency admissions[1] to the cardiac surgery and cardiology specialties in hospitals in Northern Ireland in each year since 1995 is detailed in the following table.

[1] Discharges and deaths are used as an approximation for admissions. It should be noted that any patient could have been admitted more than once in any particular year and in more than one year.

	Total
1995–96	10,532
1996–97	10,865
1997–98	12,170
1998–99	13,246
1999–2000	14,388
2000–01	14,608
2001–02	14,120

Care Homes

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many beds were available in the Province in care homes on the last date for which figures are available; and if he will make a statement. [32089]

Mr. Woodward: At 31 March 2004 (the latest date for which information is available), there were 15,330 beds available in care homes in Northern Ireland. This information includes beds in residential and nursing homes, and beds in children's homes as well as those for adults.

Some people will always need more support than can be safely provided in their own home. For this reason residential care homes and nursing homes continue to play an important part in meeting people's care needs.

Civil Servants

Dr. McCrea: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many (a) Protestants and (b) Roman Catholics were employed in the Northern Ireland Office in each of the past five years. [30129]

Mr. Woodward: All NIO staff working in Northern Ireland, both Home civil servants and Northern Ireland civil servants, are monitored for community background in compliance with the Fair Employment and Treatment (NI) Order 1998 monitoring regulations. The Department also has a small number of staff working in London whose community background is not monitored. The following figures relate to staff in Northern Ireland only.

	Protestant		Roman Catholic		Non-determined
	Number	Percentage	Number	Percentage	Number	Percentage	Total
2001	957	(70.1)	353	(25.9)	55	(4.0)	[1]1,365

[1] This relates to NICS staff only as figures for HCS staff in NI not available for 2001.

Cookstown

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland for what reasons an area designated for education and recreation usage has now been turned over to the provision of a new police station for Cookstown. [14019]

Mr. Woodward: I am sorry for the delay in replying. This was caused by an administrative error.

The location of the proposed new police station at Cookstown is adjacent to the current station and is deemed to be in the most operationally effective location for the delivery of community policing within the Cookstown area.

The site does not encroach into any area designated for education or recreation purposes in the Cookstown Area Plan. However abutting the site along its south-western boundary are school grounds, which are designated as existing recreation/open space.

Delayed Discharges

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many delayed discharges for elderly patients due to non-availability of community-care packages there were in each health board area in 2004–05; and if he will make a statement. [32098]

Mr. Woodward: The number of elderly (people aged 65 and over) who were regarded as delayed discharges during 2004–05 and whose reason for delay was "No place or care package available" is given in the following table for each Health Board area in Northern Ireland.

Delayed discharge is bad for patients and is an unnecessary drain on acute hospital resources. A key component of health and personal social services reform and modernisation plans is the development of a range of integrated primary and community care services, specifically designed to prevent inappropriate admission to hospital and to reduce unwarranted lengths of stay.

District Policing Partnership

Dr. McCrea: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the cost of each district policing partnership in Northern Ireland was in each of the last three years. [30136]

Mr. Woodward: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for Belfast, East (Mr. Robinson) on 21 November 2005, Official Report, column 1632W.

Dr. McCrea: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland (1) what expenses have been claimed by elected representatives on each of the local district policing partnerships in each of the last three years; [30137]

(2) what expenses have been claimed by independent members of each of the local district policing partnerships in each of the last three years. [30138]

Mr. Woodward: The Policing Board has advised me that the following figures show the total expenditure on elected and independent members allowances and travel and subsistence expenses for each DPP in the last three years. The Board does not hold a breakdown of figures between elected and independent members and to gather this information would be at disproportionate cost.

Dr. McCrea: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much has been paid to consultants and agencies organising conferences for district policing partnerships in Northern Ireland in each of the last three years. [30139]

Mr. Woodward: The Policing Board has advised me that any conferences arranged for DPPs by the Northern Ireland Policing Board have been organised in-house and no money has been paid to consultants or agencies in relation to organising this work.

Doctors and Nurses

Mr. Peter Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many (a) doctors and (b) nurses there were per head of population in Northern Ireland, broken down by health board, in each year since 1998. [31949]

Mr. Woodward: The information requested is provided in the following tables.

Doctors employed within the NI HPSS per 1,000 head of population by health board area by year as at 30 September

	Northern board	Eastern board	Southern board	Western board
1998	1.00	2.36	1.26	1.33

Notes:
1. The Mid-year HSSB Civilian Population Estimate for 2005 was not available, therefore the Mid-year HSSB Civilian Population Estimate for 2004 was used for 2005.
2. Doctors include all Medical Staff employed within the NI HPSS at the following grades: Consultants, Associate Specialists, Staff Grade, Specialist Registrars, PRHOs, SHOs, Hospital Practitioners, General Medical Practitioners and Medical Officers.
3. These figures exclude Primary Care General Practitioners.

Domestic Violence

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what funding has been made available to support victims of domestic violence and their children in (a) Northern Ireland and (b) Upper Bann in each of the last five years. [31285]

Mr. Woodward: The information requested is not available either by constituency or for Northern Ireland as a whole. Victims of domestic violence are supported by a range of agencies depending on their needs but individual cases of domestic violence are not tracked at present by the agencies involved, for example, within the criminal justice system and the health and social services. A new strategy for addressing tackling domestic violence in Northern Ireland, "Tackling Violence at Home", was launched in October 2005. As the strategy is implemented, it should be possible in the future to track cases and associated costs across a range of public services.

It is estimated, however, that the direct cost of services provided to victims (through the police, criminal justice system, health and social services care, housing support and civil legal cases) could amount to about £90 million each year in Northern Ireland. It is estimated that the loss of economic output in Northern Ireland due to the suffering of domestic violence victims could amount to a further £90 million each year. These estimates are based on an extrapolation of 2004 research figures for England and Wales on a pro-rata population basis.

Drugs Rehabilitation

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what funding has been made available for drugs rehabilitation in (a) Northern Ireland and (b) Upper Bann in each of the last five years. [31286]

Mr. Woodward: The information requested on funding for drug rehabilitation is not available centrally.

Rehabilitation is an integral part of all drug and alcohol treatment whether community or inpatient based. The cost of this generic rehabilitation cannot be disaggregated from the total costs of such programmes. The majority of drug rehabilitation can and does take place in the community as part of an overall community care and rehabilitation programme. Within each health and social services board area provision exists to refer individuals to residential rehabilitation centres outside Northern Ireland if deemed to be clinically appropriate.

Early Release

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many prisoners released early under the provisions of the Belfast Agreement have subsequently been convicted of serious offences in Northern Ireland. [32252]

Mr. Woodward: Of the 447 persons released 'early' on their sentences under the Northern Ireland (Sentences) Act 1998, available information indicates that 28 have been subsequently convicted of further offences in Northern Ireland.

Electoral Fraud

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what assessment he has made of the impact of the arrangements in Northern Ireland which allow electoral registration officers to consult Department for Work and Pensions databases as part of measures to tackle electoral fraud. [27580]

Mr. Hanson: The Chief Electoral Officer has written to the hon. Member. The text of the letter is as follows:

"The process is one in which an extract of the registration information held in respect of every elector in Northern Ireland is compared against the DWP National Insurance Number (NINO) database using the NINO, date of birth and name provided on each individual registration form. There has been a full match in 94.6 per cent. of cases and the Electoral office is currently pursuing the reason for mismatches with the remaining 5.4 per cent. In many instances the mismatches have turned out to be simple transpositions on the part of electors, for example AB123465D being recorded at AB123456D.

The Electoral office is of the view that the use of the NINO and subsequent checking against the DWP database has led to an extremely accurate Register in Northern Ireland with few if any illegal duplications or phantom entries"

Failure to Stop after Accidents

Mr. Peter Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many people were proceeded against for the offence of failing to stop after an accident in each Police Service of Northern Ireland district in each of the last five years. [31951]

Mr. Hanson: The statistics provided in Table 1 include the offences of 'failing to stop—damage only' and 'failing to stop—injury', and are based on the PSNI District Command Unit in which an offender's address falls. Due to the lack of comparability of 1999 data, (based on crimes reported to 12 police divisions) figures for that year have not been included.

Data relating to 2004 will be available in early 2006.

[1] Data are based on the police District Command Unit in which an offender's address falls. The District Command Unit structure became operational in April 2001. However, for the purposes of comparability with later years, figures for 2000 and the first quarter of 2001 are also based on the 2001 DCU structure.

[2] Missing data relate to those offenders for which DCU information is not available.

Fireworks and Bonfires

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many injuries associated with fireworks and bonfires there were over the recent Halloween period; and what the figures were in each year since 2001 broken down by health board area. [32097]

Mr. Woodward: Information on the number of people who sustained injuries associated with bonfires is not available. Information on the number of people injured as a result of fireworks over the most recent Halloween period are not yet available. However, figures for the years 2001 to 2004 are available and are detailed in the following table for each Health Board area in Northern Ireland.

GP Appointments

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many general practitioner appointments in Northern Ireland were not attended by members of the public in each of the last five years; and how many general practitioners in Northern Ireland are over 65 years of age. [31269]

Mr. Woodward: The information is as follows.

(a) The Department does not centrally hold information on missed appointments at GP surgeries. This could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

(b) As at 22 November 2005, there are 25 general practitioners over the age of 65 who are working in primary care. Some of these are partners in a general practice while others are sessional (locum) practitioners.

Health Professionals

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many dental (a) nurses, (b) hygienists and (c) therapists there were in Northern Ireland on the last date for which figures are available; and if he will make a statement. [32090]

Mr. Woodward: The vast majority of dental nurses, dental hygienists and dental therapists are employed by independent dental contractors, and statistical information on such staff is not held centrally.

Hospital-acquired Infections

Dr. McCrea: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many deaths have been associated with hospital-acquired infections in Northern Ireland in the last five years. [31055]

Mr. Woodward: The information requested is not available.

Housing

Dr. McCrea: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what proportion of South Antrim housing stock has been sold under the right-to-buy scheme since 1990. [31072]

Mr. Hanson: Approximately 47 per cent. (2,527) of the Housing Executive stock in the South Antrim area (5,370 in 1990) has been sold under its House Sales Scheme.

Mr. Peter Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much his Department has allocated for social housing in each constituency of Northern Ireland in each of the past 10 years. [31959]

Mr. Hanson: The information is not available in the form requested. The following table shows the Department for Social Development's allocation to the Northern Ireland Housing Executive and registered housing associations for social housing in each of the past 10 years:

	Allocation (£ million)
1995–96	203.213
1996–97	218.290
1997–98	234.436
1998–99	263.073
1999–2000	256.458
2000–01	252.914
2001–02	264.678
2002–03	294.128
2003–04	306.887
2004–05	320.679

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many houses in the public sector in Northern Ireland are deemed inadequate by district housing offices due to poor heating and insulation. [32096]

Mr. Hanson: While 97 per cent. of public sector housing has some form of central heating and insulation, not all meet the decent homes thermal comfort criterion, because of its high specification compared to the former fitness standard. It is therefore estimated that some 33,680 houses in the public sector are deemed inadequate due to the standard of heating and insulation. However, the Department's objective is to ensure that the decent homes standard will be met by all public sector housing by 31 December 2010.

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the change in the total value of (a) current and (b) past tenant arrears of the Northern Ireland Housing Executive has been since 1995. [32218]

Mr. Hanson: The following table details Northern Ireland Housing Executive's past and current tenant arrears between 1995 and 2005:

£ million

As at 31 March each year:	Current tenants debt	Past tenants debt	Total debt

Motoring Offences

Dr. McCrea: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many drivers were prosecuted for driving (a) without insurance and (b) while banned in each Westminster constituency in Northern Ireland in each of the last three years. [31051]

Mr. Hanson: Prosecution data cannot be readily broken down by Northern Ireland constituency. The statistics included in the table are based on the PSNI District Command Unit in which an offender's address falls.

Data relating to 2004 will be available in early 2006.

Dr. McCrea: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many speeding fines in South Antrim remain unpaid. [31075]

Mr. Woodward: The Police Service of Northern Ireland do not record statistics by parliamentary constituency, but by District Command Unit. The available figures for Antrim DCU show that during the period 1 January 2005 to 30 September 2005, 821 endorsable fixed penalty notices were issued for excess speed and 110 of these remain unpaid.

Murders

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many persons convicted of murder in the Province during the current troubles in cases where all proceedings are complete (a) have been sentenced to terms of imprisonment of (i) less than five years, (ii) five to 10 years, (iii) 10 to 20 years and (iv) more than 20 years, (b) have been released otherwise than under the Belfast agreement having served terms of imprisonment of (A) less than five years, (B) five to 10 years, (C) 10 to 20 years and (D) more than 20 years and (c) have been released under the Belfast agreement having served terms of imprisonment of (1) less than five years, (2) five to 10 years, (3) 10 to 20 years and (4) more than 20 years. [29623]

Mr. Hanson: In relation to part (a) (i-iv) for persons sentenced to life imprisonment, further details regarding actual sentence length are not held within the NIO court datasets. Therefore, as a mandatory sentence of life imprisonment applies in the case of murder. Table 1 provides only the number of persons sentenced in each of the years for which data is currently available.

In relation to part (b) (A-D) for persons convicted of murder and released otherwise than under the Belfast agreement, available information indicates that 395 people have been released since 1975. Table 2 shows the time served by these prisoners. These figures include persons sentenced to be detained at the pleasure of the Secretary of State who were under 18 years of age at the time of their offence. It is possible that not all of those recorded in the figures were convicted in Northern Ireland.

In relation to part (c) (1–4) for persons released under the Northern Ireland (Sentences) Act 1998, introduced following the Belfast agreement, available information indicates that a total of 146 persons convicted of murder have been released. Table 3 shows the time served by these prisoners. The figures include persons sentenced to be detained at the pleasure of the Secretary of State who were under 18 years of age at the time of their offence. It is possible that not all of those recorded in the figures were convicted in Northern Ireland. Persons released under the Northern Ireland (Sentences) Act 1998 from imprisonment following breach of licence for an earlier sentence for murder have not been included. Only time in custody served in Northern Ireland is included.

National Lottery

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the value of sales of (a) national lottery tickets and (b) scratch cards has been in Northern Ireland; and how much has been awarded to good causes in Northern Ireland by national lottery distributors. [31280]

Mr. Caborn: I have been asked to reply.

As of 19 November 2005 total national lottery sales in Northern Ireland (including scratch cards) since the national lottery began in 1994 are £1,324,847,489, of which £377,267,075 represent scratch card sales. For every £1 of national lottery sales, an average of 28p goes to good causes. According to data derived from the lottery awards database (which uses information supplied by lottery distributors), 8,789 awards totalling over £591 million in value have been made to projects in Northern Ireland since the national lottery began until 28 October 2005.

Necrotising Fasciitis

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many people in Northern Ireland have (a) contracted and (b) died of necrotising fasciitis in each of the last five years. [32091]

Mr. Woodward: The information requested is as follows:

(a) Information on the number of people who have contracted necrotising fasciitis in each of the last five years is not available.

(b) The following table gives the number of deaths registered in Northern Ireland in each year between 2000 and 2004 where necrotising fasciitis[1] was recorded on the death certificate.

NICE Drug Assessments

Dr. McCrea: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if the Government will issue interim guidance to primary care trusts in Northern Ireland concerning Velcade pending assessment by the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence. [30149]

Mr. Woodward: Velcade was licensed for use in all areas in the UK in 2004. It is thought that the NICE evaluation of Velcade will be completed during 2006.

Clinicians in NI can prescribe Velcade within the term of the license where the relevant trust and HPSS board have approved the relevant costs. There are no plans at present to issue specific guidance on this matter.

Nurses

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many nurses in Northern Ireland have reported sick with a stress related illness in each of the last five years. [32222]

Mr. Woodward: The information requested is as follows:

Nursing Homes

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the change in numbers was of (a) registered nursing homes and (b) nursing home places in Northern Ireland between 1994 and 2004. [32566]

Mr. Woodward: Information on the numbers of registered nursing homes and nursing home places for the years 1995 (the earliest year for which information is available) and 2004, and the changes between these dates, is shown in the following table.

	Nursing homes	Nursing home places
1995	256	9,339
2004	254	9,312
Change 1995–2004	-2	-27

Notes:
Information is in respect of the position at 31 March each year. Figures are not available for the position in 1994, therefore figures for 1995 have been provided. The number of nursing homes in 2004 includes 88 dual registered homes (registered for provision of both residential and nursing care). The 2004 figure for nursing home places includes nursing places, but excludes residential places, in dual registered homes.

Office of the Police Ombudsman

Mr. Peter Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland on how many occasions officers from the Office of the Police Ombudsman used powers of arrest in each year since 2000. [28849]

Mr. Woodward: The information requested was provided by the Police Ombudsman and is as follows:

Paramilitary Attacks

Mr. Peter Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many paramilitary-style attacks there were in each of the last 10 years; and in how many cases people were (a) apprehended and (b) convicted. [31938]

Mr. Woodward: The Police Service of Northern Ireland have advised that the only statistics held in relation to this matter can be found at the PSNI website: www.psni.police.uk and are set out as follows covering the years 1973 to 2005. All statistics are provisional at this stage and may be subject to minor amendment.

The police have been unsuccessful at holding anyone to account for such crimes—usually victims and witnesses are unwilling or unable to co-operate with police and therefore there is little the police can do.

Pensions

Mr. Peter Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many people (a) are of pensionable age and (b) receive a state pension in Northern Ireland. [31960]

Mr. Hanson: There are 275,247 people of pensionable age in Northern Ireland, 263,770 people are receiving retirement pension.

Polling Stations (Disabled Access)

Dr. McCrea: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what steps the Government are taking to improve conditions for disabled voters at polling stations in Northern Ireland. [30146]

Mr. Hanson: This issue is an operational matter and is the responsibility of the Chief Electoral Officer who has written to the hon. Gentleman. The text of the letter is as follows.

"The Electoral Office keeps all polling places under constant review to ensure that disabled voters have where possible the same facilities and ease of access as able bodied voters. Where facilities are less than satisfactory, the Electoral Office has been working with the owners of such properties and with the Equality Commission to help the owners address their obligations under the Disability Discrimination Act. Unfortunately, some alterations do take time and often there are no ready alternative venues in the locality.

All polling stations in Northern Ireland are equipped with the new style of polling booth which incorporates a compartment with a lowered writing shelf suitable for wheelchair users. Large print versions of the ballot paper are displayed in all polling stations and each is equipped with a selector device so that visually impaired electors can vote without assistance if they so choose".

Poverty Statistics

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many (a) children and (b) pensioners were living in poverty in each constituency in Northern Ireland in each of the last 10 years. [31274]

Mr. Hanson: This information is not available in the form requested. It is estimated that the total numbers of children and pensioners in Northern Ireland living in households with income after housing costs below 60 per cent. of the UK median were as follows:

Number living in households with income below 60 per cent. of UK median income after housing costs

	2002–03	2003–04
Children	112,800	108,100

Prisoner Assaults

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many (a) prisoners and (b) prison officers in Northern Ireland were the victims of an assault by a prisoner in each of the last five years. [31283]

Mr. Woodward: The information requested is shown in the following table:

Over the years the number of assaults has shown a downward trend.

Prisons

Dr. McCrea: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the average daily cost of keeping a person in prison in Northern Ireland was during the latest period for which figures are available. [30273]

Mr. Woodward: In 2004–05, the average daily cost per prisoner place was £235. The Northern Ireland Prison Service does not collate figures for the average cost per prisoner.

Prostate Cancer

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many men have been diagnosed with prostate cancer in Northern Ireland, broken down by Health Board area in each year since 2001. [32107]

Mr. Woodward: The following table details the number of incidences of prostate cancer (ICD-10 C61) in Northern Ireland by Health Board since 2001.

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what funding has been provided for information leaflets advising men to seek medical help should they experience symptoms of prostate cancer in the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [32108]

Mr. Woodward: No specific funding has been earmarked by the Department of Health, Social Services and Public Safety for the provision of information leaflets on prostate cancer. However, the Chief Medical Officer's (CMO) report of 2003 included a short article on prostate cancer. This Report was issued with every copy of the three main Northern Ireland newspapers sold on a particular day. In the article, inter alia, doctors were advised to ensure that men who asked for a Prostate Specific Antigen (PSA) test were properly informed about it, including the benefits and downside of the test. In November 2003, in a CMO update, which is sent to all doctors in Northern Ireland, they were told about an information pack, "Prostate Cancer Risk Management Programme", available from the Department of Health (L). Included in this pack are a supply of information leaflets for men considering a PSA test. The CMO's report of 2004 reiterated this information.

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the survival rates have been of men diagnosed with prostate cancer since 2001 in each Health Board area of Northern Ireland. [32109]

Mr. Woodward: The Northern Ireland Cancer Registry (NICR) do not routinely produce relative survival rates for any cancer, by Health Board of Northern Ireland. The most recent relative survival rates (1-year and 5-year) for prostate cancer for the whole of Northern Ireland are outlined in the table. These figures are based on patients diagnosed in the period 1996–99 and followed up to the end of 2002.

Railways

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what estimate he has made of the cost of providing a passing loop in the Ballykelly area for trains between Coleraine and Londonderry. [32562]

Mr. Woodward: No estimate has been made of the cost of providing a passing loop in the Ballykelly area on the Coleraine to Londonderry line.

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many complaints from rail passengers there have been about (a) timings and (b) refreshments on the service between Coleraine and Londonderry in 2005. [32564]

Mr. Woodward: Translink has advised that, in 2005, it has received 29 complaints relating to timings on the rail service between Coleraine and Londonderry and eight complaints relating to refreshment services on the Londonderry line.

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the total cost has been of vandalism to the new trains acquired by Northern Ireland Railways since their introduction. [32565]

Mr. Woodward: To date the total cost of vandalism on the new Class 3000 fleet is £123,826.

Release under Licence

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many people released under licence as part of the Belfast Agreement have (a) subsequently been re-arrested under the terms of their licence and (b) been re-released early. [32137]

Mr. Woodward: 15 persons who were released 'early' on their sentences under the Northern Ireland (Sentences) Act 1998 have subsequently had their licences suspended under the terms of the Act. One of these has since been released 'early' again on a Sentences Act licence.

Reoffending

Dr. McCrea: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what percentage of young offenders re-offended in Northern Ireland in each year since 2001. [30131]

Mr. Hanson: Information is not available in the form requested. The most recent information available on reconviction rates for both juveniles and adults in Northern Ireland has been published by the Northern Ireland Office in two statistical bulletins in March 2005 ("Adult Reconviction in Northern Ireland 2001" and "Juvenile Reconviction in Northern Ireland 2001"). Copies of these bulletins are available in the Library.

Seconded Police Officers

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many members of the Police Service of Northern Ireland are on secondment to other police services. [31272]

Mr. Woodward: There are currently 17 members of the Police Service of Northern Ireland on secondment to other police services.

Sexual Health

Mr. Peter Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many cases of sexually transmitted infections were diagnosed in each year since 1998, broken down by health board. [31958]

Mr. Woodward: The total number of recorded instances of sexually transmitted infections in each Health Board is not available. However, the total number recorded in Northern Ireland is available and is shown in the following table for the years 1998 to 2004.

	Number of sexually transmitted infections
1998	8,986
1999	10,169
2000	11,172
2001	11,300
2002	11,868
2003	11,547
2004	11,481

Notes:
1. The number of instances of sexually transmitted diseases is measured according to the number of attendances at Genito-Urinary Medicine clinics.
2. These totals contain conditions whose mode of transmission is not solely sexual.

Communicable Disease Surveillance Centre Northern Ireland (CDSC(NI)).

Sex Offenders

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many sex offenders are imprisoned in Northern Ireland. [31284]

Mr. Woodward: As of 24 November 2005 there were a total of 164 prisoners being held by the Northern Ireland Prison Service for offences under Schedule 3 of the Sexual Offences Act 2003, of whom 135 have been sentenced and 29 are on remand.

Specialist Nurses

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what funding has been provided for additional specialist nurses to sufferers of (a) ulcerative colitis and (b) Crohn's disease in Northern Ireland. [32254]

Mr. Woodward: No recurrent funding has been specifically provided for additional specialist nurses to sufferers of ulcerative colitis or Crohn's Disease. However, funding of £30,000 has been provided for a Community Nursing Redesign Pilot Project, which is looking at a community nurse-led service to develop chronic disease management for patients with colorectal illnesses including ulcerative colitis and Crohn's disease. In addition, there are a number of trusts who employ "gastroenterology related" specialist nurses, part of whose remit is caring for patients with these conditions.

Terrorist-related Murders

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many terrorist related murders remain unsolved in Northern Ireland. [32136]

Mr. Woodward: There are almost 2,000 unsolved terrorist related murders in Northern Ireland.

Tonsil and Adenoid Removals

Mr. Peter Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many children aged under 16 years in each health board area in Northern Ireland were discharged from hospital after removal of tonsils or adenoids in each of the last 12 months. [31950]

Mr. Woodward: The number of children aged under 16 years, in each health board area in Northern Ireland, discharged from hospital following a tonsillectomy or adenoidectomy, in each month during 2004–05 (the latest year for which information is available), is shown in the following table:

Discharges following a tonsillectomy or adenoidectomy performed on children aged under 16

Under-age Drinking

Dr. McCrea: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many prosecutions were brought against (a) public houses and (b) nightclubs in Northern Ireland for supplying alcohol to under-age purchasers in each of the last three years. [30691]

Mr. Hanson: It is not possible to identify separately prosecutions brought against public houses and those against nightclubs. The prosecutions included in the table are for the offences of "selling intoxicating liquor to a minor" and "licensee selling intoxicating liquor to minor" also meaning that the prosecutions could be against any licensed premises and not just public houses or nightclubs.

It should be noted that the court data is recorded on a principal offence rule, so that where proceedings involve more than one offence dealt with at the same time, only the principal offence is recorded (i.e. that attracting the most severe penalty).

The figures cover the period 2001 to 2003 (2003 being the most up-to-date available). Data relating to 2004 will be available in early 2006.

Water Supplies

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the average levels of reservoir water supplies in Northern Ireland during October were in each of the last five years. [32219]

Mr. Woodward: The Chief Executive of Water Service (Mrs. Katharine Bryan) has been asked to write to the hon. Gentleman in response to this question.

Letter from Mrs. Katharine Bryan to Mr. Gregory Campbell, dated 28 November 2005:

You recently asked the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland a Parliamentary Question about the average levels of reservoir water supplies in Northern Ireland during October in each of the last five years (32219). I have been asked to reply as this issue falls within my responsibility as Chief Executive of Water Service.

Water Service has 21 impounding reservoirs which provide a maximum usable storage capacity of around 63,700 megalitres. The average water levels during October, as a percentage of the total maximum reservoir useable storage, for each of the last five years, are as follows:

	Percentage
2001	59.7
2002	83.6
2003	57.5
2004	79.9
2005	70.8

Impounding reservoirs provide just under 50% of total water supplies. The remaining supplies come from Loughs (mainly Lough Neagh), rivers and borewells. Current water supply levels in the reservoirs are considered satisfactory.

Travellers

Mr. Peter Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will make a statement on unauthorised Traveller encampments in Northern Ireland. [31984]

Mr. Hanson: I am aware of the impact of unauthorised encampments on settled communities, and I appreciate the desire for measures to deal with the affects of such unauthorised encampments. It was for this reason the Unauthorised Encampments (Northern Ireland) Order 2005, was introduced and it includes provisions aimed at combating unauthorised encampments. However, the operation of the order cannot be fully effective if sufficient sites for Travellers are not available. Accordingly, I have decided to defer bringing the substantive provisions of the order into effect until I am satisfied that an adequate number of transit sites is operational in Northern Ireland.

I am pressing the Housing Executive to ensure the necessary sites are available as soon as possible. I anticipate that five sites will be operational by next summer by which time I will review the situation with a view to enabling the necessary provisions. I believe this represents a fair and balanced approach.

0870 Numbers

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will list the occasions in the last five years on which 0870 telephone numbers have been used by her Department as contact numbers for members of the public; and how much revenue was received from the use of 0870 contact numbers in each of the last five years for which records are available. [24465]

Jane Kennedy: The Department is aware that a publications order line intended for national health service and social care professionals is sometimes used by members of the public.

Otherwise, the Department has not used any 0870 telephone numbers as contact numbers for members of the public during this period.

999 Calls (Response)

Steve Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many 999 calls were first responded to by (a) St. John's ambulances and (b) other non-NHS organisation ambulances in (i) England and (ii) each ambulance trust in each year since 1997; and if she will make a statement. [27048]

Mr. Byrne: Information on St. John's ambulances and other non-national health service ambulance organisations is not collected centrally.

Abortion

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether the submissions to the Lane Committee on Abortion are in the public domain; and if she will make a statement. [30409]

Caroline Flint: The report of the committee on the working of the Abortion Act, chaired by the hon. Mrs. Justice Lane DBE, was published in 1974. A list of those who submitted evidence was published at the time but the report states that

> "All written and oral evidence and answers to questionnaires were invited on the basis that they would be treated as confidential to the Committee."

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether the files held by her Department relating to the (a) Abortion (Amendment) Bill of the 1974–75 Session and (b) Abortion (Amendment) Bill of the 1976–77 Session are in the public domain; and if she will make a statement. [30410]

Caroline Flint: The files relating to these Bills are not in the public domain.

Adolescent Mental Health

Mr. Holloway: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many adolescent mental health beds there are in (a) Kent and (b) each county in England; and if she will make a statement. [29287]

Mr. Byrne: Information is not available in the form requested.

The 2004 child and adolescent mental health service (CAMHS) mapping exercise collected information on the number of beds commissioned for tier 4 in-patient care. It found that 665 beds had been commissioned in England and of these seven had been commissioned by the CAMHS partnerships in the Kent and Medway strategic health authority area. Further details of the mapping data can be found at www.camhsmapping.org.uk/.

Because the data were collated with reference to the commissioning body, the beds will not necessarily be in the same area.

Alzheimer's Disease

David Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) if she will take steps to ensure that people with Alzheimer's disease have access to (a) clinically effective and (b) cost effective drug treatment on the NHS; [26396]

(2) what discussions she has had with professional bodies about the impact of withdrawing drug treatments for people with Alzheimer's disease from NHS prescription. [26394]

Jane Kennedy [holding answer 8 November 2005]: This is a matter for the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE).

NICE has not issued final revised guidance on drugs for the treatment of Alzheimer's disease. Until it does so, the guidance it issued in 2001 remains in force and those benefiting from the drugs in question will continue to do so. NICE is currently reviewing its guidance.

Avian Influenza

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate she has made of the number of potential fatalities from avian influenza before the population has been fully vaccinated. [21597]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Avian influenza is a disease which mainly affects birds, with infrequent cases in those people who are closely exposed to infected poultry. As of 9 November 2005 only 125 people have been infected by avian flu, all of them in Asia where people live very closely with poultry. Of those, 64 have died. There have been no confirmed cases of human to human transmission.

Our present strategy is risk based and there is no evidence that there is at present an elevation of risk to United Kingdom (UK) poultry workers. Because there is a very low risk to humans in the UK. We are not planning to vaccinate the population against the current circulating strain of avian influenza.

Mr. Gale: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what research the Department is funding to assess the pathogenicity of the H5NI virus; and if she will make a statement. [19232]

Mr. Bradshaw: I have been asked to reply.

Defra currently fund a wide ranging programme of research that is aimed toward improving our understanding of Avian influenza (AI) and effective methods of its prevention and control.

An important aspect of this is to understand the pathogenesis of the disease.

Within the research programme, projects are currently underway to examine the pathogenesis and transmission characteristics of the virus within poultry. Other projects are addressing the issue at a more fundamental level, to examine the genetic characteristics of the virus that associate with pathogenicity and cross species transmission.

The Department currently spend £463,000 per annum on Avian influenza research.

Bournemouth and Christchurch NHS

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the costs of running Bournemouth and Christchurch NHS Trust have been in each of the last five financial years. [30331]

Caroline Flint: Information showing data for 2000–01 to 2004–05, which is the latest year for which information is available, is shown in the table.

Running costs are not identified within the accounts of national health service trusts. Figures shown are the total operating expenses of the Royal Bournemouth and Christchurch Hospitals NHS Trust, which is closest to the information requested.

Total operating expenses of the Royal Bournemouth and Christchurch Hospitals NHS Trust

2000–01	96,993
2001–02	106,117
2002–03	118,520
2003–04	129,097
2004–05	148,152

Note:
This trust moved to Foundation status as of 1 April 2005 and so comparable figures will not be available from the Department for 2005–06.

Breast Cancer

Steve Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many women in England aged 40 to 49 years with a family history of breast cancer received a mammogram in the last 12 months; [27335]

(2) how many women there are in England aged 40 to 49 years with a family history of breast cancer. [27336]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Data on the number of women aged 40 to 49 in England and Wales who have a family history of breast cancer and the number of these women who received a mammogram in the last year are not collected centrally. However, we do know that the proportion of cases of breast cancer that have an inherited component is small, at less than 10 per cent. of total cases.

The National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE) published a clinical guideline on familial breast cancer in May 2004. They recommended that women at moderate risk or greater should receive annual mammography. NICE estimated that an annual surveillance service for women aged 40 to 49 years at a moderate or greater risk of familial breast cancer would require an additional 21,000 mammograms a year.

NICE clinical guidelines are covered by the Department's developmental standards, standards which the national health service is expected to achieve over time. The Healthcare Commission has responsibility for assessing progress towards achieving these standards.

Cancelled Operations/Appointments

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will make a statement on progress towards reducing cancelled operations and appointments at NHS units in the Hemel Hempstead constituency in the last 12 months. [30118]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Information relating to the number of cancelled appointments in national health service units within the Hemel Hempstead constituency is not held centrally.

The following table shows the number of cancelled operations at West Hertfordshire hospitals NHS trust, of which Hemel Hempstead constituency is a part, over the last 12 months.

Number of cancelled operations at West Hertfordshire hospitals NHS trust.

West Hertfordshire hospitals NHS trust	Number of last minute cancellations for non clinical reasons in the quarter	Number of patients not admitted within 28 days of cancellation on the day of surgery
2005–06
Quarter 1	99	22
2004–05
Quarter 4	160	38
Quarter 3	189	30
Quarter 2	153	27
Quarter 1	164	29

Notes:
1. A last minute cancellation is one that occurs on the day the patient was due to arrive, after they have arrived in hospital or on the day of their operation. For example, you are to be admitted to hospital on a Monday for an operation scheduled for the following day (Tuesday). If the hospital cancels your operation for non-clinical reasons on the Monday then this would count as a last minute cancellation. This includes patients who have not actually arrived in hospital and have been telephoned at home prior to their arrival.
2. Some common non-clinical reasons for cancellations by the hospital include: ward beds unavailable; surgeon unavailable; emergency case needing theatre; theatre list over-ran; equipment failure; admin error; anaesthetist unavailable; theatre staff unavailable; and critical care bed unavailable. These examples are based on information from the Modernisation Agency's Theatres Project and do not necessarily cover all non-clinical reasons.

Cancer Screening

Frank Dobson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which institutions in the NHS are responsible for surveillance of the accuracy and integrity of (a) breast and (b) cervical cancer screening arrangements. [30475]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 21 November 2005]: Quality assurance in the national health service breast screening programme and the NHS cervical screening programme aims to maintain standards and continue improvement in the performance of all aspects of the programmes in order to ensure that women have access to a high quality service wherever they live. Quality assurance has always been a fundamental part of the programmes.

Responsibility and resources for screening quality assurance rest with the Regional Directors of Public Health, who have all the necessary authority to secure quality assurance. Where necessary they are able to close screening units down which fail to meet national standards.

The Government spends £8 million per year on quality assurance for the breast and cervical screening programmes. Eight regional quality assurance reference centres provide the service, overseen nationally by the NHS cancer screening programme.

Care Homes

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many care homes (a) exceeded, (b) met, (c) almost met and (d) failed to meet (i) the national minimum standard for complaints procedures and (ii) Regulation (A) 5 and (B) 6 of the Care Home Regulations 2001 in each of the last five years. [22378]

Mr. Byrne: I understand from the Chair of the Commission for Social Care Inspection, that data is collected on how care homes are meeting the national minimum standards. How care homes have met these standards is shown in the tables. Regulations 5, 5A and 6 set out requirements on information to be provided to the service users. Regulation 22 sets out requirements for the complaints procedure. Compliance with these regulations is a legal condition that must be met in order for a home to be registered.

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many beds in care homes there were in (a) Hertfordshire and (b) Dacorum in each year since 1997; and if she will make a statement. [27772]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The number of beds in Hertfordshire in each year since 1997 is shown in tables one and two. Data for Dacorum are not collected separately but are included in the Hertfordshire figures.

Table one shows the number of care home places open in Hertfordshire for adults aged 18 and over, at 31 March for the years 1997 to 2001. Table two shows the number of care home places registered for adults aged 18 and over, at 31 March for the years 2003 to 2005.

Data for 2001 and 2002 are not available. The data from before 2002 are not comparable to the data after 2002. This is because the Department's data up to 31 March 2001 are based on the number of care homes open as at 31 March, whereas the Commission for Social Care Inspection data from 1 April 2002 are based on the number of care homes registered as at 31 March.

Table 1: Number of care home places open for adults aged 18 and over in Hertfordshire 1997–2001[1]

Rounded numbers

Carers

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) who the lead official is in respect of matters relating to carers within the Department; [28604]

(2) to whom representations and submissions on good practice in relation to carers should be addressed within her Department; [28607]

(3) what steps she is taking to (a) co-ordinate and (b) monitor the implementation of the national carers strategy; and who within her Department is responsible in each case. [28608]

Mr. Byrne: The Department is tackling the issue of carers support identified in the national carers strategy across a broad front. We are investing a substantial sum to help councils support carers with short breaks and other services. The carers grant is worth £185 million in 2005–06 and will continue at this rate until at least 2007–08. We also continue to fund and work closely with carers organisations.

The Department has also supported legislation which gives carers more rights including, for the first time, the right to an assessment of their own needs independent of the service user.

In addition, we recognised the need to strengthen and update the carers performance indicator in order to collect better data on support for carers.

Within the Department, responsibility for carers policy falls to the Policy Management Unit in the Care Services Directorate.

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment she has made of the likely impact on carers of the work of the Social Care Institute for Excellence. [28605]

Mr. Byrne: The Social Care Institute for Excellence have recently designed and published an on line guide primarily for the social care managers and practitioners responsible for the implementation of the Carers (Equal Opportunities) Act 2004. The essential steps and many of the practice points throughout the guide will be useful to those responsible for strategic planning and commissioning. Practitioners will need the support of senior and line managers and an appropriate framework to enable them to help carers. The guide will also be useful for carers, people who use social services and professionals from other organisations that support carers.

This work is in addition to SCIE's "Practice guide on assessing the mental health needs of older people", which was published in January 2003. This guide gives an overview of information and current practice to all those involved in assessing the social care needs of older people with mental health needs. It supports the fundamentals of good assessment practice, giving access to the information and skills that inform sound judgments in the support of service users and carers. It shows users and carers where they can find out more and what they are entitled to expect from their contact with assessors.

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans she has to monitor the (a) implementation and (b) impact of the Carers (Equal Opportunities) Act 2004. [28606]

Mr. Byrne: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 23 November 2005 to the hon. Member for Torbay (Mr. Sanders), Official Report, column 2103W.

Cheshire and Merseyside Strategic Health Authority

Rosie Cooper: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the budget deficit is for each hospital in the Cheshire and Merseyside strategic health authority. [26378]

Mr. Byrne: The latest financial year for which the audited financial information of all national health service organisations, strategic health authorities, primary care trusts and NHS trusts, is available is 2004–05. The final position for NHS trusts for 2004–05 in the Cheshire and Merseyside SHA is shown in the following table.

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans are being considered by Cheshire and Merseyside Strategic Health Authority for the reconfiguration of acute trusts; who has been consulted on such plans; when it is intended to discuss such plans with hon. Members; and what public consultation will be undertaken before decisions are taken. [30715]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 22 November 2005]: The Cheshire and Merseyside Strategic Health Authority (SHA) reports that it has commissioned independent consultants to work with national health service trusts to develop a coherent strategy that would enable all organisations in its area to achieve foundation trust status. At this time, the SHA does not have any plans to re-configure the acute trusts in its area.

Child Epilepsy

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will make a statement on the incidence of child epilepsy; and what courses of treatment have been made available in the last three years. [29532]

Mr. Byrne: The National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE) has estimated that there are between 4,000 and 14,000 new consultations per year in the United Kingdom for epilepsy in children.

The NICE guidance, "The diagnosis and care of children and adults with epilepsy" published in October 2004, and "Newer drugs for epilepsy in children", published in April 2004 contain information on the latest treatments. Copies are available at NICE'S website at www.nice.org.uk.

Child Protection

Mr. Davey: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps her Department is taking to link designated professional staff for the protection of children from abuse and neglect to Local Safeguarding Children Board areas. [27240]

Mr. Byrne: Consultation on revising the Government guidance on safeguarding and promoting the welfare of children, "Working Together to Safeguard Children" finished on 28 October. The Government plan to publish a revised version. The guidance is expected to make it clear that designated health professionals are a key part of local safeguarding arrangements and are a vital source of professional advice on child protection matters to other professionals, the primary care trust (PCT) and to the local authority children's services departments. Chapter three of that guidance is about the role of local safeguarding children boards (LSCBs), which will be set up under sections 13–16 of the Children Act. Each strategic health authority, PCT, NHS trust or NHS foundation trust will be required to link up with the local authority and other key stakeholders, as set out in the Children Act 2004, who cover the same areas in order to establish a LSCB by April 2006.

Community Health Council Buildings

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will list former Community Health Council buildings still used by health authorities; and what their current use is in each case. [28737]

Jane Kennedy: No former community health council buildings are used by strategic health authorities.

Consultant Referrals

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will make a statement on the operation of the Department's 17 weeks maximum waiting time for consultant to consultant referrals. [18584]

Mr. Byrne: The current waiting time target of 17 weeks does not include consultant to consultant referrals, but relates to the maximum waiting time from general practitioner referral to a first outpatient appointment with a consultant. However, by December 2008 no patient will have to wait more than 18 weeks from general practitioner referral to start of hospital treatment.

The Department recently launched a listening exercise on the principles and definitions underpinning the 18 week commitment which will run until 8 December 2005. This includes proposals on the management of consultant to consultant referrals. Copies of this document are available in the Library.

The Department will publish the final principles and definitions in early 2006.

Continuing Care

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what research she has commissioned on the trends in the (a) duration of a continuing care episode and (b) the cost of providing continuing care since NHS continuing care was introduced; and what research she has evaluated in this area. [28701]

Mr. Byrne: Research has not been commissioned on these particular areas because their unpredictable nature makes it extremely difficult to establish any useful trends.

There is no way to estimate with any precision the average duration of an episode of this type. Durations are likely to vary considerably, ranging from individuals with a life expectancy of just a few days, to those who remain in continuing care for extended periods. Costs associated with providing continuing care will also vary greatly between individuals, their care packages and location.

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much Hampshire county council pays to fund each continuing care patient. [29187]

Caroline Flint: Nothing. Continuing care is paid for by the relevant primary care trust.

Dentistry

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 25 October 2005, Official Report, column 260W, on dentistry, for what reasons the figures for NHS dentists in each primary care trust were not provided; and when she will provide the figures. [26139]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The figures for national health service dentists in each primary care trust were not provided because this is not information that is collected by the Department.

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many dentists have left the NHS (a) in each year since 1995 and (b) in 2005 to date; what research her Department has undertaken into the main reasons for leaving; and what action her Department is taking to reduce these numbers. [26806]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The information requested is shown in the table.

Number of dentists who have left the general dental services (GDS) and personal dental services (PDS) in England as at 30 September each year

	Leavers
1995	910
1996	821
1997	947
1998	972
1999	1,037
2000	1,206
2001	1,207
2002	1,352
2003	1,236
2004	1,224
2005	1,097

A dentist is assumed to have left the national health service if they had an open GDS or PDS contract in September of the previous year but no GDS or PDS contract in September of the specified year.

The Department is introducing a major package of reforms from April 2006 that will allow primary care trusts to commission local dental services and more fully reflect local oral health needs. The reforms are also designed to make NHS dentistry more attractive to dentists by reducing their work load, providing the stability of a guaranteed annual NHS income, and offering more opportunities for preventative work.

Rosie Cooper: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what percentage of five-year-olds in West Lancashire have no decayed, filled or missing teeth. [28142]

Mr. Byrne: From the last NHS survey in 2003–04, 52 per cent. of five-year-old children in West Lancashire Primary Care Trust (PCT) were found to have no decayed, missing or filled teeth. This compares with 58 per cent. in 2001–02. In Cumbria and Lancashire Strategic Health Authority area the figure was 49.2 per cent. in 2003–04 and in England as a whole 61.3 per cent. None of the PCTs water supply is fluoridated.

Mr. Newmark: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps her Department is taking to (a) recruit and (b) retain dentists who register new NHS patients with particular reference to Braintree constituency. [21807]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Department, as part of its recruitment of dentists from Poland, placed a dentist in a practice in Witham this summer.

Witham, Braintree and Halstead primary care trust (PCT) has received significant financial growth to expand local dental services under personal dental services (PDS) agreements, which now cover 16 per cent. of practices. The PCT has received £1.142 million growth funding for PDS in 2005–06. Not all these PDS agreements have yet started to accept patients.

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 12 September, Official Report, column 2670–71W, to the hon. Member for Northavon (Steve Webb), on NHS dentistry, whether her Department plans to collect this information centrally from primary care trusts from next April. [24104]

Ms Rosie Winterton: From next April, the responsibility for commissioning dental services will pass to local primary care trusts (PCTs). PCTs will set contracts with dentists for national health service services and at the same time agree the number of units of dental activity (UDAs) which the dentist should perform over the course of a year as part of that contract. This will provide PCTs with a measure of the overall commitment of their local dentists to NHS dental services, which could be used in the future to measure the overall commitment to the NHS. The Department has no current plans to monitor centrally the amount of time dentists in a PCT spend treating NHS patients.

Departmental Directors

Mr. Maples: To ask the Secretary of State for Health who the Director of Human Resources is in her Department; what relevant specialist qualifications he or she holds; and what the details are of his or her career to date. [26323]

Jane Kennedy: Dr. Anne Rainsberry is the Head of Corporate Human Resources in the Department. Dr. Rainsberry joined the civil service in 2001 after 15 years in the national health service. She is a member of the Chartered Institute of Personal Development (CIPD) and has worked in human resource for 19 years.

Andrew Foster CBE is the Director of Workforce in the Department's health and social care directorate. Mr. Foster spent 10 years in the NHS before joining the Department in 2001. He is a Fellow of the CIPD.

Departmental Vehicles

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many vehicles for which the Department is responsible are fitted with retreaded tyres. [17985]

Jane Kennedy: For information on the use of retread tyres in vehicles provided to the Department by the Government Car and Despatch Agency (GCDA) I refer the hon. Member to the letter of 11 October 2005 which he received from the Chief Executive of the GCDA, reference UIN15087 and UIN15088. Copies of this letter are available in the Library.

In addition to vehicles provided by the GCDA, the Department currently leases six vehicles. The policy of the schemes through which these cars are leased is that retread tyres are not used.

Direct Mail Contracts

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many contracts for direct mail were signed by her Department in (a) 2005–06 to date and (b) 2004–05; and what the value was in each case. [27816]

Jane Kennedy: The Department does not currently hold this type of information. It could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Erythropoietin

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) when the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence expects to publish the new appraisal consultation document for the use of erythropoietin in the treatment of cancer treatment-induced anaemia; [30303]

(2) why the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence has decided to review its appraisal consultation document for the use of erythropoietin in the treatment of cancer treatment-induced anaemia. [30304]

Jane Kennedy: I understand that the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE) decided to review its appraisal consultation document on the use of erythropoietin at the second meeting of the independent advisory committee on technology appraisals. At the meeting, it was decided that some reanalysis of the evidence may be required. The project specification for this work is currently being finalised and will be published on NICE's website at www.nice.org.uk shortly.

NICE expects to publish the new appraisal consultation document for erythropoietin in May 2006.

Funding (Milton Keynes)

Dr. Starkey: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much funding was allocated by her Department to Milton Keynes for (a) capital projects and (b) revenue funding in each of the last five years. [23505]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Capital and revenue allocations are made to national health service organisations, strategic health authorities (SHAs) primary care trusts (PCTs) and NHS trusts and are not allocated on a constituency basis. The tables show the NHS bodies within the Milton Keynes area that have received capital and revenue funding.

Operational capital is allocated to all NHS trusts and PCTs. The funding is provided to maintain and enhance their existing capital stock. The allocations for the organisations in the Milton Keynes PCT area are shown in table 1.

Table 1. Allocations for Milton Keynes PCT

2004–05	26,211
2005–06	28,172

Note:
Comparisons between allocations rounds cannot be made, for the following reasons:
Revenue allocations were made to health authorities for the period 2000–01 to 2002–03;
Changes are made to the weighted capitation formula for each allocations round, therefore, comparisons would not be on a like with like basis;
2003–06 revenue allocations were made direct to PCTs, for the first time, and were on a three yearly basis; and
2006–08 is the first year that Primary Medical Services (PMedS) were incorporated onto revenue allocations.

Prior to 2003–04, the Department allocated all NHS capital to the eight regional offices who had responsibility for distributing this funding to their health authorities.

NHS capital allocations have not been made for 2006–07 onwards.

The most recent round of revenue allocations, covering 2006–07 and 2007–08 was announced in February 2005. Revenue allocations made to Milton Keynes PCT for this period is shown in table 3.

Gas and Electricity Supplies

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 11 November 2005, Official Report, column 816W, on gas and electricity supplies, which NHS sites in England have interruptible energy contracts; how many NHS sites there are in England; what the length is of the period of notice which the energy supplier must give NHS sites under the contracts concluded by the NHS Purchasing and Supply Agency before supplies are interrupted; and if she will make a statement on the contingency plans her Department has made to maintain energy supplies to all NHS sites this winter. [30733]

Jane Kennedy [holding answer 21 November 2005]: The number of national health service interruptible sites which are on centrally arranged purchasing and supply agency (PASA) contracts is 109 sites. A list of all sites is in the following table. There are approximately 15 to 20 other NHS sites on interruptible contracts that are not procured centrally.

NHS PASA has centrally arranged contracts for gas and electricity for approximately 6,500 NHS sites.

NHS sites on PASA contracts are on Transco interruptible contracts, not commercial contracts. They will only be asked to stop using supplies if there is a risk to the network, this varies from commercial contracts which are based on interruption or turn down at the supplier's request based on price. It is the supplier's responsibility to pass on notice to interrupt from Transco to the site, and the site would be expected to be given four hours' notice.

In line with shifting the balance of power, sites have responsibility for local contingency arrangements, and some sites have alternative fuels that can be used in the event of an emergency. At a national level the Department is in regular communication with suppliers and the DTI emergency planning group to ensure that needs and requirements of the NHS are recognised in the event of an emergency.

General Dental Services Contract

Sir Paul Beresford: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how her Department plans to inform (a) dentists and (b) patients about the new general dental services contract; and how much has been allocated to publicise the contract. [24560]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 3 November 2005]: The acting chief dental officer has written to all dentists, explaining the key messages of the new contracts. He is also holding regular meetings with groups of dentists across the country. The Department and the British Dental Association have met twice recently to discuss the new contracts. We have arranged articles in the dental press, recently issued extensive guidance to the national health service that included key messages to dentists and are holding six roadshows across England during November and December to build on the recent guidance.

The Department will produce an information leaflet for patients and a poster to explain the proposed banded system of patient charges for dentists to display in their surgeries.

General Medical Services Contract

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what proportion of the total number of points available for assessing practice remuneration under the General Medical Services contract is assigned to (a) severe mental illness, (b) coronary heart disease, (c) diabetes and (d) cancer. [28228]

Mr. Byrne: The total number of points available in the quality and outcomes framework, part of the general medical services contract for 2005–06 is 1,050. The points available for the named diseases shown in the table.

Disease	Points	Percentage (per cent. of the total)
Severe mental illness	[1]30	2.9
Coronary heart disease, including left ventricular disease	121	11.5
Diabetes	99	9.4
Cancer	12	1.14

[1] Plus an additional 11 points for lithium therapy.

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will make a statement on the priority given to severe mental illness in the practice remuneration system of the general medical services contract. [28229]

Mr. Byrne: The quality and outcomes framework is part of the general medical services contract. For the current financial year severe mental illness has 30 points allocated, plus a further 11 for patients on lithium therapy.

The contract is currently being re-negotiated and the disease areas being covered in the updated framework will be announced at the conclusion of the negotiations.

General Practitioners

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the percentage change in payments to general practitioners following the introduction of the Quality and Outcomes Framework included in the new General Medical Services contract for General Practice has been in (a) England and (b) for Dacorum Primary Care Trust; and if she will make a statement. [27211]

Mr. Byrne: In 2004–05, in the year they were introduced, quality and outcomes framework payments for England accounted for about 9.5 per cent. of the total payments made by primary care trusts under the new general medical services contract.

For Dacorum PCT, figures held centrally indicate that about 11.3 per cent. of the total payments made by PCTs under the new general medical services contract relate to the quality and outcomes framework.

Information relating for Wales is a matter for the Welsh Assembly.

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the oral answer from the Prime Minister of 9 November 2005, Official Report, column 302, to the right hon. Member for West Derbyshire (Mr. McLoughlin), what the evidential basis is for the statement about the pay of general practitioners compared with their European counterparts. [28365]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 14 November 2005]: The table shows the latest available comparisons published in 2005 between general practitioners (GPs) earnings in the UK compared against their European equivalents.

Evidence is taken from the research firm Stethos' recent GP survey and used by the British Medical Association in their memorandum of evidence to the Review Body on Doctors' and Dentists' Remuneration. The evidence indicates UK GP earnings are currently ranked the highest in Europe.

Net GP earnings across five European countries

Countries	£ Net GP earnings
France	42, 037
United Kingdom	49, 947
Germany	49, 299
Spain	25, 926
Italy	22, 607

GP/Dentist Registration

Rosie Cooper: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many residents in West Lancashire constituency were registered with (a) a general practitioner and (b) an NHS dentist in each year since 1997. [28094]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The information requested is shown in the tables.

Notes:

1. Patients are included within the constituency area according to the postcode of the dental practice and not the patient's own home address.
2. Most Personal Dental Service schemes that have registrations have a re-registration period in excess of 15 months, so the figures for PDS schemes are generally higher than they would have been for the same attendance pattern under General Dental Service.
3. This information was provided by the Dental Practice Board and relates to patients registered with dentists whose practice address postcodes are within the constituency boundary.

Health Funding (Hemel Hempstead)

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much funding was allocated by her Department to the Hemel Hempstead constituency for (a) capital projects and (b) revenue funding in each of the last eight years. [25733]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Capital and revenue allocations are made to NHS organisations, strategic health authorities, primary care trusts (PCTs) and NHS trusts and are not allocated on a constituency basis. The tables show the NHS bodies within the Hemel Hempstead constituency that have received capital and revenue funding.

The operational capital allocated to all organisations within the Dacorum PCT area are shown in table 1. The funding is provided to maintain and enhance their existing capital stock.

Strategic capital is allocated to strategic health authorities to support larger scale investments. The allocations for the Bedfordshire and Hertfordshire SHA is shown in table 2.

Table 2: Bedfordshire and Hertfordshire SHA

2003–04	13,548
2004–05	15,310
2005–06	17,224

Note:

Comparisons between allocations rounds cannot be made, for the following reasons:

Revenue allocations were made to health authorities for the period 2000–01 to 2002–03;

Changes are made to the weighted capitation formula for each allocations round, therefore, comparisons would not be on a like-with-like basis;

2003–06 revenue allocations were made direct to PCTs, for the first time, and were on a three-yearly basis; and

2006–08 is the first year that Primary Medical Services (PMedS) were incorporated on to revenue allocations.

Prior to 2003–04, the Department allocated all NHS capital to the eight regional offices who had responsibility for distributing this funding to their health authorities. NHS capital allocations have not yet been made for 2006–07 onwards.

The most recent round of revenue allocations, covering 2006–07 and 2007–08 was announced in February 2005. Revenue allocations made to Dacorum PCT for this period is shown in table 3.

Table 3

	Dacorum PCT
2006–07 (£000)	165,791
2007–08 (£000)	180,733
Increase over 2 years (percentage)	18.5

The 2003–04 to 2005–06 revenue allocations to PCTs were announced in December 2002. Revenue allocations made to Dacorum PCT for this period is shown in table 4.

Table 4

	Dacorum PCT

2004–05 (£000)	126,173
2005–06 (£000)	138,186
Increase over 3 years (percentage)	31.8

Prior to 2003–04, revenue allocations were made direct to health authorities (HAs) on an annual basis. Revenue allocations made to HAs in the Hertfordshire area from 2000–01 to 2001–02 is shown in tables 5 and 6.

Table 5

Health authority	2000–01 (£000)	Percentage increase

Health Services (Uxbridge)

Mr. Randall: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the average waiting time for an appointment to see a general practitioner was in (a) the parliamentary constituency of Uxbridge and (b) Greater London in each year since 1997 for which figures are available. [29766]

Jane Kennedy: The requested data are not collected or held centrally. Since 2001, data has been collected each month from primary care trusts and general practitioners on the availability of access to a general practitioner. This data show whether access is or is not available in line with the NHS Plan target that patients should be able to be seen within 48 hours but do not provide information on actual waiting times.

Mr. Randall: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the average response time to an emergency call to the Ambulance Service was in (a) Uxbridge constituency and (b) each London borough in the last year for which figures are available. [29767]

Jane Kennedy: The information is not centrally collected in the requested format. The data that the Department collects on ambulance response times are published in tables 5a, 5b, 6 and 7 of the statistical bulletin, "Ambulance services, England: 2004–05", which is available in the Library and on the Department's website at www.dh.gov.uk.

Health Trust Funding

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what financial resources were made available to (a) Wellhouse Trust for financial year 1997–98, (b) Chase Farm Trust for financial year 1997–98, (c) Barnet Chase Farm Trust for 2005–06, (d) Barnet Health Authority for the financial year 1997–98 and (e) Barnet Primary Care Trust for 2005–06; and if she will make a statement. [26805]

Jane Kennedy: In 1997–98, the revenue allocation to Barnet Health Authority was £149.1 million.

From 2003–04 revenue allocations have been made to primary care trusts (PCTs). Barnet Primary Care Trust was allocated £361.1 million in 2005–06.

There are several reasons why comparisons between allocations rounds cannot be made, for example: changes are made to the weighted capitation formula for each allocations round, therefore, comparisons would not be on a like with like basis; and, 2006–08 is the first year that primary medical services (PMedS) were incorporated onto revenue allocations.

It is for PCTs, and was previously for health authorities, to determine how to use the funding allocated to them to commission services to meet the healthcare needs of their local total income, including all income from activities and all other operating income in 1997–98 for Chase Farm Hospitals National Health Service Trust and Wellhouse NHS Trust is shown in the table.

Organisation	Total income 1997–98 (£000)
Chase Farm Hospitals NHS Trust	56,876
Wellhouse NHS Trust	71,876

Source:
Audited summarisation schedules of the Chase Farm Hospitals NHS Trust and the Wellhouse NHS Trust 1997–98.

Allocations are now made to PCTs. PCTs were informed of their allocation for 2005–06 as part of the announcement of the 2003–04 to 2005–06 revenue allocations in December 2002. Information is therefore not currently available on the financial resources of Barnet Chase Farm Hospitals NHS Trust for 2005–06.

The latest year for which the audited financial information of all NHS organisations, strategic health authorities, PCTs and NHS trusts, is available is for 2004–05. The financial position of Barnet Chase Farm Hospitals NHS Trust in 2004–05 showed a breakeven position.

Health Workers (Coventry)

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) dental nurses, (b) dental hygienists and (c) dental therapists there are in Coventry South. [29329]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 21 November 2005.]: As of 30 September 2004 there were two qualified dental therapists in the Coventry South constituency area.

Information about the number of dental nurses and dental hygienists is not held centrally.

Healthcare Professionals Recruitment

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent representations she has received from (a) healthcare recruitment agencies, (b) developing countries and (c) representatives of health workers regarding the Code of Practice for the International Recruitment of Healthcare Professionals. [24208]

Mr. Byrne: The Secretary of State has received no recent representations from individual healthcare recruitment agencies or developing countries. Representations regarding this issue have been received within the last three months from representatives of health workers.

Hemel Hempstead Hospital

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health, if she will list the posts that will be lost at Hemel Hempstead Hospital under the proposed plans to close all acute services at the hospital; and if she will make a statement. [30260]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 21 November 2005]: The reconfiguration of health services in Hertfordshire is a matter for Bedfordshire and Hertfordshire strategic health authority to agree upon, in partnership with the primary care trusts within the two counties. This major reconfiguration of services, known locally as "Investing in Your Health", was consulted on in 2003, and the strategic health authority is currently compiling an outline business case which is expected to be submitted to the Department in January 2006.

Hospital-acquired Infections

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many cases of (a) MRSA and (b) other antibiotic resistant bacteria infections there have been at the Norfolk and Norwich hospital in (a) private and (b) NHS patients in each of the last five years; and what the average number per acute hospital in England in each category was over the same period. [28498]

Jane Kennedy: The best data available are from the mandatory surveillance system which started in April 2001. Reports of meticillin resistant Staphylococcus aureus (MRSA) blood stream infections in the Norfolk and Norwich University Hospital National Health Service Trust are shown in the table. The table also shows the trust and national rate per 1,000 bed days as this is a more reliable benchmark than an average number of reports.

Reports of MRSA at Norfolk and Norwich hospital

	April 2001 to March 2002	April 2002 to March 2003	April 2003 to March 2004	April 2004 to March 2005
Norfolk and Norwich University Hospital NHS Trust Number of reports	62	57	64	58
Norfolk and Norwich University Hospital NHS Trust Rate per 1,000 bed days	0.22	0.19	0.20	0.18
National rate per 1,000 bed days	0.17	0.17	0.18	0.17

The mandatory surveillance system also includes reports of blood stream infections caused by glycopeptide resistant enterococci. Results of the first year of surveillance, October 2003 to September 2004, are available and Norfolk and Norwich University Hospital NHS Trust did not have any cases during this year. As this is a relatively rare national infection rates are not available.

Jim Sheridan: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent research the Department has commissioned into combating MRSA. [28960]

Jane Kennedy: During the first half of 2003, the Department commissioned a £2.5 million strategic programme of research aimed at improving scientific understanding of antimicrobial resistance. Part of that total sum, together with funds committed by the former NHS Estates Agency, is being spent on projects that will provide information relating to best practice in preventing methicillin-resistant Staphylococcus aureus.

The publication of the Department's report "Winning Ways—working together to reduce healthcare associated infection in England" in December 2003 was accompanied by the announcement that £3 million would be allocated to fund a new research programme on healthcare associated infections.

Several projects are being supported from this fund. These include:

a national observational study of the effectiveness of the Clean Your Hands campaign and a cluster randomised controlled trial of the effectiveness and cost-effectiveness of feedback in intensive care units and acute general medical wards;

a study of the efficacy and cost-effectiveness of MRSA screening and monitoring on surgical wards using a new, rapid molecular test;

a randomised crossover trial of a new, rapid method of MRSA detection compared with conventional screening: efficacy and the effect upon hospital MRSA infection rates, transmission rates and the use of hospital resources.

Funding has recently been agreed to support the development of a healthcare infection research network. In addition, a call for proposals for research into the cost-effectiveness of interventions aimed at controlling the spread of infection was published earlier this year. Twelve short listed projects are being peer reviewed and we expect to commission several of these early next year.

Influenza

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much Government funding have been directed towards the creation of a vaccine for the H5N1 influenza virus. [21021]

Caroline Flint: I refer the hon. Member to the reply I gave to the hon. Member for South Cambridgeshire (Mr. Lansley) on 21 November 2005, Official Report, column 1715W.

Liquid-based Cytology

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will list the health trusts which will introduce liquid-based cytology over the next three years; and what the planned implementation date is for each. [29184]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Although primary care trusts (PCTs) are responsible for the commissioning of cervical screening services, not all PCTs have a cervical screening laboratory. Therefore, we have advised strategic health authorities (SHAs) to lead on the implementation of liquid based cytology (LBC), in close collaboration with PCTs, regional quality assurance directors, regional directors of public health and, where appropriate, cancer networks. We have not asked for these local strategies to be submitted centrally as the SHAs are best placed to judge the needs of their local populations. We expect all SHAs to have introduced LBC by 2008.

Macular Degeneration

Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will make a statement on the implementation of National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence guidance relating to photodynamic therapy for wet age-related macular degeneration. [30948]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE) issued its guidance on photodynamic therapy on 24 September 2003. Implementation of the NICE guidance was co-ordinated by local specialist commissioning groups and all primary care trusts are funding photodynamic therapy treatment for patients with both the wholly classic and predominantly classic forms of age-related macular degeneration.

Management Consultants

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much has been spent by the (a) Cheshire and (b) Hertfordshire and Bedfordshire health authority on management consultants in each of the last five years. [30109]

Mr. Byrne: The information requested is not held centrally.

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what projects in the Hertfordshire and Bedfordshire strategic health authority (a) have required and (b) will require the assistance of external management consultants in 2005–06. [30120]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The information requested is not held centrally. This is a matter for local decision making which should take full account of local circumstances.

Mental Health

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many inpatients detained under sections (a) 2, (b) 3 and (c) 4 of the Mental Health Act 1983 have absconded from psychiatric hospitals in each year since 1997; and from which hospital in each case. [25105]

Ms Rosie Winterton: This information is not collected centrally. Absconsions occur when patients detained under the Mental Health Act 1983 go missing outside of the secure perimeter of a unit, e.g. when on a scheduled visit. Missing patient incidents that originate from inside the perimeter of a secure site are termed escapes or breakout.

Absconsions can be either non-serious or serious untoward incidents (SUIs). In relation to mental health patients, an SUI means the absconsion of a patient detained under the Mental Health Act 1983 where a significant risk is posed to the patient or to others. A non-serious absconsion would be where the absconsion is unintentional, due for example to a patient missing a transport connection when returning from leave.

SUI absconsion reporting is far more stringent than for non-serious absconsions. There must be clear local procedures at each national health service organisation to identify, report and investigate SUIs. Information is collected by each strategic health authority (SHA) about all SUIs reported during each calendar year by month, type and NHS organisation, and is available on request from the SHAs. These requirements do not apply to collecting non- serious absconsion data.

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what specialist services are available for families affected by mental health problems in Hemel Hempstead constituency. [25565]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Information is not held in the format requested. However, shown is a list of services that can be found in the Directory of Services in Hertfordshire Local Implementation Team (this is not an exhaustive list) and further information is available on the Adult Mental Health Service Mapping and Children and Adolescent Mental Health Service (CAMHS) Mapping websites at: www.dur.ac.uk/service.mapping/amh/index.php (adults) and www.camhsmapping.org.uk/2005/index.php (CAMHS).

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many children with mental illness have been treated in adult wards in each of the last five years. [28448]

Mr. Byrne: The information requested is not available. I refer the hon. Member to the reply I gave him on 31 October 2005, Official Report, column 842W.

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether responsibility for mental health tribunals proposed in the draft Mental Health Bill will be passed from her Department to the Department for Constitutional Affairs. [28045]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Department and the Department of Constitutional Affairs' (DCA) ministers have agreed in principle to transfer the responsibility for mental health review tribunals to the DCA on 31 March 2006.

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if her Department will carry out an investigation into how The Guardian newspaper received a copy of the unpublished report by the code of practice working group set up to implement a workable model of mental health tribunals proposed in the draft Mental Health Bill. [28046]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Department is not carrying out an investigation.

Mid-Essex Hospital Trust

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many intermediate care beds there have been in the Mid-Essex Hospital Trust area in each of the last six years for which figures are available; and if she will make a statement. [28224]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 16 November 2005]: The number of intermediate care beds within the Mid Essex Hospital Trust area are shown in the table.

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many delayed discharges there have been in the Mid-Essex Hospital Trust area in each of the last six years for which figures are available; and if she will make a statement. [28225]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 16 November 2005]: The latest data available relating to delayed discharges in the Mid-Essex Hospital Trust area are shown in the table.

Midwifery

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the midwifery vacancy rate for Southampton University Hospitals Trust has been in each of the last five years. [29190]

Caroline Flint: The information requested is shown in the table.

Health and social care information centre vacancies survey, national health service three-month vacancies for Southampton University Hospitals NHS Trust for qualified midwives, three-month vacancy rates, numbers and staff in post

			Midwives
			Three month vacancy rate (Percentage)	Three month vacancy number	(Staff in post) full-time equivalent

		2001	0.0	—	128

Notes:
Three month vacancy notes:
1. Three month vacancy information is as at 31 March each specified year.
2. Three month vacancies are vacancies which Trusts are actively trying to fill, which had lasted for three months or more (full-time equivalents).
3. Three month Vacancy Rates are three month vacancies expressed as a percentage of three month vacancies plus staff in post.
4. Three month Vacancy Rates are calculated using staff in post from the Non-Medical Workforce Census.
5. Percentages are rounded to one decimal place.

Staff in post notes:
1. Staff in post data are from the Non-Medical Workforce Census.
2. zero.

General notes:
1. Vacancy and staff in post numbers are rounded to the nearest whole number.
2. Calculating the vacancy rates using the above data may not equal the actual vacancy rates.

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what proportion of maternity units in England have vacancies in midwifery posts; and what proportion of these vacancies have been unfilled for at least three months; [29019]

(2) what steps she is taking to increase the number of (a) student midwives and (b) midwives in practice in the national health service. [29020]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 16 November 2005]: Information is not collected centrally on the numbers of vacancies in each maternity unit. The table shows vacancies for midwives that have lasted three months or more in national health service organisations as at March 2005.

Over 70 per cent. of NHS organisations that employ midwives did not report any vacancies lasting three months or more. As at March 2005, 348 midwifery posts had been vacant for three months or more, which represents a vacancy rate of 1.8 per cent., which is a fall from 3.3 per cent. the previous year.

As at September 2004, there were 24,844 midwives employed in the NHS, which is an increase of 2,272 or 10 per cent. since 2000. A range of work force supply initiatives are in place to ensure the NHS work force continues to meet service needs. These include: improving pay and conditions; encouraging the NHS to become a better, more flexible and diverse employer; increasing training; investing in child care and continuing professional development; attracting back returners and running national and international recruitment campaigns.

NHS Employers is working closely with the NHS to help embed these strategies locally within their organisations.

Health and Social Care Information Centre Vacancies Survey March 2005—proportion of trusts that returned a three month vacancy rate for qualified midwives

MRI/CT Scans

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many scans have been delivered to date under the Alliance Medical contract for mobile MRI scans; how many (a) rejected and (b) repeat scans there were; and what assessment she has made of the (i) timeliness of, (ii) quality of and (iii) customer satisfaction with scans provided under the contract. [24200]

Mr. Byrne: Over 83,000 scans had been delivered via the Alliance Medical Limited (AML) mobile scanning units by the end of October 2005. Of these, less than 1.5 per cent. were repeat scans, which is in line with national health service practice and incorporates the figure for rejected scans as patients are automatically re-imaged by AML.

AML is now exceeding its contracted reporting time of four working days, with 97 per cent. of scan reports returned within three days.

Scan quality is independently audited every six months by the clinical guardian of the contract, Professor Adrian Dixon; NHS sponsors; and AML's head of clinical governance.

The last audit, which compared a sample of scans provided by the NHS and the independent sector, carried out by the Royal College of Radiologists in conjunction with the Department of Health, was published in May 2005. The findings stated that there was "little difference in the technical quality of magnetic resonance examinations between the two services".

In addition, scan quality is monitored consistently throughout the contract as an integral part of the clinical governance framework. Any discrepancies or concerns are audited on a case by case basis by the clinical guardian of the contract.

In October, 90 per cent. of patients rated the service as excellent or good.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether patients who have waited longer than 20 weeks for (a) an MRI and (b) a CT scan at a hospital run by an NHS foundation trust will be offered the choice to be treated elsewhere. [25109]

Mr. Byrne: The Department are currently discussing how choice of scan relates to national health service foundation trusts with monitor and the position will be clarified before choice of scan commences on the 30 November. There is no reason, however, that NHS foundation trusts should not accept patients from other providers where they wish to do so and have the available capacity.

Multiple Sclerosis

Mr. Fallon: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people in each county of England suffer from secondary progressive multiple sclerosis. [29964]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 21 November 2005]: The information requested is not available centrally in the requested format. However, the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence has previously estimated that in England and Wales multiple sclerosis (MS) affects around 63,000 people and that secondary progressive MS accounts for about 45 per cent. of the total population with MS.

Myelopathy

Alison Seabeck: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many cases of HTLV-1 associated myelopathy have been recorded in each year since 1988. [30625]

Mr. Byrne: Specific data on the number of cases of HTLV-I associated myelopathy are not collected.

Research, published in 1994, has identified 231 cases of HTLV types one and two associated myelopathy in England and Wales for the period 1986 to 1992.

Details are available on the Health Protection Agency's website at: hpa.org.uk/cdr/archives/CDRreview/1994/cdrr0694.pdf.

Nappies

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what measures she has put in place to ensure the safety of commercial cloth laundering services supplying NHS maternity wards with communally laundered cloth nappies for newborn babies; and what temperature these nappies are washed at; [27091]

(2) when the proposed BSI PAS 100 safety standard for commercial cloth nappy laundries will be finalised; [27092]

(3) what research she has evaluated on the effects on levels of infections of the use of communally-laundered cloth nappies in NHS maternity wards. [27519]

Mr. Byrne: Commercial cloth laundering services supplying national health services maternity wards with communally laundered cloth nappies for newborn babies must comply with NHS laundry guideline with HSG(95)18, a copy of which has been placed in the Library. The guidelines set a thermal disinfection wash cycle in which the water temperature has been raised to 65 degrees centigrade for not less than ten minutes or to 71 degrees centigrade for not less than three minutes.

The British Standards Institute publicly available specification 106 safety standard for commercial cloth nappy laundries is expected to be published early in the new year.

The Department has not evaluated any research into the effects on levels of infections of the use of communally-laundered cloth nappies in NHS maternity wards.

National Minimum Wage

Ms Katy Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many employees in her Department were affected by the rise in the national minimum wage on 1 October. [28978]

Jane Kennedy: The Department pays above the minimum wage; therefore, no employees were affected by the rise on 1 October.

NHS Bodies

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what measures the Government are taking to protect jobs in the proposed reforms of (a) the Dental Practice Board, (b) the NHS Logistics Authority, (c) the NHS Pensions Agency and (d) the Prescription Pricing Authority. [27756]

Mr. Byrne: The NHS Business Services Authority (NHSBSA) will be formed through a merger of the Dental Practice Board, NHS Logistics Authority, NHS Pensions Agency and Prescription Pricing Authority which is scheduled to take place on 1 April 2006.

No decision has been taken to privatise any of the functions of the NHSBSA. However, contracting out and market testing will be considered if they offer value for money. If engagement with the private sector offers better value and results in a decision to transfer service delivery from BSA constituent organisations to a new employer, the BSA will follow best practice within national health service organisations; those staff who move across will have the protection of the transfer of undertakings (protection of employment) regulations and benefit from the recent joint statement of good practice issued on 6 October 2005 by the Department, NHS employers, the Confederation of British Industry and the Business Services Association, together with a number of trade unions.

Any savings made as a result of any outsourcing or market testing will be re-invested in front line NHS services.

NHS Direct

Steve Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans she has for NHS Direct services to be accessible via internet-enabled mobile handsets. [18565]

Mr. Byrne: NHS Direct Special Health Authority (SpHA) is responsible for setting overall strategy and direction for the service. There are no immediate plans to make services accessible in this way. Any future plans would need to be considered by the SpHA in the context of its three-year multi-channel strategy and agreed by Department through the established governance arrangements.

NHS Staff (Bullying)

Steve Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent estimate she has made of the cost to the NHS of the bullying of members of its staff by other members of its staff; and if she will make a statement. [27046]

Jane Kennedy: The improving working lives initiative ensures employers have in place an organisational commitment and culture to tackle discrimination/ harassment and bullying.

No official estimate of the financial cost of bullying in the national health service has been made. However, the NHS national staff survey for 2004, carried out by the Healthcare Commission, revealed that 16 per cent. of NHS staff had been bullied, harassed or abused by other staff in the previous year. Given that the NHS employs over 1,300,000 people, the total personal and financial costs of bullying is unacceptably high. With the support of NHS employers, the Department is working to ensure an approach of zero tolerance to bullying and harassment in the NHS.

NHS Work Force Data

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent representations have been made to the Department by (a) the Royal Statistical Society and (b) the Statistics Commission on the presentation of NHS workforce data; and how the Department has responded. [16938]

Jane Kennedy: Two representations have been made this year to the Department by the Royal Statistical Society and the Statistics Commission on the publication in March 2004 of an incorrect chart showing trends in the national health service's workforce. The Department responded to both representations, acknowledging that the chart was incorrect, and indicating that a correction had been published on the Department's website. The central message that the chart had intended to convey, increases in the work force each year since 1997, was still correct.

Norfolk PCTs

Dr. Gibson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when she will make a decision on the reorganisation of Norfolk primary care trusts; and if she will undertake a public consultation process. [24392]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Strategic health authorities have recently submitted their proposals for the reconfiguration of primary care trusts, which set out how they intend to strengthen their commissioning function. These proposals have been assessed by an independent external panel drawn from and representing a wide range of stakeholder interests, to determine whether the SHA proposals meet the criteria stipulated in 'Commissioning a Patient-Led NHS' (July 2005). Where the criteria are judged to have been met the proposals will go forward to a three-month public consultation. No decisions on the reorganisation of PCTs will be taken until this process has been completed.

Nursing Agencies

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many nursing agencies (a) meet and (b) do not meet her minimum Department of Health guidelines (i) in England and (ii) in Surrey. [25827]

Jane Kennedy: The National Audit Team for the NHS Purchasing and Supply Agency monitor the commercial agencies providing personnel to the national health service via national framework agreements.

Of the 55 nursing agencies that have been audited nationally 29 have passed the audit requirements and 12 agencies have been terminated from the frameworks. The remainder have or will be undergoing a second audit with recommendations to be made following the reports.

For the framework agreement for the south of England, including Surrey, 18 nursing agencies have been audited of which eight have passed and eight have been terminated from the framework.

Obesity

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what research she has (a) commissioned and (b) evaluated on the effect of obesity on the budget for drug prescribing by general practitioners for (i) obesity and (ii) (A) diabetes, (B) coronary heart disease, (C) stroke, (D) hypertension, (E) hyperthyroidism, (F) cancer, (G) arthritis, (H) asthma and (I) other associated co-morbidities. [30241]

Jane Kennedy [holding answer 22 November 2005]: No research has been commissioned on the effect of obesity on the budget for drug prescribing by general practitioners (GPs) for treating obesity and its consequences. However, 222,000 items of all anti-obesity drugs were prescribed in GP practices in England and dispensed in the community in the second quarter of 2005, April to June 2005, with a net ingredient cost of £9.6 million.

Ophthalmic Operations

Frank Dobson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment she has made of whether the employment of South African clinicians to provide cataract operations by Netcare complies with the Government's ethical recruitment policy. [17374]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 17 October 2005]: Yes. Netcare are contractually obliged to follow the Government's Code of Practice for International Recruitment. This is in line with the Memorandum of Understanding with South Africa, which specifically enables qualified healthcare professionals to undertake time-limited placements in the United Kingdom providing opportunities for collaboration and the exchange of knowledge and skills.

Patient and Public Involvement Resource Centre

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the allocated budget for the Patient and Public Involvement Resource Centre is for 2005–06; and if she will make a statement. [16350]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Department is in the process of procuring a supplier to design, develop and deliver a new centre to support the delivery of patient and public involvement in heath care. We anticipate launching the centre in January 2006.

As we are in the middle of a procurement process, the details of the budget are commercially confidential.

Patient Choice

Steve Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what information will be available to patients under patient choice about (a) NHS providers and (b) private providers; whether it is her intention that information will be directly comparable; and if she will make a statement. [18897]

Mr. Byrne: Patients will need comparative information for national health service and independent sector providers. For choice at referral, a basic set of information on access and location, waiting times and hospital performance will be available through nhs.uk and patient leaflets drawing on information currently available. The Department has already begun a programme of work to develop the more detailed comparative information, particularly on clinical quality, which patients will need as we increase choice in elective care.

Patient Safety

Mr. Boswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many NHS trusts have not submitted patient safety data to the National Reporting and Learning System; and what action she will take to reduce this number. [28711]

Jane Kennedy: As of mid-November 2005, about 75 per cent. of all national health service trusts in England have submitted data to the national patient safety agency's national reporting and learning system (NRLS). 146 NHS trusts have not yet submitted data.

The National Patient Safety Agency has appointed a network of patient safety managers to work with trusts in enabling them to report patient safety incidents to their local risk management system and then to the NRLS.

In addition the Healthcare Commission is reviewing NHS organisations against a set of core standards, the first one of which relates to safety. Reporting patient safety incidents to the NRLS is one of a set of criteria against which trusts are assessed.

We are considering what further action can be taken in the light of the National Audit Office report, "A safer place for patients: Learning to improve patient safety," which draws attention to the level of reporting in acute, mental health and ambulance trusts in England. The report will be discussed in detail at a committee of public accounts hearing early in 2006. The Government will respond to the committee's subsequent report in the form of a Treasury minute.

Pennine Acute Hospitals NHS Trust

Graham Stringer: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what administrative savings have been made by the Pennine Acute Hospitals NHS Trust since its inception; and what the forecast figures were for such savings. [30468]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 21 November 2005]: The information requested is not held centrally.

Plagiocephaly

Jon Trickett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) if she will make a statement on the treatment of plagiocephaly; [14792]

(2) if she will extend treatment for plagiocephaly to families with affected children in those primary care trusts that do not offer treatment. [14793]

Mr. Byrne: There is a difference between positional plagiocephaly, where flattening of the skull is caused by pressure from the surface on which a baby is customarily laid and craniosynostosis, where the cranial sutures have closed prematurely. In the latter case, surgery may well be necessary to prevent future health problems. The national service framework for children, young people and maternity services sets out standards to ensure that primary care trusts (PCTs) base decisions about treatments on the best evidence available to them. Treatment for plagiocephaly is available should doctors and PCTs consider it necessary.

Primary Care Trusts

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much funding per capita was given to (a) Chelmsford primary care trust, (b) Essex primary care trusts, (c) Eastern Region primary care trusts, (d) Greater London primary care trusts and (e) primary care trusts in England in the last two financial years for which figures are available. [28819]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 17 November 2005]: Revenue resource allocations per head of population to primary care trusts (PCTs) in these areas in 2004–05 and 2005–06 are shown in the table.

Allocations to PCTs are based on the population weighted for a number of factors. These factors include:

age related need—to recognise that people tend to have greater need as they grow older; additional needs—to reflect difference in health need over and above that accounted for by age; and unavoidable difference in the cost of providing services.

Revenue allocations for PCTs increased from £49.3 billion for 2004–05 to £53.9 billion for 2005–06; and are due a further increase to £64 billion in 2006–07 and £70 billion in 2007–08. Over the two years covered by this further allocation, PCTs will receive an average increase of 19.5 per cent.

	2004–05 allocation per head	2005–06 allocation per head
Chelmsford PCT	852	975
PCTs in Essex strategic health authority	905	1,082
PCTs in the Government Office for the East of England	889	1,061
PCTs in the Government Office for London	1,114	1,317
PCTs in England	986	1,172

Note:
The population data used in the table above is the updated populations used in the 2006–08 revenue allocations to PCTs.

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans the Government have to merge the four primary care trusts in Somerset. [22692]

Caroline Flint: Strategic health authorities have recently submitted their proposals for the reconfiguration of primary care trusts, which set out how they intend to strengthen their commissioning function. The proposal for Somerset is available from the Dorset and Somerset SHA. These proposals have been assessed by an independent external panel drawn from and representing a wide range of stakeholder interests, to determine whether the SHA proposals meet the criteria stipulated in "Commissioning a Patient-Led NHS" (July 2005). Where the criteria are judged to have been met the proposals will go forward to a three-month public consultation. No decisions on the reorganisation of PCTs will be taken until this process has been completed.

Mr. Wills: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate she has made of the potential financial effects of the reconfiguration of primary care trusts. [24484]

Mr. Byrne: We anticipate that boundary changes and a new focus on commissioning for primary care trusts (PCTs) will enable local organisations to make significant reductions in management costs.

Following reconfiguration of PCTs and strategic health authorities, we expect upwards of £250 million in savings to be invested back into local frontline services. This means that all over the country, PCTs will be able to decide with their clinicians how this extra money could be used to improve local services.

Reportable Medical Incidents

Mr. Holloway: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) medical errors and (b) reportable incidents involving (i) drugs and (ii) equipment in NHS hospitals there have been in Kent since 1997. [29821]

Caroline Flint: It is only possible to provide data on the number of reportable incidents involving drugs and equipment. The Medicines and Healthcare Products Regulatory Agency (MHRA) operates national systems for the collection and monitoring of adverse events related to drugs and devices. Both systems rely upon voluntary reporting of suspected adverse events by health professionals. Manufacturers with respect to devices and marketing authorisation holders with respect to drugs have statutory obligations to report suspected adverse events.

Table 1 shows the total number of suspected adverse drug reaction (ADR) reports received via the yellow card scheme from 1997 to 2005 by year from hospitals in Kent.

Table 1: Reports received via the yellow card scheme from hospitals in Kent

	Number

2003	91
2004	91
2005	[1]90
Total	858

[1] Data up to 16 November 2005

The MHRA pharmacovigilance system does not differentiate between national health service and private hospitals. The number of reports received from Kent hospitals, therefore, includes day hospitals, private hospitals and hospitals that may now be closed.

The yellow card scheme is the United Kingdom system for collecting and monitoring information on suspected ADRs. The scheme is run by the MHRA on behalf of the committee on safety of medicines. The scheme relies upon voluntary reporting of suspected ADRs by health professionals and under statutory obligation by marketing authorisation holders.

Table 2 shows the number of medical device related adverse incident reports submitted to the MHRA from the NHS in Kent on a voluntary basis between mid-1999 and 2005. Information obtainable from electronic records created prior to mid-1999 does not distinguish reports from the NHS in Kent.

Royal Shrewsbury Hospital

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much it costs to treat patients resident in Wales at the Royal Shrewsbury hospital; and how many were treated in each year since 2002. [29164]

Mr. Byrne: Information relating to the costs of treating patients resident in Wales at the Royal Shrewsbury hospital is not held by the Department. However, information relating to the number of finished consultant episodes at the Shrewsbury and Telford Hospitals National Health Service Trust and the predecessor organisation is shown in the table.

Count of finished consultant episodes for the Royal Shrewsbury Hospitals Trust and Shropshire and Telford Hospitals NHS Trust where patient region of residence is Wales.

	Episodes
2001–02	8,000
2002–03	9,156
2003–04	9,482

Notes:
1. Finished Consultant Episode (FCE).
2. An FCE is defined as the period of admitted patient care under one consultant within one health care provider. However, it should be noted that the figures do not represent the number of patients, as a person may have more than one episode of care within the year.

Data Quality:
Hospital Episode Statistics (HES) are compiled from data sent by over 300 NHS Trusts and PCTs in England. The Health and Social Care Information Centre liaises closely with these organisations to encourage submission of complete and valid data and seeks to minimise inaccuracies and the effect of missing and invalid data via HES processes. While this brings about improvement over time, some shortcomings remain.

Ungrossed Data:

Figures have not been adjusted for shortfalls in the data (i.e. the data are ungrossed).

Secondments

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many NHS staff are seconded to her Department; whether their (a) salaries and (b) pension contributions are paid by (i) her Department and (ii) NHS trusts; and whether they are counted in the civil service staff headcount. [25981]

Jane Kennedy: I refer the hon. Member to the reply I gave the hon. Member for Sutton Coldfield (Mr. Mitchell) on 23 October 2005, Official Report, column 2108W.

Smoking

Mr. Holloway: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what research she has (a) commissioned and (b) evaluated on whether the proposed ban on smoking in public places will displace smoking from pubs to domestic environments. [28639]

Caroline Flint: The evidence available from those countries with legislation for smokefree public places and bars is that there is no significant displacement to domestic environments.

Smokefree legislation has been shown to result in reduced prevalence of smoking, which in turn means reduced prevalence of smoking in domestic environments as well as public places.

Recent research on the ban in Ireland reported in the publication "Going Smokefree" by the Royal College of Physicians pointed to a "statistically significant increase in the percentage of smokers who banned smoking in their own homes after the smokefree law was introduced."

(Page 74).

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what research her Department has evaluated on the displacement effect of workplace smoking bans on smoking at home; and if she will make a statement. [29752]

Caroline Flint: The Royal College of Physicians July 2005 report, "Going Smokefree" reviewed the evidence and concluded:

"There is no evidence that smokefree workplaces and enclosed public places increase the exposure of children to environmental tobacco smoke at home."

A study of changes in Ireland published in the journal Tobacco Control in October 2005 reported from a survey of smokers before and after the March 2004 ban came in:

"... there was a significant decrease in the percentage of Irish homes where smoking was allowed."

Speech and Language Therapists

Mr. Boswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 7 November 2005, Official Report, column 276W, if she will break down the number of speech and language therapists employed by the NHS in (a) 1997 and (b) 2004 by (i) full-time and (ii) part-time workers; and what the full-time equivalent figures were in each year. [27257]

Mr. Byrne: The information requested is shown in the table.

NHS hospital and community health services: Qualified speech and language therapists by nature of contract as at 30 September in each specified year

	Full-time equivalent		Headcount
	1997	2004	1997	2004

Staff Sickness Absence

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what the staff sickness absence rate has been in the NHS in each financial year since 1997–98; [26297]

(2) what steps she is taking to reduce the staff absence due to illness rate in the NHS, with particular reference to steps to reduce levels of stress among staff. [26012]

Mr. Byrne: Information on rates of sickness absence in the national health service is only available from 1999 by calendar year. The rates for sickness absence between 1999 and 2004 for NHS Hospital and Community Health Services staff in England are shown in the table.

Sickness absence rates in the NHS (England)

	Percentage
1999	4.9
2000	4.7
2001	4.8
2002	4.6
2003	4.7
2004	4.6

Notes:

1. Sickness absence rate is defined as the amount of time lost through absences as a percentage of staff time available.
2. This does not cover maternity leave, carers leave or any periods of absence agreed under family friendly/flexible working policies.
3. General practitioners and their staff are not included in the figures.
4. The figures are estimates as some organisations in the NHS did not provide figures for sickness absence.

NHS employers launched a stress campaign to coincide with national stress awareness day on 2 November. As part of the campaign, all trusts will be supplied with a series of posters and booklets to raise awareness. They will also direct both staff and employers to online toolkits and support networks to help tackle stress.

Unum Provident

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether her Department has entered into a contract with Unum Provident. [25931]

Jane Kennedy: Unum Provident is not found on the Department's supplier database and has not been paid any money.

Your Health, Your Care, Your Say

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Health for what reasons a regional meeting was chosen as the forum for those selected to apply for involvement in the "Your Health, Your Care, Your Say" consultation programme; what other consultative forms were considered; what the cost of the consultation exercise has been (a) per stakeholder engaged and (b) in total; and if she will make a statement. [26384]

Mr. Byrne: Four regional deliberative consultation events were held as part of the overall consultation which also included a citizens' summit and events co-ordinated by local health and social care organisations, including the voluntary sector. We produced an online questionnaire, copies of which were available in hard copy, an assortment of languages, braille and easy read. An abbreviated questionnaire was published in the magazine "Take-a-Break" and in the national health service publications, "Prime" and "Fit". Five policy taskforces of key stakeholders have been established to make recommendations on the policy options associated with the public's view and five academic seminars were organised.

The overall cost is estimated at £1.2 million. Cost per stakeholder will not be known until the feedback from all sources has been analysed fully.

Written Answers to Questions

Tuesday 29 November 2005

PRIME MINISTER

Intelligence and Security Committee

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Prime Minister what (a) emoluments, (b) expenses and (c) facilities are available to the Chairman of the Intelligence and Security Committee; and if he will make a statement. [31407]

The Prime Minister [holding answer 24 November 2005]: The Intelligence and Security Committee (ISC) is supported by a clerk and secretariat in the Cabinet Office. The ISC Chairman and members are unpaid but expenses incurred by them in the course of their ISC duties are met from within the ISC's budget, which is funded by the Cabinet Office.

Iraq

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Prime Minister pursuant to his statement of 16 November 2005, Official Report, column 96S, and the Secretary of State for Defence's statement of 17 November 2005, Official Report, columns 113–14, what account he took of the Attorney General's letter to Lord Astor of 9 July in making his statement. [31709]

The Prime Minister: There is no contradiction between my comments and the Attorney-General's letter of 9 July. The Army Prosecuting Authority (APA) was established under the Armed Forces Act 1996 and acts independently of the military chain of command. As an additional measure of protection from interference, the APA is subject to the general superintendence of the Attorney-General but he is not responsible for taking decisions on individual prosecutions. There is nothing unusual about this practice which takes place with the other prosecutors superintended by the Attorney-General, for example, the Crown Prosecution Service (CPS), Serious Fraud Office, Revenue and Customs Prosecution Office, and the Public Prosecution Office Northern Ireland.

Tim Loughton: To ask the Prime Minister how many times he has visited soldiers who are receiving hospital treatment in the UK after being wounded in Iraq. [33139]

The Prime Minister: I have visited members of the armed forces both in the United Kingdom and abroad, and have met injured personnel on these occasions.

Nuclear Power

Mr. Evans: To ask the Prime Minister what (a) representations he has received from and (b) advice he has been given by his special scientific advisers in the last 12 months on nuclear power. [33045]

The Prime Minister: Information relating to internal discussion and advice is generally not disclosed as to do so could harm the frankness and candour of internal discussion.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Carbon Dioxide

Mr. Weir: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what year-on-year projections he has made for the reductions of atmospheric carbon dioxide concentration estimated to result from present and proposed measures. [32162]

Mr. Morley: I have been asked to reply.

As the 2003 Energy White Paper makes clear, UK emissions of CO_2 account for only about 2 per cent. of the global total, and therefore our own actions will only have a detectable impact on atmospheric CO_2 concentrations as part of a concerted international effort. Our policies on emissions are intended to contribute to an emission reduction of 60 per cent. by developed countries by 2050 leading to eventual stabilisation of atmospheric concentrations at below 550 parts per million, provided others take commensurate action.

Correspondence

Clare Short: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry when he will reply to the letter of 18 May from the hon. Member for Birmingham, Ladywood, on behalf of constituent Mike Josypenko regarding planned changes to UK trade and investment support for exporters. [32282]

Ian Pearson: I regret the delay, which was due to an administration error, but a full reply has now been sent.

Digital Broadcasting

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what estimate his Department has made of the number of television sets that will be dumped following digital switchover; what legislation governs locations for recycling; and if he will make a statement. [32198]

Alun Michael: DTI and Defra have commissioned research to model any changes in patterns of waste disposal generated by digital switchover now that the time scale has been determined. Results from this research are expected early in 2006.

A range of facilities recycle waste materials deriving from production processes or from disposal of finished products. These are subject to the various planning and regulatory controls which govern the location and operation of industrial production plants generally. Disposal of television set-top boxes and video recorders will all be subject to intended regulations implementing the Waste Electrical and electronic Equipment Directive which are planned to come into force in June 2006.

International Trade (Women's Participation)

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what steps the UK has taken to facilitate the active participation of women's organisations in international trade decision-making structures; and if he will make a statement. [33091]

Meg Munn: The Government is committed to ensuring gender considerations are mainstreamed in UK and EU trade policy development.

To help achieve this, the Government set up the Gender Expert Group on Trade (GEGT) in early 2004. It is made-up of representatives from women's and development non-governmental organisations (NGOs) and academics to advise the Government on the gender implications of trade policy formulation.

Plumbers

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry (1) how many registered plumbers there have been in each of the last 10 years. [31298]

Alun Michael [holding answer 23 November 2005]: There is no official register of plumbers in the UK as there is no "licence to operate" requirement and I cannot be sure that the following information covers all areas of plumbing. Individual plumbers are employed by firms operating in both the domestic and commercial markets. Depending on the nature of their work and skills level, some would be more appropriately referred to as heating engineers. Especially in the domestic market, many plumbers are self-employed and may operate at a very local, or neighbourhood level.

I understand that the Institute of Plumbing and Heating Engineers has 12,200 active members, covering all categories and including trainees.

There are two main trade associations, The Association of Plumbing and Heating Contractors (England and Wales) has 1,100 registered companies. The Scottish and Northern Ireland Plumbing Employers Federation has 6,500 active plumbers registered with them. The split is roughly NI 2,000; Scotland 4,500.

Telephone Preference Service

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry (1) how many complaints regarding marketing calls have been received by the Information Commissioner from consumers following their registration for the telephone preference service for each year since 1999. [28560]

(2) how many companies have been subject to investigations by the Information Commissioner for breaches of telephone preference service arrangements for each year since 1999. [28561]

Alun Michael: I understand from the Information Commissioner that due to the nature of the casework management system previously used by his office, he is unable to provide specific numbers for telesales complaints prior to 2004, but the annual reports to Parliament each year have provided general figures for complaints and inquiries.

3,040 complaints about the regulations were recorded as dealt with in 2004 (January to December) 597 of which were recorded as relating to phone calls. In 2005 the office has received 4,200 regulations complaints this year, 925 of which relate to phone calls.

Traffic Offences

Susan Kramer: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many people have been convicted for driving while using hand-held mobile telephones since January 2004; and if he will make a statement. [31441]

Fiona Mactaggart: I have been asked to reply.

Motoring offences statistics are part of National Statistics. The pre-announced date for availability of 2004 data is March 2006.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH AFFAIRS

Human Rights (Africa)

13. Mrs. Dorries: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on human rights in Africa. [32400]

Ian Pearson: Improving human rights is key to making Africa successful. That means tackling firmly any abuses, strengthening democratic governance, and addressing the causes of human rights problems, such as conflict and poverty. Africans are taking increasing responsibility for this. We are committed to helping them.

European Union

14. Andrew Selous: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on the Government's priorities for the UK's presidency of the EU. [32401]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: As my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary told this House on 1 November, he set out the work programme for the UK presidency in detail in White Paper Cmnd 6611 presented to this House on 30 June.

We have made progress in a number of areas, including the historic decision to open accession negotiations with Turkey and Croatia on 3 October.

Only last week we achieved significant reform of the EU sugar regime. And we continue to work on a range of issues from the fight against terrorism to the future financing of the EU.

16. Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on the progress of negotiations on the EU budget. [32403]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: EU Foreign Ministers had substantive discussions on the EU budget for 2007–13 at the General Affairs and External Relations Councils on 7 and 21 November. On the basis of these, and other bilateral consultations, we will table comprehensive proposals in early December, and work towards agreement at the European Council on 15–16 December. Significant changes will be needed to the proposals tabled in June if we are to reach agreement.

Cameroon

15. Mr. Chaytor: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions he has had with his counterparts in Cameroon. [32402]

Ian Pearson: Lord Triesman discussed human rights and migration with Dion Ngute, Minister Delegate at the Ministry of External Relations at the Commonwealth Heads of Government Meeting on 24 November. Lord Triesman met the Cameroon high commissioner on 9 November on the issue of migration.

Israel

17. Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent assessment he has made of the effectiveness of the Israeli security fence in combating terrorism. [32404]

Ian Pearson: The number of terrorist and other attacks has fallen in 2005 relative to previous years. A number of factors were responsible, including the barrier. But where, for example, the barrier separates Palestinians from Palestinians we do not believe the route is designed exclusively for security purposes. We continue to urge the Israeli Government to route the barrier on or behind the Green Line.

World Trade

Sir Michael Spicer: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on progress in the Doha round of world trade talks. [32405]

Ian Pearson: The World Trade Organisation ministerial conference in Hong Kong, in less than two weeks time, is vital to successfully concluding the current trade round. Many countries are arguing that too little progress has been made and ambitions for the ministerial conference should be lowered. But the Doha round is an opportunity to tackle some of the most fundamental injustices at the heart of world trade. We must not lower our ambitions.

Cuba

19. Colin Burgon: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what subjects Mr. Caleb McCarry recently discussed with officials of his Department. [32406]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The recent meeting between United States Cuba Transition Coordinator, Caleb McCarry, and officials at the Foreign and Commonwealth Office was an introductory meeting to discuss the breadth of US and UK/EU policy towards Cuba.

Ministers and officials continue to have a wide range of contacts on Cuba. This is in line with the EU's longstanding policy of constructive engagement in pursuit of a peaceful transition to a pluralist democracy.

Dr. Gibson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs which (a) Officials and (b) Ministers the United States Cuba Transition Co-ordinator met when in London recently; and on what dates. [31443]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: On 7 November 2005, the United States Cuba Transition Co-ordinator Caleb McCarry attended a meeting with Officials at the Foreign and Commonwealth Office, chaired by the Deputy Head of the Latin America and Caribbean Department. He did not meet any Ministers during his visit.

Zimbabwe

20. Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on the Government's policy on human rights in Zimbabwe. [32408]

Ian Pearson: Zimbabwe's record is appalling. This year it has denied 700,000 vulnerable Zimbabweans, adequate housing in mass destructions, manipulated elections and continued its assault on unions, civil society and media.

We continue to press for a return to democratic governance. We raise our concerns directly with the Government, maintain EU sanctions on those responsible for human rights abuses, and have put Zimbabwe on the Security Council agenda.

Uganda

22. Mr. Mullin: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations he has made to President Museveni of Uganda following the arrest of the opposition leader Dr. Besigye; and if he will make a statement. [32410]

Ian Pearson: My noble Friend the Minister for Africa, Lord Triesman of Tottenham and my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for International Development met President Museveni on 23 November to press for a transparent and fair civilian trial for Dr. Besigye. My right hon. Friend the Prime Minister also expressed his concerns directly to President Museveni at the Commonwealth Heads of Government Meeting in Malta.

Iran

23. Mrs. Ellman: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the likely effects of Iran's nuclear programme on regional stability. [32411]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The proliferation of weapons of mass destruction in the Middle East would pose a serious threat to regional peace and stability. We remain deeply concerned about the intentions of Iran's nuclear programme. We have called on Iran to resume negotiations on long-term arrangements that would provide objective guarantees that its nuclear programme is for exclusively peaceful purposes.

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent communications his Department has had with India regarding Iran's nuclear development. [32324]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: During the last month, senior officials have been in frequent contact with their Indian opposite numbers over Iran's nuclear programme. We welcome India's support in encouraging Iran to meet the requests made by the International Atomic Energy Agency Board of Governors and to resume talks about a long-term solution on an acceptable basis.

United Nations

24. Jim Sheridan: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on reform of the UN. [32412]

Ian Pearson: The UK strongly supports reform of the UN to make it better equipped to deal with the threats facing the international community.

The reforms and commitments agreed at September's World Summit would, if fully implemented, represent an important step forward for the UN.

The UK will continue to play an active role, as EU president and nationally, in urging progress on implementation.

Cyprus

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will meet the President of the National Federation of Cypriots in the UK; and if he will make a statement. [31447]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The President of the National Federation of Cypriots in the UK, Mr. Sophoclides, has not recently requested a meeting with my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary. The Foreign Secretary regularly meets a range of interlocutors on Cyprus issues, including Mr. Sophoclides, whom he last met in his official capacity in the Foreign and Commonwealth Office in February this year.

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on the recent discussions between his Department and Turkish Cypriot leaders Mr. Talat and Mr. Soyer. [31450]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: My right hon. Friend the Deputy Prime Minister met Mr. Soyer when he visited Cyprus in October and I met Mr. Soyer this month in London. Officials also maintain an open dialogue with representatives of the Turkish Cypriots. UK policy remains to help facilitate a just, viable and lasting settlement for the benefit of all Cypriots. We believe that only by engaging with both communities in Cyprus can we help make progress towards this objective.

The Government maintains its long-standing position of non-recognition of the self-declared "Turkish Republic of Northern Cyprus".

Mr. Burrowes: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when the Minister of State for Europe last met representatives of the Cypriot community in the UK. [32016]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: Ministers and officials maintain a close and extensive dialogue with the Government of the Republic of Cyprus. In addition, Ministers meet regularly with members of the Cypriot community in the UK, in both official and parliamentary capacities. My right hon. Friend the former Foreign and Commonwealth Office Minister of State for Europe (Mr. MacShane), last met representatives of the Cypriot community in March 2005 and I am willing to consider future requests for meetings.

Departmental Estate

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs which buildings and sites used by his Department and related agencies (a) have ceased to be used in the last year and (b) will be closed under current plans for relocation. [31777]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: No buildings and sites have ceased to be used by the Foreign and Commonwealth Office within the UK in the last year. We intend to rationalise our central London estate and move out of our Albert Embankment, London, SE1, and Croydon premises in the next two years.

Departmental Staff

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what plans he has to relocate staff in his Department and related agencies into London and the South East. [31745]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) is implementing the Lyons Review recommendation to relocate 450 FCO jobs out of London, to Hanslope Park, Buckinghamshire, by 2010. We have no plans to relocate jobs from Hanslope Park to London or to other parts of the South East.

Diego Garcia

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many (a) US military personnel and (b) civilian contractors reside in Diego Garcia (i) in total and (ii) broken down by nationality. [32179]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: There are currently 991 US Military personnel and 2347 civilian personnel posted to Diego Garcia. The civilian personnel are broken down as follows:

2,224 Filipinos,

40 Mauritians,

one Singaporean,

seven British,

75 American.

In addition there are 41 British military personnel posted to Diego Garcia.

There is no settled or permanent population on Diego Garcia.

Ethiopia

Kate Hoey: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what factors he took into account when on behalf of the EU under the UK presidency he congratulated Prime Minister Meles of Ethiopia on his re-election. [31644]

Ian Pearson: The EU letter congratulated Prime Minister Meles on his re-election and welcomed the progress towards democracy represented by the May elections. It also urged him to demonstrate that the Opposition parties could play a constructive role in the new Parliament; to free detained activists not charged with any offence; and to conduct a prompt independent inquiry into the killings on 8 June. We are continuing to urge the Government of Ethiopia to take these measures and resume a political dialogue with the Opposition.

EU Council

Mr. Brady: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what options for the improvement of its transparency he will present to the Council of the European Union as part of the UK presidency of the EU; and if he will make a statement. [31619]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The UK presidency has recently tabled a paper setting out options for improving transparency in the Council. A copy of this paper has been sent to the Chair of the European Scrutiny Committee and the Chair of the EU Select Committee. One of these proposals advocates implementing more fully the existing provisions on transparency in the Council Rules of Procedure and the alternative proposes revising those provisions. We have also suggested that supporting measures to facilitate access to the Council's proceedings be considered. These proposals will be taken forward in COREPER (Committee of Permanent Representatives).

Freedom of Information

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many Freedom of Information applications his Department has received; how many have taken more than 20 days to process; and how many of these gave rise to complaints about the time taken. [31211]

Dr. Howells: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) received 830 Freedom of Information (FOI) requests from 1 January 2005, when the Freedom of Information Act 2000 came fully into force, to 30 June 2005, the date to which full monitoring statistics were provided to the Department for Constitutional Affairs (DCA). Of these, 436 were answered within the 20 days specified in the Act; a further 249 received responses within permitted extended deadlines; and the remaining 145 received replies after the permitted deadlines. The FCO has received two complaints on timeliness grounds from the Information Commissioner.

The DCA is committed to publishing quarterly updates in relation to departmental performance under FOI, including information on both the volume and outcomes of requests. The bulletin for the second quarter was published on 30 September 2005 and can be found on the DCA website at http://www.foi.gov.uk/statsapr-jun05.htm and in the Library of the House. The next bulletin will be published before Christmas and an annual report will be published in early 2006.

International Arrest Warrants

Dr. Starkey: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether his Department is considering proposals to amend legislation on international arrest warrants. [31399]

Dr. Howells: This is a matter for the Home Office.

Dr. Starkey: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what meetings (a) he and (b) his Department has (i) had since 11 September and (ii) is planning to have with representatives of the Israeli (A) Ministry of Law, (B) State Attorney Office and (C) Foreign Ministry regarding the arrest warrant for General Almog. [31400]

Dr. Howells: Officials at the Foreign and Commonwealth Office have met twice with officials from the Israeli Government. This includes the Israeli Foreign Ministry, Ministry of Justice and Israeli embassy since 11 September regarding the arrest warrant for General Almog.

Iraq

Sir Menzies Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (1) what assistance the Government is providing to (a) the Iraqi Interim Government and (b) the International Advisory and Monitoring Board to ensure that public funds in Iraq are administered in a transparent manner; [31246]

(2) what the role of the UK is in the Coalition Provisional Authority in Iraq in administering (a) the Development Fund for Iraq and (b) funds from other sources; and if he will make a statement. [31247]

Dr. Howells [holding answer 28 November 2005]: The Coalition Provisional Authority (CPA) ceased operating in Iraq at the end of June 2004, at which point control of the Development Fund for Iraq (DPI) was transferred to the sovereign Government of Iraq. We continue to encourage the transparent management of public funds by the Iraqi Government.

The UK is providing economic technical assistance to the Iraqi Government to improve the transparency and management of public expenditure through reforms to the budget cycle. A team of UK-funded advisers also works closely with the Iraqi Ministry of Finance on essential reforms to the subsidy system which will help to improve transparency in public funds. The UK is also helping to build up the capacity of the Prime Minister's Office, the Iraqi Cabinet Office, the Ministry of Interior, and the southern Provincial Councils. This work is supporting the development of an effective Iraqi civil service which is able to administer public funds in a more accountable way. Earlier this year the National Audit Office hosted a study tour for the Iraqi Supreme Board of Audit to compare current practices. In addition, the UK is encouraging Iraq to sign up to the Extractive Industries Transparency Initiative and to the UN Convention for Anti-Corruption.

The role of the International Advisory and Monitoring Board (IAMB) is to act as an audit oversight body for DPI. Its purpose is to help ensure that the DPI is used in a transparent manner for the benefit of the people of Iraq and that export sales of petroleum, petroleum products, and natural gas from Iraq are consistent with prevailing international market best practices. IAMB membership includes representatives from the International Monetary Fund, World Bank, UN Secretary General's Office, Arab Fund for Economic and Social Development and Iraq's Ministry of Finance. External audits of the IAMB have been carried out by KPMG, The UK is not directly involved with the IAMB.

Libya

Tony Lloyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations he has made in the context of the UK Presidency of the European Union to the Libyan Authorities regarding the situation of the Bulgarian nurses and the Palestinian doctor; and if he will make a statement. [32371]

Dr. Howells [holding answer 28 November 2005]: On behalf of the EU, the UK Presidency issued a statement on 15 November 2005, noting the decision by the Libyan Supreme Court to delay its ruling on the death sentences on the Bulgarian and Palestinian medical staff, expressing our concern about their plight, and that we continue to support efforts to find a resolution, which is acceptable to both parties, to this difficult and longstanding issue. We are engaging with the Libyan and Bulgarian authorities to secure that outcome. At the same time, the UK is working with EU partners to provide humanitarian assistance to alleviate the HIV crisis in Benghazi, including through the EU HIV Action Plan.

Middle East

Mr. Joyce: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the threat posed by Hezbollah to peace and stability in the middle east. [32409]

Ian Pearson: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer I gave today to my hon. Friend the member for Hartlepool (UIN 32395).

Jim Sheridan: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many UK observers will be involved in the EU monitoring of the crossing between Egypt and Gaza at Rafah. [28961]

Dr. Howells: On 15 November, EU Special Representative Javier Solana, US Secretary of State Condoleezza Rice and Quartet Special Envoy James Wolfensohn announced an Agreement between the Israelis and Palestinians on Movement and Access relating to the Gaza Strip. This Agreement will give the Palestinian people more freedom to move and to trade. The EU will act as an on-site Third Party at the Rafah (Gaza-Egypt) crossing and provide training and equipment to the Palestinians.

The UK is sending five personnel to the mission this week commencing (28 November). Members of our embassy in Tel Aviv and our Consulate General in Jerusalem are working directly with General Pistolese's team on the ground. In addition to this, we are providing funding and equipment to the Palestinians, including the provision of five armoured cars.

Richard Burden: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the likely impact on the (a) economic situation and tourist industry of Bethlehem and (b) viability of a future Palestinian state of the creation by Israel of a new checkpoint at Rachel's Tomb. [31508]

Dr. Howells: Bethlehem is of unique religious and cultural significance to Christians. Restrictions on access and freedom of worship there are one of the many negative consequences of the Israeli restrictions on movement in the West Bank and Jerusalem. Israel has a right to protect its citizens from terrorist attacks but it also has a duty to ensure the effect of its security measures on the Palestinian population are minimised. We will continue to raise this concern at all levels with the Israeli Government. In addition to this, we have seconded a senior British Army officer to the region to work with the UN Office for Coordination of Humanitarian Affairs and Quartet Special Envoy James Wolfensohn's team to examine ways of improving freedom of movement in the West Bank.

Checkpoints and the barrier have a serious detrimental effect on the Palestinian economy, including revenues from tourism, and in a few cases on the vision of a future Palestinian state.

Pakistan

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make representations to the Government of Pakistan for (a) a fair trial for Younas Maish in the court of Lahore and (b) protection to be given to the advocate of the defendant and court officials. [32291]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: We were concerned to learn about the apparent misuse of the Blasphemy Law in Pakistan in this case. We are following it closely and are discussing the case with the Government of Pakistan. We will continue to make representations as appropriate.

Public Service Agreement

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when he will publish a public service agreement delivery plan for 2004 public service agreement target number 3. [29943]

Dr. Howells: We do not intend to publish the spending review 04 public service agreement (PSA) delivery plan for 2005–08, as it is an internal business-planning tool. However, the Government regularly reports progress against PSA 3 in departmental annual and autumn performance reports. These reports are publicly available on the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) and other relevant Departments' websites. Details of the measurement systems underpinning the target are published in the PSA 3 technical note, which is also publicly available on the FCO website at www.fco.gov.uk

Royal Family

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will list official visits abroad by members of the Royal Family in the last 12 months; and what the itinerary was in each case. [32733]

Mr. Douglas Alexander [holding answer 28 November 2005]: Details of visits overseas made by Members of the Royal Family appear daily in the Court Circular. Information is also available on the Royal websites at www.royal.gov.uk and www.princeofwales.gov.uk under the diary links. Detailed information is also given in the annual report for The Grant-in-Aid for Royal Travel by Air and Rail which is part of the Royal Public Finances Annual Reports publication. The list my hon. Friend requests is given as follows:

State Visits

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what state visits (a) by Her Majesty the Queen to foreign countries and (b) by foreign heads of state to the UK have been agreed; and what the planned dates of such visits are in each case. [31244]

Dr. Howells: Announcements have already been made concerning Her Majesty the Queen's outward state visits to Malta 23–24 November 2005 and to Singapore 16–18 March 2006.

Proposals and dates for further inward and outward state visits are kept under constant review. It is not our practice to announce such visits until they are firm and the formal invitation has been delivered to the Head of State of the country concerned.

Sudan

Ms Keeble: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the impact of recent events in the Darfur area of Sudan on the prospects for peace in the region. [31048]

Ian Pearson: We remain seriously concerned about the situation in Darfur. Although the African Union (AU) monitoring force has expanded and is increasingly effective, there are reports of tribal clashes as well as skirmishes within the Sudan Liberation army, and ongoing banditry. In his latest report on Darfur, the UN Secretary-General, Kofi Annan, notes that September and October recorded a rise in the number of people being killed. We continue to press the parties to rein in their fighters and to reach a political agreement within the UN Security Council's deadline of the end of the year. We have also made clear that those who are responsible for attacks must be held to account.

It is only through political negotiation that a sustainable solution to the conflict will be found. The AU led talks in Abuja provide a political process and are making steady progress, although there is still a long way to go, particularly given rebel divisions. We are firmly committed to the Abuja process and are pushing for the negotiations to be better structured so as to have maximum impact on the immediate security situation on the ground. We have a UK observer at the talks, to support both the mediation and the parties and to provide technical assistance if needed.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Agicultural Levy Boards

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if she will publish the terms of reference for the investigation into agricultural levy boards. [30486]

Jim Knight: The terms of reference were published on the DEFRA website and laid in the Library of the House when the review of the agricultural and horticultural levy boards was announced on 15 March 2005. They are also reprinted in annex A of the report of the review, published on 11 November 2005.

Bees

Derek Wyatt: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what improvements are planned to the work of the Plant and Invertebrate Ecology Division at Rothamsted Research Station into bee viruses; [26898]

(2) what arrangements are being made for the future preservation of bee viruses held at the Rothamsted Research Station. [27089]

Jim Knight: Rothamsted Research is sponsored by the Biotechnology and Biological Sciences Research Council. It is one of several contractors with whom the Department funds research that supports our bee health policy to control pests and diseases of bees in England. Rothamsted completed a three-year Defra funded project on exotic bee viruses and their interactions under UK conditions in November 2004. While Defra has no current plans to commission further work on bee viruses at the institute, we have made provision for continuing expenditure on research on bee health.

I understand that Rothamsted is considering future arrangements for the preservation of its collection of bee viruses and antisera and for access to this collection.

Mr. Willis: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether she plans to increase the number of bee inspectors; and if she will make a statement. [29283]

Jim Knight: The Bee Health Inspection and Advisory Service of the National Bee Unit undertakes a range of statutory disease control measures and delivers an extensive training programme to beekeepers to help maintain the health of the honey bee population.

The Department has no current plans to increase the size of the Inspectorate in England. Funding on bee health and any changes to the provision of the inspection services will be considered as the Department's expenditure plans are developed for future years.

Mr. Willis: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what plans she has for beekeepers to be required to make their own diagnosis of European foulbrood in their colonies. [29285]

Mr. Bradshaw: The responsibility to ensure the maintenance of a healthy bee population is a shared one between the Department and beekeepers. The National Bee Unit already provides a training programme that aims to help beekeepers become more self-reliant in controlling pests and diseases through improved disease recognition and bee husbandry techniques.

The Department believes that beekeepers can take a greater measure of responsibility for the control of European foulbrood as improved disease control methods are developed. However, as was indicated to the House on 20 October, we will not make changes to the inspection arrangements for European foulbrood unless we are sure that bee health will not suffer as a result.

Biomass and Biofuels

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the division of departmental responsibilities for biomass and biofuels is between the Department of Environment, Food and Rural Affairs, the Department of Trade and Industry and the Department of Transport; and what reallocations of responsibility have occurred in 2005. [30927]

Jim Knight: In common with other policies and issues which are wide-ranging in their impact on the UK, there are a number of Government Departments with an interest in biomass and biofuels. There is strong liaison across the Departments both at ministerial and official level to ensure co-ordinated policy. Defra has responsibility for the role biomass and biofuels can play in sustainable development, climate change, air quality and rural issues. The Department of Trade and Industry is responsible for the overall renewable energy policy, new technology and industry development and sponsorship. The Department for Transport is responsible for transport policy and the promotion of low carbon fuels, including the Biofuels Directive and the Renewable Transport Fuels Obligation. No reallocations of responsibility have occurred in 2005.

Carbon Dioxide Emissions

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) whether the Government are continuing to aim to meet the target to cut carbon dioxide emissions by 20 per cent. by 2010; [30268]

(2) whether the Government plan to cut carbon dioxide emissions by 60 per cent. by 2050. [30269]

Mr. Morley: The manifesto reiterated the Government's commitment to reducing carbon dioxide emissions by 20 per cent. below 1990 levels by 2010 and stated that a 60 per cent. reduction by 2050 remains necessary and achievable.

Combined Heat and Power

Mr. Robathan: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what progress is being made towards achieving the year 2000 target of 5 gigawatts of installed combined heat and power (CHP) capacity in the UK: and what impact she expects the dismantling of the 18 megawatt CHP plant in Bury to have on this target. [31609]

Mr. Morley: The Government target for CHP, announced in 2000, is to achieve at least 10 gigawatts of Good Quality CHP capacity by 2010. Installed capacity at the end of 2004 was 5.6 gigawatts. We have no record of a CHP plant in Bury.

Commons Registration Act

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what guidance she has issued on whether a common registered under the Commons Registration Act 1965 which has consequently been mapped as access land under the Countryside and Rights of Way Act 2000 but which has an Order of Limitation placed on it by way of provisions under section 193 of the Law of Property Act 1925 has full access rights by ways of the Countryside and Rights of Way Act 2000. [31844]

Jim Knight: Section 15 of the Countryside and Right of Way Act 2000 (CROW Act) lists enactments, under which the public has rights of access, including access on foot and higher rights such as horse riding. Where land which falls under these enactments has been mapped as open country or registered common land, the right of access under the CROW Act does not apply because an existing right is in place. Section 193 of the Law of Property Act 1925 is one of the enactments listed in section 15. The right of access under the CROW Act does not therefore apply to land which falls under section 193 of the Law of Property Act 1925 even if that land has an Order of Limitation placed on it.

We have provided public guidance on section 15 in the context of appeals relating to the mapping of open country and registered common land and applications for restrictions and exclusions of the right of access. We have not so far seen a need to provide guidance specifically on those cases where land subject to section 193 of the Law of Property Act 1925 has an Order of Limitation placed on it.

Consultants

Martin Horwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what mechanisms are in place to assess the effectiveness of consultant-led projects in her Department; what sanctions are available to penalise consultants who ran unsuccessful projects; how many projects conducted by consultants were assessed as unsuccessful in each year since 2000; and what sanctions were imposed in each case. [29077]

Jim Knight: The planning, monitoring, control and delivery of projects and programmes in Defra is the responsibility of departmental management, not consultants. External resources are engaged to assist in the successful delivery of these projects and programmes and are subject to a raft of commercial, financial, procurement, technical and project quality assurance and standards. Additionally, OGC's Gateway Review process provides assurance at critical stages of a programme's or project's lifecycle.

Service providers who do not deliver the required services to time, quality and cost are subject to remedies appropriate to the shortcomings identified up to and including, as a last resort, contract termination and pursuit of damages. From information held centrally, the Department is unaware of any projects or programmes that could merit classification as unsuccessful, because the Department's project and contract management procedures act to remedy any emerging difficulties in the planning, monitoring, control and delivery of departmental projects and programmes.

No records are held centrally of sanctions applied within programmes, projects and contracts, and the information could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Martin Horwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps her Department takes to ensure that consultancies do not claim excessive expenses while working for the Department and its agencies. [29078]

Jim Knight: Departmental governance arrangements require that expenses incurred by contractors, including consultancies, while working for the Department and its agencies are subject to validation and substantiation before authorisation for payment. The Department reserves the right to recover any monies overpaid to contractors to which they are not entitled.

Martin Horwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if she will list departmental projects conducted by consultants in each year since 2000; what the cost was in each case; and what the total cost of employing consultants was in each year. [29079]

Jim Knight: Defra came into being in June 2001. Departmental projects are the responsibility of departmental management. A list of departmental projects and their costs each year since 2000 could be provided only at disproportionate cost. On the total cost of employing consultants, a broad and imprecise term, I refer the hon. Member to the answers I gave on 13 June 2005, Official Report, columns 35–36W, and on 21 July 2005, Official Report, columns 1962–63W to my hon. Friend the Member for Great Grimsby (Mr. Mitchell).

Cormorants

Lembit Öpik: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many licences for the culling of cormorants were issued in England in each of the last five years; how many cormorants were killed under licence in England in each year; and if she will make a statement. [31387]

Jim Knight: The information requested is as follows.

Season	Number of licenses granted	Number of birds licensed to be shot	Number of birds shot
2001–02	99	570	189
2002–03	120	603	273
2003–04	146	828	499
2004–05	331	1,996	1,258
2005–06	355	2,302	[1]

[1] Returns due January 2006.

The above table shows statistics from the start of each cormorant season, rather than for specific years.

The numbers given for the 2005 season run to 17 November only.

Correspondence

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when she will reply to the letter from the hon. Member for Coventry, South on the Draper Study on overhead power lines. [31426]

Jim Knight [holding answer 28 November 2005]: There is no record of this letter in the Department. If the hon. Member would like to resubmit this letter I will expedite a prompt reply

Countryside Stewardship Scheme

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what plans she has to continue the Access Management Grant Scheme beyond 2007. [31840]

Jim Knight: The Access Management Grant Scheme was introduced to support access authorities (outside National Parks) in meeting the start-up costs in managing the new right of public access under the Countryside and Rights of Way Act 2000.

The right of access has now been commenced across England, and the Grant Scheme is due to come to an end for access authorities in mapping areas one to five in March 2006, and for remaining authorities in March 2007.

On-going access management, and infrastructure maintenance costs, should be much lower than the initial start-up costs. However, I have asked the Countryside Agency to advise me as to whether there would be any benefit in extending the scheme for a further year. This would allow access authorities to benefit from three years worth of funding. The Agency is currently consulting access authorities and other stakeholders and I hope to make a decision in spring next year.

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when she plans to publish the regulations covering the review of maps of open country and registered commons land produced under section 1 of the Countryside and Rights of Way Act 2000. [31841]

Jim Knight: Section 10 of the Countryside and Right of Way Act 2000 requires the Countryside Agency to review the conclusive maps of open country and registered common land not more than 10 years after the time that each map was first issued and not less frequently than every 10 years thereafter. Before making any regulations covering the review of conclusive maps we need to consider how the review process ought to work. Both Defra and the Countryside Agency are currently undertaking lessons learned exercises and the outcome of these will help inform our decisions on the review process. We aim to undertake consultation on our proposals for the review of conclusive maps during the course of next year.

Deforestation

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what research the Department has commissioned on the environmental consequences of deforestation. [31606]

Mr. Morley: Forests cover 30 to 40 per cent. of the earth's land area and provide several essential ecosystem services. For example, forests act as sinks for the world's terrestrial carbon stores, absorbing the carbon dioxide that is contributing to climate change. Forests are the repository of the great bulk of terrestrial biodiversity; regulate water cycles; maintain soil quality and reduce the risks of natural disasters such as floods.

There is a vast amount of existing research on the environmental impacts of deforestation which guides UK policy. The UK Government remains in regular discussions with a number of international organisations that undertake significant forestry research such as the UN's Food and Agricultural Organisation (FAO), as well as spending about £20 million a year on forestry through country programmes and centrally funded research.

Defra is engaged in several areas. For example under Defra's contract with the Hadley Centre for Climate Prediction and Research, Defra has commissioned work on the consequences of deforestation for the climate at local, regional and global scales. Defra also funds a range of forestry projects under the Darwin Initiative which helps developing countries to monitor biodiversity impacts and build capacity for conservation.

Departmental Finance

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the real terms percentage increase in allocated resources for her Department (a) was for the period 1997–98 to 2004–05 and (b) is estimated to be between 2005–06 and 2007–08 (i) for each period and (ii) for each year. [31037]

Jim Knight: Defra was only created in July 2001, therefore in the following table is the information requested based upon the Defra 2005 Departmental Report for the period 2001–02 onwards.

	Allocated resources (£ million)	GDP deflator	(a) Real term resources in 2004–05 prices (£ million)	(b)(i) Percentage increase per period	(b)(ii) Percentage increase per year
2001–02	2,763	92.454	2,989		—
2002–03	2,876	95.391	3,015	14.30	0.88
2003–04	2,965	97.92	3,028		0.43
2004–05	3,416	100	3,416		12.81
2005–06[1]	3,358	102.501	3,276		-4.10
2006–07	3,560	105.268	3,382	3.48	3.23
2007–08	3,665	108.11	3,390		0.24

[1] Forecast for years 2005–06 to 2007–08, derived from HM Treasury forecasts for GDP deflator increases as per the Budget Report 2005.

Departmental Staff

Mr. Michael Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many of her Department's staff have moved to Worcester from London since 1997. [30609]

Jim Knight: Defra was created in June 2001 and since that date 10 members of staff have transferred from London to Worcester with funding assistance from the Department.

Departmental Transport

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what representations her Department, and its local departmental offices, have received on parking on local roads by her Department's staff and IBM contractors at her Department's offices in Epsom Road, Merrow, Guildford. [30369]

Jim Knight: Defra has received representations from local residents residing in Down Road, Daryngton Drive, Carroll Avenue, Gateways, Broadwater Rise, Pitt Farm Road.

Representations have also been received from the local constabulary, and from the local authority community safety officer.

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps officials located in departmental offices in Epsom Road, Merrow, Guildford are taking to minimise the environmental and adverse impact of car parking by staff and contractors in Down Road and other nearby roads. [30370]

Jim Knight: The Department is giving priority to developing a joint travel plan that will apply to staff and external contractors.

Endangered Flora and Fauna

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what her most recent assessment is of the most endangered species of (a) flora and (b) fauna in Staffordshire; and what steps are being taken to reverse their decline. [32034]

Jim Knight: The Staffordshire Biodiversity Action Plan provides an assessment of the flora and fauna of high nature conservation value in Staffordshire and is subject to regular review. In addition the Staffordshire Ecological Record Centre is able to provide the latest information on many species of conservation concern.

Over the latter half of the last century, there has been a general decline in the area and quality of wildlife habitats in Staffordshire and their associated species of flora and fauna. A number of measures are in place to address these issues. The Staffordshire Biodiversity Action Plan contains plans for 15 habitats, 23 species of fauna and six species of flora. It has identified priority actions and targets, such as restoring 800 ha of heathland by 2010. Staffordshire also contains 64 statutorily protected sites of special scientific interest (SSSI), covering 9,228 hectares, which have been notified by English Nature to protect the best of Staffordshire's wildlife resource.

At the national level, action is being taken to protect and enhance our biodiversity such as the roll-out of the new higher level and entry level agri-environment schemes; the recent publication of Planning Policy Statement 9 on Biodiversity and Geological Conservation and the proposed biodiversity duty within the Natural Environment and Rural Communities Bill which places a duty on all public bodies to have regard to the purpose of conserving biodiversity.

English Wine

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what support she provides for English wine producers. [30954]

Jim Knight: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 11 July 2005, Official Report, column 646W. Since that reply the UK has been serving British food and drink, including English wines at the regular Council meetings during the UK Presidency of the EU. We will continue to do so for the remaining period of our Presidency.

Environment Agency (Fuel Switching Coordinator)

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when the position of fuel switching coordinator was created at the Environment Agency; and what actions her Department took to inform energy intensive users of this appointment. [32318]

Mr. Morley [holding answer 28 November 2005]: The Environment Agency tasked a member of staff with this role on 12 October 2005. His appointment, name and contact details were communicated by ofgem to their Demand Side Management Group (DMSMG) at a meeting on 13 October 2005. The DSMG includes British Energy, MEUC, Shell, British Gas Business, Centrica Energy, Total, National Grid, APX, Chemicals Industries Association and GdF.

The Environment Agency subsequently contacted electricity producers and briefed Trade Associations at routine bilateral meetings.

EU Emissions Trading Scheme

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what proposals her Department has considered for derogation from emissions limits under the EU Emissions Trading Scheme for energy intensive users in the event of (a) gas shortages and (b) sustained high gas prices this winter. [32319]

Mr. Morley [holding answer 28 November 2005]: The EU Emissions Trading Scheme is a cost-effective and efficient way of reducing carbon dioxide emissions, which allows industry to achieve emissions reduction targets at the point of least cost. In the event of temporary tightness in the gas supply market there is no limit on fuel switching and the carbon market provides industry with the flexibility to source further allowances if energy intensive users exceed their emissions cap.

Farming

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what tests have been applied to applications for the 2005 single farm payment scheme in England to ensure that the applicants are in legal occupation of the holdings used for their claim. [29788]

Jim Knight [holding answer 29 November 2005]: There is no requirement in the European Regulations governing the Single Payment Scheme that the farmer claiming aid has to be in legal occupation of the land supporting the claim. However, to receive payment the farmer must carry out an agricultural activity or maintain the land in good agricultural or environmental condition and the land has to be at the farmer's disposal for 10 months of the year between prescribed dates. Compliance monitoring inspections, including checks on the 10 month provision, are undertaken on a proportion of claims. Where two or more claims are made on the same land parcel claims will be investigated and resolved.

Mr. Paice: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs in what circumstances action taken by a farmer prior to the Mid-Term Review is deemed to be a breach of cross-compliance. [32877]

Jim Knight: Cross compliance came into force on 1 January 2005 following an extensive period of discussion and consultation with stakeholders. The requirements are based on existing law and good farming practices. Farmers choosing to claim the single payment confirm that they are aware of, and are meeting the standards as part of their application. A breach of the relevant requirements on or after that date will be regarded as a non-compliance and will be assessed for a penalty as required by the EC Regulations. Breaches which commenced prior to the introduction of cross compliance and are continuing, through an act or omission of the farmer, into 2005, will also be assessed for a penalty. If farmers have concerns about penalties for breaches committed prior to cross compliance coming into force, we would urge them to contact the Rural Payments Agency.

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what discussions she has had with the Chancellor of the Exchequer on proposals to increase the budget of the Hill Farming Allowance Scheme to preserve the public benefit from upland farming. [29731]

Jim Knight: The current Hill Farm Allowance is part of the England Rural Development Programme for 2000–06, which implements the rural development elements of the common agricultural policy, using a combination of EU and national funding. The EU budget for rural development for the next programming period (2007–13), and the EU funds available in England, will depend on the outcome of the current EU future financing negotiations.

Decisions on whether to implement the specific EU measure which applies to the less favoured areas, and if so how much of the available funding will be allocated specifically to hill farming, and in what form, will be taken as part of the preparation of the next rural development programme for England, and in the light of responses to a forthcoming consultation. The usual discussions between Departments with an interest will take place as part of that process. My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State made clear in her announcement on the Single Payment Scheme on 22 April that we would consider how the next round of rural development programming can better reflect the needs of upland communities, and the public interest in good management of some of our best-loved landscapes.

Greenhouse Gases

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the answer of 8 November 2005, Official Report, columns 321–22W, on greenhouse gases, if she will publish a further table using the published provisional 2004 figures as the most recent available. [31157]

Mr. Morley: The table shows projected UK greenhouse gas (GHG) emissions and percentage reductions during the commitment period obtained by assuming that the linear trend in emissions of the last (a) five years, (b) four years, (c) three years, (d) two years and (e) one year continue, based on the most recent published UK Greenhouse Gas Inventory data, which cover the period 1990 to 2003 and using the provisional 2004 estimate.

In the Government's view the provisional estimate for 2004 is very unsuitable for the analysis requested. This is because, under the calculation method proposed, the additional uncertainty (+/-1%) associated with the final provisional data point enters in to all the estimates and is magnified by the projection process to form an uncertainty of between +7–2 and of +/-6 percentage points over the Kyoto commitment period.

In addition, in comparison with the results already presented, the difference in projected percentage reduction due to shifting the base year of projection from 2003 inventory data to 2004 provisional estimates ranges between 1 and 12 percentage points.

	Projections based on trend back (years)	Average UK GHG emission 2008–12 (MtC)	Reduction from Kyoto Protocol base year emissions (percentage)
(a)	Five	180.1 (+7–3.9)	-12.1 (+7–1.9)
(b)	Four	180.9 (+7–4.5)	-11.8 (+7–2.2)
(c)	Three	175.2 (+7–5.4)	-14.6 (+7–2.6)
(d)	Two	189.7 (+7–7.2)	-7.5 (+7–3. 5)
(e)	One	188.9 (+7–12.5)	-7.9 (+7–6.1)

Projections based purely on extrapolation from past data are inherently unsound, particularly where the record is very short in duration. Neither this set of projections, nor the set published in the reply given on 8 November, takes specific account of expectations about the future of energy supply, economic activity, fuel prices, sectoral trends and effects of policy measures and for this reason they are not a sound basis for judging whether the UK will meet its commitments under the Kyoto Protocol.

Home Energy Conservation

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps she has taken to review guidelines on the Home Energy Conservation Act 1995. [30144]

Mr. Morley: We are currently in the process of drawing-up, with the key stakeholders, the terms of reference to a review of the guidance issued to energy conservation authorities in England on compliance with the Home Energy Conservation Act 1995.

Household Waste

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what percentage of household waste to be recycled or composted she would accept as further improvement by 2008 for the purposes of measuring achievement against 2004 public service agreement target 6. [30433]

Jim Knight: The Department recently launched a consultation on options for local authority statutory performance standards on recycling and composting in 2007–08. The Government's preferred option would deliver a national recycling and composting rate of approximately 28.5 per cent. in 2007–08. This would put England on course to meet the national recycling and composting target of 30 per cent. by 2010 as set out in Waste Strategy 2000.

Hunting

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what her policy is on the use of scents for (a) drag and (b) trail hunting on Forestry Commission land; and if she will make a statement. [31791]

Jim Knight: The Forestry Commission has entered a Drag Hunting Agreement for one season with the Master of Foxhounds Association (MFHA). This sets out the terms on which their member hunts can apply to the Forestry Commission for a specific licence to drag hunt. The terms are identical to those agreed with the Master of Bloodhounds and Draghounds Association (MBDA) who have operated on the public forest estate for a number of years. The MBDA code of conduct on scents is included in the MFHA Agreement as follows:

> "The scent used must be artificial and may be chemical or animal based. The scent used should not be easily confused by the hounds with a wild mammal. Under no circumstances should a carcass or part of one, the hunting of which is illegal, be used as the scent."

Land Maps

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate she has made of the number of farmers and landowners who have failed to provide maps for parcels of land. [30792]

Jim Knight: Following initial validation of the Single Payment Scheme claims the Rural Payments Agency has requested maps from some 13,000 claimants of which 6,000 have been received.

National Minimum Wage

Ms Katy Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many employees in her Department were affected by the rise in the national minimum wage on 1 October 2005. [28882]

Jim Knight: Seven staff in the Centre for Environment, Fisheries and Aquaculture Science (CEFAS), an Executive agency of DEFRA, received an increase to their salaries on 1 October 2005, pending the application of the CEFAS 2005 pay award (applicable from 1 April 2005), which will take the lowest pay band minima in the agency above the national minimum wage.

Pesticides

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the answer of 12 September 2005, Official Report, columns 2313–14W, on pesticides, if she will express the quantities used in each year in terms of volume. [30952]

Mr. Morley: Details of the volume of pesticide applied are only kept for those products which have a liquid formulation. Details of the volumes of such products applied since 1990, when our records began, are as follows:

million

	Litres
	Volume of active substance	Volume of product
1990	24.5	40.4
1991	24.8	40.8
1992	28.6	46.3
1993	30.7	50.0
1994	32.5	51.2
1995	33.9	52.4
1996	35.7	55.4
1997	35.6	56.0
1998	35.5	57.3
1999	35.2	57.3
2000	32.9	54.8
2001	32.8	54.7
2002	30.9	51.8
2003	30.6	51.5
2004	31.1	54.0

Pesticides which are not formulated as liquid formulations such as powders or granules are not recorded in these figures.

Predictive Diallers

John Hemming: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many calls were made from call centres in her Department in 2004–05 using predictive diallers; how many such calls resulted in contact being made with the recipient without a Government agent available to talk to them; and what assessment she has made of the likely impact of Ofcom's policy on silent calls on the use of predictive diallers in departmental call centres. [28170]

Jim Knight: Defra does not use predictive diallers.

Public Service Agreement

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether the data required to measure the sharing of risk management with industry for the purposes of measuring performance against 2004 public service agreement target 1 are available to her. [30292]

Jim Knight: Progress towards achieving the public service agreement target 1 is evaluated annually using the set of 68 UK sustainable development strategy indicators. Specific indicators relating to the impacts of industry are:

Carbon dioxide emissions by end user (including industry)

Manufacturing sector carbon dioxide, nitrogen oxides, sulphur dioxides and particulates

Water abstractions in total

Waste arisings from industry and commerce

Resource use as measured by domestic material consumption.

The indicators were published in June 2005 in "Sustainable development indicators in your pocket 2005", copies of which were sent to all Members of Parliament. Copies were also placed in the Library of the House. The indicators are also available via the UK Government's sustainable development website:

www.sustainable-development.gov.uk

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what time scale she has set for achievement of 2004 public service agreement target 6. [30294]

Jim Knight: As set out in DEFRA's PSA target 6, Government are committed to enable at least 25 per cent. of household waste to be recycled or composted by 2005–06, with further improvements by 2008.

Red Squirrels

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the red squirrel population is estimated to be in Northamptonshire. [30854]

Jim Knight: There are no red squirrel populations in Northamptonshire. This native species is in serious decline as a result of habitat fragmentation and the spread of the grey squirrel. Conservation effort is focused on protecting large areas of coniferous woodland (mainly in northern England) that have no grey squirrels and can be defended against their incursion.

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate she has made of the red squirrel population in Staffordshire. [32028]

Jim Knight: Red squirrels are known to have survived in some parts of Staffordshire until the 1980s and the last population recorded was in the Forestry Commission's Cannock Forest. The last red squirrel sighting in Staffordshire was a road casualty in Cannock Forest in 1990. A study in the early 1990s, which concluded in 1996, failed to record any red squirrels.

Rural Payments Agency

Mr. Paice: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) if she will publish all the guidance and instruction given to Rural Payments Agency inspectors for the enforcement of the rules on cross-compliance; [31860]

(2) what targets have been set for Rural Payments Agency inspectors checking cross-compliance. [32876]

Jim Knight [holding answer 29 November 2005]: The Rural Payments Agency (RPA) has a legislative requirement to carry out checks on at least one percent of all farmers submitting aid applications under support schemes as established in Titles III and IV of Regulation (EC) 1782/2003.

There is no target set for inspectors finding problems on cross compliance inspections. They carry out inspections and are asked to report what they observe in accordance with the Guidance for Cross Compliance Inspectors and Penalty Reduction Matrices.

RPA is currently in the process of publishing all its current Guidance for Cross Compliance Inspectors and Penalty Reduction Matrices on its website www.rpa.gov.uk and on request from RPA.

The Penalty Reduction Matrices will also be published in the Cross Compliance Handbook for England 2006 edition which will be circulated to single payment scheme applicants in December 2005.

RPA and devolved Administrations have worked closely to bring about shared ownership of these documents and a common approach across the UK where there are similar cross compliance standards.

Single Farm Payment

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the target date is for the commencement of the single farm payment; and if she will consider paying interest on late payments where the delay is caused by her Department. [30877]

Jim Knight [holding answer 22 November 2005]: The Rural Payments Agency is still working towards a target date of starting payments in February. The regulatory payment deadline is 30 June and consideration would not be given to paying interest before that time.

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many farmers have yet to submit maps in relation to applications for single payments. [29911]

Jim Knight: Following the initial validation of the Single Payment Scheme claims the Rural Payment Agency has requested maps from some 13,000 claimants of which 6,000 have been received.

Snares

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if she will take steps to ensure that the contract to survey the use of snares will be subject to an open tender process. [30492]

Jim Knight: Defra published a Snares Action Plan on 19 October 2005 in response to the report by the Independent Snares Working Group. The action plan sets out the next steps during the next three years, which includes a review of the priorities for wildlife management research. Further information may be found on www.defra.gov.uk/wildlife-countryside/vertebrates/snares/index.htm.

A review of the whole of Defra's wildlife management research programme will be undertaken in February 2006. It will consider all future research priorities across the programme, including a survey of the use of snares and whether it will be subject to an open tender process.

Suckler Cow Production

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment has been made of (a) the future of suckler cow production in upland farms and (b) consequential environmental change as a result of the impact of the Single Farm Payment on this sector. [29733]

Jim Knight: Prior to the implementation of the latest round of CAP reform and the introduction of the Single Payment Scheme, my Department commissioned assessments on possible impacts of decoupling on a range of sectors, including suckler cows in the uplands. These suggest that suckler cow production is expected to decrease as a result of CAP reform.

Assessments have also been made on possible environmental impacts which reveal that grazing by cattle plays an important role in the maintenance of heather moor land, an important habitat for biodiversity. It is for this reason my officials have submitted to the European Commission for approval, the inclusion of payments within the Environmental Stewardship schemes to provide incentives for appropriate cattle grazing in the uplands.

All of these assessments are, understandably, speculative and the agricultural and environmental impacts of the Single Payment Scheme will depend on a range of factors—not least the response of suckler beef farmers in their individual businesses. It is therefore too soon to predict categorically what the impacts will be.

Urban Gulls

Steve Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment she has made of the problems caused by urban gulls; and if she will commission research into the breeding patterns of such gulls. [32021]

Jim Knight: DEFRA recognises the problems which can be caused by an increasing urban gull population. It is for this reason that my Department issues a general licence under section 16 of the Wildlife and Countryside Act 1981 to allow the control of certain species of gulls by local authorities and other authorised persons where they are a threat to public health and safety. These birds include the following species of gulls—lesser black-backed gull, greater black-backed gull and the herring gull. However, licences cannot be issued to control gulls where they are merely causing a nuisance and to do so would be in breach of the EU Birds Directive.

DEFRA is in regular contact with the Central Science Laboratory (CSL) and has recently been provided with a preliminary evaluation of the issues involved and current state of knowledge on the problems caused by gulls. The CSL are also conducting research, although not commissioned by DEFRA, into the impact of waste management facilities as a food source for gull populations and also the problem of bird-strikes on aircraft.

Warm Front Scheme

Paddy Tipping: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many households in the Nottinghamshire constituency have received assistance under the Warm Front Scheme in each year since its introduction. [29328]

Mr. Morley [holding answer 29 November 2005]: Between the launch of the Warm Front Scheme in June 2000 and the 31 March 2005, the numbers of households assisted in Sherwood for each year are:

Period	Number of households assisted
2000–01	185
2001–02	822
2002–03	547
2003–04	483
2004–05	531
Total	2,568

The numbers of households assisted in the Nottinghamshire area for each year are:

Period	Number of households assisted
2000–01	2,657
2001–02	11,413
2002–03	5,761
2003–04	4,589
2004–05	5,273
Total	29,693

Water Consumption

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what measures are being taken to reduce water consumption. [31605]

Mr. Morley: The promotion of greater water efficiency particularly in households is a key priority for Defra. In order to give this work appropriate priority I have established a Water Saving Group (WSG) to identify practical ways in which Defra can work with ODPM, OfWat, the Environment Agency, water companies and other bodies in order to encourage the efficient use of water in households.

The Government also supports a number of programmes to further sustainable water use within the business sector, such as Envirowise and the Enhanced Capital Allowance scheme for designated water efficient technologies.

Regulations set standards for the amount of water use in certain water fittings and Defra is currently exploring the feasibility of introducing a voluntary labelling scheme for water efficient products.

Water companies carry out a range of activities under their statutory duty to promote the efficient use of water by their customers. They also recognise the need to give greater priority to this work area and have established waterwise as an independent organisation to enhance water efficiency activities.

Wildlife and Countryside Act

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many prosecutions have taken place under the Wildlife and Countryside Act 1981; and if she will make a statement. [32801]

Jim Knight: There are no specific data available for prosecutions brought for offences under Part 1 of the Wildlife and Countryside Act 1981. The only figures available relate to the number of defendants proceeded against at magistrates' courts for offences under the categories of Cruelty to Animals and Wild Bird Protection Acts, which may include offences under the Wildlife and Countryside Act 1981. These data can be found through the following link;

SOLICITOR-GENERAL

Army Prosecution Authority

Mr. Robathan: To ask the Solicitor-General if the Attorney-General will make a statement on his (a) responsibility for and (b) role in general superintendence of the Army Prosecution Authority.[32427]

The Solicitor-General: A paper on the Attorney-General's ministerial superintendence of the Army Prosecuting Authority was placed in the Libraries of both Houses on 14 June 2004.

Crown Prosecution Service

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Solicitor-General what proportion of cases handled by the Crown Prosecution Service in Northamptonshire were abandoned (a) for evidential reasons, (b) for public interest reasons, (c) because the prosecution was unable to proceed and (d) for other reasons in the last year for which figures are available. [32048]

The Solicitor-General: During the year ending September 2005 the number and proportion of prosecutions stopped by the CPS in Northamptonshire was as follows:

	Number	Percentage
Evidential reasons	702	5.6
Public interest reasons	624	5
Prosecution unable to proceed	306	2.5
Other reasons	152	1.2
Total	1,784	14.3

Lynne Jones: To ask the Solicitor-General whether, in coming to the decision not to prosecute Babar Ahmad, the Crown Prosecution Service asked the United States authorities to provide the evidence upon which they were basing the request for extradition. [32118]

The Solicitor-General: At the time of making the decision not to prosecute Babar Ahmed, the Crown Prosecution Service was aware of the nature of the evidence in the possession of the United States authorities.

Mr. Maples: To ask the Solicitor-General how many cases Warwickshire Crown Prosecution Service has (a) considered for prosecution and (b) prosecuted in each of the last five years; and how many convictions were obtained in each of those years. [32511]

The Solicitor-General: Crown Prosecution Service case outcomes are measured in relation to the number of cases completed, rather than the number considered. The following table shows the number completed in Warwickshire in each of the last five financial years and, of this total, the number in which a prosecution proceeded to trial or guilty plea, and the number resulting in a conviction. The table also shows the number of cases which resulted in an early termination, and the number which resulted in acquittal after trial.

Departmental Staff

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Solicitor-General what assessment he has made of the (a) literacy and (b) numeracy skills of new recruits to the Law Officers' departments. [20998]

The Solicitor-General: New recruits are required to meet a level of skills, knowledge and experience appropriate to the post. Specific assessments are made of literacy and numeracy skills only if the job requires a particular level of expertise which cannot be otherwise demonstrated by the candidate.

Iraq

Mr. Robathan: To ask the Solicitor-General on how many occasions the Attorney-General has taken a decision on whether to prosecute cases relating to personnel serving in Iraq. [32426]

The Solicitor-General [holding answer 28 November 2005]: None.

TRANSPORT

A21

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what plans he has to hold public consultations on the proposed A21 upgrade other than in Hurst Green, East Sussex. [32693]

Dr. Ladyman: Public consultation on the proposed upgrade of the A21 from Pembury to Hastings was carried out in 2002–03. The consultation included specific proposals for the Tonbridge to Pembury and Kippings Cross to Lamberhurst sections. East Sussex county council held consultation during February/March 2004 for their Bexhill to Hastings Link Road, which included the Highways Agency's proposals for the A21 Baldslow Link. The proposals for upgrading the remainder of the A21, Lamberhurst to Flimwell and Robertsbridge to Hastings, will be reviewed in the light of progress on the Flimwell to Robertsbridge Improvement.

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what plans he has to hold public consultations on the proposed Bexhill to Hastings link road in East Sussex. [32692]

Dr. Ladyman: Public consultations on the Bexhill to Hastings link road are a matter for East Sussex county council, as the local highway authority promoting the scheme.

Airport Policing

Jim Cousins: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to his written statement of 21 November 2005, Official Report, column 98WS, on policing airports, whether Newcastle airport will be included in the wide-ranging review he has announced; and what the criteria are for airport designation under section 25 of the Aviation Security Act 1982. [32434]

Ms Buck: The review will look at policing at airports generally. It will consider the appropriateness of the current system of designation, including the criteria that might be applied, as well as possible alternative options.

Crown Land

Mr. George Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what his policy is on authorising the compulsory purchase of third party interest in Crown land for which he is responsible. [27937]

Dr. Ladyman: The Secretary of State's consideration of authorising compulsory purchase of third party interests in Crown land is a statutory, not policy, one. When considering whether to authorise such compulsory purchase, in an order submitted by a local highway authority for which he is confirming authority, the Secretary of State will consider the merits of the proposals including the acquisition of third party interests in Crown land and take into account any objections from those affected by the proposals. In reaching a decision he will take into account the guidance given by the Deputy Prime Minister in circular 6/2004. Similar considerations will be applied when a compulsory purchase order is promoted by the Secretary of State and a decision is taken whether the order should be made.

Cycling

Mr. George Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many times he has met representatives of the cycling community over the past

12 months; where these meetings took place; and if he will place copies of the minutes of these meetings in the Library. [26523]

Derek Twigg: Department for Transport Ministers have had a number of meetings with representatives of the cycling community over the last year, including several at Great Minster House with Phillip Darnton, the Chairman of Cycling England. Ministers have also made a number of visits around the country to cycling facilities and meetings with local cycling interests. Minutes of these meetings are for internal records only.

General Development Order 1995

Jim Cousins: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many Article 14 directions under the 1995 General Development Order have been served in each region of England in each year since 1999; and if he will list all such directions and their location in respect of the north-east region since 1 April 1999. [31573]

Dr. Ladyman [holding answer 24 November 2005]: An Article 14 direction is any type of response given by the Secretary of State for Transport to a planning application, be it refusal, conditions, advice, holding direction or consent.

The current database for monitoring Article 14 directions does not allow this type of information to be collated by region. Over England as a whole, the information requested is as follows for the last financial year:

	2004–05
Planning application consultations received	3,733
Directions of refusal	79
Directions of conditions	137
Directions of restrictions on grant of permission	72

Note:
Data for earlier years are not available centrally.

A specific analysis of planning applications has been carried out for the Highways Agency's Maintenance Area 14 (which generally corresponds to the north-east region). This shows that over the period 18 August 2003 to 23 November 2005, there were 394 planning applications. Directions of refusal were given in five cases as follows. In each case the direction of refusal was given on road safety grounds:

23 February 2004—Northallerton Construction of cattery

5 May 2004—Stockton Road, Seaham, free-standing trailer signs

26 November 2004—The Old Mill, Elwick, New dwelling and garage

23 June 2005—The Old Mill, Elwick, New dwelling and garage

4 August 2005—Blenkinsopp Castle, Greenhead, new self-catering visitors block

The Department is currently improving existing monitoring systems so that a full regional analysis can be provided in future.

Greater Western Franchise

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when the successful bidder for the new Greater Western Franchise will be announced. [32087]

Derek Twigg: The Department plans to announce the successful bidder for the Greater Western Franchise in December 2005.

Merseytram

Mr. George Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) what assessment he has made of the level of contingency funding needed to underpin the construction of the Merseytram Line 1; and if he will place copies of the papers relating to that assessment in the Library; [25644]

(2) what assessment his Department has made of the contingency requirements for the construction costs of Merseytram Line 1; when these assessments were carried out; what the results of these assessments were; and if he will place copies in the Library. [26513]

Derek Twigg: Before giving the scheme provisional approval in 2002, the Department commissioned an audit of the project costs. No further audit has been undertaken since then.

The Department made it clear in December 2002 that our contribution was capped at £170 million. Any contingency for funding above this level was for the promoters to assess and to fund.

Merseytravel submitted a final bid for Merseytram Line 1 in November 2004, and further advised on the costs in May 2005. In considering Merseytravel's bid, the Department considered whether the scheme offered value for money, taking into account the total costs of the scheme, including an allowance for risk. For this purpose, the Department took Merseytravel's estimate of the cost of the scheme, including Merseytravel's proposed contingency provision and 6 per cent. optimism bias uplift. The Department considered that the 6 per cent. optimism bias uplift would probably be reasonable at the point of contract signing, but also considered the impact of a 15 per cent. uplift on the benefit cost ratio.

Following that consideration, the Secretary of State announced on 13 June that the Government would not increase its funding for the scheme, but that £170 million remained available if the scheme could be delivered for that cost. It has been for the promoters to consider what contingency funding they need in the light of that statement.

Mrs. Ellman: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what advice he has given to (a) Merseyside local authorities and (b) Merseytravel on the commitments they are required to make to enable the Merseytram project to proceed; and when this advice was given. [26249]

Derek Twigg [holding answer 8 November 2005]: Since the project was first approved, the Department has provided clear advice to the Merseyside authorities that the Department's contribution to Merseytram was capped at £170 million. All costs above this level would have to be met from local sources and that appropriate assurances would be needed from authorities contributing to the costs of the scheme.

Motor Vehicle Accidents

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many deaths from motor vehicle accidents on private land there were in each year for which records are available. [32322]

Dr. Ladyman: The information requested is not available.

Railways

Mr. George Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when he will publish the consultation on draft guidance relating to the proposed new Railways Closures Procedures introduced by the Railways Act 2005; and when he expects those procedures to be in force. [27935]

Derek Twigg: We expect to consult on the closure guidance shortly. The guidance will come into force after the consultation and consideration of comments received is completed.

Rolling Stock

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many train sets were ordered from United Kingdom companies that assemble train sets in the United Kingdom in each year between 1994 and 2004; and what the projected number of orders for train sets from those companies is for each year between 2005 and 2010. [29030]

Derek Twigg: Bombardier is now the only manufacturer who builds/assembles train sets in the United Kingdom. Alstom previously built trains in the United Kingdom at Washwood Heath, Birmingham until it made a decision to close its facilities in the UK.

Following is the number of vehicles ordered since rail privatisation which were built or assembled in the UK.

Year of order	Number of vehicles
Bombardier
1996	12
1997	338
1998	595
1999	33
2000	121
2001	257
2002	876
2003	42
2004	—
Alstom
1997	120
1998	294
1999	507

There are currently no orders placed with these companies for the period 2005 to 2010. However there will be a competitive procurement process for the replacement of high speed trains in due course.

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many (a) new and (b) old train sets were procured for the United Kingdom in each year between 1994 and 2004, broken down by nationality of provider; and what the estimated numbers are in each year between 2005 and 2010. [29031]

Derek Twigg: The following table sets out the number of new vehicles ordered since rail privatisation, up until 2005. We do not have information for 1994 or 1995.

Manufacturer nationality and order by vehicles each year

	Bombardier (Canadian)—UK site	Siemens (German)	Alstom (French)	CAF/Siemens (Spanish/German)	Hitachi (Japanese)
1996	12	—	—	—	—
1997	338	—	120	—	—
1998	595	—	294	48	—
1999	33	—	507	—	—
2000	121	—	—	8	—
2001	257	869	—	—	—
2002	1,003	—	—	8	—
2003	42	153	—	—	—
2004	—	—	—	—	—
2005	—	—	—	—	168

There will be a replacement of high speed train's in due course, for which there will be a competitive procurement process.

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will list the rolling stock manufacturers in the United Kingdom in each year between 1994 and 2004; and what the (a) location of production facilities, (b) number of orders and (c) number of employees was for each manufacturer for each year. [29032]

Derek Twigg: We do not have information for 1994 or 1995. The following table provides the information requested from 1996.

Number of orders by manufacturer and location of build

	Bombardier (Canadian)[1]	Siemens (German)[2]	Alstom (French)[3]	CAF/Siemens (Spanish/German)[4]
1996	1	—	—	—
1997	3	—	1	—
1998	10	—	4	1
1999	3	—	2	—
2000	2	—	—	1
2001	3	2	—	—

Number of orders by manufacturer and location of build

	Bombardier (Canadian)[1]	Siemens (German)[2]	Alstom (French)[3]	CAF/Siemens (Spanish/German)[4]
2002	5	—	—	1
2003	1	1	—	—
2004	—	—	—	—

[1] Bombardier vehicles built or assembled in the UK (Derby) with the exception of 127 Meridians built in Brugge.
[2] Siemens vehicles are all being built in Germany/Austria site.
[3] Alstom build all their vehicles at Washwood Heath, Birmingham.
[4] These vehicles were built in Spain.

The number of staff employed by each manufacturer is a matter for those companies and is not recorded by the Department.

South-West Regional Planning Assessment

Alison Seabeck: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when he expects the South West Regional Planning Assessment to start; and which organisations will be consulted. [30626]

Derek Twigg: No decision has yet been made about when the consultation for the South West Regional Planning Assessment (RPA) will begin. As with all RPAs, it will be developed through extensive discussion and consultation with regional and local bodies. These include the county councils, unitary authorities and regional planning bodies.

Speed Cameras

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what estimate he has made of the regression to the mean effect on the statistics relating to the number of accidents on roads with speed cameras. [31464]

Dr. Ladyman: Independent academics are looking at regression to the mean as part of the fourth year evaluation report on the National Safety Camera Programme. Their report is in preparation and is expected to be completed shortly.

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much and what percentage of spending by safety camera partnerships was on camera operations and related road traffic injury prevention in each year between 1994 and 2004. [31470]

Dr. Ladyman: All expenditure reclaimed by safety camera partnerships has to be directly related to speed and red light camera enforcement. The following table shows the fine receipts and partnership expenditure in England and Wales since the inception of the safety camera programme in 2000.

	Number of partnerships	Total fines	Expenditure	Expenditure as percentage of fines received
2000–01	7	9,871,920	8,611,793	87.2
2001–02	14	18,799,820	15,386,939	81.8
2002–03	28	73,876,260	57,620,133	78.0
2003–04	35	113,567,780	91,877,359	80.9

Figures for 2004–05 will be published on the Department's website in due course.

Speeding (Carbon Emissions)

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much extra carbon dioxide in tonnes per annum he estimates arose from the driving of road vehicles in excess of 70 mph in each of the last five years. [30926]

Dr. Ladyman: If no vehicles exceeded the speed limits on motorways and dual carriageways we have estimated that savings in the region of 0.5 million tonnes of carbon per annum could theoretically occur. In practice, however, it would be virtually impossible to enforce blanket compliance with the 70 mph speed limit, and the Government have no intention of introducing such a policy.

Stratford Stations

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what arrangements will be made for passengers with disabilities to be able to move between Stratford Regional Station and Stratford International Station. [31794]

Derek Twigg: Stratford International Station is being built with step free access from platform to street level

As part of the Olympic development, to be delivered by 2012, Stratford Regional Station will also provide step free access from platform to street level.

Subject to the approval of applications which are currently before the Secretary of State, it is proposed that from 2010 the Docklands Light Railway (DLR) will provide direct access between Stratford International and Regional Stations. Access from DLR trains to platforms will be step free.

Rail Services

Mrs. James: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment he has made of punctuality of services on First Great Western services from Paddington to Swansea since January. [30731]

Derek Twigg: In the year to 30 June 2005, the public performance measure for First Great Western passenger train services as a whole was 77.8 per cent. The Department for Transport does not keep separate records on the punctuality of trains running from Paddington to Swansea. Joint action plans are in place between Network Rail and First Great Western to address performance trends and these are monitored monthly.

Traffic Growth (West Sussex)

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what his projections are for traffic growth in West Sussex over each of the next 10 years. [33058]

Dr. Ladyman: Estimates of future traffic growth in West Sussex are as follows:

	Percentage
2005–10	8 to 11.5
2005–15	15.5 to 23

These figures are based on the National Road Traffic Forecasts (GB) 1997, with an adjustment to allow for West Sussex having higher-than-average projected rates of population and employment growth.

Train Operating Companies

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the total amount of penalties awarded against each train operating company for poor performances by the (a) Office of Passenger Rail Franchising and (b) Strategic Rail Authority was in each year since 1997; and if he will make a statement. [26958]

Derek Twigg: The franchising authority pays performance bonuses to train operators for exceeding performance targets. If performance is poor, operators pay a performance penalty. Payments of both types are made at four weekly intervals and, in the course of a year, a particular operator may both pay performance penalties and receive performance bonuses. The following table lists cases where payments by an operator during the financial year concerned exceeded the payments it received from the franchising authority. All operators have similar agreements except those indicated in the table as not having one.

Northern Rail Services Review

Mrs. Riordan: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when the consultation with stakeholders on the Review of Northern Rail Services will commence. [32572]

Derek Twigg: No date has yet been fixed for consultation with stakeholders on this review.

Public Service Agreements

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how the performance data for 2004 public service agreement no. 2 will be published after the Strategic Rail Authority is wound up. [29954]

Derek Twigg: From April 2005, the Office of Rail Regulation took over the publication of "National Rail Trends". This document contains the data used to measure the achievement of public service agreement target no. 2.

Victims of Violence

Tom Brake: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many victims of violence were recorded by the British Transport police in each year since 1998–99, (a) in total and (b) broken down by region. [31518]

Derek Twigg: The number of victims of violence recorded by the British Transport police (BTP) in each year since 1998–99 is given in the following table.

BTP Area	1998–99	1999–2000	2000–01	2001–02	2002–03	2003–04	2004–05
London North	659	742	809	920	1,126	1,334	1,632
London South	1,849	2,160	2,107	1,837	2,265	2,350	2,509
London Underground	1,456	1,575	1,471	1,424	1,880	2,295	2,622
North Eastern	243	204	285	306	495	605	625
Scottish	345	396	348	406	545	631	617
North Western	466	551	526	604	654	787	786
Western	388	461	497	594	691	725	957
Force Total	5,406	6,089	6,043	6,091	7,656	8,727	9,748

The Home Office introduced a National Crime Recording Standard (NCRS) that all police forces across England and Wales were required to adopt. BTP adopted this standard on 1 April 2002. The impact of the new recording standard saw an increase in recorded crime nationally.

BTP have also been proactive in encouraging victims of assaults, whether a passenger or a member of rail staff, to report these offences. This includes the creation of dedicated staff assault teams within the BTP areas.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Andrew Cunningham

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what responsibilities Mr. Andrew Cunningham has held in her Department and its predecessors since 1997. [32918]

Mr. Lammy: Mr. Andrew Cunningham was not employed by the Department for Culture, Media and Sport or its predecessors before June 2001 when he and his policy responsibilities were transferred to the Department from the Home Office as part of the Machinery of Government Changes. At that time, Mr. Cunningham was made Head of the Licensing Policy Team with responsibility for advising Ministers on all policy matters relating to the reform of the alcohol, entertainment and late night refreshment licensing laws, including preparation of the Licensing Bill. His current responsibility is to lead the teams charged with implementing the Licensing Act 2003.

Correspondence

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport when she will reply to the letter of 12 September from the hon. Member for Aylesbury which her Department acknowledged on 16 September (reference CMS 22830/DC) about the Department's guidance on the Licensing Act 2003. [32917]

James Purnell: I wrote to the hon. Member for Aylesbury on 21 November 2005.

Criminal Offences

Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if she will list criminal offences created in legislation sponsored by her Department since May 1997, broken down by Act. [26704]

Mr. Lammy [holding answer 9 November 2005]: The following is a list of criminal offences created in legislation sponsored by the Department for Culture, Media and Sport since May 1997, broken down by Act:

Communications Act 2003

Offences were created by the following provisions of the Communications Act 2003:

s.43(1); s.103(1) and (2); s.125(1); s.126(1) and (2); s.127(1) and (2); s.133(1); s.143(1) and (2); s.144(1) and (3); s.171(5); s.363(2) and (3); s.393(10); schedule 11 paragraphs 13(8), (9) and (10).

Dealing in Cultural Objects (Offences) Act 2003

An offence was created by s.1(1) of the Dealing in Cultural Objects (Offences) Act 2003.

Horserace Betting and Olympic Lottery Act 2004

Offences were created by the following provisions of the Horserace Betting and Olympic Lottery Act 2004:

s. 9(5); s.10(1); schedule 1 paragraphs 19, 20, 21, and 23.

Gambling Act 2005

Offences are created by the following provisions of the Gambling Act 2005:

s.33(1); s.37(1); s.41(1); s.42(1); s.43 (1); s.44(1); s.46(1); s.47(1), (4), (5), (6) and (7); s.48(1); s.49; s.50(1); s.51(1); s.52; s.53; s.54*(1)* and (2); s.55(1) and (4); s.56(1); s.57(1); s.58; 5.59(1); s.101(6); 5.105(3); 5.108(2); s.109(4); 5.122(5); 5.134(2); s.138(3); 5.139(2); 5.185(2); s.186(6); s.229(2); s.242(1) and (2); s.243(1) and (2); s.244(1); s.245(1); s.258(1); s.259(1); s.260(2); 5.261(2); s.262; 5.275(7); 5.281(7); s.301(2); s.316(5); 5.326(1); s.328(5); 5.330(1); s.331(1); s.337(5); s.342(1); s.345(5); schedule 10 paragraph 20; schedule 12 paragraphs 13(1) and 15(6); schedule 13 paragraph 10(1); schedule 14 paragraph 20.

Members should consult the texts of the Acts for full details of the offences.

Fixed Odds Betting Terminals

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what research the Government have undertaken into the impact on public welfare of increasing the number of fixed odds betting terminals. [32543]

Mr. Caborn: The Government have not directly commissioned research into fixed odds betting terminals (FOBTs). An independent report, funded by the Association of British Bookmakers, by European Economics and MORI was published in April 2005 and subjected to DCMS commissioned peer review. It found no evidence to suggest FOBTs led to an increase in problem gambling. A second study is due to be published by the end of the year and will again be subjected to the same level of scrutiny. The Gambling Commission will undertake prevalence studies into gambling every three years which will enable the Government to scrutinise trends in British gambling habits. The first of these will be published in 2007.

Football World Cup

Mr. Kemp: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport whether the consideration by her Department of the possibility of England bidding to host the 2018 World Cup will include an assessment of suitable venues in Sunderland city council area. [32873]

Mr. Caborn: My right hon. Friends, the Chancellor of the Exchequer and Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport announced a feasibility study to assess whether England should bid to host the FIFA World Cup in 2018 in England on 19 November 2005.

Officials from HM Treasury and DCMS will be discussing the precise scope of the study with the Football Association. They will undertake the study and report back next year.

Public Service Agreements

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what baseline percentages she is using for the purposes of measuring performance against 2004 public service agreement target 3. [30291]

Mr. Lammy: The public service agreement target 3 will be measured using the Taking Part Survey. The baseline percentages for measuring performance against the target will be data collected from interviews conducted between July 2005 and July 2006.

Indicative baselines will be published quarterly, with the first of these released in December 2005. However, due to the use of interim weighting and the effects of seasonality the final baseline percentages will not be set until the full year of data are available. The final baselines will be released in late 2006.

Swimming

Mr. Brazier: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what estimate she has made of the (a) number of children taught to swim in each of the last 10 years and (b) proportion of teenagers who can swim. [32057]

Mr. Caborn: Figures on the number of children taught, or able, to swim are not collected centrally.

Swimming and water safety are a compulsory part of the national curriculum for physical education. By the end of key stage 2, pupils should be taught to swim unaided for a sustained period of time over a distance of at least 25 metres.

In 2000, an Ofsted report on swimming in schools at key stage 2 found that 83 per cent. of pupils could swim the 25 metre standard.

DEFENCE

Afghanistan

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assessment the security forces have made of who carried out the recent bombings in Kabul; and if he will make a statement. [32212]

Mr. Ingram: Investigations into who carried out the recent attacks involving ISAF troops in Kabul are ongoing.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many provisional reconstruction teams the UK is leading in Afghanistan; where they are based; and what other help the UK is extending through its military commitments to provisional reconstruction teams. [32214]

Mr. Ingram: The United Kingdom leads the provincial reconstruction team in Mazar-e Sharif in North West Afghanistan. In addition, the United Kingdom leads the Forward Support Base and the Quick Reaction Force, both also based in Mazar-e Sharif, that support all the international security assistance force's provincial reconstruction teams across Northern Afghanistan.

Apache AH-64

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make a statement on the naval application of the Apache AH-64; and whether funds have been set aside for maritimisation. [32196]

Mr. Ingram: In line with the future maritime operating concept, the Apache AH Mkl is required to operate in support of amphibious forces during ship to shore operations. Extensive ship-borne trials have taken place on HMS Ocean and RFA Argus during which flying and deck operating limits were determined, and maritime modifications, including enhanced corrosion protection, were assessed. These trials have shown that Apache can be operated safely and effectively from these platforms. A declaration of maritime initial operating capability is expected at the end of December 2005. Funding for further trials has been set aside in the equipment plan. However, the benefit of full conversion of the entire Apache fleet is currently being assessed.

AWE Aldermaston

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 3 November 2005, Official Report, column 1259W, on AWE Aldermaston, when he was first informed that the original estimate was inadequate. [27853]

John Reid: I became aware of the need for additional investment at AWE Aldermaston shortly after my appointment as Secretary of State for Defence. As far as the Ministry of Defence is concerned, when the initial AWE management and operation contract (which became effective on 1 April 2000) was awarded to AWE Management Ltd., it was recognised that a detailed analysis would be required to establish the levels of investment necessary to sustain the minimum capability required to support the policies described in the 1998 Strategic Defence Review. This process, which included conducting studies, investment appraisals, capability assessments, contract negotiations and a process of departmental and ministerial approvals, was completed in July 2005.

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 3 November 2005, Official Report, column 1259W, on AWE Aldermaston, how much of the £1 billion will be spent on (a) increased costs for the continuous running project, (b) new facilities at Aldermaston, with particular reference to the proposed new laser and (c) other areas of expenditure; and if he will make a statement. [27855]

John Reid: As I made clear in my written statement to the House on 19 July 2005, Official Report, column 59WS, the purpose of this additional expenditure at the Atomic Weapons Establishment (AWE) is to maintain the effectiveness and safety of the nuclear deterrent through an additional investment in key skills and facilities. Of the total forecast expenditure at AWE between now and the end of 2007–08, around 45 per cent. is capital costs, principally on new facilities including the new Orion laser, and around 55 per cent. is operating costs.

Iraq (US Casualties)

Mr. Robathan: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many casualties United States forces have suffered since 1 January 2005 in the proposed Tactical Area of Responsibility that British forces will take over next year. [31386]

Mr. Ingram: As I made clear in my written statement on 14 November 2005, Official Report, columns 41–42WS, no final decisions have yet been made on the area of responsibility that British forces could take over next year.

Overseas Recruitment

Adam Price: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what expenditure has been incurred in relation to overseas recruitment for the armed services in each of the last five years. [29622]

Mr. Touhig [holding answer 17 November 2005]: Employment in the Regular armed forces is open to citizens of Commonwealth countries and Republic of Ireland nationals as well as British citizens; all applicants are given equal consideration and all have to meet the same basic entry standards. The armed forces do not actively recruit overseas with the exception of Gurkhas from Nepal. However, in recent years the Royal Navy and the Army have sent selection teams to some Commonwealth countries at the specific request of the Government concerned, and only then when evidence suggests that there is sufficient interest among the local population to merit a visit. The selection teams screen out those who are not thought capable of meeting the full entry standards, to save them the cost of an abortive trip to the UK to undergo the recruitment process. The costs incurred as a result of the selection team visits were as follows:

Financial year	£
2001–02	47,500
2002–03	147,600
2003–04	127,700
2004–05	125,100
2005–06	52,900

Notes:
1. Figures are rounded to nearest £100.
2. FY2005–06 details show the position at the mid-year point.

Gurkha recruitment policy is completely different to that for the Regular armed forces. The travel costs incurred as a result of a selection team from the UK visiting Nepal during the final selection process to assist the in-country recruiting team in its final selection of approximately 230 Nepalese to join the Brigade of Gurkhas each year and approximately 150 to join the Singapore Police (for which we get compensation) were as follows:

Financial year	£
2001–02	27,800
2002–03	32,900
2003–04	33,000
2004–05	33,000
2005–06	40,000

Note:
Figures are rounded to nearest £100.

RAF Bases

Mr. Gerald Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what savings were achieved by transferring maintenance work for (a) Harriers and (b) Tornados to RAF main operating bases; and where this money will be reinvested. [29226]

Mr. Ingram [holding answer 21 November 2005]: Changes have been made in the way RAF Harrier aircraft are supported. Primarily these changes relate to the concentration of aircraft maintenance, including Harrier GR7 to GR9 upgrade, at RAF Cottesmore, and the introduction of more effective and efficient processes. Together these will deliver savings of £44 million over financial years 2005–06 to 2008–09. Similar changes in the way RAF Tornado GR4 aircraft are maintained and upgraded are in the process of being implemented at RAF Marham. This will significantly streamline the overall logistics footprint for the Tornado GR4 fleet which in turn will contribute to the £2 billion of efficiency savings to be delivered as part of the MOD's logistic transformation programme.

All cash savings are re-allocated within the Defence Programme in accordance with Defence priorities.

Royal Green Jackets

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make a statement on the future of the Royal Green Jackets Regiment. [30336]

Mr. Ingram: I refer the hon. Member to my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Defence's written ministerial statement on 24 November 2005, Official Report, columns 129–33WS, which states that the Royal Green Jackets will form the 2nd and 4th battalions of the Rifles. The Rifles will form in 2007.

The Rifles will be established from the two battalions of the Royal Green Jackets, the two battalions of the Light Infantry, the Royal Gloucestershire, Berkshire and Wiltshire Light Infantry and the Devonshire and Dorset Light Infantry. All six battalions have elected to merge within the Rifles, following extensive consultation within the regiments and the division, to produce a regiment which embodies the best traditions of the Light Division. The five battalions within the Rifles will be capable of covering every future operational role envisaged and will be able to provide a variety of roles and locations for its serving soldiers.

Shropshire Light Infantry

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will reverse his decision to change the name of the Shropshire Light Infantry to the Rifles. [33359]

John Reid: The new title of the Rifles is the result of extensive consultation within the Light Division and the regiments concerned to find a fitting title to embody their heritage and traditions. The title was adopted with the full agreement of the representatives of the Light Infantry, the Royal Green Jackets, the Devonshire and Dorset Light Infantry and the Royal Gloucestershire, Berkshire and Wiltshire Light Infantry and I have no plans to change it.

Vanguard Submarines

Mr. Kilfoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make a statement on his plans to modify Vanguard class submarines. [32353]

John Reid: Since commissioning, a number of modifications to the Vanguard class submarine platforms have been planned, some of which have already been implemented. These include an upgrade to the nuclear reactor core as well as obsolescence management programmes, such as a technology demonstrator programme to update Sonar 2054, and replacement of elements of the radio system. As with any other platform, we routinely assess obsolescence issues that may occur throughout platform life.

ELECTORAL COMMISSION

Public Relations

Mr. Kemp: To ask the hon. Member for Gosport, representing the Speaker's Committee on the Electoral Commission how much the Electoral Commission has spent on public relations companies and consultants in each of the last five years. [31495]

Peter Viggers: The Commission informs me that its expenditure on public relations companies and consultants, to support its public awareness work under section 13 of the Political Parties, Elections and Referendums Act 2000, in each of the years concerned is as set out in the following table:

	Expenditure (£)
2001–02	76,775
2002–03	272,131
2003–04	267,598
2004–05	332,891
2005–06	[1]307,120

SCOTLAND

Bank Notes

John Thurso: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what discussions he has had with (a) the Chancellor of the Exchequer and (b) the Scottish Executive on issuing of bank notes in Scotland; and if he will make a statement. [32608]

David Cairns: My right hon. Friend has regular discussions on a range of issues with both the Chancellor of the Exchequer and the Scottish Executive. During the Treasury's consultation on their document "Banknote issue arrangements in Scotland and Northern Ireland" the Scotland Office facilitated a forum between Treasury officials, the Bank of England, Scottish issuing banks and representative organisations. The consultation period has now concluded and it is for the Treasury to consider the responses.

Consultants/Special Advisers

Martin Horwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will list departmental projects conducted by consultants in each year since 2000; what the cost was in each case; and what the total cost of employing consultants was in each year. [29053]

David Cairns: The cost of projects conducted by consultants in each year since 2000–01 are listed as follows:

	Description	Cost (£)
2000–01	A comparison study on motor taxation across Europe	5,465
	Total	5,465
2001–02	Professional services in relation to a proposed Scotland to Northern Ireland Ferry Service	17,864
	Total	17,864
2002–03	Professional services in relation to a proposed Scotland to Northern Ireland Ferry Service	4,620
	Report on Devolution in Europe	6,100
	Total	10,720
2003–04	Senior Civil Service Assessment Centre	10,044
	Total	10,044
2004–05	Management Review and Assessment Centre for Head of Scotland Office	2,817
	Total	2,817

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how many (a) consultants and (b) special advisers were employed by his Department in each year since 1997; what the cost of each was in each year; and if he will make a statement. [27415]

David Cairns: The Scotland Office was established on 1 July 1999. The number and spend on consultants since then has been:

1999–2000	0	0
2000–01	1	5,465
2001–02	1	17,864
2002–03	2	10,720
2003–04	1	10,044
2004–05	1	2,817

Since 2003, the Government have published, on an annual basis, the names and overall cost of special advisers and the number in each pay band. For the most recent information, I refer the hon. Member to the statement made by my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister on 21 July 2005, Official Report, columns 158–162WS. Information on the numbers of special advisers prior to 2003 was provided at regular intervals and this information is available in the Library of the House.

TREASURY

Bank Notes

John Thurso: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) whether the launch of the consultation on the banknote issue arrangements in Scotland and Northern Ireland conformed with Cabinet Office regulations on consultation procedure; [32605]

(2) how many responses he has received to the consultation on banknote issue arrangements in Scotland and Northern Ireland; and if he will make a statement; [32606]

(3) if he will list the representations received on the issuing arrangements of banknotes in Scotland and Northern Ireland prior to the launch of the banknote issue arrangements in Scotland and Northern Ireland consultation document from (a) note issuing banks, (b) non-note issuing banks, and (c) other third parties. [32607]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The launch of the consultation was consistent with the Cabinet Office's Code of Practice on Consultation. The consultation exercise was initially set for eight weeks because the proposals were technical in nature and of interest to a limited number of stakeholders. In response to requests from stakeholders I agreed to extend the consultation period by four weeks. In addition to the written consultation, several face-to-face meetings took place between my officials and stakeholders.

The Treasury received 34 responses to the consultation and we will publish a summary of all responses and our response to the consultation in due course. At present, I have no plans to make a statement but will consider doing so when it comes to publishing our response to the consultation.

The Treasury has had frequent informal discussions with various Government Departments and the Bank of England on the subject of the banknote issue arrangements in Scotland and Northern Ireland but received no representations on this subject from any commercial note issuing bank or private sector third parties, prior to the launch of the consultation in July of this year.

Breast Cancer

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many women (a) were diagnosed with and (b) died from breast cancer in each of the last five years. [31380]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell to Lynne Featherstone, dated 29 November 2005:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question concerning how many women (a) were diagnosed with and (b) died from breast cancer in each of the last five years. (31380)

The latest available figures for the incidence of breast cancer are for the year 2003. The numbers of newly diagnosed cases for the years 1999 to 2003. and the numbers of deaths occurring in these years, are given in the attached table.

Number of newly diagnosed cases of, and deaths from, breast cancer[1] in females in England, 1999–2003[2]

Year of diagnosis/death	Number of cases	Number of deaths
1999	34,176	10,856
2000	33,829	10,609
2001[3]	34,347	10,846
2002[3]	34,319	10,789
2003[3]	36,509	10,489

[1] Breast cancer is defined as code 174 in the International Classification of Diseases, Ninth Revision (ICD-9) and as code C50 in the International Classification of Diseases. Tenth Revision (ICD-10). Newly diagnosed cases were defined using ICD-10; deaths were defined using ICD9 from 1999 to 2000, and ICD-10 from 2001 onwards.

[2] Figures for the number of deaths are based on deaths occurring in each calendar year.

[3] The introduction of ICD-10 for coding cause of death in 2001 means that data for breast cancer are not completely comparable with data for years before this date. The data should therefore be interpreted with caution. The effect of the change in classification in 2001 on deaths from cancer by site is described in an article published in August 2004.*

Capital Gains Tax

Chris Huhne: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the capital gains tax treatment is for shared ownership schemes in non-charitable housing associations; and if he will make a statement. [32479]

Dawn Primarolo: A non-charitable housing association will be within the charge to corporation tax and is liable to pay tax on chargeable gains, including those arising under shared ownership arrangements. The amount of such gains may be reduced by various forms of relief that are available to companies, including the ability to deduct capital losses.

Consultants

Martin Horwood: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what steps his Department takes to ensure that consultancies do not claim excessive expenses while working for the Department and its agencies; [29090]

(2) what mechanisms are in place to assess the effectiveness of consultant-led projects in his Department; what sanctions are available to penalise consultants who ran unsuccessful projects; how many projects conducted by consultants were assessed as unsuccessful in each year since 2000; and what sanctions were imposed in each case. [29120]

John Healey: The Treasury assesses the effectiveness of high and medium risk projects via Gateway reviews, managed by the OGC. Low risk projects are assessed via a project appraisal completed by the relevant business manager.

The Treasury ensures there are strongly worded clauses in all consultancy contracts and assignment orders, which are agreed and signed by the supplier before undertaking the engagement. This enables the Department to take action against any defaults in performance, quality issues or other failures of the supplier to perform the agreed service in a timely and appropriate manner.

The remedies can cover anything from re-execution of the services at the expense of the supplier, reduction in the payment in respect of any service that the supplier has failed to provide or has provided inadequately, up to and including termination of the contract. The Treasury also ensures that there is a clause referring to an Alternative Dispute Resolution procedure as recommended by the Centre for Dispute Resolution.

Since 2000 no consultant-led project has been deemed unsuccessful.

All contracts let for consultancy support by the Treasury clearly specify to the supplier that any travel expenses to and from the assignment location will be met from the day rate. Expenses may be payable where travel to other sites is required as part of the assignment, but only with prior approval and within the current maximum limits agreed for civil servants. Any other expenses are only payable solely at the discretion, and with the prior approval, of the relevant Treasury project manager.

Credit Overpayments

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will write off all the credit overpayments caused by official error following the recent decision of Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs to write off all overpayments to claimants who are subject to immigration control; and if he will make a statement. [30544]

Dawn Primarolo: These payments were made because of an error on the part of HMRC. They were not overpayments. Errors, where the claimant could have reasonably expected not to know, are written off.

Departmental Relocation

Dr. Cable: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many staff in his Department have been relocated into London and the South East in each of the last five years for which records are available. [31749]

Mr. Des Browne: No staff in the Department or related agencies have been relocated into London or the South East in the last five years.

Dr. Cable: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what plans he has to relocate staff in his Department and related agencies into London and the South East. [31750]

Mr. Des Browne: There are no plans to relocate staff in the Department or related agencies in to London or the South East.

Departmental Websites

Charles Hendry: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will take steps to ensure the Department's websites attain the W3C AAA standard of accessibility for people with visual and other disabilities; and if he will set a target date for this standard to be achieved by. [30968]

John Healey: Guidelines for Government websites produced by the Cabinet Office state that Government websites should comply with Single-A level of the Web Content Accessibility Guidelines 1.0; The Treasury's Public website has been designed to comply with Double-A level of the Web Content Accessibility Guidelines 1.0.

Nevertheless, a number of Triple-A requirements are met by the Treasury website, including; the use of access-keys, contrast between foreground and background colours, consistent style of presentation across all website pages and our search facility enables different types of searches.

Disability Discrimination Act

Chris Huhne: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the cost would be of applying the definition of disability in the Disability Discrimination Act 1995 to the tax regime for trusts with a vulnerable beneficiary as defined by section 38(1) of par' 2, Chapter 4 of the Finance Act 2005. [31350]

Dawn Primarolo: We are unable to quantify this cost. The Government recognised that the increase in the rate applicable to trusts and the dividend trust rate from 6 April 2004 could have an impact on trusts with vulnerable beneficiaries, especially those set up for disabled and minor children who have suffered the death of a parent. We therefore introduced the special tax regime for such trusts in Finance Act 2005.

We consulted widely before introducing the regime and, in consultation, including with groups representing the disabled, the consensus was to use the existing, generous definition from within the Taxes Acts that already works well within the tax system and relies on qualification for Department for Work and Pensions benefits.

Financial Instruments Directive

Mr. Gauke: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the (a) costs and (b) benefits of the implementation of the Markets in Financial Instruments Directive. [32857]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the answer provided by the Financial Secretary, on 22 November 2005, Official Report, column 1905-06W to the hon. Member for Surrey Heath (Michael Gove) and the hon. Member for Chipping Barnet (Mrs. Villiers).

Mr. Gauke: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what representations he has received from the Financial Services Authority on the implications of the Markets in Financial Instruments Directive. [32862]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Treasury and Financial Services Authority, have worked closely together on the negotiation of the Markets in Financial Instruments Directive (MiFID), and are doing so on its implementation. On 21 November the FSA published 'Planning for MiFID' (available at www.fsa.aov.uk/pubs/international/planninq_mifid.pdf) which highlights some of the key areas of UK regulation that will be affected by the directive.

HM Revenue and Customs

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the national performance targets were for HM Revenue and Customs centres in 2004–05; and what the performance of the branches in (a) Torquay, (b) Paignton and (c) Brixham were against those targets in 2004–05. [32064]

Dawn Primarolo: The HMRC target is that 95 per cent. of customers calling at their Inquiry Centres without an appointment will be seen within 30 minutes. The results for the period 1 April to 18 November, this year, are: Paignton 97.02 per cent. and Torquay 95.05 per cent. There is no HMRC Inquiry Centre at Brixham.

IR35

Norman Lamb: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many people have been investigated by HM Customs and Revenue to determine whether IR35 applies to them in each of the last five years; how many of these were found to fall within IR35; what the (a) total cost and (b) average duration of such investigations was in each year; and what estimate he has made of the additional tax revenue raised as a result of those investigations in each year. [32454]

Dawn Primarolo: HMRC does not routinely collect data in respect of specific types of employer obligations from the PAYE system. It is therefore not possible to isolate how many investigations have solely related to the intermediaries legislation.

Manual Payments

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many manual payments were issued in each month since April 2003; and what their value was in each month. [30009]

Dawn Primarolo: For the estimated number of manual payments between April 2004 and February 2005, I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave the right hon. Member for Birkenhead (Mr. Field) on 22 March 2005, Official Report, column 711W. The estimated number of manual payments in each month from April 2003 to March 2004, and for March 2005 to October 2005, and the estimated value of manual payments between April 2003 and October 2005 are:

	£000	£000
	Number of payments	Estimated value of manual payments made
2003
April	Less than 5	1,200
May	135	111,400
June	130	83,900
July	10	6,400
August	25	15,300
September	15	10,000
October	10	6,500
November	10	7,000
December	20	10,600
2004
January	25	13,100
February	30	18,100
March	20	12,000

	£000
	Estimated value of manual payments made 2004
April	18,100
May	11,200
June	8,900
July	11,200
August	10,100
September	19,600
October	16,400
November	13,900
December	14,600
2005
January	16,000
February	17,700

	£000	£000
	Number of payments	Estimated value of manual payments made
2005
March	40	20,000
April	50	23,400
May	45	19,900
June	40	17,500
July	40	18,700
August	45	22,800
September	45	25,000
October	30	15,000

The allocation of payments to precise payment dates requires a degree of estimation and are therefore rounded to the nearest 5,000. The value of manual payments made also requires a degree of estimation and are therefore rounded to the nearest 100,000.

Money Laundering Directives

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer which EU countries have not transposed the Money Laundering Directive into their national law. [32897]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: According to the EU Commission two EU Countries, France and Greece, have not transposed the Second Money Laundering Directive (2001/97/EC) into their national law. The EU Commission has started infringement proceedings against these countries. The Third EU Money Laundering Directive has recently been adopted and will need to be implemented into national law by the end of 2007.

National Minimum Wage

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many companies in Tamworth have been (a) fined and (b) forced to cease trading for non-compliance with the national minimum wage since it was introduced. [32033]

Dawn Primarolo: The information requested is not available.

John Cummings: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many businesses were found to be employing workers for less than the minimum wage in Easington constituency in each year since the minimum wage was introduced; how many were fined; and how many employees were involved in each case. [33276]

Dawn Primarolo: The information requested is not available.

Official Travel Costs

Peter Luff: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to his answer of 17 November 2005, Official Report, column 1519W, whether the sum quoted includes the cost of the travel of the two Treasury officials. [31568]

John Healey: The sum quoted is for the Chancellor's travel.

Parliamentary Questions

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he expects to answer Questions 26261 and 26263 tabled on 3 November 2005 by the hon. Member for Birkenhead. [31527]

Dawn Primarolo: I have done so.

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he expects to answer Question 22005 tabled on 24 October 2005 by the hon. Member for Birkenhead. [31528]

Dawn Primarolo: I have done so.

Planning Gain Supplement

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when the Government expects to publish further details of its plans for a (a) planning gain supplement and (b) land development tax. [31828]

John Healey: As set out in the March 2005 Economic and Fiscal Strategy Report, the Government will respond to the recommendations in the Barker Review of Housing Supply later this year.

Pneumococcal Meningitis

Susan Kramer: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many (a) children and (b) adults died of pneumococcal meningitis in the UK in each of the last 10 years. [31461]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Colin Mowl to Susan Kramer, dated 29 November 2005:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your recent question concerning how many (a) children and (b) adults died of pneumococcal meningitis in the United Kingdom in each of the last 10 years. I am replying in her absence. (31461)

The most recently available information is for deaths in 2004. Figures for deaths where pneumococcal meningitis was mentioned as either the underlying cause of death or as a contributory factor to the death, in children aged 0 to 15 and adults aged 16 and over are shown in the table below for each year from 1995 to 2004.

Number of deaths where pneumococcal meningitis[1] was mentioned in (a) children aged under 16 and (b) adults aged 16 and over. United Kingdom. 1995 to 2004[2]

	(a) children	(b) adults
1995	8	75
1996	17	103
1997	13	87
1998	20	61
1999	12	63
2000	15	59
2001	18	60
2002	13	54
2003	22	68
2004	15	47

[1] Cause of death was defined using the International Classification of Diseases, Ninth Revision (JCD-9) code 320.1 for the years 1995 to 2000 for England and Wales and Northern Ireland, and for the years 1995 to 1999 for Scotland, and Tenth Revision (1CD-10) code G00.1 from 2001 onwards for England and Wales and Northern Ireland and from 2000 onwards for Scotland.

[2] Figures are for deaths occurring in each calendar year for residents of England and Wales and for deaths registered in each calendar year for Scotland and Northern Ireland.

Population

Jim Cousins: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the mid-year population estimates were in each metropolitan authority in Tyne and Wear in each year between 1999 and 2004; and what estimate he has made of the population of each authority in (a) 2006–07, (b) 2007–08 and (c) 2008–09 based on the estimates for (i) 1999 to 2003 and (ii) 2000 to 2004. [31630]

John Healey [holding answer 24 November 2005]: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell to Mr. Jim Cousins, dated 29 November 2005:

As National Statistician I have been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question concerning the population of Tyne and Wear. (31630)

The Office for National Statistics produces official mid-year population estimates and subnational population projections.

Table 1, attached below shows the mid year population estimates for the metropolitan authorities in Tyne and Wear for the years 1999 to 2004.

The most recent set of official subnational population projections are 2003-based and use local trends in births, deaths and migration over the reference period 1999 to 2003 to formulate assumptions on levels of these components of change for future years. Updated 2004-based projections (using a 2000 to 2004 reference period) will be published in summer 2006.

Table 2, attached below shows the 2003-based projected mid-year population for the Tyne and Wear metropolitan authorities for years 2006 to 2009.

Table 1: Mid-year population 1999 to 2004

Tax Credits

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will place in the Library a copy of (a) the Gateway Review and (b) the business case for the tax credit computer system. [13880]

Dawn Primarolo: The information requested is provided on a confidential basis and is not generally made public.

To disclose Gateway Review reports would be likely to prejudice both the ability of reviewers to examine the effectiveness, efficiency and economy with which other Government Departments exercise their functions and also the formulation and development of Government policy.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) how many letters from members of the public were received by the tax credits department from April 2003 to April 2005; what the average response time was in each quarter; and if he will make a statement; [9840]

(2) what the average time taken to respond to correspondence about tax credit claims was in (a) 2003–04 and (b) 2004–05; and what that time has been in 2005–06. [19723]

Dawn Primarolo: Between June 2003 and April 2005, the Tax Credit Office (TCO) received around 1.4 million letters from members of the public or their representatives. Figures are not available before June 2003. TCO aims to deal with 80 per cent. of correspondence within 15 working days and 95 per cent. of correspondence within 40 working days. Indicative figures for 2004–05 suggest that TCO responded to around half of correspondence within 15 working days and almost three-quarters within 40 working days. Figures are not available for 2003–04 and indicative figures are not yet available for 2005–06.

Mr. George Osborne: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will publish the Gateway Review of tax credit IT systems. [13706]

Dawn Primarolo: A Gateway Review is conducted on a confidential basis and is not generally made public. To disclose Gateway Review reports would be likely to prejudice both the ability of reviewers to examine the effectiveness, efficiency and economy with which other Government Departments exercise their functions and also the formulation and development of Government policy.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many tax credit award notices have been issued in each (a) year, (b) quarter and (c) month since 2001–02; and if he will make a statement. [19289]

Dawn Primarolo: There are more than 6 million families benefiting from tax credits at present. Each adult included in a tax credit award receives an award notice when the initial claim has been decided, each time a change of circumstance is reported, and another after the end of the year when their claim is renewed.

Child tax credit and working tax credit (CTC and WTC) were introduced in April 2003 replacing children's tax credit, working families' tax credit and disabled person's tax credit; however, (the former) Inland Revenue started issuing CTC and WTC award notices from February 2003. The number of award notices issued in each month since February 2003 is provided in the table.

[1] Figures to month end.

Dr. McCrea: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many calls were received by the tax credits helpline from Northern Ireland residents in August and September. [21615]

Dawn Primarolo: The number of calls received by tax credits helpline from Northern Ireland residents are as follows:

	Number of calls
August 2005	44,902
September 2005	48,880

These figures are where the caller selected an option from the call steering menu and was put in a queue to speak to an adviser.

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many TC 647 forms have been (a) requested, (b) printed and (c) sent to tax credit claimants giving details on how their tax credit claim has been worked out since the inception of tax credits. [22005]

Dawn Primarolo [holding answer 27 October 2005]: Between 3 March 2004 and 27 September 2005 around 370,000 TC647 forms were printed and issued to tax credit claimants. These forms are issued on request.

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what measures have been put in place to compensate claimants where automatic recovery of a tax credit overpayment has been stopped, and the overpayment found to have been caused by official error. [24162]

Dawn Primarolo: For details of the circumstances in which HM Revenue and Customs will make compensation payments, I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave the hon. Member for Tatton (Mr. Osborne) on 19 July 2005, Official Report, column 1698W.

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 2 November 2005, Official Report, columns 1057–58W, on tax credits, what proportion of the families contacted returned their renewal forms before 30 September. [26261]

Dawn Primarolo [holding answer 8 November 2005]: HM Revenue and Customs (HMRC) made around 341,000 outbound call attempts. Of those, around 81,000 resulted in taxpayer contact, this generated around 3,900 renewals at the time of calling. HMRC also estimate that a further 15,400 claimants subsequently rang back to renew as a direct result of the initial contact.

Overall, for 2004–05, HMRC issued around 4.2 million 2004–05 renewals declarations requiring a response and only around 200,000 of those had not been returned by 30 September 2005.

Vera Baird: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how the tax credit IT system differentiates between a credit allocated to a recipient and a payment made to the same recipient. [30403]

Dawn Primarolo: Tax credits are allocated at household, not individual, level. The whole circumstances of the household are considered against a set of rules and elements of entitlement are allocated accordingly. Each element of entitlement is designated as either child tax credit (CTC) or working tax credit (WTC) and a composite entitlement to CTC and WTC calculated.

Where a household contains two adults the claimants nominate which individual will receive payments for each tax credit. This can mean that one member of the household receives both credits or that they receive one credit each.

While individual payments are physically made to one person payments are treated as being made to the household. Members of the household are equally entitled to the payments and equally liable to repay any amount which is overpaid (joint and several liability).

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether a claimant whose circumstances make him eligible for working tax credit and child tax credit is able to claim working tax credit only. [31521]

Dawn Primarolo: The child and working tax credits are a single, seamless system of support for families with children and for low-paid people in work. In practice a claim for working tax credit is also a claim for child tax credit if a claimant is eligible for both. The reverse is also true.

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what methods the Department has developed with the voluntary sector to target support to vulnerable families claiming tax credits. [31526]

Dawn Primarolo: I refer the right hon. Gentleman to my statement to the Treasury Sub-Committee of 26 October 2005.

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many tax credit claimants had their awards processed using an emergency national insurance number in (a) 2003–04 and (b) 2004–05; what the figures are for 2005–06; and if he will make a statement. [31545]

Dawn Primarolo [holding answer 24 November 2004]: The information is not available.

HM Revenue and Customs could provide details of the number of current claims with a temporary tax credits reference number only at disproportionate cost.

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the total amount outstanding in backdated tax credits that have not yet been paid where a claim has been processed but a system error has delayed the generation of an award of tax credits was in (a) 2003–04 and (b) 2004–05; and how much is outstanding in 2005–06 to date. [31546]

Dawn Primarolo [holding answer 24 November 2005]: The information is not available. Where payments cannot be made via the system they can be paid manually. I refer the hon. gentleman to the reply I gave him on 15 November 2004, Official Report, column 1212w.

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the written statement of 26 May 2005, Official Report, columns 22–23WS, on tax credit overpayments, with how many voluntary sector bodies discussions have been held on providing more active support and advice for families claiming tax credits; and on what dates. [31547]

Dawn Primarolo: I refer to the minutes of evidence taken before the Treasury Sub-Committee on Wednesday 26 October 2005. I informed Members that HMRC is discussing with the Citizens Advice Bureau how they can best work together with a view to developing pilots to support claimants better, including offering face-to-face contact with the most vulnerable groups.

The Department is also working with the HMRC Tax Credits Consultation Group, which includes representatives from the voluntary sector and other interested parties, to speed up improvement in key areas. In addition to the group's regular meetings, a number of working parties have been set up. Working parties, made up of representatives and officials, are considering a range of issues such as a review of Code of Practice 26, the Helpline, HMRC tax credit website and complaints and redress.

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will establish a system of tax credits similar to that used in the United States to encourage employers to help their staff to improve their level of skills; and if he will make a statement. [31846]

Dawn Primarolo: The Government recognise that improving the skills of the work force plays an important part in increasing productivity and reducing social exclusion. The financial assistance available to encourage employers and learners to improve their skills is set out the Government's Skills Strategy and recent White Paper, Skills: Getting on in business and getting on in work.

Danny Alexander: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer in how many cases in Scotland where a tax credit has been processed there was a delay in the computer system generating an award of child or working tax credit in (a) 2003–04 and (b) 2004–05; and how many such cases there have been in 2005–06. [33021]

Dawn Primarolo: The information requested is not available.

Unemployment

Ms Diana R. Johnson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what percentage of the working age population was unemployed in each ward in Kingston upon Hull, North in each year since 1997. [31396]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Colin Mowl to Ms Diana R. Johnson, dated 29 November 2005:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Question about unemployment. I am replying in her absence. (31396)

The Office for National Statistics (ONS) compiles statistics of unemployment from the Labour Force Survey following International Labour Organisation definitions. Estimates of unemployment are not available for wards as the survey sample size for such areas is too small.

However, ONS also compiles statistics for local areas of people claiming Jobseeker's Allowance. Table 1 shows statistics for the number of claimants expressed as a percentage of the resident working age population for the Kingston upon Hull North constituency for the years 1997 to 2005. Comparable percentages for constituency wards of Kingston upon Hull North are only available from February 2004. Table 2 shows these statistics for the months available to date.

Valuation Office Agency

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much of the costs incurred in respect of the deferred 2007 council tax revaluation the Valuation Office Agency (a) will write off and (b) recover from the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister. [28621]

Mr. Woolas: I have been asked to reply.

The Valuation Office Agency currently has no plans to write-off any costs incurred in respect of the postponed Council Tax Revaluation. The issue of recovery does not therefore arise.

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what projection he has made of the written down value of the expenditure by the Valuation Office Agency in respect of the deferred 2007 council tax revaluation at (a) 1 June 2009 and (b) 1 June 2010. [28622]

Mr. Woolas: I have been asked to reply.

No projection of written down value has been made for 1 June 2009, nor for 1 June 2010, in respect of the Valuation Office Agency (VGA) expenditure on the postponed Council Tax Revaluation by the VOA.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what responsibility the Valuation Office Agency has for the levying of (a) inheritance tax, (b) stamp duty and (c) capital gains tax; and if he will make a statement. [31802]

Dawn Primarolo: The Valuation Office Agency has no responsibility for levying inheritance tax, stamp duty or capital gains tax. It does however have responsibility for undertaking and agreeing property valuations, for taxation purposes, on behalf of Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether the Valuation Office Agency used (a) computer assisted mass appraisal and (b) the Automated Valuation model for the recent business rates revaluation in England. [31803]

Dawn Primarolo: The Valuation Office Agency did not use (a) computer assisted mass appraisal or (b) the Automated Valuation model for the recent business rates revaluation in England. However, the Agency has used significant computerised support in the business rates revaluations, which have taken place on a 5-yearly cycle since 1990.

VAT

Mr. Whittingdale: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what representations he has received about the threshold below which goods supplied from Jersey are VAT-free; and if he will make a statement. [32110]

Dawn Primarolo: The Government have received a number of representations on this issue.

Mr. Whittingdale: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent estimate he has made of the value of goods which are supplied in a year by retailers based on Jersey to UK residents free of VAT. [32111]

Dawn Primarolo: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the former Economic Secretary to the Treasury's oral evidence to the Treasury Sub-committee on 2 February 2005, Fourth Report of Session 2004–05 (HC 126).

Chris Huhne: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the revenue cost in (a) 2005–06 and (b) 2006–07 of exempting demolition costs from value added tax. [32480]

Dawn Primarolo: No estimate has been made.

Lady Hermon: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much value-added tax was paid by voluntary and charity sector organisations in each of the past five years for which figures are available. [32687]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: HM Revenue and Customs do not collect data on VAT from individual goods and services. The amount of VAT received from voluntary and charity sector organisations is therefore unavailable.

Working Tax Credits

Alistair Burt: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many (a) complaints and (b) appeals have been made about working tax credits in North East Bedfordshire in 2004–05; and if he will make a statement. [28345]

Dawn Primarolo: This information is not available at constituency level.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Budgetary Forecast

Mark Simmonds: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what the projected direct budgetary support from his Department for each country is for the next three years. [32271]

Hilary Benn: DFID plans for Poverty Reduction Budgetary Support (PRBS) for the period 2005–06 to 2007–08, broken down by country and region, are as set out in the table. The figures include amounts earmarked for General PRBS and Sector PRBS.

All forecast figures are provisional and subject to review against progress towards meeting agreed development objectives.

Chagossian Community

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what plans his Department has to provide development aid to the Chagossian community in (a) Mauritius and (b) the Seycheiles; and what representations he has made to the EU to provide assistance. [32182]

Hilary Benn: We have no such plans and have made no representations.

Departmental Salaries

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if he will list the 10 highest-paid employees in his Department, broken down by (a) job title and (b) salary including bonuses; and whether the individual concerned is (i) a civil servant and (ii) a contractor in each case. [27573]

Hilary Benn: The following table lists the 10 highest-paid employees within DFID. The salary figures do not include any bonuses which will be determined at the end of March 2006. DFID has no contractors within its 10 highest-paid employees.

Job title	Salary (£)

Departmental Staff

Mr. Maples: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development who the Director of Finance and Corporate Development is in his Department; what relevant specialist finance qualifications he or she holds; and what the details are of his or her career to date. [26329]

Mr. Thomas: The Director of Finance and Corporate Performance in DFID is Richard Calvert. He expects to complete qualification as a chartered management accountant in the course of 2006. His career to date includes:

Head of Service Quality in Children, Schools and Families Directorate, Hertfordshire county council (2002–03)

Head of Information and Civil Society Department, DFID (1998–2002)

Head of Ministerial Offices, DFID/ODA (1995–98)

First Secretary, UK Permanent Representation to the European Union, Brussels (1991–95)

Range of finance and other programme management roles, ODA (1983–91).

Mr. Maples: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development who the Director of Human Resources is in his Department; what relevant specialist qualifications he or she holds; and what the details are of his or her career to date. [26330]

Mr. Thomas: The Director of Human Resources in DFID is Liz Davis. Her relevant specialist qualifications are post graduate diplomas in Leadership, Innovation and Change (1996) and Teaching and Training Adults (1990). Her career to date includes appointments as:

Deputy Director, Cabinet Office (2000–05)

Director of Human Resources, Hull and Holderness Community Health NHS Trust (1994–2000)

Training Manager, Humberside Social Services (1993–94)

Local Organiser, Humberside county council (1988–92)

Community Development Worker, Hull Council for Voluntary Service (1987).

Departmental Telephone Lines

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how the money that is raised from his Department's 0845 prefix contact telephone number is spent. [27130]

Mr. Thomas: DFID has an 0845 number which enables members of the public to call the Public Enquiry Point in East Kilbride from anywhere in the United Kingdom. Calls are charged at standard local rates, and there is no revenue generated for the Government.

Development Spending Targets

Mr. Holloway: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development whether the UK is on track to meet the UN target of spending 0.7 per cent. of gross domestic product on international development by 2013. [32874]

Hilary Benn: The UK is on track to meet the target of spending 0.7 per cent. of gross national income (GNI) on official development assistance (oda) by 2013. Total net oda from the UK to developing countries was £4.3 billion in 2004 which represented 0.36 per cent. of GNI. In the Spending Review 2004, the Chancellor announced that total UK oda will reach nearly £6.5 billion a year by 2007–08. This represents 0.47 per cent. of GNI, and is a real terms increase in UK oda of 140 per cent. since 1997. He also stated that the Government wishes to maintain these rates of growth in the overseas aid budget in order to meet the UN target by 2013.

Earthquake (Kashmir)

Steve Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what estimate his Department has made of the number of deaths from exposure that will occur this winter following the earthquake in Kashmir. [32019]

Mr. Thomas: It is not possible to give a meaningful estimate of possible deaths from exposure in affected areas during the winter months. The Government of Pakistan and international relief effort is focussed on providing shelter and other assistance to those who choose to remain above the snow line and also providing camps for those relocating to lower altitudes. The immediate priorities are to deliver shelter materials with "warm rooms" to remove the risks of exposure and provide water and sanitation interventions for the camps to prevent the spread of disease. The emergency shelter programme involves mobile outreach teams providing material and technical support for the construction of "warm rooms" for families above the snow line. To support this effort an 86-strong Royal Engineers unit has deployed to the region.

The Government are providing £58 million towards the international relief effort and has allocated £70 million for reconstruction.

Roll Back Malaria Programme

Mark Simmonds: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what steps he is taking to encourage greater accountability and transparency in the World Health Organisation's roll back malaria programme. [29697]

Mr. Thomas: There is a distinction between the World Health Organisation's Roll Back Malaria Department and Roll Back Malaria Partnership: The Roll Back Malaria Department of the World Health Organisation (WHO) is responsible for the co-ordination of the WHO'S global efforts on malaria. As part of the HIV/AIDS, TB and malaria cluster, the Roll Back Malaria Department reports progress using standard WHO results-based management systems, primarily against the organisation's programme budget. During 2004, DFID conducted an assessment of the WHO's effectiveness; the results concluded that the WHO was working towards better strategic planning, organisational efficiency and improved accountability for results.

At the World Health Assembly this year, member states commended the WHO for the progress it is making in implementing results-based management across the organisation, which now provides greater transparency and accountability.

The Roll Back Malaria Partnership (RBM) is a global initiative against malaria which provides a co-ordinated international approach for joint action to tackle the global burden of malaria. The WHO, the United Nations Children's Fund (UNICEF), the United Nations Development Programme (UNDP) and the World Bank launched the RBM Partnership in 1998. The WHO is an important partner of RBM, which is housed within the WHO's Malaria Department.

The UK, as a board member of the partnership is working with partners to address a number of issues concerning the effectiveness of RBM Partnership which includes accountability and transparency. DFID has supported RBM Partnership to develop a five-year global strategic plan and a two-year work plan to assist with greater accountability and transparency by setting out clearly the goals and responsibilities of the partnership. We have also supported the Partnership

Forum where the partnership is accountable to many additional stakeholders; the most recent forum was held in Cameroon in November. In addition, the UK has pushed for greater transparency on the way the partnership operates and, as a result, most RBM materials are now available on the website. We will continue to push for more transparency in development of technical guidance by the WHO.

The third and final High Level Forum for Health met in November in Paris. Participants encouraged RBM and other global health partnerships to adopt and implement a set of best practice principles. Four of the 21 principles deal with accountability and transparency. We will be looking to ensure that these principles are endorsed by the RBM Board.

St. Helena

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what estimate he has made of the (a) costs and (b) total investment that will be forthcoming from (i) the Department for International Development, (ii) other UK Government Departments, (iii) the EU, (iv) private companies and (v) other sources for the proposed redevelopment of the island of St. Helena. [32181]

Mr. Thomas: There are no plans to redevelop St. Helena. Last March, however, I announced proposals to build an airport and establish air services for the island by or around 2010. The commitment was subject to satisfactory contract bids and a rigorous environmental impact assessment. The project budget has not been made public, as to do so might prejudice competition for the airport "design, build and operate" contract. The cost of the airport will be additional to DFID's regular support for St. Helena, currently running at some £14 million per annum.

St. Helena is also eligible for support from the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) "Good Governance" and "Economic Diversification" programmes, plus a "Governor's Delegated Fund" and a joint DFID/FCO Overseas Territories Environmental Programme. Disbursements from those sources are expected to total around £250,000 this year. Funds currently available to St. Helena from the European Union total over £9 million, all of which St. Helena hopes to utilise over the next few years for improvements to its wharf facilities.

No private sector funding is envisaged for the airport. All private sector interest in St. Helena, however, will be welcome and considered on an equal footing. We are currently helping St. Helena to review its tourism and inward investment policies, following the decision to build an airport. The aim is for agreed policy to guide investment, and not vice versa.

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much has been allocated for the construction of an airstrip on St. Helena. [33131]

Mr. Thomas: Our estimates have not been published, as to do so could commercially prejudice current procurement processes.

Water and Sanitation (Funding)

Emily Thornberry: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development pursuant to the answer of 9 November 2005, Official Report, column 475W, on water and sanitation (funding), how many additional child diarrhoeal deaths he expects to occur if progress towards the Millennium Development Goal target for sanitation in sub-Saharan Africa continues at the rate of progress between 1990 and 2002. [32616]

Hilary Benn: Calculating the number of diarrhoeal deaths attributable to inadequate sanitation is not an easy task. Most of them occur in the homes of the poor in remote villages and ramshackle shanty-towns, without the knowledge of health care workers. Most can be attributed to multiple contributory causes including malnutrition, malaria, the aftermath of measles and contaminated water, as well as poor sanitation.

Roughly the same number of people in sub-Saharan Africa lack access to water supply (266 million) as lack sanitation (242 million); indeed, many people lack both.

The best available calculation is by the World Health Organisation (WHO), which estimates that 747,500 deaths a year in sub-Saharan Africa could be attributed to deficient water, sanitation and hygiene. The vast majority (99 per cent.) of these are deaths from diarrhoea, and nearly 90 per cent. of those who die are children less than five-years-old. This gives a figure of some 650,000 child diarrhoeal deaths a year due to poor water, sanitation and hygiene.

Looking to the future, if progress towards the Millennium Development Goal (MDG) is not accelerated we can expect the number of deaths to decrease very slightly each year, but at this rate we estimate that in 2092 34 per cent. of the population would still lack access to basic sanitation.

LEADER OF THE HOUSE

Freedom of Information

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Leader of the House how many Freedom of Information applications his Office has received; how many have taken more than 20 days to process; and how many of these gave rise to complaints about the time taken. [31216]

Mr. Hoon: The Office of the Leader of the House has received nine Freedom of Information applications from 1 January to 30 June 2005. None has taken more than 20 days to process. The applications are included under the Privy Council Office's statistics published in the Department for Constitutional Affairs quarterly bulletin.

The Department for Constitutional Affairs is committed to publishing quarterly updates in relation to departmental performance under FOI, including information on both the volume and outcomes of requests. The bulletin for the second quarter was published on 30 September 2005 and can be found on the DCA website at http://www.foi.gov.uk/statsapr-jun05.htm and in the Libraries of both Houses. The next bulletin will be published before Christmas, while an annual report will be published in early 2006.

DEPUTY PRIME MINISTER

Brixham Council

Mr. Steen: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister (1) following the affirmative referendum on the creation of a Brixham town council, if he will establish such a council in 2006; [32165]

(2) pursuant to the answer to parliamentary question 30167, if he will set out the consultation that has to take place to create a new town council in Brixham following an affirmative referendum; what other processes are required; and for what reasons these steps will take six to nine months. [32166]

Mr. Woolas: No proposals to establish a town council in Brixham have been received by the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister and if such proposals were received in view of the time scale given in the answers to the hon. Member on 9 November 2005, Official Report, columns 495–96W and 21 November 2005, Official Report, column 1701W, it is unlikely that one could be established in time for elections for new parish and town councils in May 2006.

Depending on the issues that proposals for new parish arrangements may raise the consultation that needs to take place is with local authorities, the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister's lawyers, Ministers and other stakeholders such as the Ordnance Survey and the Electoral Commission.

Before recommendations are made to Ministers, the processes required need to ensure that each recommendation contained in the review compiies with the legislation and that they meet the underlying criteria that a parish needs to reflect the identities and interests of local communities, and that it secures effective and convenient local government.

The reasons these steps take six to nine months are that these cases are dealt with in rotation; that reviews raise complex and technical issues—some reviews make only one or two boundary changes, others are district wide recommending many boundary changes, some of these with consequential changes to electoral arrangements. In addition, maps need to be commissioned showing the proposed boundary changes; and we need to consult for up to six weeks on the content of the draft order that will implement new parish arrangements.

Council Tax

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister pursuant to the answer of 15 June 2005, Official Report, column 386W, on council tax, what sanctions are available to Valuation Office Agency representatives against householders who refuse to admit valuation inspectors who have given written advance notice of their request to make a council tax valuation inspection. [33207]

Mr. Woolas: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member on 24 November 2005, Official Report, column 2240W.

Mr. McLoughlin: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what proportion of spending by (a) Derbyshire county council, (b) Derbyshire Dales district council and (c) Amber Valley borough council has been financed from council tax in each of the years since 1 January 1996. [32720]

Mr. Woolas: The percentage of revenue expenditure by Derbyshire county council, Derbyshire Dales district council and Amber Valley borough council that has been financed from council tax in each financial year since 1996–97 is tabled as follows:

Percentage

	Derbyshire county council	Derbyshire Dales district council	Amber Valley borough council
1996–97	26.1	38.4	31.2
1997–98	28.7	40.0	38.6
1998–99	30.2	39.7	38.5
1999–2000	30.3	45.6	39.2
2000–01	30.1	47.0	42.4
2001–02	30.2	46.6	38.7
2002–03	31.2	43.0	34.5
2003–04	30.0	47.5	37.4
2004–05	29.0	52.2	35.4
2005–06	28.0	52.7	38.2

The data are as reported by local authorities and are taken from revenue summary (RS) returns for 1996–97 to 2003–04, and revenue account budget (RA) returns for 2004–05 and 2005–06.

The definition of council expenditure used here is that expenditure funded from aggregate external finance (AEF), council tax and authorities' reserves.

Comparisons across years may not be valid due to changes in the method of reporting the information. In particular, the outturn data for 1996–97 to 2002–03 have been calculated on a non-FRS (financial reporting standard) 17 basis while the outturn data for 2003–04 has been calculated on an FRS 17 basis. The budget data for 2004–05 and 2005–06 are a mix of FRS 17 and non-FRS 17. This is because for their 2004–05 and 2005–06 budget forms local authorities, after consultation, were given the option to complete their forms either on a non-FRS 17 basis or on an FRS 17 basis. Hence, figures for different years may not be directly comparable.

Council Tax Valuation

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister whether a regulatory impact assessment was produced for the Council Tax (New Valuation Lists for England) Bill. [33166]

Mr. Woolas: Paragraph 10 of the explanatory notes accompanying the Bill makes clear, that the regulatory impact unit of the Cabinet Office (now known as the Better Regulation Executive) confirmed that no regulatory impact assessment was required.

Emergency Services

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what steps the Government are taking to co-ordinate the response of fire and rescue services with other emergency services; and if he will make a statement. [20457]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Fire and Rescue National Framework 2005–06 requires all Fire and Rescue Authorities in England to have in place robust plans for integrated command and control of major incidents, and to co-ordinate these both with other emergency services and with non-emergency responders such as local authorities and the Environment Agency.

The specification for the new Firelink wide area radio communications system requires interoperability between the fire and rescue service and the other emergency services.

Guidance on a consistent operational approach is provided by the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister and the Chief Fire Officers' Association and by the Cabinet Office, and is kept under continuing review.

I have no plans to change these arrangements.

Similar arrangements operate in Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland under the overall guidance of the devolved Administrations.

Fire Services

Mr. Evans: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister how many (a) part-time and (b) full-time firefighters serviced (i) Lancashire and (ii) Ribble Valley constituency in each year since 1997. [33040]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The number of firefighters employed by the Lancashire fire and rescue service between 1997 and 2004 is set out as follows:

Date[1]	Retained duty system firefighters	Whole-time firefighters
1997	390	971
1998	395	979
1999	402	1,007
2000	398	1,008
2001	371	1,010
2002	357	1,002
2003	369	1,008
2004	384	990
2005[2]	402	957

[1] Information provided refers to the work force at 31 March.
[2] Figures are provisional.
Source:
Office of the Deputy Prime Minister's annual returns.

Information on the number of firefighters employed at constituency level is not held centrally, and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Offices of the Regions

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister how many full-time equivalent staff were employed by each Government office of the regions in each year since 1996–97; and what the estimated figures are for 2005–06. [30434]

Yvette Cooper: The total number of staff employed in each Government office on 31 March for each year from 1997 to 2005 and the latest figures for end September 2005 is as follows. Full-time equivalents are not available:

GO	1997	1998	1999	2000	March 2001	2002	2003	2004	2005	September 2005

Planning

Anne Milton: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what research he has commissioned into the (a) background, (b) sex, (c) socio-economic status and (d) ethnic origin of people who respond to planning applications. [30360]

Yvette Cooper: The Office of the Deputy Prime Minister has not conducted research into the ethnic, gender, or social background of third parties who comment on planning applications, nor on the results of planning applications.

Norman Baker: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister whether he treats the provisions relating to the correction of errors in decisions set out in part five of the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 as applying to decisions made as a result of the Countryside and Rights of Way Act 2000; and whether he treats the 2000 Act as a planning act for the purposes of part five of the 2004 Act. [31845]

Yvette Cooper: The power to correct errors in decisions contained in part 5 of the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 relates only to the errors in decision documents set out in section 59(4). Decision made under the Countryside and Right of Way Act 2000are not listed in section 59(4). The "planning Acts" in section 59(4)(h) is defined by section 117(4) and does not include the Countryside and Right of Way Act 2000.

Street Crime Wardens

Mr. Pelling: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what proportion of the street crime wardens funding stream from the Government office for London was made available to the London borough of Croydon in 2004–05. [32279]

Mr. Woolas: £4.4 million was allocated to the Government office for London to fund street crime wardens in 2004–05, of this £240,000 was made available to the London borough of Croydon.

Super Output Areas

Ben Chapman: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what plans his Department has to use super output areas as a means to direct funding towards pockets of deprivation. [32725]

Mr. Woolas: The Office of the Deputy Prime Minister has used both district level and super output area (SOA) level data to allocate the new Neighbourhood Renewal Fund (NRF) resources. As well as, the district level summaries of the Indices of Deprivation 2004 (ID04) to determine which areas should be eligible for NRF because this data take into account the extent of deprivation across a local authority as a whole.

However, the new SOA level data have been used to determine the amount of NRF allocated to each eligible authority.

SOA data have also been used to allocate Neighbourhood Element of the Safer and Stronger Communities Fund (SSCF (NE)) worth £160 million over four years 2006–10 and the Cleaner Safer Greener (CSG) element of SSCF, worth an additional £105 million for the two years 2006–08. This brings together a total package of nearly £1.3 billion to help local authorities and their partners in narrowing the gap between deprived areas and the rest of the country.

SOA data provide a better picture of the number of people living in very deprived neighbourhoods within each local authority than the old ward level data did.

Telephone Masts

Anne Milton: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what planning guidance his Department issues to borough councils about mobile phone networks sharing mobile phone mast sites. [30189]

Yvette Cooper: Planning policy guidance note 8: 'Telecommunications' (PPG8), makes clear the expectation that developers should provide evidence to local planning authorities that they have carefully considered the use of existing masts, buildings and other structures before seeking to erect any new mast, regardless of size. The authority may be justified in refusing prior approval or planning permissions if it considers the evidence regarding the consideration of such alternative sites is not satisfactory.

Anne Milton: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister when he last met officials from the Department of Health to discuss the potential impact of phone masts on public health. [30190]

Yvette Cooper: I met with Melanie Johnson, the then Minister for Public Health on 27 January 2005 this year.

Thames Gateway

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what consultation there has been between the Government and (a) Essex county council, (b) Thurrock council, (c) Basildon council, (d) Havering council and (e) Barking and Dagenham council in connection with the plans to build the Thames Gateway. [25084]

Yvette Cooper: They have been closely involved in the development of the Thames Gateway. Essex county council, Thurrock council and Basildon council are members of the sub-regional Thames Gateway South Essex Partnership. In different parts of the Gateway, different arrangements apply. Thurrock council is represented on the Board of the Thurrock Thames Gateway Development Corporation, which is leading regeneration of the Thurrock area. Essex county council and Basildon district council are members of the Basildon Renaissance Partnership, which is promoting development in the Basildon area. Havering council and Barking and Dagenham council are represented on the board of the London Thames Gateway Development Corporation, which is taking forward regeneration at the London end of the Gateway.

CONSTITUTIONAL AFFAIRS

Asylum Law Provision

Mr. McGovern: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs how many asylum cases have been undertaken by lawyers paid for under legal aid or community legal service funding in each of the past three years. [32729]

Bridget Prentice: The following figures have been provided by the Legal Services Commission (LSC) for the immigration category of work:

Controlled work matters started:

2004–05: 94,236

2003–04: 120,440

2002–03: 155,865

Controlled work covers the provision of legal advice and legal representation before the Immigration Appellate Authorities.

The total certificates issued:

2004–05: 1,856

2003–04: 2,253

2002–03: 2,920

Licensed work relates to other legal representation.

The figures cover solicitors and not-for-profit suppliers. The figures do not split matters started or certificates issued under the LSC immigration contract by asylum and non-asylum cases. The LSC records matters started rather than cases started and for controlled work there is likely to be more than one matter start per case in some instances.

Court Performance Targets

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs (1) what the national performance targets are for Crown courts; and what the performance of each Crown court in Devon and Cornwall has been against those targets; [32060]

(2) what the national performance targets are for magistrates courts; and what the performance of Torquay Magistrates Court has been against those targets; [32061]

(3) what the national performance targets are for county courts; and what the performance of the (a) Torquay and (b) Newton county courts has been against those targets. [32062]

Ms Harman: The following tables set out the key performance indicators for the Crown, county and magistrates courts and the national target levels for 2005–06. The tables show performance figures for the Crown court centres in Devon and Cornwall, magistrates courts data, which is only available at the Devon and Cornwall area level, and county court data for Torquay. Newton Abbot county court was closed on 30 March 1996 and merged with Torquay county court.

Departmental Staff

Mike Penning: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs how many staff in her Department were (a) civil servants, (b) contractors and (c) other staff for each year since 1997. [27449]

Ms Harman: The answer cannot be provided without incurring disproportionate cost.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Abandoned Vehicle Recovery

Mr. Dodds: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much was spent on (a) recovering and (b) disposing of abandoned vehicles in Northern Ireland in each year since 1997. [7098]

Angela E. Smith: Removal and disposal of abandoned vehicles is primarily a district council function. However, where an obstruction is caused on the highway, there is a responsibility for roads service. An analysis of recovery and disposal costs is not available and figures for councils can be provided only for the last three years, as this was not held centrally until 2002–03.

The expenditure for clearing abandoned vehicles in Northern Ireland since 1997 is set out in the following table.

Abortion

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the distribution of the review of abortion service guidelines has been among health care professionals in Northern Ireland. [33235]

Mr. Woodward: The development of abortion guidelines is a complex task that needs to be taken forward with sensitivity given the divergence of opinion and strength of feeling about this particular issue.

Work on developing guidance is already under way and it is the intention to have draft guidance developed by May of next year. At this stage, no decisions about the distribution of guidelines have been taken.

Air Routes

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what steps he is taking to attract more air routes into Northern Ireland airports. [32235]

Mr. Hanson: The Air Route Development Fund established by the Government to encourage the development of more air routes to Northern Ireland is fully committed and any decision on the future financing of the fund must await the outcome of the public consultation on the draft 2005 Budget.

In the meantime, ARD Ltd., the company with responsibility for the administration of the fund is maintaining close contact with the airport authorities and the airlines to ensure that we keep abreast of their plans.

Alcohol-related Deaths/Illness

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many deaths there were in Northern Ireland in which alcohol was the primary cause in each of the last five years. [31268]

Angela E. Smith: The following table gives the number of deaths registered in Northern Ireland in each year between 2000 and 2004 where the underlying cause of death indicated a condition directly related to alcohol.

Number of alcohol-related deaths registered in Northern Ireland, 2000–04

	Alcohol-related deaths[1]
2000	193
2001	210
2002	246
2003	211
2004[2]	260

[1] For the years 2001–04 the cause of death was defined using the International Classification of Diseases, Tenth Revision (ICD-10). The codes used to define alcohol-related deaths are:
F10—Mental and behavioural disorders due to use of alcohol;
142.6—Alcoholic cardiomyopathy;
K70—Alcoholic liver disease;
K73—Chronic hepatitis, not elsewhere classified;
K74—Fibrosis and cirrhosis of liver; and
X45—Accidental poisoning by and exposure to alcohol.
For the year 2000 the cause of death was defined using the International Classification of Diseases, Tenth Revision (ICD-10). The codes used to define alcohol-related deaths are:
291—Alcoholic psychoses;
303—Alcohol dependence syndrome;

305.0—Non-dependent abuse of alcohol;
425.5—Alcoholic cardiomyopathy;
571—Chronic liver disease and cirrhosis; and
E860—Accidental poisoning by alcohol.
[2] Data for 2004 is provisional.

Ambulance Officers

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many ambulance officers in Northern Ireland have reported sick with a stress related illness in each of the last five years. [32223]

Mr. Woodward: The information, provided by the Northern Ireland Ambulance Service, is set out in the following table:

	Number
2005	54
2004	51
2003	48
2002	47
2001	36

Attacks on Fire Crews

Mr. Peter Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many attacks on fire crews have taken place in each district of Northern Ireland in each of the last five years. [31969]

Mr. Woodward: The Northern Ireland Fire and Rescue Service has advised that recording of attacks on firelighters commenced in September 2001. Figures for attacks by fire and rescue service district for each calendar year available are as follows:

Blood Donors

Mr. Peter Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many people have given blood in each region of Northern Ireland in each year since 2000; and how many units of blood were given in each region in each year. [33067]

Mr. Woodward: The Northern Ireland Blood Transfusion Service (NIBTS) is a regional service that collects blood donations from a range of communities. These include: the public in general (74 per cent. of all donations); sessions in the workplace (8 per cent.); schools—from 17 and 18-year-olds (1 per cent.); colleges and universities (2 per cent.); hospital settings (4 per cent.); and from NIBTS HQ (6.5 per cent.) and the agency's shared facilities at College Street, Belfast (4 per cent.). Data are not collected on any other 'regional' basis within Northern Ireland.

The figures for blood donations made in each year since 2000 are as follows:

	Whole blood donations	Approximate number of donors per year
2004–05	67,384	42,000
2003–04	68,799	43,000
2002–03	67,797	42,000
2001–02	66,982	42,000
2000–01	69,702	44,000

Business Rate

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what assessment he has made of the impact on (a) jobs in Northern Ireland and (b) the economy in Northern Ireland of the Government's business rates proposals. [31275]

Angela E. Smith: No assessment has been made.

A commitment however has been given to undertake an initial assessment on the impact and effectiveness of this change as soon as practical after 1 April 2007.

Business Start-ups

Mr. Peter Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many new business start-ups there were in each of the last five years in (a) East Belfast, (b) North Belfast, (c) South Belfast and (d) West Belfast. [31957]

Mr. Hanson: The following table presents the number of new business start-ups offered assistance by Invest NI during each of the last 3½ years, analysed by Belfast parliamentary constituency. The information is not available for the financial years prior to April 2002, since the data used to record most of this activity did not capture the detail required to report at constituency level.

Parliamentary constituency	2002–03	2003–04	2004–05	2005–06[1]	Total

Child Obesity

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many children were suffering from obesity in Northern Ireland in (a) 1994 and (b) 2004. [32524]

Mr. Woodward: The information requested is not available.

Civic Studies

Mr. Peter Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what steps his Department is taking to promote (a) knowledge of and (b) interest in parliamentary government in schools in Northern Ireland. [31977]

Angela E. Smith: Citizenship is one of the key themes of the revised Northern Ireland curriculum and will introduce pupils to parliamentary democracy. Legislation will be in place by September 2006 but Citizenship is already being piloted in over two-thirds of post-primary schools. Feedback has indicated that young people have enjoyed these lessons.

The Department of Education also provides a copy of the Northern Ireland edition of the Young Citizens Passport to all year 11 pupils. The booklet is a valuable source of information to young people and covers topics such as Parliament and The NI Assembly.

Conservation Areas

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland (1) how many dedicated qualified conservation area officers are employed by the Northern Ireland Planning Service; and how many of those are (a) members of the Institute of Historic Building Conservation and (b) not members but eligible for membership; [32688]

(2) which planning districts in Northern Ireland have a dedicated qualified conservation area officer responsible for the management of conservation areas and other designated areas; [32690]

(3) how much money was spent by his Department on external consultants' fees relating to conservation areas in each year since 2002. [32689]

Angela E. Smith: There are seven dedicated planning officers who provide advice on conservation area matters. Two officers are members of the Institute of Historic Buildings Conservation. One officer is eligible but not a member. One officer is currently training and will become eligible.

There is at least one dedicated officer in each divisional planning office. Qualifications are as above with the remainder having taken, or undertaking, appropriate training.

Details of the money spent on external consultant fees relating to conservation areas each year since 2002 are contained in the following table.

	Expenditure (£)
2002–03	103,929
2003–04	105,174
2004–05	21,983
April-October 2005	36,594

GCSE

Mr. Peter Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will make a statement on the quality of the GCSE exam in Northern Ireland. [31997]

Angela E. Smith: The level of attainment at GCSE continues to improve and young people are increasingly better motivated and prepared for examinations. The regulatory bodies in England, Wales and Northern Ireland work closely with all the awarding bodies on the accreditation and marking of public examinations to ensure that standards are maintained. In Northern Ireland, the marking of exam scripts is subject to extensive moderation by CCEA, whose standards are independently assessed by the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority (QCA).

Consultants/Special Advisers

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will list recipients of consultancy fees paid by each Government Department in the Province over each of the last three years. [24855]

Angela E. Smith: A list of the recipients of consultancy fees paid by each of the 11 Departments of the Northern Ireland Administration and the Northern Ireland Office (excluding Agencies and non-departmental public bodies) has been placed in the Library.

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many (a) consultants and (b) special advisers were employed by his Department in each year since 1997; what the cost of each was in each year; and if he will make a statement. [27417]

Mr. Woodward: The information requested is as follows.

(a) Consultants

The number of consultants employed by the Northern Ireland Office in each year since 1997 could be answered only at disproportionate cost.

The cost to the Department of employing external consultants in each year since 1997 is as follows:

(b) Special Advisers

Since 2003, the Government have published on an annual basis the names and overall cost of special advisers and the number in each pay band. For the most recent information I refer the hon. Member to the statement made by my right hon. Friend, the Prime Minister on 21 July 2005, Official Report, 158–162WS. Information on the numbers of special advisers prior to 2003 was provided at regular intervals and this information will be available in the Library of the House.

Departmental Finance

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the real terms percentage increase in allocated resources for his Department (a) was for the period 1997–98 to 2004–05 and (b) is estimated to be between 2005–06 and 2007–08 (i) for each period and (ii) for each year. [31040]

Mr. Woodward: The following information refers to the Northern Ireland Office (including its Agencies and NDPBs). It does not include information for the 11 Departments of the Northern Ireland Administration.

Drug Awareness

Mr. Peter Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many teachers who specialise in drug awareness and prevention are employed in schools in each education board in Northern Ireland. [31976]

Angela E. Smith: Drugs education is delivered in schools as part of a wider programme of Personal, Social and Health Education. As recommended by departmental guidance, all schools have a designated teacher for drugs education. Drugs awareness training is available to all teachers and every post-primary school, and many primary schools, have at least one teacher who has received it.

Fire Officers

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many fire officers in Northern Ireland have reported sick with a stress related illness in each of the last five years. [32224]

Mr. Woodward: Information provided by the Northern Ireland Fire and Rescue Service is given as follows. This relates solely to full-time firefighters. Information is not available for retained firefighters.

Freedom of Information

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many Freedom of Information applications his Department has received; how many have taken more than 20 days to process; and how many of these gave rise to complaints about the time taken. [31215]

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many applications for information under the Freedom of Information Act 2000 have been received by each of the Northern Ireland Government Departments in 2005. [32523]

Angela E. Smith: Since the Freedom of Information Act 2000 came fully into operation on 1 January 2005, the Office of the First Minister and Deputy First Minister has published statistics on the performance of the 11 Northern Ireland Departments on a quarterly basis. Similarly, figures for the Northern Ireland Office are included in the Department for Constitutional Affairs quarterly update for Whitehall Departments. The total number of requests received by each Department between 1 January 2005 and 30 June 2005 are set out in the following table. The table also notes the number of requests that took more than 20 days to process. Figures for the third quarter, 1 July 2005 to 30 September 2005, should be available towards the end of the year. Only two Departments have received complaints referring to the time taken to process a request. The Department for Regional Development has received one complaint, while the Department of the Environment has received three.

Department	Number of requests received[1]	Number of requests where 20 working day deadline was extended[2]	Number of other requests where the 20 working day deadline was exceeded
Agriculture and Rural Development	131	3	7
Culture, Arts and Leisure	[3]48	3	22
Education	75	7	3

Regional Development	208	2	8
Social Development	86	2	9
Office of the First Minister and Deputy First Minister	48	3	2
Northern Ireland Office	110	18	20

[1] Figures include requests made under the Environmental Information Regulations 2004 (EIRs).
[2] This figure includes the number of requests made under the FOI Act, where the 20-day period was extended to allow consideration of the balance of the public interest, and the number of requests made under the EIRs, where the 20-day period was extended because of the complexity or volume of the request.
[3] The DCAL figure includes requests made to the Public Record Office of Northern Ireland.

GPs

Mr. Peter Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many people have registered with general practitioners in East Belfast in each year since 1998. [31998]

Mr. Woodward: The information requested is provided in the following table.

Number of new registrations for general practitioners at general practices located within East Belfast

October to September each year	Number of new registrations
2004-05)	4,138
2003-04	3,995
2002-03	3,675
2001-02	4,127

Notes:

1. The Central Services Agency only holds archived data on new registrations from 2001, data for earlier years are not available.

2. The practices within East Belfast have been identified as being within Belfast, East parliamentary constituency.

Maritime Safety

Mr. Peter Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland (1) what assessment he has made of the merits of employing fully trained lifeguards along beaches and publicly used coastline in Northern Ireland; [18145]

(2) if he will list the beaches which are manned by qualified lifeguards in Northern Ireland; [18226]

(3) what assessment he has made of the merits of funding for coastal local government districts who have no lifeguards manning the coastline in their borough; [18228]

(4) what requirement there is on local government councils who have responsibility for coastlines and beaches to have them properly manned for public use. [18229]

Angela E. Smith: No assessment has been made by the Government of the need for fully trained lifeguards on public beaches in Northern Ireland, nor of the funding for this activity.

While most of the beaches in Northern Ireland are the responsibility of district councils, there is no statutory requirement on them to provide lifeguards along publicly used beaches.

However, I am aware that both Down district council and Newry and Mourne district council now have trained beach lifeguards stationed at Tyrella and Cranfield beaches respectively. In addition, I welcome the work being undertaken by Limavady, Coleraine, and Moyle councils and the National Trust to improve safety on their public beaches along the North Coast, by working in conjunction with a range of agencies including the Royal Society for the Prevention of Accidents; the Royal National Lifeboat Association; the Coastguard; the Ambulance Service for Northern Ireland; and the Royal Life Saving Society.

Graffiti

Mr. Peter Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many prosecutions there have been against people found putting graffiti on property in each of the last five years in (a) East Belfast and (b) Castlereagh. [31995]

Mr. Hanson: Prosecution data for the specific act of putting graffiti on property cannot be separately identified. The figures shown in table 1 include prosecutions for the offences of criminal damage, possessing an article with intent to damage property, and malicious damage. The geographical breakdown is based on offenders addresses that fall within the PSNI District Command Units of East Belfast and Castlereagh. Such a breakdown is not available for 1999.

Data relating to 2004 will be available in early 2006.

Table 1: Persons prosecuted for criminal damage offences[1] 2000–03

	Belfast East	Castlereagh
2000	63	29
2001	48	21
2002	38	28
2003	59	33

[1] Includes criminal damage, possessing an article with intent to damage property, and malicious damage.

Note:
Data are based on the police District Command Unit in which an offender's address falls. The District Command Unit structure became operational in April 2001. However, for the purposes of comparability, calendar year 2000 and first quarter 2001 data are also provided based on 2001 DCU structure.

Housing

Mr. Peter Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many houses have been built in (a) Belfast East, (b) Belfast North, (c) Belfast South and (d) Belfast West in each year since 1980. [31942]

Angela E. Smith: Accurate data to answer the question are not readily available. However, the Annual Housing Land Availability Monitor prepared by DOE, Planning Service provides information from 1998 on the annual amount of residential units built in Belfast city council area set out as follows. Castlereagh and Newtownabbey council areas are also included for information.

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many social housing schemes are planned in each council area in the Province, over the next three years; and if he will make a statement. [32101]

Mr. Hanson: The target across Northern Ireland is to start 1,500 new social houses per annum over the next three years from the identified programme.

The Northern Ireland Housing Executive is responsible for assessing housing need and for prioritising the units in the development programme.

The programme is reviewed each December to take account of new priorities. The planned programme for 2005–06 is reasonably firm but some adjustments will be made to the latter two years to take account of slippage and reassessed priorities. This may result in increases in some council areas and reductions in others.

Retirement Age

Dr. McCrea: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what plans the Government have for the retirement age in Northern Ireland. [31028]

Angela E. Smith: Plans for retirement age in Northern Ireland are outlined in the draft Employment Equality (Age) Regulations (Northern Ireland) which are currently subject to public consultation. A copy of the consultation document has been placed in the Library.

Railways

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland which railway stations in Northern Ireland fall below the standards required by the Disability Discrimination Act 2005; and if he will make a statement. [32105]

Mr. Woodward: The Disability Discrimination Act 2005 does not apply to Northern Ireland. However, an Order in Council, the Disability Discrimination (NI) Order, will shortly be laid. At present none of Northern Ireland Railways stations currently fully comply with the Disability Discrimination Act 1995 (DDA 1995). However, Translink have embarked on a project, funded by Government, to upgrade railway stations and halts in accordance with the DDA 1995 and they are working closely with Disability Action to ensure that those standards are met. The project is expected to be complete by September 2008.

Illegal Taxis

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many people in Northern Ireland have been prosecuted for operating an illegal taxi service in each of the last 10 years. [32228]

Angela E. Smith: Unfortunately the requested information is not available prior to April 2003.

The following information is however available:

	Number of taxi operators prosecuted
April 2003 to March 2004	336
April 2004 to March 2005	212
April 2005 to November 2005	95

Judges (Northern Ireland)

Mr. Peter Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many judges have been appointed in Northern Ireland in each year since 1990. [31981]

Bridget Prentice: I have been asked to reply.

Since 1990, 77 judicial appointments have been made in Northern Ireland.

In addition 272 lay magistrates were appointed in April 2005.

Respect

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what steps are being taken to educate (a) primary and (b) post-primary school children about the need to treat people from different ethnic backgrounds with respect; what budget has been allocated for such work; and if he will make a statement. [32100]

Angela E. Smith: Schools are currently required to teach the cross-curricular themes of Education for Mutual Understanding and Cultural Heritage, which aim to foster respect for others and improved community relations. This will continue with the introduction of Citizenship Education as a key theme of the revised curriculum.

The Department of Education does not allocate resources for specific areas of the curriculum.

The Department has funded a number of relevant publications for use in schools. These are: a Guide for School Management to the Human Rights Act 1998 (Human Rights Commission) and Human Rights Awareness for School Managers (Children's Law Centre).

Medical Instruments

Mr. Peter Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much money was spent by each health board on medical instruments for use in each year since 1998; and what the projected spend in Northern Ireland is in (a) 2006 and (b) 2007. [31956]

Mr. Woodward: The expenditure on the purchase and maintenance of medical and surgical equipment incurred by each health board (including the spend for the board itself and the trusts within the host board area) for the period 1998–99 to 2003–04 is given as follows:

£000

Northern Ireland Civil Service (Transfers)

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what plans he has to permit civilians employed by the Home civil service and working in the Royal Irish Regiment to transfer to the Northern Ireland civil service; and if he will make a statement. [31281]

Angela E. Smith: The Northern Ireland civil service is facing its own efficiency pressures as a result of 'Fit for Purpose' and other current initiatives. However, the Northern Ireland civil service has agreed, in principle, an arrangement whereby staff from UK Departments based in Northern Ireland who have been earmarked for compulsory redundancy could seek appointment to the Northern Ireland civil service at administrative entry grades. It is planned to agree a protocol between the NICS, the relevant UK Departments and the Civil Service Commissioners for Northern Ireland.

Music (Support Staff)

Mark Durkan: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many permanent curriculum support staff for music are employed by each education and library board; how many were employed by each board in 2004; and what numbers are projected for 2006–07. [31329]

Angela E. Smith: It is a matter for each education and library board to determine the number of curriculum support staff to be employed. The number of permanent curriculum support staff for music employed by each of the five education and library boards is set out in the following table. The information relates to the Boards' Curriculum Advisory and Support Services (CASS) and the figures provided are the full-time equivalent (FTE) number of permanent staff in 2004–05 and current estimates for 2005–06 and 2006–07.

[1] Undetermined at present.
[2] SEELB and WELB are unable to determine the level of provision for 2006–07 at this time.
[3] staff were redeployed within the Curriculum Advisory and Support Service and three took early retirement.

Neighbourhood Partnerships

Mr. Peter Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will list the members on each Neighbourhood Partnership in the four Belfast constituencies; what the position of each on the Neighbourhood Partnership is and who they represent. [31946]

Mr. Hanson: Details of membership of each established partnership including the organisation they represent has been placed in the Library.

It should be noted that the boundary of the Colin Neighbourhood Renewal Area also falls into the Lagan Valley constituency.

Parking Tickets

Mr. Peter Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many unpaid parking tickets there were in Northern Ireland in each of the last 10 years, broken down by local authority area. [31952]

Mr. Woodward: The statistics requested have been placed in the Library.

The Police Service of Northern Ireland currently records statistics by District Command Unit. These were previously recorded by Sub-Divisional Command. The earliest available figures relating to unpaid parking tickets are from 1997.

Police

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many police officers in Northern Ireland have reported sick with a stress related illness in each of the last five years. [32141]

Mr. Woodward: The number of officers who have reported sick with a stress related illness is not recorded.

The following table provides figures for the number of instances that officers reported sick citing stress related illness as a reason, or in which stress has been listed during the medical certification process. An individual officer might report sick with stress on more than one occasion: every occasion is included in the total

Stress related sickness absence 2001 to present

Quangos

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many people are members of quangos in Northern Ireland; and what the total cost of quangos in Northern Ireland was in each of the last 10 years. [31289]

Angela E. Smith: Information on the number of members of each non-departmental public body in Northern Ireland, and their cost (shown as total gross expenditure) since 1998, can be found in the Cabinet Office annual publication "Public Bodies", copies of which are held in the Library. Information for 2004 and 2005 is also detailed on the on-line searchable database, accessible through the Cabinet Office website:

www.civilservice.gov.uk/the_future_of_the_civil_service/agencies_public_bodies/index.asp.

Recycling

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what steps he is taking to increase the amount of household waste that is recycled annually in Northern Ireland. [32135]

Angela E. Smith: The Environment and Heritage Service (EHS) promotes the recycling of household waste in two main ways: grant support to district councils and through education and awareness programmes. Its work has yielded encouraging results, with the overall household recycling rate in Northern Ireland growing from 10 per cent. in 2002 to 18.9 per cent. in 2004–05. All district councils in Northern Ireland have increased their household recycling rates. Two district councils have achieved a household recycling rate of almost 40 per cent.

Since 2001, EHS has provided councils with £36 million via the Waste Management Grant Scheme to help procure infrastructure and assist with operating costs associated with meeting their Waste Management Plans. In 2004–05, £10 million was distributed under the scheme which will finish in 2006–07. Future support for councils will be reviewed in light of the new Waste Management Strategy which is currently out for consultation and is scheduled for publication in March 2006.

The "Wake up to Waste" campaign succeeded in raising the profile of waste management among the general public. EHS continues to reinforce the "Reduce, Reuse, Recycle" messages and develop new initiatives aimed at achieving behavioural change through education and awareness.

Roads Service

Mr. Peter Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much funding was received from the European Parliament for the Streetwise Project of the Roads Service in Northern Ireland. [31937]

Mr. Woodward: The chief executive of Roads Service (Dr. Malcolm McKibbin) has been asked to write to the hon. Gentleman in response to this question.

Letter from Malcolm McKibbin to Mr. Peter Robinson, dated 29 November 2005:

You recently asked the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland a Parliamentary Question regarding how much funding was received from the European Parliament for the Streetwise Project of the Roads Service of Northern Ireland. I have been asked to reply as this issue falls within my responsibility as Chief Executive of Roads Service.

Streetwise is one of seven Euro-Regional projects concerned with the provision of traffic control facilities and travel information across the Trans European Road Network (TERN). The projects have been in existence since 2001 and the current programme of funding by the European Union is due to finish at the end of 2006. Representatives from the seven projects meet frequently and there is an annual conference at which developments within the projects are highlighted. I understand the project chairpersons are working closely to ensure that European Funding for this work will continue post 2006.

Funding from the European Union for the current project is provided to offset the costs of studies (50% funding) and implementation of facilities (8% funding). The balance of the costs is met from the national budgets of the project partners.

To date, Roads Service has received £345,077.37 funding from the European Union for the Streetwise Project.

I hope this information is helpful.

School Buildings

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland when he expects to announce the new build programme for the remaining primary schools in the Coleraine area which require new school buildings. [32563]

Angela E. Smith: The North Eastern education and library board and the Catholic Council for Maintained Schools are responsible for identifying the need for school major capital works schemes for their respective sectors, and presenting their proposals to the Department of Education. The Department does not currently have any schemes in planning for primary schools in the area. The Board has identified in its current five-year strategic investment plan, several schemes for replacement primary schools in the Coleraine area though none of them have as yet been presented to the Department for consideration.

Sewerage Treatment

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the estimated completion date is for the sewerage treatment works that will service the village of Drumahoe, Londonderry. [32221]

Mr. Woodward: The chief executive of Water Service (Mrs. Katharine Bryan) has been asked to write to the hon. Gentleman in response to this question.

Letter from Mrs. Katharine Bryan to Mr. Gregory Campbell, dated 29 November 2005:

You recently asked the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland a Parliamentary Question about the estimated completion date for the sewage treatment works that will service the village of Drumahoe, Londonderry (32221). I have been asked to reply as this issue falls within my responsibility as Chief Executive of Water Service.

As part of the Drumahoe Sewerage Scheme, Water Service plans to decommission the existing wastewater treatment works at Drumahoe. It will be replaced with on-site storm water storage facilities and a new sewage pumping station that will transfer flows to the upgraded Culmore Wastewater Treatment Works. The contract has been awarded and the scheme is programmed to commence on site in January 2006. It will take 9 months to complete.

Special Schools

Mr. Peter Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many special schools in Northern Ireland have closed since 1998. [31974]

Angela E. Smith: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the reply that I gave to the hon. Member for East Antrim (Sammy Wilson) on 10 November 2005, Official Report, column 762W.

Stormont Estate (Northern Ireland) Order

Sammy Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland for what reasons the Stormont Estate (Northern Ireland) Order 2006 makes provision for the sale of all of the land on the Stormont Estate; and what assessment he has made of the merits of selling land as well as buildings under these proposals. [31248]

Angela E. Smith: The proposed Stormont Estate (Northern Ireland) Order 2006 removes, in part, the restrictions that currently prevent the Department of Finance and Personnel selling or disposing of the lands within the Estate.

For the purposes of the legislation a proposed boundary has been drawn around a designated part of the Estate occupied by some civil service office buildings. The designated area includes Castle Buildings, Craigantlet Buildings, Dundonald House, Hillview Buildings, Massey House and all the sectional buildings. The extent of the land to be transferred with the buildings is limited to what constitutes reasonable access to, and around, the buildings and the land currently used for car parking.

The draft legislation and proposed boundary is currently subject to public consultation.

Tax Credits (Helpline)

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will introduce a helpdesk information technologist specialist in the Regional Inland Revenue Office in Belfast to deal with computer errors in tax credit claims from Northern Ireland. [17127]

Dawn Primarolo: I have been asked to reply.

The existing Business Help Desk serves both Great Britain and Northern Ireland. It liaises regularly with Northern Ireland Help Desk Liaison Officers.

There are no current plans to set up new arrangements solely for Northern Ireland.

Teachers

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many teaching vacancies there are in each education and library board in Northern Ireland. [31282]

Angela E. Smith: Since vacancies are identified by Boards of Governors in accordance with the staffing complement they determine under LMS, the information is not held by the Department of Education nor by the relevant employing authorities, and could be provided only at disproportionate cost. I have, however, asked the Department to consider the routine collection of such information in order to inform future decisions about teacher demand.

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many (a) primary and (b) secondary school teachers in Northern Ireland will have reached retirement age in each of the next five years. [32127]

Angela E. Smith: The number of teachers in (a) primary and (b) secondary schools who will reach retirement age in the next five years is detailed as follows:

Teachers who will have attained age 65 years at 31 August each year:	Primary schools	Secondary schools	Total
2006	9	6	15
2007	6	3	9
2008	11	6	17
2009	22	15	37
2010	34	22	56
Total	82	52	134

Tourism

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what plans he has to establish an interpretation centre for foreign visitors at the site of the River Bann massacre in Portadown. [31279]

Angela E. Smith: The Northern Ireland Tourist Board has received no correspondence and has no plans in relation to this venture.

The board has focused its resources on delivery of the five Signature Projects in the Strategic Framework for Action 2004–07.

Valuation and Lands Agency

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will place in the Library the internal guidance (a) manual and (b) methodology to be used for the forthcoming domestic rates revaluation in Northern Ireland. [29714]

Angela E. Smith: The majority of capital valuations are produced using the computer-assisted mass appraisal approach. Copies of the current internal working documents and guidance being used for the valuation of the remaining properties have been placed in the Library.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will place in the Library the instructions and advice documents prepared by the Valuation and Lands Agency for the Northern Ireland domestic rates revaluation and introduction of discrete capital values. [30707]

Angela E. Smith: I will arrange for copies of the guidance and instructions to be placed in the Library when they are available in April 2006.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland whether the Valuation and Lands Agency plans to use contractors for the domestic rates revaluation in Northern Ireland. [30708]

Angela E. Smith: At present the Agency are considering the limited use of private sector contract staff to assist with the review of computer generated values in a small number of areas around Belfast.

Women Executives

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what estimate he has made of the number of women in senior board positions in businesses in Northern Ireland in each of the last 10 years. [32234]

Mr. Hanson: It is not possible to provide information on the number of women in senior board positions in businesses in NI. However, estimates of the number of females in employment classified as 'Managers and Senior Officials' are available from the NI Labour Force Survey. The following table shows the estimated number of female 'Managers and Senior Officials' in each summer (June-August) quarter since 1996.

Females in employment classified as 'Managers and Senior Officials' (1996–2005)

Period	Female Managers and Senior Officials[1]
Summer
1996	24,000
1997	28,000
1998	28,000
1999	25,000
2000	25,000
2001	27,000
2002	25,000
2003	26,000
2004	25,000
2005	30,000

[1] The estimates up to and including summer 2000 were based on a previous occupational coding and refer to female 'Managers and Administrators'.

Work Force

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the total estimated work force was in Northern Ireland in each of the last 10 years. [32233]

Mr. Hanson: Estimates of the number of work force jobs at June each year in Northern Ireland for the period 1996 to 2005 can be found in the following table.

Work force jobs[1,2] in Northern Ireland

June of each year	Number
1996	692,300
1997	712,500
1998	720,300
1999	731,100
2000	749,400
2001	763,100
2002	771,100
2003	790,100
2004	794,900
2005	808,600

HEALTH

Alzheimer's Disease

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent discussions she has had with the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence about drug treatment for Alzheimer's disease; and if she will make a statement. [29783]

Jane Kennedy [holding answer 21 November 2005]: I received an update on the progress of the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE's) appraisal of drugs for the treatment of Alzheimer's disease during a meeting with the NICE'S chair and chief executive on 9 June 2005.

Derek Wyatt: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what opportunity cost analysis she has evaluated comparing the daily cost of proven drugs for Alzheimer sufferers with the cost of full-time caring if the drugs are unavailable. [30611]

Jane Kennedy: No such analysis has been undertaken by the Department. The National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE) is currently reviewing its guidance on the clinical and cost effectiveness of drugs for the treatment of Alzheimer's disease.

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what discussions she has had with the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence regarding the (a) clinical effectiveness and (b) cost effectiveness of treatments for Alzheimer's; when meetings were held; what conclusions were drawn (i) from and (ii) following the discussions; and if she will make a statement. [27222]

Jane Kennedy [holding answer 10 November 2005]: Ministers received an update on the progress of the National Institute for Health Clinical Excellence's (NICE'S) work to review its appraisal of drugs for Alzheimer's disease during the course of routine discussions on 2 March 2005, with the NICE chief executive, and 9 June 2005, with the NICE chairman and chief executive.

The Department responded on 22 March 2005 to NICE'S appraisal consultation document, 'Donepezil, Rivastigmine, Glanatamine and Memantine for the treatment of Alzheimer's disease'. A copy of that response was published on and is still available from the Department's website at www.dh.gov.uk. A copy is available in the Library.

Breast Cancer

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when she expects Herceptin will be available to patients in England for the treatment of each stage of breast cancer. [19861]

Jane Kennedy: Herceptin is already licensed throughout the European Community for the treatment of certain categories of advanced or late-stage breast cancer. In accordance with the press release made by the European Medicines Agency (EMEA) on the 22 September 2005, we anticipate that the company will be applying for an extended licence for the treatment of early-stage breast cancer and that this new use may then be approved throughout the European Community by July 2006, assuming that data in support of the quality, safety and efficacy for the intended use are satisfactory.

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when she expects the use of Herceptin will be approved for the treatment of early stage breast cancer. [19867]

Jane Kennedy: In accordance with the press release made on the 22 September 2005 by the European Medicines Agency (EMEA) and if the Roche company are able to make their formal application to the EMEA together with their new clinical trial data by early next year then, assuming the scientific experts issue a positive opinion, it could be licensed for treatment of early-stage breast cancer throughout the Community by July 2006.

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how long she expects the European Medicines Evaluation Agency will take to approve Herceptin for the early stage treatment of breast cancer. [19909]

Jane Kennedy: In accordance with the press release made on 22 September 2005, the European Medicines Agency (EMEA) anticipated that Roche planned to submit an application for Herceptin in the beginning of 2006. The statement further indicated that similar types of submissions in important oncology indications in the past have been dealt with by the EMEA in an expedited review within two to three months.

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health on what date Herceptin was submitted to the European Medicines Evaluation Agency for formal market authorisation to treat early stage breast cancer. [19910]

Jane Kennedy: A formal application and new clinical data for Herceptin in the treatment of early stage breast cancer has not yet been submitted to the European Medicines Evaluation Agency for authorisation. We anticipate that the formal application will be early next year when the company have completed their analysis of all of the new clinical trial data.

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps she is taking to ensure the rapid approval of Herceptin for early stage breast cancer. [19929]

Jane Kennedy: I have asked the Medicines and Healthcare products Regulatory Agency to do everything possible to ensure that formal applications from the company are evaluated and determined as rapidly and efficiently as possible while ensuring appropriate standards of safety, quality and efficacy are maintained by the European Medicines Evaluation Agency, the scientific experts and the European Commission.

Paul Farrelly: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will make additional funding immediately available to primary care trusts to fund the prescription of Herceptin for advanced stage breast cancer sufferers who have already been diagnosed as likely to benefit from the drug. [18609]

Jane Kennedy [holding answer 17 October 2005]: Herceptin for the treatment of advanced breast cancer was approved by the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE) in March 2002 and should already be available to all women who might benefit from it.

Funding to meet recommendations of NICE has been included in the allocations made to primary care trusts (PCTs) for the period 2003–04 to 2005–06. This funding is not separately identified. The total of PCT allocations is £45 billion for 2003–04, £49.3 billion for 2004–05 and £53.9 billion for 2005–06. This represents an increase of £12.7 billion or an average of 30.8 percent., over the three years 2003–04 to 2005–06.

Tony Baldry: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment she has made of the availability of Herceptin on prescription throughout the NHS. [30642]

Jane Kennedy: Data on the availability of Herceptin on prescription throughout the national health service is not collected centrally. However, in 2004 Professor Mike Richards, the National Cancer Director, published a report which examined the usage of certain cancer drugs across the country, including Herceptin. An update of Professor Richard's report will be published next year and will provide a picture of Herceptin prescribing in the first half of 2005.

Herceptin is already licensed and available on the NHS for woman diagnosed with advanced breast cancer. It is not yet licensed for women with early breast cancer but, as with other unlicensed drugs, can be used in some cases.

Cheshire and Merseyside Strategic Health Authority

Rosie Cooper: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people worked in the Cheshire and Merseyside strategic health authority, including Southport and Ormskirk hospital trust; and what the staff costs were (a) in October and (b) at its inception. [26377]

Mr. Byrne: The information requested on staff costs is not held centrally. Information on all national health service staff by selected group, for Cheshire and Merseyside strategic health authority by organisation, as at 30 September 2002 and 30 September 2004 has been placed in the Library.

Commercial Confidentiality

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health on what basis she exercises her discretion to release information covered by commercial confidentiality for reasons of public accountability; and if she will list the occasions on which she has exercised this discretion in each of the last five years. [29747]

Jane Kennedy: In considering any decision to disclose confidential information the commercial sensitivity of that information is assessed on a case by case basis at the time the request for disclosure is made, against the criteria set out in the Freedom of Information Act (2000). The Freedom of Information Act 2000 became effective on 1 January 2005.

The information requested on the release of such information is not readily available and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Staff

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will list the 10 highest-paid employees in her Department; what the (a) job title and (b) salary including bonuses is of each; and whether the individual concerned is (i) a civil servant and (ii) a contractor in each case. [27431]

Jane Kennedy: The information requested is shown in the following table.

The 10 highest paid staff within the Department by salary, including bonuses.

Job title	Status	£000 Total salary including bonus
Director General of NHS IT[1]	Civil Servant	280–285
Permanent Secretary	Civil Servant	225–230
Commercial Director[1]	Fixed Term Appointment	220–225
Group Director of Health and Social Care Services Delivery and Department of Health Board Member	Civil Servant	190–195
Chief Medical Officer	Civil Servant	180–185
Director of Programmes and Performance	Civil Servant	170–175
Director of Strategy	Civil Servant	150–155
Director of Access	Civil Servant	145–150
Director of Health Partnerships	Civil Servant	145–150
Project Lead—White Paper	Civil Servant	140–145

[1] These staff are rewarded above the standard level for the pay band due to the fact they have scarce skills that attract premium rates of pay.

Notes:

1. Information on civil service reward, including colleagues at senior levels, is available on its website at:www.civilservice.gov.uk/index.asp
2. Information on the Department's resource accounts for 2004–05 is available on its website at: www.dh.gov.uk/PublicationsAndStatistics/Publications/PublicationsPolicyAndGuidance/PublicationsPolicyAndGuidanceArticle/fs/en?CONTENT_ID=4123393&chk=sqhBec

Diabetes

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what long-term safety and efficacy data the Department makes available on insulin analogues; [28665]

(2) what research she has evaluated on the clinical effects of the use of insulin analogues by insulin-requiring diabetes patients; [28671]

(3) what assessment has been made of the safety of NovoRapid for use in children; and what assessment she has made of the post-marketing data available in this respect. [28676]

Jane Kennedy: All new drugs applications, including insulins such as Novorapid are evaluated by the commission on human medicines (CHM), formerly the committee on safety of medicines (CSM) which advises the Licensing Authority as to whether a marketing authorisation should be granted. The applicant includes, in their submission, results of clinical trials conducted in the proposed indication for which the licence is sought. The first marketing authorisation for the recombinant human insulin was granted to NovoNordisk on 9 June 1982. This application was considered by the expert biologicals sub-committee of the CSM, in March 1982 and subsequently by the main committee. The application for a new drug substance such as recombinant human insulin would have been scientifically and medically reviewed to ensure it satisfied the criteria for safety, quality and efficacy. Medicinal products, including human or animal insulin, will not be granted a marketing authorisation unless supporting data have been provided to demonstrate that the quality, safety and efficacy are satisfactory for the intended use. The type of clinical development programme, clinical trial data, that should support the registration of new medicinal products for the indication treatment of diabetes mellitus is detailed in European guidance documents, for example, notes for guidance on clinical investigation of medicinal products in the treatment of diabetes mellitus. CPMP/EWP/1080/00. These are read in conjunction with other pertinent European and International (ICH) clinical guidelines. The marketing authorisation applications are evaluated by the CSM before they are granted.

Data from clinical trials submitted at the time of licensing examined the safety and efficacy of the human insulin analogues (insulin glargine, insulin aspart, insulin detemir, insulin lispro and insulin gluisine) in diabetic patients treated for up to 12 months. A summary of the available data submitted in support of the licence applications for many of the insulin analogues is made publicly available in the form of a European Public Assessment Report.

The longer term safety of the use of human insulin analogues in routine clinical practice is monitored by the Medicines and Healthcare products Regulatory Agency (MHRA). Any possible new safety issue to emerge is evaluated and, if necessary, product information for prescribers and patients is updated to reflect the new data.

As with all medicines, reports of suspected adverse drug reactions (ADRs) to insulin analogues are collected by MHRA and CHM through the spontaneous reporting scheme, the Yellow Card scheme. A summary of the ADRs that have been received in association with a medicine, including insulin analogues, is available on the MHRA's website.

East Lancashire NHS Trust

Kitty Ussher: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the expenditure of East Lancashire NHS Trust on NHS services was in each of the last five years for which figures are available. [28005]

Mr. Byrne: The information is not available in the format requested. However, information relating to the total operating expenses is shown in the table.

Total operating expenses of the East Lancashire national health service trust and its predecessor trusts

	NHS trust	Expenditure (£000)
2000–01	Blackburn, Hyndburn and Ribble Valley NHS Trust	101,488
	Burnley Healthcare NHS Trust	113,521
2001–02	Blackburn, Hyndburn and Ribble Valley NHS Trust	114,282
	Burnley Healthcare NHS Trust	125,506
2002–03	Blackburn, Hyndburn and Ribble Valley NHS Trust	116,154
	Burnley Healthcare NHS Trust	103,577
2003–04	East Lancashire Hospitals NHS Trust	231,430
2004–05	East Lancashire Hospitals NHS Trust	255,313

Free Prescriptions

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people have been prosecuted under the Health Act 1999 for wrongful claims of free prescriptions in London in each year since 2000. [16904]

Jane Kennedy: Since August 2001, a penalty charge system has been in place in respect of those falsely claiming exemption to national health service pharmaceutical charges. Since its introduction in August 2001, 160,000 penalty notices have been issued. The total amount recovered to date is £2,950,000. These figures are national and are not broken down into regions as requested. This is done through the civil courts as criminal prosecution of offenders would not be a cost-effective way of dealing with such high volume but low-value frauds.

Health Finance (Manchester)

Paul Rowen: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which (a) primary care trusts, (b) health trusts and (c) acute trusts have overspent their budget in Greater Manchester in each of the last five years; and what the overspend was in each case. [28468]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 14 November 2005]: The position reported in the 2004–05 final accounts showed that the Greater Manchester strategic health authority (SHA) reported a surplus of £30 million. The latest financial year for which the audited financial information of all national health service organisations, SHAs, primary care trusts (PCTs) and NHS trusts, is available is 2004–05. For 2006–07, PCT allocations within the Greater Manchester SHA area total £3,602,273. For 2007–08, the total is £3,940,609. This represents a cash increase of £338,336 since 2006–07. The total cash increase over the two years—2006–07 and 2007–08—is £661,727.

Those NHS trusts that overspent in the Greater Manchester area for 2000–01 to 2004–05 are shown in the table. No PCTs in Greater Manchester have recorded an overspend against their revenue resource limit in this period.

Deficits by NHS trusts in Greater Manchester SHA from 2000–01 to 2004–05

Trust type	Trust name	(Deficit) £000	Financial year
Ambulance	Greater Manchester Ambulance NHS Trust	(109)	2000–01
Health	Wigan and Leigh Health Services NHS Trust	(84)	2000–01
Acute	South Manchester University Hospital NHS Trust	(6,980)	2002–03
Acute	Trafford Healthcare NHS Trust	(744)	2003–04
Acute	Cental Manchester/Manchester Children's NHS Trust	(7,727)	2004–05
Acute	Trafford Healthcare NHS Trust	(3,490)	2004–05
Acute	Bolton Hospitals NHS Trust	(2,706)	2004–05
Acute	Wrightington, Wigan and Leigh NHS Trust	(743)	2004–05

The 2004–05 data is available in the Library. It is also available on the Department's website at:

Herbal Medicines Directive

David Tredinnick: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps she is taking to address the concerns of small and medium-sized manufacturers about the cost of registering products under the Traditional Herbal Medicinal Products Directive. [32273]

Jane Kennedy: We are using the full transitional period, until 2011, permitted under European Directive 2004/24/EC to allow companies with unlicensed herbal medicines on the market at April 2004 the opportunity to spread over a number of years their applications to register products. Measures taken by the Medicines and Healthcare products Regulatory Agency (MHRA) to contain the regulatory impact of the directive include meetings with individual companies to give regulatory advice free of charge on companies' provisional plans to register products; also the provision of guidance notes on a range of implementation issues. Discussions continue between the MHRA and the industry's herbal forum about the practical application of the European guidelines on the quality of herbal medicinal products.

Human Embryo Research

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will list the cures for diseases which have been developed as a result of human embryo research in each of the last 12 years; and if she will make a statement. [30413]

Jane Kennedy: Embryo research has been vital in the development of treatment techniques for infertility, resulting in improved outcomes for patients. For treatments such as in vitro fertilisation (IVF), the United Kingdom's live birth rate per treatment cycle started has increased year on year.

Research with embryonic stem cells has been licensed to allow scientists to understand and develop treatments for conditions such as motor neuron disease, diabetes and cystic fibrosis. It is still too early to speak of cures, but scientific and medical opinion is that stem cell research will revolutionise medicine in the 21st century.

Independent Treatment Centres

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 5 October 2005, Official Report, column 2827W, on independent sector treatment centres, whether doctors working in independent sector treatment centres carrying out work equal to a consultant in the NHS are required to be on the GMC specialist register. [21605]

Mr. Byrne: Yes. All surgeons working in independent sector treatment centres are required to be registered with the General Medical Council and on the specialist register. This is the same registration standard as required in the national health service.

Internet Medicine Purchases

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps she is taking to increase (a) men's and (b) women's awareness of possible risks of buying prescription-only medicines on the internet. [30722]

Jane Kennedy: The Medicines and Healthcare product Regulatory Agency (MHRA) issued a general press release on 9 June to national print and broadcast media, ethnic press and trade publications, alerting people that some websites offering medicinal drugs belong to unscrupulous vendors. It mentioned that many of these vendors sell unlicensed and prescription-only medicines, and some sell counterfeit drugs that are harmful. This information was then targeted to specific segments of the population to assist consumers to make informed decisions about their health.

On 16 June, MHRA issued a press release to men's lifestyle magazines, warning them about buying lifestyle drugs such as erectile dysfunction medication, weight and hair loss products from the internet. This was followed on 27 June with the further release of two press releases. One was again targeted at men's lifestyle magazines, warning men to be careful when buying human growth hormone products from websites. The second was targeted at women's lifestyle magazines, warning women about purchasing slimming pills from the internet.

Since 9 June, the MHRA press office had 38 calls from the media about these issues and organised nine briefings with specific journalists.

In addition, details of successful prosecutions brought by the enforcement group of the MHRA are made available by press releases which serve to reinforce the message that buying medicines via the internet can be dangerous.

Mental Health

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the forecast year-end deficit of Oxfordshire Mental Health NHS Trust is in 2005–06; and what the year-end position of the trust has been in each year since 1997–98. [25104]

Caroline Flint: The Department does not currently publish unaudited information relating to the in-year financial position of national health service organisations. The following table shows the audited year-end financial position of Oxfordshire Mental Health Trust from 1997–98 to 2004–05.

Organisation: Oxfordshire Mental Healthcare NHS Trust

£000

	Over/(under) spend
1997–98	(3,311)
1998–99	(1,855)
1999–2000	(2,153)
2000–01	7,343
2001–02	8
2002–03	1
2003–04	2
2004–05	2

Patient Safety

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will develop a single entry point for the reporting of patient safety incidents through the National Programme for Information Technology. [27929]

Jane Kennedy: I refer the hon. Member to the reply I gave on 23 November 2005, Official Report, column 2118W.

PCT Commissioning (Oxfordshire)

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what discussions there were between her Department and the Thames Valley strategic health authority on the subject of putting primary care trust commissioning in Oxfordshire out to tender prior to its announcement. [32147]

Caroline Flint: [holding answer Monday 28 November 2005]: Discussions were held at official level with Thames Valley strategic health authority (SHA) regarding their proposals prior to their submissions.

We wanted SHAs, in partnership with local stakeholders, to identify various options for the reconfiguration of locally, which would then be assessed by the external panel against the criteria in "Commissioning a Patient-led NHS". If the proposals are adjudged to meet these, they will be subject to full public consultation.

I regret that my previous response on this matter, to question 26170, on 14 November 2005, Official Report, column 971W, was incorrect.

Plagiocephaly

Jon Trickett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) if she will require all primary care trusts to offer treatment for plagiocephaly; and if she will make a statement; [19503]

(2) if she will make a statement on the treatment of plagiocephaly. [19504]

Mr. Byrne: There is a difference between positional plagiocephaly, where flattening of the skull is caused by pressure from the surface on which a baby is customarily laid and craniosynostosis, where the cranial sutures have closed prematurely. In the latter case, surgery may well be necessary to prevent future health problems. The national service framework for children, young people and maternity services sets out standards to ensure that primary care trusts (PCTs) base decisions about treatments on the best evidence available to them. Treatment for plagiocephaly is available should doctors and PCTs consider it necessary.

Prescriptions

Mr. Holloway: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many pre-payment certificates for prescriptions have been issued in Gravesham in each of the last 12 months. [29823]

Jane Kennedy: Information on the number of pre-payment certificates (PPCs) issued for Gravesham is not separately identifiable. However, the number of PPCs issued for England, by month for each of the last 12 months is as follows:

	Number
November 2004	93,823
December 2004	77,050
January 2005	95,299
February 2005	91,868
March 2005	127,400
April 2005	84,821
May 2005	90,624
June 2005	97,744
July 2005	88,624
August 2005	92,221
September 2005	93,500
October 2005	92,922

Primary Care Trusts

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the projected spending from central Government funding was per head of the population for each primary care trust in England in 2004–05. [25071]

Mr. Byrne: The information requested has been placed in the Library.

Mr. Holloway: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent representations she has had from the local primary care trust in Gravesham; and on what subjects. [28601]

Caroline Flint: There have been no representations to the Department from the local primary care trust in Gravesham.

Private Sector NHS Treatment

Clive Efford: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) whether guarantees have been given to private sector providers of health services regarding the proportion of NHS patient services that will be transferred to them; [17422]

(2) what discussions she has had with private sector health providers regarding the transfer of NHS services; [17423]

(3) what guarantees private sector health providers have sought regarding the transfer of NHS services to enable them to secure financial backing for their businesses. [17424]

Mr. Byrne: Patients will decide if they want to use an independent or national health service service.

No guarantees have been given to private sector providers of health services regarding the proportion of NHS patient services that will be transferred to them.

No discussions have taken place with private sector health providers regarding the transfer of NHS services, and no guarantees have been sought. Providers will have to bid against the terms laid down by the Department.

Public Service Agreements

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the time scales are for achievement of all aspects of 2004 public service agreement target number three. [29205]

Caroline Flint: The Department's public service agreement (PSA) targets and associated technical notes were agreed with HM Treasury as part of 2004 spending review and are published on the Department's website at www.dh.gov.uk. PSA technical notes contain the measurement details of the targets including what the specific time scales are for achievement of all aspects 2004 public service agreement target number three.

Recovery and Support Unit

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the role is of her Department's Recovery and Support Unit; and what information it collects. [29825]

Jane Kennedy: The recovery and support unit (RSU) is the team within the Department that works with strategic health authorities (SHA) on the performance of the national health service. SHAs are the local headquarters of the NHS and are responsible for the performance management of NHS trusts and primary care trusts. The RSU uses routine data collections from the NHS and in exceptional circumstances will make a specific request for data from SHAs on a specific issue.

Roaccutane

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what steps she (a) has taken and (b) is taking in response to the conclusion of the European-wide review of isotretinoin (Roaccutane) that (i) the psychiatric adverse events be kept under review and (ii) more frequent periodic safety update reports be produced than is usual for a product of Roaccutane's age; [31190]

(2) what research her Department has commissioned into the side effects of isotretinoin (Roaccutane); and what assessment she has made of the significance of (a) the Medical and Healthcare products Regulatory Agency review of paediatric data on isotretinoin and (b) the suicide of David Roberts while taking the drug. [31191]

Jane Kennedy: The European-wide review of isotretinoin was completed in October 2003. This review was led by the United Kingdom and resulted in the harmonisation of the product information for prescribers, summary of product characteristics, throughout Europe. The review also developed a set of important principles for nationally agreed pregnancy prevention programmes.

Warnings about depression and suicide have been present in the product information for isotretinoin since 1997. Since the completion of the European review, the issue of psychiatric reactions associated with isotretinoin has been considered by an expert working group of the Committee on Safety of Medicines on two occasions in 2003 and 2005. The reviews by the expert group led to the product information being expanded to include warnings about the possibility of further psychiatric adverse reactions. During their review the expert group conducted a thorough assessment of all reports of suicidal behaviour received in association with isotretinoin. The patient information leaflet for isotretinoin currently includes extensive warnings about the potential psychiatric side effects associated with isotretinoin treatment.

Following the European review, the marketing authorisation holders for isotretinoin are required to submit annual periodic safety update reports (PSURs), more frequently than the three-yearly PSURs required by legislation for a product of this age. These PSURs contain a summary of all information on safety from any data source in the period of the report.

The Medicines and Healthcare products Regulatory Agency (MHRA) Department's strategy on medicines for children was implemented in July 2004. As part of the strategy, the MHRA has been assessing clinical data in children for those medicines where such data are known to exist with a view to modifying the product information for these medicines where appropriate.

For isotretinoin, clinical data concerning its use in children was known to exist, as isotretinoin was included in the United States of America Food and Drug Administration's (FDA) list of active ingredients for which paediatric exclusivity had been granted. This data was obtained, and the MHRA assessment report of them was considered by the paediatric medicines working group of the Committee on Safety of Medicines. The assessment report has been published on the MHRA website.

The working group recommended that no changes to the product information for isotretinoin were necessary as a consequence of the review of this data. The group also recommended that the marketing authorisation holder should provide information regarding the adverse event reports received in children aged 13 to 17 years in future PSUR. These recommendations have been adopted by the MHRA.

The MHRA continually monitors the safety of isotretinoin and any new data, including that generated by research will be carefully considered and independent expert advice sought from the Commission on Human Medicines, which has replaced the Committee on Safety of Medicines and the Medicines Commission as the Government's independent expert advisory committee. Similarly all reports of suicidal behaviour associated with isotretinoin are carefully reviewed as part of the ongoing review of psychiatric reactions associated with isotretinoin.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Absent Parents

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many payments by absent parents have been written off as irrecoverable in each year since 1997; what the (a) average and (b) upper decile value of such payments is; and how many payments are in the upper decile. [32903]

Mr. Plaskitt: The administration of the Child Support Agency is a matter for the Chief Executive. He will write to the hon. Member.

Letter from Stephen Geraghty, dated 28 November 2005:

In reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about the Child Support Agency the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Chief Executive.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, how many payments by absent parents have been written off as irrecoverable in each year since 1997; what the (a) average and (b) upper decile value of such payments is; and how many payments are in the upper decile.

The Agency has no legislative power to write off debt, and current debt is now the cumulative total of 12 years. However for accounting purposes the Agency recognises that in some cases some debt is "probably un-collectable" (for example, where the non-resident parent is long-term unemployed, has gone abroad, or has died). The accounts are therefore adjusted accordingly.

The cumulative total of "probably un-collectable" debt from 1997, as reported in the Agency's Annual Reports and Accounts, is summarised in the following table:

	Amounts classed as probably un-collectable (£ million)
2004–05	1,984.400
2003–04	2,004.847
2002–03	1,965.340
2001–02	1,915.312
2000–01	1,692.380
1999–2000	1,410.853
1998–99	1,069.680
1997–98	829.237
1996–97	748.040

The amounts stated as probably un-collectable in the accounts are based on a statistically valid sample and do not relate to specific cases. Unfortunately the Agency does not hold information on the average and upper decile value of unpaid maintenance payments.

I hope you find this information useful.

Asbestos

Tony Lloyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people (a) were diagnosed with and (b) died from asbestos-related illnesses in each county in England in each of the last five years. [33183]

Mr. Plaskitt: The number of mesothelioma deaths and deaths with underlying cause of death specified as asbestosis in each county or unitary authority in England in each of the last five years for which data are available is given in the two tables.

Lung cancer deaths caused by asbestos are clinically indistinguishable from those caused by other agents such as tobacco smoke and so cannot be tabulated directly. It is estimated that about the same number of lung cancer deaths due to asbestos occur each year as mesothelioma deaths.

Statistics on the number of diagnoses of asbestos-related diseases are not readily available. However, in the case of mesothelioma, annual numbers of deaths give a good indication of the number of diagnosed cases since the disease is almost always rapidly fatal following diagnosis.

Child Support Agency

Mr. Paul Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what his latest estimate is of the average time taken to resolve complaints to the Child Support Agency for (a) old scheme cases and (b) new scheme cases. [30033]

Mr. Plaskitt: The administration of the Child Support Agency is a matter for the Chief Executive. He will write to the hon. Member.

Letter from Stephen Geraghty, dated 29 November 2005:

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what his latest estimate is of the average time taken to resolve complaints to the Child Support Agency for (a) old scheme cases and (b) new scheme cases.

The Agency has an internal target to resolve 68% of client complaints or agree a resolution plan within 15 working days of receipt of a complaint from a Child Support Agency client. I cannot provide the average time taken to resolve complaints but year-to-date information on performance against this standard is set out in the table below.

Percentage of CSA client complaints for which a resolution plan has been agreed within 15 days of the receipt of the complaint, by scheme, September 2005

Old scheme	91
New scheme	87
Overall	88

I hope you find this response helpful.

Mr. Paul Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what his latest estimate is of the total cost to date of the set-up and running costs of the Enforcement Directorate. [30035]

Mr. Plaskitt: The administration of the Child Support Agency is a matter for the chief executive. He will write to the hon. Member.

Letter from Stephen Geraghty, dated 29 November 2005:

In reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about the Child Support Agency the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Chief Executive.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what his latest estimate is of the total cost to date of the set-up and running costs of the Enforcement Directorate.

The Enforcement Director was appointed on 1 November 2004 and the Directorate went live from 1 April 2005.

The set up costs were approximately £100k and the running costs for the period 1 April 2005 to 31 October 2005 amount to approximately £6.6m which includes legal costs and bailiff charges. This does not include the staffing costs for the Belfast Enforcement Team.

I hope you find this response helpful.

Mr. Paul Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the average administration cost per case on (a) the new scheme and (b) the old scheme was in each of the last four years. [30036]

Mr. Plaskitt: The administration of the Child Support Agency is a matter for the chief executive. He will write to the hon. Member.

Letter from Stephen Geraghty, dated 29 November 2005:

In reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about the Child Support Agency the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Chief Executive.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the average administration cost per case on (a) the new scheme and (b) the old scheme was in each of the last four years.

Information is not currently available in the format requested. We expect information on administration costs for the Child Support Agency to be available after the Departments new Resource Management System is introduced in the Child Support Agency in 2006. In the meantime, the Agency does publish interim unit cost information in accordance with Public Service Agreement (PSA 9) which is contained in the Annual Report and Accounts.

As the new child support scheme was only introduced from March 2003 only data from then to October 2005 would be available.

Mr. Paul Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what his latest estimate is of the backlog of new claims held by the Child Support Agency. [30038]

Notes:

1. A case is defined as cleared if a maintenance calculation has been carried out and a payment arrangement between the parent with care and the non resident parent is in place; a case has been identified as claiming Good Cause or is subject to a Reduced Benefit Decision; or the application is identified as being a change of circumstances on an existing case; or the case has been closed.
2. Figures exclude new scheme cases which have been progressed and cleared clerically. This is because it is not possible to determine how many clerically progressed cases are still included in the Agency's work in progress, or were originally included in the intake figures.
3. New scheme uncleared figures include cases transferred from Jobcentre Plus which are awaiting processing and input to the main CS2 computer system (some 81,000 cases). These figures may be subject to revision in future issues of these tables.
4. Percentage cases for whom maintenance is due who have made one or more payments via collection service, or had an initial maintenance direct arrangement in place is arrived at by summing number of cases receiving payment via collection service or on maintenance direct and expressing as a percentage of sum of collection service cases, those on maintenance direct and those with a calculation and no charging schedule.
5. Volumes are rounded to the nearest thousand, and percentages to nearest whole per cent.
6. Robust data from the new IT system (CS2) covering the period March 2003-December 2004 is not currently available, and is under development.

Mr. Paul Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of the average number of Child Support Agency staff who deal with each case brought to the agency by parents with care. [30042]

Mr. Plaskitt: The administration of the Child Support Agency is a matter for the chief executive. He will write to the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Stephen Geraghty, dated 29 November 2005:

In reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about the Child Support Agency the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Chief Executive.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of the average number of Child Support Agency staff who deal with each case brought to the Agency by parents with care.

I am unable to answer this question as we do not record information on the numbers of staff who deal with each case.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of the compliance rate for the self-employed in cases with the Child Support Agency. [30065]

Mr. Plaskitt: The administration of the Child Support Agency is a matter for the chief executive. He will write to the hon. Member.

Letter from Stephen Geraghty, dated 29 November 2005:

In reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about the Child Support Agency the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Chief Executive.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made for the compliance rate for the self-employed in cases with the Child Support Agency.

In September 2005, the case compliance rate for collection service cases in which non-resident parent was classified as self-employed was 63%. This compares to an overall Agency case compliance rate of 70%.

A case is defined as case compliant if it was open at the end of the reporting period, and had paid all or part of any maintenance that was due (either regular or arrears) via the collection service over the preceding quarter.

Additionally, the Agency measures cash compliance, which is the total amount of maintenance received via the collection service over any three month period as a percentage of the total amount charged (both regular maintenance and arrears). In September 2005, the cash compliance rate for cases in which non resident parent was classified as self-employed was 60%. This compares to an overall Agency cash compliance rate of 68%.

These figures for self-employed reflect the status of the non-resident parent currently held on the system as at the last intervention by the Agency. This will not necessarily reflect the current status of the non-resident parent if the Agency has not been informed of, or not yet actioned, a change of circumstances.

I hope you find this helpful.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what definition he uses of (a) full compliance and (b) partial compliance in Child Support Agency statistics; and whether the definition has changed in the last five years. [30067]

Mr. Plaskitt: The administration of the Child Support Agency is a matter for the Chief Executive. He will write to the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Stephen Geraghty, dated 29 November 2005:

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what definition he uses of (a) full compliance and (b) partial compliance with the Child Support Agency and whether the definition for statistical purposes has changed in the last five

A case is defined as compliant if maintenance was due via the collection service (either regular maintenance and/or arrears) in the preceding quarter, the case was open at the end of that quarter, and any payment was received during the period.

A case is considered to be fully compliant if the amount of maintenance received over the reporting period is greater than or equal to the amount charged, and partially compliant if a maintenance payment is received that is less than the amount due.

The above definitions, for statistical purposes, have not changed over the last five years.

I hope you find this useful.

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) if he will break down the Child Support Agency's compliance figures by the income band of the non-resident parent for all Scottish claims; [31123]

(2) what proportion of Scottish claims under the Child Support Agency old scheme have been reassessed in the last three years; [31127]

(3) how many changes of circumstance have been reported by non-resident parents in Scotland on the (a) old and (b) new Child Support Agency scheme in each month of the last three years; [31133]

(4) what estimate he has made of the compliance rate for the self-employed in cases with the Child Support Agency in Scotland. [31134]

Mr. Plaskitt: The information requested is not available.

Derek Wyatt: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions when Tina Smith, a constituent of the hon. Member for Sittingbourne and Sheppey, will receive the sum agreed to be owed to her by the Child Support Agency. [31480]

Mr. Plaskitt [holding answer 24 November 2005]: The administration of the Child Support Agency is a matter for the chief executive. He will write to the hon. Member.

Letter from Mike Isaac, dated 29 November 2005:

In reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about the Child Support Agency, the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Chief Executive. I am replying on behalf of Stephen Geraghty as Director of Parliamentary Business.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions when Tina Smith, a constituent of the honourable Member of Sittingbourne and Sheppey will receive the sum agreed as owed to her by the Child Support Agency.

As details about individual cases are confidential I have written to you separately about this case.

Tony Lloyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will make a statement on his plans for reform of the Child Support Agency. [33186]

Mr. Plaskitt: The Child Support Agency's chief executive, Stephen Geraghty, is currently undertaking a root and branch review of the agency. He will report to Ministers and we will make announcements shortly.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many workarounds are Child Support Agency staff currently having to use in order to process a child support application on the CS2 IT system. [18788]

Mr. Plaskitt: There are procedural interventions or workarounds within the online procedures for many parts of the business process. But they are not relevant for all types of cases.

In a typical case, a caseworker might encounter between one and four workarounds in progressing the case to first payment. This depends on its complexity and the extent to which it is linked to an existing case or cases.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of the cost of introducing a disregard of all Child Support Agency payments in assessing benefit entitlement; and if he will make a statement. [20162]

Mr. Plaskitt: The estimated cost of disregarding all Child Support payments, including those not arranged through the Child Support Agency, in assessing benefit entitlement is £230 million. This includes a full disregard in income support, housing benefit and council tax benefit and is based upon the current number of benefit units who are in receipt of Child Support payments.

Council Tax

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions when pensioners in Coventry, South will receive their financial support for council tax bills due for 2005. [32323]

Mr. Timms: The £200 payment to help with council tax bills is being issued with the winter fuel payment. Payments commenced in early November and will continue until Christmas. Eligible people who do not receive a winter fuel payment will need to claim and all claims must be received by 30 March 2006.

Housing Benefit

Mr. Paul Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the cost of administering the appeals system for housing benefit was in each year since 1997. [5486]

Mrs. McGuire: This is a matter for Christina Townsend, chief executive of the Appeals Service. She will write to the hon. Member.

Letter from Christina Townsend to Mr. Paul Goodman dated 29 November 2005:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question regarding what the cost of administering the appeals system for Housing Benefit was in each year since 1997. As the Appeals Service only assumed responsibility for Housing Benefit appeals from July 2001, I am unable to supply figures prior to that date.

As the cost of processing appeals does not vary significantly between the different types of appeals, our accounting records do not analyse our costs by different appeal type. The best indication I can, therefore, give of the cost of administering the appeals system for Housing Benefit, is by providing on a pro-rata basis the costs of the Appeals Service to the proportion of Housing Benefit appeals.

On this basis, the calculated costs for administering Housing Benefit appeals since the above date are as follows;

	Cost (£)
2001–02	879,786
2002–03	2,102,310
2003–04	2,379,699

The rise in costs reflects the increase in the number of Housing Benefit appeals being handled by the Appeals Service, which has risen from 3,963 in 2001/2 to 9,793 in 2003/4.

Pension Service

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many calls made to the Pension Service (a) met an engaged tone, (b) were received and (c) were handled by an adviser during September, broken down by call centre; and what area is served by each call centre. [33062]

Mr. Timms: The administration of the Pension Service is a matter for the chief executive, Ms Alexis Cleveland. She will write to the hon. Member.

Letter from Alexis Cleveland, dated 29 November 2005:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question concerning how many calls made to the Pension Service have (a) met an engaged tone (b) been received and (c) been handled by an adviser during September broken down by call centre; and if he will provide details of the area served by each call centre. This is something that falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Chief Executive of The Pension Service.

During September 2005, 1,036,547 calls were received by The Pension Service and 986,811 were answered by agents, equating to 95.2% of total calls received.

Of these calls received only 3,138 (0.3%) were blocked (attempted calls receiving an engaged tone or message during this period).

The table below shows the number of calls received, calls answered and calls blocked in September 2005 for all Regional Pension Centres and the Pension Credit Application Line and shows the area served by each call centre. In addition I am now also able to supply details for the other telephone lines offered by the Pension Service.

You will see that almost all the blocked calls occurred in our International Pension Centre. The telephony system in this centre is being upgraded, and since September the number of lines available to customers has been increased.

Welfare Reform/Incapacity Benefit

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to his oral statement on welfare reform and incapacity benefit of 22 November 2005, Official Report, column 1417, where and when the hon. Member for Sutton and Cheam made the remarks to which he refers. [33208]

Mr. Hutton: My recollection was that the hon. Member made the remarks during the "Health Question Time" session in which he and I participated, at the Royal College of Nursing Congress on 25 April 2005.

On checking the record of that debate, I accept that the hon. Member referred to the retirement age of existing members of public sector pension schemes.

Winter Fuel Allowance

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions whether the £200 one-off payment this winter with the winter fuel allowance will be (a) means-tested and (b) paid to pensioners receiving 100 per cent. council tax benefit. [33172]

Mr. Timms: The £200 payment is intended to assist older people who pay at least part of their council tax—that is, people who do not qualify for 100 per cent. council tax benefit. It is paid to eligible people who are not receiving the guarantee credit element of pension credit. It is a tax free lump sum payment that will not affect any state pension or benefit a person may get including council tax benefit, housing benefit and pension credit.

People in receipt of the guarantee credit element of pension credit, who are entitled to the maximum help available through council tax benefit, are not entitled to the £200 payment.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Alcohol Sales

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will make a statement on progress in working with alcohol retailers and producers to agree and implement minimum standards for socially responsible promotion and retailing of alcohol products. [26661]

Paul Goggins: We are taking forward a comprehensive alcohol harm reduction programme that will tackle a range of alcohol harms, including crime, and is being implemented across government. As part of this, we have been working closely with the alcohol industry to develop a principles and standards document that will help retailers and producers to prevent sales to under-age children and drunks, put an end to irresponsible drinks promotions and put in place end of evening dispersal policies to help drinkers get home safely and quickly.

The document was published on 18 November, and we will continue to work with the industry to ensure rapid implementation.

Antisocial Behaviour

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps he is taking to tackle antisocial behaviour in Bexhill-on-Sea. [31540]

Hazel Blears: Dealing with antisocial behaviour is a priority for the Safer Rother Partnership; the partnership was the first Crime and Disorder Reduction Partnership (CDRP) in the area to recruit a dedicated worker to support young people who are at risk of an antisocial behavioural order (ASBO) or acceptable behaviour contract (ABC) and those who have an ASBO or ABC to reduce the incidence of breaches. This worker works with all the agencies through a specific Joint Information Sharing Group that meets on a monthly basis to identify young people at risk of or involved in antisocial behaviour and/or criminal activity. This group identifies and carries out multi-agency work and diversionary interventions. Six ABCs and six ASBOs have been issued in Bexhill to date.

In addition, there have been joint operations with Sussex police and Trading Standards to reduce the supply and availability of alcohol to young people within the Bexhill area. This operation successfully reduced violent crime by 24 per cent. over the summer and is now operating over the Christmas and new year period.

Three dispersal orders have operated across Bexhill over the last year which have been well received by local residents and businesses and reduced ASB in that area.

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many antisocial behaviour orders have been issued to citizens living in Bexhill-on-Sea. [31541]

Hazel Blears: Data on antisocial behaviour orders (ASBOs) are not available below local authority area (LAA) level. A table is available on the crime reduction website at www.crimereduction.gov.uk giving the number of ASBOs issued in England and Wales where restrictions have been imposed in LAAs.

Appeals (Foreign Evidence)

Dr. Iddon: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department for what reasons evidence obtained in another EU country and used to convict a person in a British court cannot be re-examined on appeal. [30012]

Fiona Mactaggart: We are not aware of any rule to this effect. Restrictions on the use of evidence obtained abroad are found in section 9 of the Crime (International Co-operation) Act 2003. Section 9(2) says that evidence can be used only for the purposes for which it was obtained. A request should normally ask for evidence to be used for investigation, trial and any subsequent judicial proceedings (including of course an appeal). If that is done then the evidence can be used for the appeal. It is conceivable that a deficient letter of request might mention only the initial trial, in which case it might be insufficient to allow for the evidence to be used at an appeal. If this occurred, it could be rectified by sending a second letter or request for the purposes of the appeal.

Section 9(3) requires that the evidence be returned once it is no longer required. If evidence has been returned, or if it consisted of live witnesses, then a further letter of request may again be necessary for the purposes of the appeal.

Asylum Seekers

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people arrived in the UK and claimed asylum in each quarter since 1 January; and how many of the initial decisions on the applications were (a) refused asylum, (b) granted asylum, (c) granted humanitarian protection and (d) granted discretionary leave to remain. [32816]

Mr. McNulty: There were 7,015 asylum applications (excluding dependants) in Q1 2005, 6,220 in Q2 and 6,315 in Q3. Information on initial decisions on these applications is unavailable and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

However, initial decisions on asylum applications and their outcomes made in the first three quarters of 2005 are available in the Q3 2005 Asylum Bulletin published on 22 November 2005 on the Home Office research development and statistics directorate website at http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/immigration1 .html.

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will make a statement on his policy on deportations of failed asylum-seekers to Zimbabwe. [21820]

Mr. McNulty: I refer the hon. Member to the reply I gave on 8 November 2005, Official Report, column 353W to the hon. Member for Wantage (Mr. Vaizey).

Aviation Security

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) males and (b) females have been (i) charged with and (ii) convicted of offences under sections (A) 21A, (B) 21B, (C) 21C, (D) 21D and (E) 21E of the Aviation Security Act 1982 in each year since 1993. [29296]

Fiona Mactaggart: Statistics on the number of persons charged with a crime are not centrally collected.

Data collected on the Home Office Court Proceedings database for offences under these sections of the Aviation Act 1982 form part of a miscellaneous group, which cannot be separately identified.

Basic Command Units

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department which local authority wards are within each basic command unit in England and Wales. [17500]

Hazel Blears: In 2004 the research, development and statistics department (RDS) at the Home Office compiled a table detailing which local authority wards comprised each basic command unit in England and Wales. The majority of this information is still accurate and is available in the Library. Basic command unit and Ward boundaries are subject to change and in the absence of any current requirement for such data this table has not been updated. Any such updating could be undertaken only at disproportionate cost.

Bruche Police Training Centre

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps he is taking to ensure that local people are involved in any decision on the future of the former police training centre at Bruche. [16891]

Hazel Blears: It is not yet possible to begin consultations with the local community because we do not yet know what options for use of the site might emerge for discussion. This will depend largely on who takes an interest in purchasing the site after it closes in May 2006.

Once this becomes clearer, we are very keen to work closely with Centrex to ensure an effective and early dialogue with local people over the future use of the sites at Bruche, Cwmbran and Ashford. Of course, any change in the use of sites will require planning permission and local authorities will need to involve local people in consultation over their decisions on any application. We would certainly welcome the involvement in all such discussions and consultations of the hon. Members representing communities affected by closure of Centrex sites.

Child Deaths (Prisons)

Mr. Llwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many child deaths there have been in penal custody in each year since 1997. [30453]

Fiona Mactaggart: The information requested is given in the table:

Deaths of young people under 18 in penal custody

	Number of deaths
1997	0
1998	3
1999	2
2000	3
2001	3

Child Pornography

Judy Mallaber: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) if he will list the (a) internet service providers and (b) mobile phone companies who are using their technology to block access to child pornography websites; [21387]

(2) what action his Department is taking to encourage (a) internet service providers and (b) mobile phone companies to block customers' access to child pornography websites following the Prime Minister's statement of 21 July 2004, Official Report, column 327. [21733]

Paul Goggins: We are working closely with the UK Internet Service Provider (ISP) industry, mobile operators and the Internet Watch Foundation as they pioneer solutions that will block their customers' requests to access websites that include child abuse images. On 6 September, the DTI Minister with responsibility for e-commerce, my right hon. Friend the Member for Cardiff, South and Penarth (Alun Michael), and I had a meeting with CEOs, or their representatives, from all the large ISPs and mobile phone operators. Until recently blocking sites was not a feasible option, but with improvements in technology it is now, and we welcome the efforts and commitment of major players in the industry in developing blocking solutions. All the major fixed and mobile ISPs either have solutions in place, or are committed to having them in place the near future. Given the sensitivity around this issue, not all companies wish to be named. Government will continue to work with the industry to restrict access to child abuse images.

Coltsfoot Consultants Ltd

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether his Department plans to meet representatives of Coltsfoot Consultants Ltd.; and if he will make a statement. [31291]

Paul Goggins: I am not aware of any existing plans from officials at the Home Office to meet representatives of Coltsfoot Consultants Ltd.

Commission for Integration

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when the membership of the Commission for Integration is expected to be decided; and when the Commission is expected to hold its first meeting. [29926]

Paul Goggins: The Home Secretary wrote to faith leaders and other key stakeholders on 21 September inviting views on the terms of reference and membership of the Commission. These views are currently being considered as part of our wider discussions and we hope to make an announcement about the Commission's membership and terms of reference before the end of the calendar year. The date for the first meeting will follow thereafter.

Community Support Officers

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the average salary paid to a community support officer is in 2005–06. [30793]

Hazel Blears: The salary and allowances of a community support officer are determined within each police force by the chief officer of that force and the police authority. We estimate that the average payment of salary and allowances this year is about £20,100.

Mr. Holloway: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many police community support officers have enlisted in Gravesham since 1 January 2000; and how many of these remain in service. [29899]

Hazel Blears: Figures for the Gravesham district are not collected centrally.

Conviction Rates

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what percentage of (a) burglaries and (b) crimes against individuals resulted in a conviction in each year since 1997; and what percentage resulted in custodial sentences. [30570]

Hazel Blears: The table shows the number of convictions for burglary and the number resulting in a custodial sentence expressed as a percentage of the number of burglaries recorded, in each year since 1997. Neither the recorded crime data nor the court proceedings data enable offences against individuals to be separately identified from offences against businesses and organisations in all cases.

Correspondence

Sir Gerald Kaufman: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when he will answer the letter to him dated 22 September from the right hon. Member for Manchester, Gorton with regard to (a) Mr. Mohammed Ashraf and (b) Ms Juliet Kufvor. [27085]

Mr. Charles Clarke: The information is as follows:

(a) I replied to my right hon. Friend the Member for Manchester, Gorton about Mr. Mohammed Ashraf on 24 November.

(b) I replied to my right hon. Friend the Member for Manchester, Gorton about Ms Juliet Kufour on 11 November.

Clare Short: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when the Minister for the Criminal Justice System and Offender Management will reply to the letter from the right hon. Member for Birmingham, Ladywood, of 24 August on behalf of Serge Paul and West Midlands Prison Visiting Transport Service.[29151]

Fiona Mactaggart: My noble Friend Baroness Patricia Scotland of Asthal replied to my right hon. Friend on 21 November enclosing a copy of her reply to Mr. Paul dated 9 September.

Clare Short: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when he will reply to the letter of 6 July from the right hon. Member for Birmingham, Ladywood, (acknowledged on 25 July ref B15446/5) on Home Office case reference K1025532 regarding Mr. Karenzada. [32274]

Mr. McNulty: The Immigration and Nationality Directorate (IND) wrote to my right hon. Friend on 22 November 2005.

Crime Reduction

David Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what measures have been introduced since 2001 to reduce crime against small businesses in (a) North West Leicestershire and (b) England; [31362]

(2) what steps are being taken to reduce the number of crimes committed against small businesses. [31377]

Hazel Blears: In 2002 the Government provided North West Leicestershire with over 200,000 for crime reduction measures. This was used to set up the 'Retail Radio' system in Coalville and Ashby to provide immediate intelligence on business crime such as shoplifting, crime in a neighbouring shop and violence against a shopkeeper. The funding was also used to set up the PubWatch scheme in the same areas.

More widely, in 2001 £15 million was given to the Small Retailers in Deprived Areas initiative (SRDA). Over the next three years, the SRDA helped 12,500 small businesses in the most deprived areas to improve security and introduce other crime prevention measures.

In January 2004, the Home Office established a Small Business Forum with members from a wide range of organisations to hear at first hand the particular crime problems small and medium sized enterprises face, and to develop and implement practical and effective measures to reduce those crimes.

Earlier this year we also provided nearly £1 million to the Action Against Business Crime Group to help set up local business crime partnerships in town and shopping centres across England and Wales.

David Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what methods his Department uses to record crimes against small businesses. [31394]

Hazel Blears: The Home Office publishes annual total crime statistics recorded by the police in England and Wales for the following offences specifically relating to business crime; robbery of business property, theft by an employee, theft from shops, and theft of an automatic machine or meter.

However we are aware that, given the complexity and range of crimes experienced by the business sector, no one method of collecting data will provide a sufficiently complete picture. We are therefore considering how both police and survey data collection can be refined and extended to give us a more accurate and comprehensive overview of the crimes experienced by businesses.

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will list the crime reduction funding streams available in each of the last five years. [26624]

Hazel Blears: The table shows the crime reduction funding streams that were allocated for national and local activities, by year, during the period in question. A number of national activities for various crime types were funded through general crime reduction grants.

As outlined in the 2004 National Audit Report on the Crime Reduction programme, the Home Office has reduced the bureaucratic burden on Crime and Disorder Reduction Partnerships by rationalising the number of funding streams and the associated monitoring procedures, from fourteen in 2003/04 to three main funds in 2005/06, with just a handful of minor budgets channelled through the Government Offices.

That progress will continue over the coming months, particularly with the roll out nationally of the Safer Stronger Communities Fund, which will combine a number of Home Office and Office of the Deputy Prime Minister funding streams into a single fund.

Crime Statistics

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the average number of crimes committed per day was in each police force area in the last year for which figures are available. [29194]

Hazel Blears: The available data relate to the number of crimes recorded by the police in a year. The latest information was published in table 6.02 of Home Office Statistical Bulletin number 11/05, "Crime in England and Wales 2004–05". This can be found on the following website:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/index.htm.

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the level of detection of burglaries was in each of the last eight years. [30572]

Hazel Blears: The information requested is given in the tables.

Custody Detention Suites

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what plans he has to extend the installation of lifesigns monitoring equipment in custody detention suites; what each unit costs; and if he will make a statement; [30932]

(2) what guidance he has issued regarding the appropriate use of lifesigns monitoring equipment in custody suites; and if he will make a statement. [30933]

Fiona Mactaggart: Lifesigns monitoring equipment was trialled in HMP Ashwell in 2003 by the Police Scientific Development Branch of the Home Office, and the results were sent to all chief officers in December 2003. However, no guidance was issued as the decision to install such equipment in custody suites and the negotiations for its costs are matters for individual chief officers, and figures are not collated centrally.

Deepcut Barracks

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the cost was of the Devon and Cornwall police inquiry into Surrey police's investigation into the deaths at the Deepcut Barracks; and if he will make a statement. [32804]

Hazel Blears: The chief constable of the Devon and Cornwall police is responsible for the day to day operational management of the force and the deployment of resources. I will ensure that the chief constable receives a copy of the question and replies to you directly. Copies of the letter containing Devon and Cornwall police's response will be placed in the House Libraries.

Departmental Websites

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for the Hoine Department if he will take steps to ensure the Department's websites attain the W3C AAA standard of accessibility for people with visual and other disabilities; and if he will set a target date for this standard to be achieved by. [30967]

Mr. Charles Clarke: Current Cabinet Office guidelines recommend that Government websites adhere to a minimum of W3C WAI A standard (http://www.cabinetoffice.gov.uk/e-government/resources/handbook/html/2-4.asp#2.4.3). However, the Home Office realises and understands that although this leads to websites that are acceptable to impaired users, their experience of the site is still sub-standard. As such we are committed to bringing all of our websites up to at least AA level.

The core Home Office family of websites (sites with homeoffice.gov.uk addresses) has recently been redeveloped to improve the experience of all users. Before launch the sites were independently audited for their accessibility compliance and met most requirements up to AAA standard. Following final adjustments being made at present the sites will be resubmitted to RNIB for their 'See it Right' accreditation. They will then meet A, AA and most AAA criteria. This level will be met by Christmas 2005 with RNIB accreditation following in early 2006.

All new websites built by the Department will either fit into the core set of sites and will therefore inherit their standards or will be objectively audited to ensure compliance.

All new websites built by the department will either fit into the core set of sites and will therefore inherit their standards or will be objectively audited to ensure compliance.

Directors' Allocation Fund

Mr. Pelling: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what proportion of his Department's Directors' Allocation Fund funding stream from the Government office for London was made available to the London borough of Croydon in 2004–05. [32278]

Hazel Blears: In 2004–05, one project in Croydon was allocated funding under the Home Office Regional Directors' Allocation. A sum of £55,000 (out of the total allocation of around £1.2 million) was made available for the Croydon Family Justice Centre. The Centre enhances services to family violence, domestic violence and elder abuse victims in South London. It duplicates the San Diego Justice Centre, 'International Model of Excellence,' and will also help to ensure the success of the new Croydon Domestic Violence Integrated Court.

Domestic Burglar Alarms

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate he has made of the number of domestic burglar alarms activated in each police force area in England in each of the last five years; and how many of these were found to be genuine alarms indicating a crime in progress. [31297]

Hazel Blears: The information requested is not collected centrally.

Domestic Violence

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many victims of domestic abuse were of (a) British, (b) Indian, (c) Pakistani, (d) Bangladeshi, (e) North American, (f) South American, (g) Chinese and (h) African origin in each of the past 10 years for which figures are available; and how many were (i) married, (ii) co-habiting and (iii) single in each case. [31385]

Fiona Mactaggart: The British Crime Survey (BCS) routinely provides information on the number of incidents of domestic violence but not on the actual number of victims. The number of incidents is not broken down by nationality or marital status.

The 2004–05 BCS assessed the prevalence risk of domestic violence by marital status. The risk of victimisation (i.e. the percentage of people who had been victims of domestic violence once or more) was 0.2 per cent. among married people, 0.6 per cent. among cohabiting people and 0.8 per cent. among single people.

2004–05 ints	401

Mr. Michael Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many recorded incidents of domestic violence there were in West Mercia in each of the last five years. [30590]

Hazel Blears: From the information collected centrally on recorded crime, it is not possible to identify cases of domestic violence. Such offences are not specifically defined by statute and details of the individual circumstances of offences are not collected.

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department in how many incidents of domestic violence reported in (i) England, (ii) the Tees Valley and (iii) Middlesbrough South and East Cleveland in each year since 1997 the perpetrator was (a) male and (b) female. [31433]

Hazel Blears: From the information collected centrally on recorded crime, it is not possible to identify cases of domestic violence. Such offences are not specifically defined by statute and details of the individual circumstances of offences are not collected.

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) men and (b) women have been prosecuted for domestic violence in each year since 1997 in (i) England, (ii) the Tees Valley and (iii) Middlesbrough South and East Cleveland. [31434]

Fiona Mactaggart: Of all cases identified and flagged as domestic violence by the police and passed to the CPS in Cleveland Local Justice Area, 378 were prosecuted in 2004–05. In the first quarter of 2005–06, there were 151 prosecutions and in the second quarter there were 149 prosecutions. These are collected at Local Justice Area level and cannot be disaggregated further.

In their guidelines on investigating domestic violence, issued in November 2004, the Association of Chief Police Officers advised all forces to identify and flag domestic violence incidents. In April this year, the CPS also began a campaign to encourage police and prosecutors to identify and flag cases. Therefore, there is a likely increase in the number of prosecutions identified as domestic violence from 2004–05 to the first two quarters of 2005–06 due to the embedding of this activity. There are no centrally collected figures prior to 2004–05.

The gender of the persons prosecuted for domestic violence cases is not collected by the CPS.

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many recorded incidents of domestic violence there were in Staffordshire in each of the last five years. [32008]

Hazel Blears: From the information collected centrally on recorded crime, it is not possible to identify cases of domestic violence. Such offences are not specifically defined by statute and details of the individual circumstances of offences are not collected.

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many domestic violence prosecutions were undertaken in Staffordshire in each of the last five years. [32038]

Fiona Mactaggart: Of all cases identified and flagged as domestic violence by the police and passed to the CPS in Staffordshire, 1,268 were prosecuted in 2004–05. In the first quarter of 2005–06, there were 407 prosecutions and in the second quarter there were 524 prosecutions.

In their guidelines on investigating domestic violence, issued in November 2004, the Association of Chief Police Officers advised all forces to identify and flag domestic violence incidents. In April this year, the CPS also begun a campaign to encourage police and prosecutors to identify and flag cases. Therefore, there is a likely increase in the number of prosecutions identified as domestic violence from 2004–05 to the first two quarters of 2005–06 has been due to the embedding of this activity. There are no centrally collected figures prior to 2004–05.

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the nswer of 3 November 2005, Official Report, column 1252W, on domestic violence, when the (a) 2004 and (b) 2005 results on victimisation will be made available. [32186]

Hazel Blears: The British Crime Survey (BCS) measures victimisation against adults living in private households in England and Wales. Domestic violence is included as part of the survey's core measures of violent crime. The results from the 2004–05 BCS were published on 21 July 2005 in the Home Office Statistical Bulletin 11/05 'Crime in England and Wales 2004–05'. The 2005–06 figures will be published in July 2006.

The BCS also includes a self-completion module of questions on interpersonal violence; this covers domestic violence, sexual assault and stalking. This module was included in the 2004–05 survey, the results from which will be published in spring 2006. A module of questions on interpersonal violence has also been included in the 2005–06 BCS (currently in the field). The results from this module are intended for publication in 2007.

The results from the 2004 Offending, Crime and Justice Survey, which includes general data on victimisation of young people aged 10 to 25, were published on 24 November 2005, in the Home Office Statistical Bulletin 20/05 'Young people and crime: findings from the 2004 Offending, Crime and Justice Survey'. This report did not include domestic violence. The results from the 2005 survey will be published late 2006.

Drugs

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what proportion of drug users successfully completed drug treatment in 2004–05. [26660]

Caroline Flint: I have been asked to reply.

Overall, 75 per cent. (120,700) individuals either successfully completed treatment in 2004–05 or were retained in treatment on 31 March 2004.

53 per cent. of clients who were discharged remained in treatment for 12 weeks or more in 2004–05.

The Government is on track to achieve the public service agreement target to > "increase the participation of problem drug users in drug treatment programmes by 100 per cent. by 2008 and increase year on year the proportion of users successfully sustaining or completing treatment programmes".

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate he has made of the (a) quantity and (b) street value of drugs sold in England and Wales in 2005, broken down by type of drug; and if he will make a statement. [23178]

Paul Goggins: The latest estimates of the size of the market for illicit drugs were published by the Home Office in 2001 and refer to 1998. The following table sets out the study's estimate of the quantity and street value of the market for amphetamines, cannabis, cocaine, crack, heroin and ecstasy. Full details of this study (Occasional Paper 74) are available to download at http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/drugs1.html

Public Order

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) arrests and (b) prosecutions for (i) being drunk and disorderly, (ii) being found drunk on a highway, public place or on licensed premises and (iii) being drunk in or when entering a designated sports event there have been in each police force area in England and Wales, in each year since 1996. [18194]

Hazel Blears: The information requested on arrests is not collected centrally.

Tables 1–3 show the number of prosecutions for (i) being drunk and disorderly, (ii) being found drunk on a highway, public place or on licensed premises and (iii) being drunk in or when entering a designated sports event in each police force area in England and Wales, 1996–2003. Prosecution figures for 2004 will be available at the end of November.

Since April 2004 police in England and Wales have had the power to deal with the first two offences in question by issuing a penalty notice for disorder. Table 4 gives figures for the number of penalty notices issued for being drunk and disorderly and being found drunk on a highway in 2004 by each police force, alongside provisional figures for January to June 2005. issued for being drunk and disorderly and being found drunk on a highway in 2004 by each police force, alongside provisional figures for January to June 2005.

E-Borders Project

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the cost of the e-Borders project has been to date; and what the total projected cost is. [30802]

Mr. Charles Clarke: The most recent estimates are that e-Borders programme will cost £1,098 million (at present day values) over the period to 2019.

To date the programme has incurred expenditure of £7.8 million resource and £14.9 million capital which is mainly made up of costs for pilot projects such as Project Semaphore and Project Iris.

Environmental Sustainability

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what change there was in water consumption by his Department between 2002 and 31 March 2005. [16189]

Mr. Charles Clarke: The following table shows the changes in annual water consumption from 2002. The departmental water consumption data for key Home Office (non-agency) buildings for 2004–05 is not yet available. The figures relate to key office buildings on the non-prison Home Office estate.

Equality and Diversity

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 3 November 2005, Official Report, column 1254W, on equality and diversity, how much was allocated to race equality grants in each of the last 10 years for which figures are available. [28294]

Paul Goggins: Figures for each of the 10 years 1996–97 to 2005–06 are provided in the table. The figures include all grants paid direct by the Home Office, and those paid by the Commission for Racial Equality which is funded by he Home Office. They are additional to those given in the answer of 3 November 2005.

European Foreign Ministers Meeting

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the total cost was of policing the European Foreign Ministers conference at the Celtic Manor Hotel in Newport; and what financial contribution his Department made. [26335]

Hazel Blears: I understand from the chief constable of Gwent police that the total projected costs for policing the conference are £3.6 million. This includes total additional policing costs of £3.2 million as well as other consequential policing costs. Gwent police have submitted an application for special police grant as a contribution to the additional costs incurred of policing the conference. This is currently under consideration.

Firearms

Mr. Djanogly: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when the summary of the responses to the May 2004 Controls on Firearms review will be published. [26635]

Hazel Blears: We received around 4,500 submissions in response to the consultation and they have all been read and analysed. A summary will be published in due course but we are concentrating at present on the steps needed to protect public safety as included in the Violent Crime Reduction Bill.

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many incidents involving firearms occurred in the Essex police force area in each of the last five years. [31395]

Hazel Blears: The information requested is given in the tables.

Table 1 : Offences involving firearms (excluding air weapons) recorded by Essex police, 1999–2000 to 2001–02

	Number of offences
1999–2000	61
2000–01	77
2001–02[1]	98

[1] Figures for some crime categories may have been inflated by some police forces implementing the principles of the National Crime Recording Standard in advance of national implementation.

Table 2 : Offences involving firearms (excluding air weapons) recorded by Essex police, 2002–03 and 2003–04

	Number of offences
2002–03[1]	148
2003–04	145

[1] The National Crime Recording Standard was introduced on 1 April 2002. Figures before and after this date are not directly comparable.

Fox Hunting

Derek Wyatt: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many fox hunts have been prevented from taking place since the Hunting Act 2004 was enacted. [20824]

Hazel Blears: The Hunting Act 2004 makes the use of dogs to hunt wild mammals illegal, subject to some tightly drawn exemptions. It does not prevent hunts from meeting and carrying out legal equestrian or hunting activities, such as hound exercise, pest control or trail hunting. Current information suggests that hunts are seeking to adapt to the requirements of the Act.

Futurebuilders Funding

Margaret Moran: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what proportion of Futurebuilders funding was spent on consultants in the last year for which figures are available; [24034]

(2) how many community and voluntary groups have applied for (a) loans and (b) grants from Futurebuilders; and how many have been successful in each category. [24035]

Paul Goggins: Details of Futurebuilders England Ltd's expenditure on consultants are given in the following table:'

Table 1: Futurebuilders England's expenditure on consultants

	Proportion of total fund (percentage)
Consultants to Futurebuilders England Ltd.	0.1
Consultants engaged by Futurebuilders England Ltd. to assist applicant organisations.	0.12

Applications to Futurebuilders England Ltd. are for Futurebuilders investments. Decisions as to the form the investment should take, whether loan, grant or a combination, are made subsequently by Futurebuilders England Ltd., in consultation with the applicant organisation. Details of the number of applications made and the investments offered to date are given in the following table:

Table 2: Applications to Futurebuilders England Ltd. for Futurebuilders investments

	Application 'window one', July to September 2004	Application 'window two', June to September 2005
Number of applications	630	485
Number of full investments agreed	48	[1]
Number of development grants agreed	42	[1]
Total number of investments to date	90	[1]

Home Detention

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what plans he has to expand the Home Detention Curfew Scheme. [30807]

Fiona Mactaggart: The Home Detention Curfew Scheme is kept under careful review but at present no decisions have been taken to expand the scheme.

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many offenders on home detention curfew have committed (a) a sexual offence and (b) an act of violence against the person while still on the scheme in each year since 1999. [29370]

Fiona Mactaggart: Since the start of the Home Detention Curfew scheme in January 1999 to 31 October 2005, 18 sexual offences and 833 offences against the person have been notified to the Home Office as committed by persons on HDC. These figures include those convicted, cautioned or awaiting prosecution. During the same period, 119,405 offenders have been released on the scheme.

The information is not recorded centrally in the format requested and to provide it would incur disproportionate costs.

Hostage Taking

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) males and (b) females have been (i) charged and (ii) convicted in England and Wales in each year since 1984 of offences under section 1 of the Taking of Hostages Act 1982. [27141]

Paul Goggins: Statistics on the number of persons charged with an offence are not centrally collected.

Paper records from the Home Office Court Proceedings database show that between 1992 to 2003, nobody was convicted under section one of the Taking of Hostages Act 1982 in England and Wales. Paper records prior to 1992 are now no longer available.

Court statistics for 2004 will be available in late November.

Human Trafficking

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when the Government will sign the Council of Europe Convention on trafficking in human beings. [31296]

Paul Goggins: The Government have not yet taken a decision on whether or not the United Kingdom (UK) will sign the Council of Europe Convention on Action against Trafficking in Human Beings. While we support the aims of the Convention, there are provisions which present concerns for the UK and which remain under active consideration. We are assessing the level of risk associated with these provisions and considering actively how we might implement the Convention safely without placing more vulnerable people at risk.

The Government are committed to tackling trafficking in human beings, domestically and internationally, and has in place a multi-faceted strategy on trafficking in human beings. We are determined that the measures we take bring the criminals responsible for this serious organised crime to justice, protect the victims of trafficking, and do not undermine our ability to control our borders.

Identity Cards Bill

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many copies of the Identity Cards Scheme DVD have been produced; and at what cost. [6925]

Mr. Charles Clarke: Ongoing engagement with stakeholders and research conducted with the general public showed an awareness of the Identity Cards Scheme, but a degree of misunderstanding about the details of the scheme and how Identity Cards would be used. It was decided to fund a DVD to help the Identity Cards Programme Team communicate the basic features of the scheme in a clear and concise way.

To date, 250 copies of the Identity Cards Scheme DVD have been produced. The total cost of producing the DVD and making 50 copies was £70,482.38 and the subsequent cost of producing another 200 copies was £1,410.59, a unit cost of £7.05. Total cost for 250 copies was £71,892.96 including VAT.

An extract from the DVD was made available for download on the Identity Cards website (www.identitycards.gov.uk) on 28 June 2005. From that date to 22 August 2005 the page had recorded 4,273 hits.

Illegal Sales

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how many businesses were prosecuted for selling alcohol to youths under the age of 18 years in (a) England, (b) the Tees Valley and (c) Middlesbrough, South and East Cleveland constituency in 2004–05; [26493]

(2) how many businesses were prosecuted for selling (a) tobacco products and (b) lottery tickets and scratch cards to under 16s in (i) England, (ii) the Tees Valley and (iii) Middlesbrough, South and East Cleveland in 2004–05. [26494]

Paul Goggins: Court statistics for 2004 will be available in late November.

The offence of selling alcohol to persons aged under 18 was added to the penalty notice for disorder scheme from 1 November 2004. Under the scheme the police may issue a fixed penalty notice to staff in licensed premises found to be selling alcohol to persons aged under 18 years. In 2004, 113 penalty notices were issued for this offence and provisional data for 2005 from January to September shows that 749 penalty notices were issued.

Ms Diana R. Johnson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many businesses have been prosecuted for selling (a) tobacco products and (b) Lottery tickets and scratch cards to under-16s in Kingston upon Hull North in the past five years. [31397]

Fiona Mactaggart: Information taken from the court proceedings database held by the Office for Criminal Justice Reform shows that between 2000 and 2004, there were no prosecutions of businesses at the magistrates courts in the Humberside police force area, for the sale of tobacco etc to persons under 16 nor under S13a National Lottery etc Act 1993.

The Lottery operator is required to ensure sufficient controls are in place to prevent sales to under 16s. Examples include test purchasing programmes and retailer training and education. It will also remove the lottery terminal if a retailer is found to have made repeat sales to people under 16.

Court statistics for 2005 will be available autumn 2006.

Independent Custody Visitors

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what statistics he collects to monitor the work of independent custody visitors in each police authority area; and if he will make a statement. [30930]

Hazel Blears: Statistics to monitor the work of custody visitors in police authority areas are not collated centrally by the Home Office.

Independent custody visiting, formerly known as lay visiting, is a statutory responsibility placed on police authorities to appoint volunteer members of the community to make random, unannounced visits to police stations to check on the welfare of persons held in police detention, to ensure that their rights and entitlements are observed and that the conditions and facilities in which they are held are appropriate.

The process became statutory under the Police Reform Act of 2002 paragraph 51 and the Independent Custody Visitors codes of practice place obligations on police authorities (paragraphs 60–64 of the codes of practice) to record, publish information relating to visits and review performance at a local level.

Investigatory Powers Tribunal

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the average time spent by the Investigatory Powers Tribunal in adjudicating a complaint was in the last period for which figures are available. [30555]

Hazel Blears: The time taken by the Investigatory Powers Tribunal to investigate any individual complaint or claim depends on its complexity and the need to ensure that all the relevant information is available to the tribunal to consider and to make a reasoned determination.

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what procedures are adopted by the Investigatory Powers Tribunal on receiving a complaint in order to ascertain whether it is a legitimate complaint. [30556]

Hazel Blears: All complaints and human rights claims made to the Investigatory Powers Tribunal are initially scrutinised by the tribunal office staff. They will decide, if necessary after making any further inquiries, whether or not the complaint or human rights claim falls within the jurisdiction of the tribunal. If it does, the tribunal undertakes a full investigation. Otherwise, the papers are referred to the members of the tribunal for directions.

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what plans he has to review the functions and procedures of the Investigatory Powers Tribunal. [30557]

Hazel Blears: There are no plans to review the functions and procedures of the Investigatory Powers Tribunal at present.

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many public hearings the Investigatory Powers Tribunal has held since its inception. [30558]

Hazel Blears: The Investigatory Powers Tribunal was established on 2 October 2000 and has held oral hearings in three cases. Those hearings have taken place in both open and "in camera" sessions.

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps the Investigatory Powers Tribunal has taken to publicise its functions. [30559]

Hazel Blears: The Investigatory Powers Tribunal has its own website giving information about the jurisdiction, the procedures and the members of the Tribunal, as well as information about how to make a complaint or a human rights claim to the Tribunal. The website can be found at:

www.ipt-uk.com

The site is shortly to be updated with further information.

The Tribunal has also produced an information leaflet which, together with complaints and claim forms, is circulated to Citizens Advice Bureaux, public libraries and police stations. Copies are also available on request by writing to the Investigatory Powers Tribunal, PO Box 33220, London SW1H 9ZQ.

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many complaints have been received by the Investigatory Powers Tribunal in each calendar year since its inception; and how many were adjudicated on in each year, broken down by result. [30561]

Hazel Blears: This information is published each year in the Annual Reports of the Interception of Communications Commissioner and Intelligence Services Commissioner.

The published figures are as follows:

	Number of complaints received	Number of determinations given	Number carried forward to next year
2000–01	102	71	31
2002	130	94	67
2003	109	100	76
2004[1]	90	115	51

[1] Last year for which published figures are available.

On no occasion from its inception on 2 October 2000 until 31 December 2004 did the Tribunal determine that there had been a contravention of the Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000 or the Human Rights Act 1998.

Media Relations

Mr. Salmond: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much the Home Department has spent on external media relations in each of the last 12 months. [14681]

Mr. Charles Clarke: The Home Office has used external PR companies to help deliver messages and advice to the public in press and magazines—as part of integrated communication campaigns often with a local focus.

Campaigns include Year of the Volunteer, Holocaust Memorial Day, Sexual Offences Act, Crime and Antisocial Behaviour.

In the last year, this spend was:

2004
September	73,420
October	88,660
November	106,341.70
December	106,324.36
2005
January	162,806.40
February	160,023.11
March	195,283.87
April	91,574.60
May	86,525.90
June	85,455
July	91,135
August	101,828
September	104,630
October	103,005

We have not employed consultants or companies to manage relations with the media on behalf of the Department—the spend is all campaign PR.

These figures reflect an invoice schedule rather than when the work took place i.e. the amounts in March reflect work undertaken in January/February.

Metropolitan Police (Corruption)

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what resources the Metropolitan police has allocated to the detection and investigation of staff corruption in each of the last five years; how those resources have been deployed; what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of such deployment; and if he will make a statement. [31249]

Ha[illegible] Blears: The deployment of resources within the Me[illegible]itan police service is an operational matter for w[illegible]e commissioner has sole responsibility. I will [illegible]at the commissioner receives a copy of the [illegible] and that he replies to the hon. Member [illegible] Copies of his reply will be placed in the House [illegible]es.

National Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what safeguards are in place to ensure that National Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children staff and social workers do not instigate discussions regarding compensation in interviews with witnesses in historical sex abuse cases. [20201]

Hazel Blears: It is a matter for the National Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children (NSPCC) to decide what guidance they give to their staff with regard to the matters they discuss with their clients.

I am confident that social workers are aware of the risks of prejudicing future police investigations.

New Roads and Street Works Act

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) males and (b) females have been (i) charged with and (ii) convicted of offences under section 51 of the New Roads and Street Works Act 1991 in each of the last 10 years for which figures are available; and if he will make a statement on the operation of the Act. [29300]

Paul Goggins: Statistics on the number of persons charged with a crime are not centrally collected. Data collected on the Home Office court proceedings database for offences under section 51 of the New Roads and Street Works Act 1991 form part of a miscellaneous group, which cannot be separately identified.

Notting Hill Carnival

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many deaths there were at the Notting Hill carnival in each year since 1995. [27175]

Hazel Blears: The information requested is not available from the Home Office recorded crime statistics.

O'Connor Report

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what arrangements are in place to carry out a public consultation after police authorities have submitted their proposals in response to the O'Connor report. [30972]

Hazel Blears: Police authorities are already consulting with their local communities and will take their views into account when submitting their proposals for restructuring in December. Where there is local agreement to establish a strategic force my right hon. Friend the Home Secretary would want to move forward with implementation as soon as possible. Where there is no such agreement and the Home Secretary decides that force mergers would be in the interests of the efficiency and effectiveness of policing, the Police Act 1996 (sections 32 to 34) provides for a four month consultation period before any amalgamation order is made.

Operation Crackdown

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the timescale is for Operation Crackdown; and if he will make a statement. [32792]

Paul Goggins: Operation Crackdown was a concerted campaign by 33 police forces in England and Wales to close drug dens, disrupt local drug markets, seize illegal firearms and bring dealers to justice.

It was led by the Association of Chief Police Officers, working with the Home Office. It started on 12 January 2005 and ended on 31 March 2005.

During the campaign the police reported that 170 "crack houses" were closed, 123kg of cocaine, 3.4kg of crack cocaine, 119.8kg of heroin and 86,059 ecstasy tablets were taken off the streets, police arrested 3,419 people for the supply of class A drugs; during operations to tackle class A drugs, 483 firearms (real and replica) were seized, and £3,242,932 of cash assets were seized.

Parliamentary Questions

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when he will answer the parliamentary questions tabled by the hon. Member for Orkney and Shetland on 19 October, ref (a) 21134 and (b) 21135. [24712]

Mr. Charles Clarke: I refer the hon. Member to the reply I gave on 22 November 2005, Official Report, column 1936W.

Police

Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what his policy is on the rights of (a) metropolitan police officers and (b) Serious Fraud Squad officers to give advance notice of operations to be carried out by their forces to (i) elected local representatives and (ii) members of police authorities, their advisors or employees. [26117]

Hazel Blears: This is an operational matter for the Metropolitan Police Service (MRS) and is not one on which central guidance has been issued. I understand from the MRS that each case is considered on its merits with the borough commander or officer in charge of an operation balancing the release of information against officer safety and the risk of compromising the operation.

Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what restrictions there are on the use of relevant information obtained by (a) elected local representatives and (b) police authority members, their advisors or employees in advance of operations carried out by the police. [26118]

Hazel Blears: This is an operational matter for chief constables. I understand that in the case of the Metropolitan Police the officer in charge or borough commander will, alongside the chair of the group that carries out a Community Impact Assessment decide what information can be released about an operation and they can specify restrictions on the use of that information by third parties.

David Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the evidential basis was for the assumption that a minimum force size of 4,000 officers or 6,000 personnel in total is required for police constabulary efficiency. [27593]

Hazel Blears: Her Majesty's Inspectorate of Constabulary's report, "Closing the Gap", found that forces with over 4,000 officers or 6,000 staff tended to meet the standard for protective services in that they demonstrated good reactive capability with a clear measure of proactive capacity. Protective services were assessed against national standards identified and agreed with the Association of Chief Police Officers on intelligence (what is known about an issue), prevention (what is being done to stop this) and enforcement/ resolution (what ability is there to intervene effectively).

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what representation he has had from the West Yorkshire police force concerning the proposed merger of police forces in the area. [30951]

Hazel Blears: Separate submissions from West Yorkshire police and West Yorkshire police authority outlining a range of possible options for change were sent to the Home Office at the end of October 2005. The various options for change in the submission were carefully assessed by the Home Office, which are;

(1) Regional Force (all four forces merging)

(2) Merger between West Yorkshire and North Yorkshire

(3) West Yorkshire as strategic force (favoured by the police authority)

A detailed feedback letter on these options was sent to West Yorkshire police force and police authority on nine November. I wrote to all MPs on nine November providing an update on restructuring work. A written ministerial statement was also made to Parliament on 11 November, which fully outlined emerging options for all regions in England and Wales including Yorkshire and the Humber.

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what disciplinary action has been taken against police officers for failure to comply with the associated Codes of Practice of the Police and Criminal Evidence Act 1984 and the Criminal Procedure and Investigations Act 1996 in historical sex abuse cases in the last three years. [31378]

Hazel Blears: The level of detail in the information my hon. Friend requires is not held centrally and could be obtained only at a disproportionate cost.

Mr. Gauke: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what procedures will be used for the appointment of chief constables of newly amalgamated police forces. [31512]

Hazel Blears: Chief constables of newly amalgamated forces will be appointed in line with the provisions in section 11 (1) of the Police Act 1996, i.e. by the new strategic police authorities, subject to the approval of the Secretary of State and regulations under Section 50.

Mr. Gauke: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what primary legislation would be necessary to implement the amalgamation of police forces. [31514]

Hazel Blears: Sections 32 to 34 of the Police Act 1996 make provision for the alteration of police force areas in England and Wales (other than the City of London police area) by secondary legislation. Under these provisions the Secretary of State may make an order either if he has received a request to make alterations from the police authorities for each of the areas affected by them (in which case the negative resolution procedure applies), or if it appears to him that it is expedient to make the alterations in the interests of efficiency and effectiveness (in which case the affirmative procedure applies).

Mr. Holloway: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many full-time police officers there were in North Kent in each of the last eight years. [32650]

Hazel Blears: Information on police officer strength for North Kent basic command unit (BCU) is collected annually. The data reflect the position at the end of March and are only available from 2002. BCU strength between March 2002 and March 2005 is set out in the table. The deployment of police officers to North Kent is an operational matter for the chief constable.

North Kent basic command unit—police officer strength—March 2002 to March 2005

Year (as at 31 March)	Number of officers
2002[1]	342
2003[2]	363
2004	399
2005	387

[1] Data collected by HM Inspectorate of Constabulary.

[2] Data collected by Home Office Research, Development and Statistics Directorate.

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what policing considerations underlay his Department's instruction to police authorities that under their restructuring proposals any new force areas should not cross Government office regional boundaries. [30860]

Hazel Blears: The Home Secretary has stated to police forces and authorities that proposals for police force restructuring should not cross government office regional boundaries unless there is a compelling case to do so.

The planning for effective and sustainable provision of protective services by the police requires the engagement of non-police partners including Government Offices, Regional Resilience Forums, local authorities, health authorities, and fire and ambulance services. A move away from coterminosity with these agencies could threaten the effectiveness of strategic partnership working, and hence has the potential to weaken the provision of protective services.

The consultation process is still ongoing and is being driven locally by police forces and authorities, who are currently working in partnership with their key stakeholders to refine the business cases of their leading options, with their preferred option to be submitted to the Home Secretary by 23 December 2005.

Dr. Vis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many children have spent one or more nights in police cells in the last 12 months. [21783]

Hazel Blears: These statistics are not collated centrally.

The holding of prisoners in police custody is avoided wherever possible. In the last 12 months, three prisoners aged 15 to 17 who were committed to prison custody had to be held overnight in police accommodation.

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people died as a result of a collision with a police car in the Essex police force area in each of the last five years. [31431]

Paul Goggins: Figures for the number of fatalities in Essex police force area including both police personnel and members of the public, in road traffic collisions on public roads during immediate/emergency response and police pursuits since 2001 are given in the table.

Number of fatalities (including members of the public and police personnel) in Essex police force area, as a result of Road Traffic Collisions on public roads resulting from immediate/emergency response and police pursuits (2001–05)

As at 31 March each year	Members of the public	Police personnel
2002	0	0
2003	0	0

Mr. Willis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the pension liability was as of 31 March or the nearest convenient date for each police force in England and Wales. [23932]

Hazel Blears: The information is not readily available in the form requested but it is estimated that the total liability in the police pension scheme in England and Wales as at 31 March 2004, reported under the accounting standard FRS17 (as it applies to the public sector), was £44 billion.

We are making arrangements to collate the figures requested and will provide the hon. Member with a copy of these and place a further copy in the Library in due course.

Peter Luff: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will establish a royal commission to review proposed police force mergers. [30422]

Hazel Blears: No. My right hon. Friend the Home Secretary has asked police authorities and chief officers to submit to him proposals for restructuring by 23 December. As part of this process police authorities and forces are consulting extensively with their local communities, and local government and criminal justice partners. Thereafter, there is wide recognition that restructuring should be implemented as quickly as possible to minimise disruption to the police service; a royal commission would preclude this.

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 11 November 2005, Official Report, column 852W, on police helicopters, how many deployments of Metropolitan police helicopters there have been in each year since 2000. [31351]

Hazel Blears: The number of flights and flying hours completed by the Metropolitan police helicopters for each year since 2000 is shown in the following table.

	Flying hours	Number of flights
2000	3,098.01	4,037
2001	2,868.11	3,718
2002	2,847.09	3,728
2003	2,993.57	3,992
2004	3,074.16	3,869
2005 (to end October)	2,436.04	3,422
Total	17,317.38	22,766

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment he has made of whether savings could be accrued through the centralising of police procurement. [32263]

Hazel Blears: National contracts for the purchase of some items by police forces, for example vehicles, have been in place for many years. Nonetheless, the scope for the police service to deliver efficiency gains through better procurement is recognised in the tri-partite police efficiency strategy. My Department, the Association of Police Authorities and the Association of Chief Police Officers for England and Wales, with support from the Office of Government Commerce, have jointly established the centre for procurement excellence in the police service (PEPS) to help forces develop and use national contracts, strengthen procurement practice and skills, and standardise requirements to achieve discounts through increased purchase volumes.

Not all procurement is best done centrally, however. Part of the service's approach aims to identify and distinguish activity that is best undertaken collaboratively and that which is best undertaken more locally.

Mr. Gauke: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps he will take to ensure that newly formed police authorities for amalgamated police forces are democratically accountable. [32852]

Hazel Blears: I refer the hon. member to my reply to a question from the hon. Member for Harwich (Mr. Carswell), Official Report, 21 November 2005, column 1763W.

Mr. Hurd: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment he has made of the request from the Metropolitan Police Commissioner to the permanent secretary at the Home Office on 22 July that section 17 of the Police Reform Act 2002 should be amended. [30332]

Hazel Blears: We have no plans to amend section 17 which provides for the provision of information to the Independent Police Complaints Commission to help it in its investigations.

Parliament recognised there would be occasions when disclosure of information to a complainant or other interested party would not be appropriate and introduced a duty of care.

Having received information and other materials under section 17 of the Police Reform Act 2002 from a police authority or a chief officer, the Independent Police Complaints Commission then has a duty of care not to disclose information that has potential to cause harm. This is known as the sensitivity test and it applies equally to a police authority or a chief officer.

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many police stations have closed in each of the last five years, broken down by police authority area; and if he will make a statement. [31251]

Hazel Blears: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given to the hon. Member for Winchester (Mr. Oaten) on 4 July 2005, Official Report, column 138W and hon. Member for Harwich (Mr. Carswell) on 12 September 2005, Official Report, column 2587W.

Ownership and management of the police estate and allocation of resources are matters for each police authority and the chief officer, who are responsible for assessing and responding to local needs.

A number of forces have devised innovative ways of increasing their accessibility to members of the public. In addition to police stations, forces also use kiosks, police boxes, agreements within council offices and libraries. One stop shops and mobile police stations as part of their engagement with the community.

Prevention of Terrorism Acts

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many individuals have (a) been detained and (b) charged since 11 September 2001 under the Prevention of Terrorism Acts; and if he will make a statement. [32795]

Mr. Charles Clarke: Detention under anti-terrorism legislation is provided for following an arrest under section 41 of the Terrorism Act 2000. The latest figures requested are published on the Home Office website: www.homeoffice.gov.uk/security/terrorism-and-the-law/terrorism-act

These statistics have been supplied by the police. They are compiled from recent police records and are therefore subject to adjustment as cases go through the system. These statistics reflect the operation of specific terrorism legislation. It is important to remember that it is, and will continue to be the case, that terrorist suspects are dealt with by the most appropriate legal means. This could be the legislation for murder, grievous bodily harm or the use of firearms or explosives which are all outside the scope of the Terrorism Act.

Section 45(4) of the Terrorism Act 2000 confers the power to detain a person only for the amount of time reasonably required to conduct a search authorised by virtue of section 44 of the Act. Total stops and searches under section 44 for the financial year 2004–05 will be published in December this year.

Prisons

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department for what reason the cost of telephone calls from within HMP Wormwood Scrubs differs from the cost charged to those who do not reside there, but use the same telecom provider. [32139]

Fiona Mactaggart: The price of prisoners' phone calls is no longer linked to public pay phone rates, they are set under the terms of the contract with BT which allows the Prison Service to set appropriate charges, taking account of the pattern of calls, as well as maintenance costs. The low minimum charge reflects the fact that prisoners' calls tend to be of short duration.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many prisoners have been released from prison before their sentence was completed since 1997. [26467]

Fiona Mactaggart: The requested figures can be found in the Home Office Statistical Bulletin: Offender Management Caseload Statistics 2003, a copy of which can be found in the House of Commons Library. Table 10.3 concerns HOC and Table 10.4 parole.

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many women have given birth while serving a custodial sentence at a prison in (a) England and Wales and (b) the Tees Valley since 1997. [26502]

Fiona Mactaggart: The Prison Service has only routinely kept information centrally on births in custody since April 2005. Information before this date is not available. In the period 1 April to 30 September 2005, 55 women gave birth while in a prison in England and Wales. There are no women's prisons in the Tees Valley.

Dr. McCrea: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the average daily cost of keeping a person in prison in England and Wales was during the latest period for which figures are available. [30272]

Fiona Mactaggart: The average daily cost of keeping a person in prison in England and Wales for the financial year 2004–05 was £77.

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many alcohol management courses are accredited for prisons in England and Wales. [30383]

Fiona Mactaggart: No alcohol management courses have been accredited by the Correctional Services Accreditation Panel. No records are held centrally of courses accredited under the Prison Service validation system for regime interventions.

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) why the Glass House Horticultural Operation at Leyhill Open Prison was discontinued; and what future use will be made of the empty glass house; [30596]

(2) how much the new visitor centre at Leyhill Open Prison cost; and why it is being closed; [30597]

(3) what training and employment opportunities are planned to replace the Glass House and visitor centre projects for prisoners at Leyhill Open Prison. [30598]

Fiona Mactaggart: The decision to close the Leyhill arts and gardens centre was taken because of a significant fall in income. The centre is now a burden on Leyhill's budget and is affecting its ability to deliver core work. While income generation is not the sole purpose of the centre, the opportunities for prisoner employment and the development of community links are not significant enough to override the financial impact.

Most of the market garden glasshouses will be relocated to the prison estate on the closure of the site, removing the impact of closure on prisoner employment. Work opportunities should increase as a wider range of prisoners can be allocated to this work within the main prison. Opportunities for contact between prisoners and the public will be replicated through outside placements. It is anticipated that training will not be impeded by the closure of the centre. Some glasshouses will remain on the site which will be sold or leased. A new centre has not been built.

However, essential refurbishment work was carried out on the existing centre to meet health and safety requirements and cost £200,000.

Proceeds of Crime Act

Mr. Randall: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much was recovered under the provisions of the Proceeds of Crime Act 2002 by the Metropolitan Police in respect of crimes at Heathrow Airport in 2004–05. [24095]

Paul Goggins: Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs (HMRC) is the enforcement authority with lead responsibility for recovering the proceeds of crime at Heathrow Airport. The total amount recovered at Heathrow Airport by HMRC under the Proceeds of Crime Act 2002 is £4,259,000. The total value of cash seized (subject to forfeiture) and cash forfeiture orders obtained by the Metropolitan Police under the Act in respect of suspected criminal activity at Heathrow Airport in 2004–05 was £56,554.

Probation Service

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many Probation Service officers there were in each probation area in each of the last five years. [23832]

Fiona Mactaggart: Information is not available for the full period requested. Data collected prior to 1 April 2003 are unreliable, and not directly comparable with the more accurate figures collected since that time. The figures presented as follows show full time equivalent (FTE) figures at the close of each quarter from 1 April 2003 to 30 June 2005.

Rape

Jessica Morden: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what percentage of contested prosecutions for rape brought by Gwent Crown Prosecution Service resulted in a conviction in the last 12 years. [31503]

Paul Goggins: Data held by the Office for Criminal Justice reform on the number of defendants pleading not guilty of rape and the number and percentage of these found guilty of rape at the Crown court in Gwent police force area are provided in the following table. Figures are presented for the years 1996–2004. Information on plea is not available for years before 1996. Data for 2005 will be available in the autumn of 2006.

Number of defendants pleading not guilty of rape and the number and percentage of these found guilty of rape at the Crown court, Gwent police force area, 1996–2004[1]

	Not guilty pleas	Found guilty	Conviction rate (percentage)
1996	17	6	35

Rebranding

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much has been spent on rebranding in his Department and related agencies since 2003–04. [18408]

Mr. Charles Clarke: The Home Office has a central identity which presents a unified and coherent appearance to the public and to its employees. Agencies of the Home Office also need to present themselves consistently. The following table outlines money spent on branding work at the Home Office and related agencies since 2003–04:

Department/service	Details of branding	Amount spent on branding work
Home Office	Modification and update to branding guidelines	4,680
National Offender Management Service	Identity creation, production of artwork and branding guidelines	45,996
Prison Service	Modification of logo and production of branding guidelines	10,480
Probation Service	Modification of logo and production of branding guidelines	10,230
Total		71,386

Recidivism

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the recidivism rate was among (a) female, (b) male and (c) all prisoners within two years of release in each year since 1997. [30790]

Fiona Mactaggart: Actual re-offending rates are not available. Reconviction rates are a commonly used proxy and two year reconviction rates are published annually.

The most recent data are shown in the table.

Reconviction rates should be used with caution as a number of different factors can influence them. Reconviction rates can be adjusted to take account of the changing characteristics of offenders and these adjusted rates are published annually on the Home Office's website (http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/index.htm).

The most recent adjusted figures for the 2003 cohort show a reduction in reoffending for all offenders (males and females sentenced to community sentences or discharged from prison) of 1.8 per cent. against the 2000 baseline.

Percentage of prisoners reconvicted of standard list offences years of discharge from prison

	Male	Female	Total
1997	59	51	58
1998	59	52	59
1999	59	55	59
2000	n/a	n/a	n/a
2001	61	57	61

Note:
Owing to the administrative costs of matching criminal histories, the results shown relate to the reconviction results for samples of offender, those prisoners discharged in the first three months of the year.

Residential Drug Rehabilitation

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many residential drug rehabilitation places were available in Essex in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [27111]

Ms Rosie Winterton: I have been asked to reply.

This information is not held centrally.

Rights of Way

Mike Wood: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when he expects local authorities will be able to use powers in the Clean Neighbourhoods and Environment Act 2005 to close rights of way on crime prevention grounds. [19654]

Hazel Blears: I refer my hon. Friend the Member for Southampton, Test (Dr. Whitehead) to the answer I gave on 25 October 2005, Official Report, column 345W.

Road Safety

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many persons have been (a) killed whilst driving stolen cars and (b) killed by drivers of stolen cars in (i) Southend and (ii) Essex in the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [29745]

Paul Goggins: The information is not collected centrally.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) males and (b) females have been (i) charged with and (ii) convicted of offences under section 40A of the Road Traffic Act 1988 in each of the last 10 years for which figures are available. [29851]

Paul Goggins: Statistics on the number of persons charged with a crime are not centrally collected.

Data from the Home Office Court Proceedings database on the number of convictions under section 40A of the Road Traffic Act 1988, England and Wales, 1995 to 2004, are provided in the table.

Court statistics for 2005 will be available in autumn 2006.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) males and (b) females have been (i) charged with and (ii) convicted of offences under section 16C of the Road Traffic Regulation Act 1984 in each of the last 10 years for which figures are available. [29853]

Paul Goggins: Statistics on the number of persons charged with a crime are not centrally collected.

Data from the Home Office Court Proceedings database on the number of convictions under section 16 of the Road Traffic Regulations Act 1984, England and Wales, 1995 to 2004 are provided in the table.

Court statistics for 2005 will be available in autumn 2006.

Sex Trafficking

Susan Kramer: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when the Government will ratify the Palermo Protocol against sex trafficking to the UN Convention against Organised Crime; and if he will make a statement. [31437]

Hazel Blears: We consider that, taken together with existing United Kingdom law, the introduction of the trafficking offences contained in section four of the Asylum and Immigration (Treatment of Claimants, etc.) Act 2004 which came into force on 1 December 2004, mean that we fully comply with our legislative obligations under the Palermo Protocol.

To enable us to ratify the protocol we must first ratify the UN convention against transnational organised crime. The legislative measures required to comply with the Convention have now been introduced and the Home Office and Foreign and Commonwealth Office are taking forward the necessary steps to ratify the convention and Protocol

Rural Crime

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps he is taking (a) to tackle rural crime and (b) to improve detection rates in rural areas. [30571]

Hazel Blears: Effective and responsive policing at neighbourhood level as well as robust partnership working are both essential parts of our strategy to tackle crime and to sustain the confidence and trust of the public in all parts of the country.

We introduced the Rural Policing Fund in 2000–01 specifically to enhance the visibility and accessibility of policing in rural areas. 31 police authorities with the most widespread populations benefit from this additional funding. The annual allocation is £30 million. We are considering rolling-up a number of specific grants, including the Rural Policing Fund, into a single pot for each police authority to give authorities more control over how they may be used. We do not intend to abolish or reduce rural grant allocations. Each authority will receive the current levels of funding but would be expected to honour commitments.

A number of police forces have introduced community support officers (CSOs) in rural areas since their introduction in 2002. The Home Office is also involved in a "Blue Light" pilot which aims to create a community focused, multi-functional role for these officers in some rural villages.

We have made a commitment that by 2008, every area in England and Wales will benefit from dedicated neighbourhood policing teams which will be led by police officers and involve special constables, community support officers, volunteers and neighbourhood wardens among others.

The Government acknowledge the need to improve sanction detection rates across all police forces. For that reason, a major drive has been underway since last summer with the aim of achieving a significant increase in sanction detection rates. This includes a range of operational improvements intended to build the investigative capability of the police service, together with some targeted support for forces with performance concerns.

Safety Cameras

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the revenue was from fines resulting from speed camera convictions in Hertfordshire in the latest year for which figures are available; and what sums were passed to (a) the Consolidated Fund and (b) the Hertfordshire Speed Camera Partnership. [29900]

Paul Goggins: Information on the total revenue from speed camera convictions is not collected centrally.

The information collected by my Department identifies the number of fixed penalties ordered to be paid and the number and amounts of court fines issued for such offences. Not all fines and fixed penalties will have been paid.

My right hon. Friend the Transport Secretary has advised that details of safety camera programme funding for 2002–03 are given in 'The national safety camera programme Three-year evaluation report', copies of which have been placed in the Library of the House, and are available from the Department for Transport website.

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) in what percentage of cases the (a) maximum fine and (b) minimum fine was imposed for speeding detected by cameras in each year between 1994 and 2004; [29906]

(2) what the (a) maximum, (b) minimum and (c) average fine for camera-detected speeding was in each year between 1994 and 2004. [30448]

Paul Goggins: Available information on court fines for the offence of speeding detected by camera in the calendar years 1994 to 2003 is given in the table.

Information for 2004 will be available early in 2006.

Maximum and minimum fines imposed at the magistrates courts for speeding offences detected by camera[1]: England and Wales, 1994 to 2003

2003	L3	[4]0.0	0.1	107

[1] Road Traffic Regulation Act 1984, sections 16, 81, 84, 86, 88 and 89; Motor Vehicles (Speed Limits on Motorways) Regulations 1973.
[2] L3 = £1,000.
[3] No maximum fines imposed.
[4] Percentage not significant to one decimal place.
Note:
Coverage and recording practice affecting the statistics:

(A) It is known that for some police force areas, the reporting of court proceedings in particular those relating to summary motoring offences, may be less than complete.
(B) Since 1990, due to the delays in implementing new counting procedures, corrective action on non-keying errors was reduced resulting in a deterioration in the quality of the data on summary motoring proceedings.

Secure Training Centres

Ms Keeble: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how many children have been subject to physical restraint in each of the secure training centres in each of the last four years; and in how many incidents each child was involved; [31370]

(2) What the ethnic origin was of each child subject to physical control in each of the secure training centres in the last 12 months. [31371]

Fiona Mactaggart: Information held centrally on physical restraint in secure training centres does not include the details requested.

Speeding

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the recorded number of traffic speeding violations on roads with (a) a 30 mph speed limit and (b) a 40 mph speed limit has been in each year between 1994 and 2004. [30374]

Paul Goggins: Information on the number of traffic speeding violations is not held by my Department. Information is held on the number of convictions and for fixed penalty notices issued for speeding offences but this does not identify the speed band registered nor the classification of road on which the offence took place.

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much was collected by the Government in speeding fines in each year between 1994 and 2004. [30450]

Paul Goggins: Information on the total revenue from speeding fines is not collected centrally.

Steven John Toplass

Mr. Flello: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether national guidelines were in place at the time of Steven John Toplass's arrest in February 2004 to ensure that appropriate national law enforcement authorities through whose territories a UK-initiated and supervised controlled delivery would pass were made aware of its existence before the cargo concerned was loaded, with particular reference to Spain. [29518]

Hazel Blears: UK agencies engaged in controlled deliveries have standard operating procedures which provide operational guidelines. In addition operational service level agreements exist between relevant UK agencies and overseas partners to govern such operations. These agreements ensure that such operations are only undertaken with the agreement of appropriate authorities within the UK and with the agreement of appropriate national law enforcement authorities in the countries to which the cargo will pass. A European Union manual on controlled deliveries also exists. This manual provides details of the practices and procedures for controlled delivery operations in European Union countries. All these measures were in place in February 2004.

Taser Stun Guns

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to his answer of 8 November 2005, Official Report, column 351W, on Taser stun guns, if he will provide the equivalent figures for the proceeding three years. [31047]

Hazel Blears: The Metropolitan police started to deploy Taser in April 2003. Taser is only deployed in circumstances where firearms officers are authorised to carry firearms and is deployed alongside conventional firearms so as to be available in appropriate circumstances as an alternative to them. The commissioner for the Metropolitan police has provided the information in the table.

Metropolitan police—deployment of Taser

UK-controlled Deliveries

Mr. Flello: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many UK-controlled delivery operations took place involving (a) Spanish and (b) French territory between 1999 and 2004; and how many were aborted due to the detention of the cargo or driver by the (i) Spanish and (ii) French authorities. [29519]

Hazel Blears: Information on the number and target of controlled delivery operations is not collected centrally.

Victims of Crime

Tony Baldry: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what funds his Department allocated to programmes on (a) alternatives to custody for young offenders, (b) projects for witness protection, (c) projects to support victims of crime, (d) projects to promote restorative justice, (e) projects to help tackle alcohol abuse, (f) projects to help tackle drug and solvent abuse and (g) projects to help tackle domestic violence in 2004–05; on which programmes such money was spent in each case; how much each project has received; and if he will make a statement. [11970]

Fiona Mactaggart: This information is not held centrally and to obtain would incur disproportionate costs.

Violent Crime

Mr. Vaizey: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what steps he is taking to tackle violent crime; [16719]

(2) what steps the Government are taking to deal with alcohol-related crime. [16733]

Hazel Blears: The British Crime Survey shows that violent crime has fallen by 34 per cent. since 1997, and we are determined to see this trend continuing. Our work on sexual offences and gun and knife crime is set out in answers to other questions, so I will not repeat that information here; this reply focuses on our work to tackle alcohol-related crime and domestic violence.

The Licensing Act 2003 will, from 24 November 2005, give the police and courts new powers to close disorderly and noisy premises, issue increased fines for breaching licence conditions and, with local residents, to seek licence reviews.

With the Association of Chief Police Officers, we ran two national enforcement campaigns against alcohol-fuelled disorder and underage drinking during 2004. Further campaigns took place over Easter and summer 2005 and another began on 14 November.

We have provided increased protection for domestic violence victims through the Domestic Violence, Crime and Victims Act 2004, which enables courts to legally protect victims from harassment. We are also rolling out a Specialist Domestic Violence Court programme across 25 areas, and plan to extend it next year. Criminal justice agencies are also improving their response to domestic violence through training front-line staff.

Measures within the Violent Crime Reduction Bill, which is currently before Parliament, will give police and courts new powers to tackle violent criminals and ensure they are effectively punished; give police powers to require licensed pubs or clubs to search for weapons on entry, and; help achieve a culture change in binge drinking, deterring unacceptable behaviour, and protecting people from harm. It also provides new measures on guns and knives.

Mr. Holloway: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the percentage change in the level of violent crime in Gravesham has been in each year since 1997. [28645]

Hazel Blears: The available information relates to the Gravesham Crime and Disorder Reduction Partnership (CDRP) area and is given in the tables. Statistics at CDRP level have only been collected since April 1999.

It is estimated that the effect of the introduction nationally of the National Crime Recording Standard (NCRS) in April 2002 was a 20 per cent. increase in recorded violent crime in its first year.

The second table does not contain a percentage increase for 2002–03 as this is heavily influenced by the impact of NCRS and is therefore not a real reflection of the change in violent crime.

Percentage change in recorded violent crime in the Gravesham Crime and Disorder Reduction Partnership area—1999–2000 to 2001–02

Period	Percentage change compared with previous 12 months
1999–2000	n/a
2000–01	-8
2001–02	10

n/a = not available

Note:
The data in this table are prior to the introduction of the National Crime Recording Standard. These figures are not directly comparable with those for later years.

Percentage change in recorded violent crime in the Gravesham Crime and Disorder Reduction Partnership area—2002–03 to 2004–05

Period	Percentage change compared with previous 12 months
2002/03	[1]
2003/04	17
2004/05	27

[1] Percentage change compared with 2000–01 is 36 per cent. but this is heavily influenced by the impact of NCRS and is therefore not a real reflection of the change in violent crime.

Note:
The data in this table take account of the introduction of the National Crime Recording Standard in April 2002. These figures are not directly comparable with those for earlier years.

Weapons (Internet Sales)

Anne Snelgrove: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what discussions he has had with the other Government departments with a view to preventing the advertising and selling of less lethal weapons via the internet. [28501]

Hazel Blears: The internet is regulated by the application of existing law, which applies equally online and offline. It is an offence to sell seventeen offensive weapons, in addition to flick knives and gravity knives to a person of any age; to market a knife in a way which suggests it is suitable for combat; and to sell a knife to a person under 16. We are raising this to 18 in the Violent Crime Reduction Bill currently before Parliament.

Tasers and incapacitant sprays using CS or PAVA are prohibited weapons and cannot be sold, purchased or possessed without authority from the Secretary of State. Baton guns are also controlled under firearms laws and, depending on their size, can be prohibited weapons.

Wheel Clamping

Stephen Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate his Department has made of the number of private firms that have a licence to operate wheel clamps in England and Wales, broken down by constituency. [30667]

Paul Goggins: The Private Security Industry Act 2001 does not require vehicle immobiliser firms to be licensed. It does require people who work as vehicle immobilisers to be licensed. As of 16 November the number of vehicle immobiliser operatives licences that have been issued regionally are as follows:

Region	Front line operative	Non-front line operative
South West	66	10
Wales	30	3
Midlands	105	21
North West	111	16
North East	116	9
Eastern	43	9
South East	187	58
London	219	22

EDUCATION AND SKILLS

Adult Education

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) pursuant to the answer of 13 October 2005, Official Report, column 576W, on adult education, what assessment she has made of the affordability of courses for adults wishing to study for a non-basic skills qualification at a lower level than level 2 in 2006–07; and if she will make a statement; [31818]

(2) what research she has conducted into the (a) ability and (b) willingness of (i) employers and (ii) individuals to pay an increased proportion of the cost of adult education courses. [31820]

Phil Hope: On 21 October, we made an announcement setting out the Government's strategic direction for the learning and skills sector for the coming period. Our main purpose for doing so was to ensure the 2006/07 funding allocations process began with a clear and concise message on the principles that will underpin funding over the next two years. Our funding priorities do not affect the existing arrangements whereby my Department funds free tuition for learners who are eligible, however, a rebalancing of responsibilities between Government, employers and learners is central to delivering our skills strategy. My Department will continue to waive fees for all young people; those taking literacy and numeracy; and learners receiving income-based benefits, the pension (guarantee) credit and those on higher levels of the working tax credit.

My Department recently commissioned a public poll asking people about their attitudes towards fees in the learning and skills sector. We published a report of the findings on the Department's website on the 11 November. Other research includes a study of learners (Study of Learners in Further Education (2003)) to ascertain the financial circumstances of learners in FE; and a Prior Qualifications of Adult Learners survey which includes questions about learner attitudes to contributing to the costs of their learning. We have also commissioned two surveys (Fees in Colleges—A Review Of The Use of Discretionary Fee Remission In Further Education (2003); and FE Colleges Fee Charging Policy and Practice (1999)) about fee policies and practices from the college's perspective. DfES published research findings are available on the Department's website at dfes.gov.uk/research/

The Learning and Skills Council (LSC) is currently researching the impact of the new fee policies in the further education sector. LSC published research findings are available on their website at lsc.gov.uk

There has been no specific research into employer attitudes to payment of fees for adult education courses.

Mr. Davey: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what estimate she has made of the number of over-45s seeking (a) further education and (b) skills training who were (i) in the workforce and (ii) seeking re-entry into the workforce in the last period for which figures are available. [31375]

Phil Hope: Analysis of the labour force survey of spring 2005 found that of the people living in England who were aged 45 or more: 9,050,000 were working; 260,000 were unemployed; and 10,499,000 were inactive.

According to the national adult learning survey (2002): 79 per cent. of employed people aged over 45 had done some job-related learning during the previous three years. This compares with 57 per cent. for unemployed people, and 13 per cent. for inactive people of the same age range.

The same survey also found that 58 per cent. of employed people aged 45 or more said they were very likely or fairly likely to do job-related training over the next three years. In comparison, 43 per cent. of unemployed people; and 16 per cent. of inactive people of the same age range said they were very likely or fairly likely to do job-related training over the next three years.

The LSC's individual learner record data showed that in the academic year 2003/04 there were 1,200,000 people aged 45+ who had attended a course at an LSC-funded further education college. The activity status of these students is unknown. We also have no information on the number of people seeking further education.

Ed Balls: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many people aged (a) 30 to 39, (b) 40 to 49 and (c) 50 years and over received skills training in (i) West Yorkshire and (ii) Normanton constituency since 2001. [31566]

Phil Hope: Analysis of the Local Labour Force Surveys from 2001 to 2005 has produced the following results.

Table 1: Percentage of working aged[1] people who have received skills training[2] in the four weeks prior to interview in West Yorkshire

Age-year	Percentage of people receiving skills training
	2001/02	2002/03	2003/04	2004/05
16–29	22	26	22	21
30–39	15	16	15	14
40–49	13	12	13	13
50–59/64	9	8	7	8
Total[3]	15	16	15	14

[1] Working age refers to men aged 16 to 64 and women aged 16 to 59.

[2] Skills training is assumed to be job related training for current and future jobs in the four weeks prior to interview.

[3] There were approximately 1,291,000 16 to 59/64-year-olds in West Yorkshire in 2004/05.

Table 1 indicates that approximately 15 per cent. of 30 to 39-year-olds in West Yorkshire received skills training in 2001/02. Older people are less likely to do skills training than younger people. There has been no significant change within age groups in the period 2001 to 2004/05.

Table 2: Percentage of working aged people who have received skills training[1] in the four weeks prior to interview in Normanton

	Percentage of people receiving skills training
Age/year	2001/02	2002/03	2003/04	2004/05
Total 16 to 59/64[2]	14	13	16	13

[1] Skills training is assumed to be job related training for current and future jobs in the four weeks prior to interview.
[2] There were approximately 54,000 16 to 59/64-year-olds in Normanton in 2004/05.

Table 2 indicates that there is little difference between skills training in West Yorkshire as a whole and skills training in Normanton as a whole. The number of people receiving skills training within each age group, in Normanton, who were sampled in the LLFS was too small to yield any meaningful estimates.

Table 3: Percentage of working aged people who have received skills training[1] in the four weeks prior to interview in Normanton, West Yorkshire and UK

	Percentage of people receiving skills training
Region/year	2001/02	2002/03	2003/04	2004/05
Normanton total	14	13	16	13
West Yorkshire total[2]	15	16	15	14
UK total[3]	15	15	14	14

[1] Skills training is assumed to be job related training for current and future jobs in the four weeks prior to interview.
[2] There were approximately 1,291,000 16 to 59/64-year-olds in West Yorkshire in 2004/05.
[3] The UK total for 2001/02 uses the LFS spring quarter 2001, 2002/03 uses LFS spring quarter 2002 and soon.

There is little difference between the percentage of working aged people receiving skills training in Normanton compared to West Yorkshire and nationally.

Quality Mark

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many local education authorities are working with the Basic Skills Agency as part of a primary Quality Mark partnership. [32910]

Jacqui Smith: In England 138 of the 150 local authorities are in the Quality Mark partnership. In Wales all 22 of the LEAs are in the Quality Mark partnership.

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many schools that were assessed for the Basic Skills Agency's Quality Mark failed to gain one. [32911]

Jacqui Smith: There are no figures available on the number of schools who do not attain the Quality Mark, since local authorities are responsible for carrying out the assessments and are not required by the Basic Skills Agency to provide figures on the numbers of schools which fail to gain the Quality Mark.

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills pursuant to the answer of 16 November 2005, Official Report, column 1280W, on the Basic Skills Agency, how many and what proportion of 11-year-olds achieved level 4 or above in (a) reading, (b) writing and (c) mathematics at (i) schools that had gained the Quality Mark from the Basic Skills Agency and (ii) other schools in the last year for which figures are available. [33205]

Jacqui Smith: The data requested are not available.

Building Schools for the Future Programme

Jim Cousins: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills who the owner of (a) assets created by and (b) land associated with a Local Education Partnership under the Building Schools for the Future programme will be (i) during and (ii) after the term of the private finance initiative. [32428]

Jacqui Smith [holding answer 28 November 2005]: Local Education Partnerships are joint ventures, usually between local authorities, Partnerships for Schools and a private sector partner, which will deliver Building Schools for the Future (BSF) investment, using both conventional and private finance initiative (PFI) funding. They will not at any time own or control the assets of any school.

Where a school is in a PFI contract, including in BSF, ownership of the land and buildings of the school is vested in the private sector partner for the life of the contract by way of an operating licence or lease. After that time, ownership of these assets reverts to the local authority, or in the case of a voluntary aided, trust or foundation school, to the voluntary aided body, the trust or the governing body as is appropriate. These bodies own the freehold of the land throughout the contract.

Bullying

Dan Norris: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) what assessment she has made of the effectiveness of different approaches to tackling bullying in schools; and if she will make a statement; [31344]

(2) what assessment her Department has made of the effectiveness of the no blame approach to tackling school bullying; and if she will make a statement. [31345]

Jacqui Smith: Our guidance to schools on tackling bullying "Don't Suffer in Silence" has been externally evaluated by researchers at Goldsmith's college, University of London. The results, though based on a fairly low response rate from schools, show that the schools found that the pack met their expectations and helped in drawing up their anti-bullying policies.

This evaluation included research into the perceived success of the anti-bullying strategies and interventions recommended in the guidance. Schools generally reported a high level of satisfaction with the interventions they had used. I have placed a copy of the research brief for this project in the Library.

The key feature of the 'No Blame' approach, is that it adopts an explicit stance of discouraging punishment as a response to bullying. The Department does not support this stance and neither does the Anti-Bullying Alliance. Our guidance is clear that support and mediation strategies to change behaviour can, and should, be used in tandem with sanctions where appropriate. We are reviewing the guidance to make this even more explicit.

As we do not promote the 'No Blame' approach for use in schools, we have not undertaken any assessment of its effectiveness.

Departmental Priorities

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what priorities the Department has set for 2005–06; and if she will make a statement. [19666]

Ruth Kelly: My priorities for this year are:

Improving school education by tailoring the offer to the needs of each pupil, allowing schools greater freedom to specialise in what they do best and increasing choice for all parents and pupils so that they have access to the best schools, as set out in the Schools White Paper, "Higher Standards, Better Schools For All";

Implementing the 14 to19 reforms so that young people can choose a vocational training route alongside more traditional academic education;

Implementing the Skills Strategy to ensure that employers, employees and low skilled individuals have access to the training they need alongside reform of the FE sector to ensure it is placed to deliver these changes;

Implementing the new HE student support arrangements and ensuring that young people fully understand them so that participation in HE increases, particularly among those from disadvantaged backgrounds;

Introducing the Childcare Bill to provide a legislative framework for our 10-year Childcare Strategy; and Continuing to make progress towards our challenging PSA targets.

These will all be achieved within the context of a Department which is smaller and more strategic, with the skills to raise standards for children and learners across the board.

The Department's five-year strategy for children and learners (Command ref: 6272] sets out our longer term priorities.

Departmental Staff

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many personnel were employed in her Department in each year since 1997, broken down by (a) civil servants, (b) contractors and (c) other staff. [27578]

Maria Eagle: I refer the hon. Member to table c of civil service statistics 2004, which shows permanent FTE staff numbers between 1998 and 2004 for each Department and agency. Civil service statistics 2004 are available in the Library and on the Cabinet Office statistics website at:

http://www.civilservice.gov.uk/management of the civil service/statistics/civil service statistics/index.asp

The data for 1997 is in table c in civil service statistics 2003.

The number of contractors engaged by my Department is not collected centrally and could only be obtained at disproportionate cost.

The number of days that agency staff were engaged in my Department in each of the last three complete calendar years were:

	Number
2004	16,940
2003	27,087
2002	31,229

Statistics on agency staff are held in days only. Numbers for earlier years are not available.

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills pursuant to her answer of 1 November 2005, Official Report, column 997W, on departmental staff, how much her Department has paid the tutor in basic skills to date. [27962]

Bill Rammell: My Department has made no payment to the basic skills tutor as adult basic skills tuition is delivered at no charge to learners who are eligible for funding from the Learning and Skills Council.

We have paid the Adult Education Service £1500 to tailor a programme for facilities management staff in the Department.

Examination Standards

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what discussions she has had with (a) examination boards and (b) awarding bodies in respect of (i) examinations, (ii) marking and (iii) grading for 2006; and if she will make a statement. [33113]

Jacqui Smith: Ministers in the Department have had no discussion with awarding bodies in respect of examinations, marking and grading for 2006. Awarding bodies are independent of Government. It is the role of the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority and the other regulatory authorities to regulate awarding bodies and to discuss with them issues around standards and delivery of public examinations.

Free School Meals

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many recipients of free school meals there are in each school in the Oxford, East constituency. [32150]

Jacqui Smith: Information on free school meals in maintained nursery, primary and secondary schools in the Oxford, East constituency is shown in the table.

Freedom of Information

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many Freedom of Information applications her Department has received; how many have taken more than 20 days to process; and how many of these gave rise to complaints about the time taken. [31213]

Maria Eagle: From January 2005, when the Freedom of Information Act took effect, to June 2005, the Department for Education and Skills received 340 Freedom of Information requests for information of which 29 took more than 20 working days to process giving rise to two complaints about the time taken. The Department for Constitutional Affairs is committed to publishing quarterly updates in relation to departmental performance under FOI, including information on both the volume and outcomes of requests. The bulletin for the second quarter was published on 30 September 2005 and can be found on the DCA website at http://www.foi.gov.uk/statsapar-jun05.htm and in the Libraries of both Houses. The next bulletin for the third quarter will be will be published before Christmas, while an annual report will be published in early 2006.

Missing Children

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many children were reported missing from care in each year since 1997, broken down by local authority area. [29554]

Further Education

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills pursuant to the answer of 31 October 2005, Official Report, columns 817–8W, on further education, how much funding was allocated to the learner support funds in further education in 2004–05. [27459]

Bill Rammell: The following table shows the Department of Education and Skills' expenditure on financial support for learning in FE between 2003–04 and 2007–8 (actual and planned). All amounts are rounded to the nearest £1 million.

	Actual			Planned
	2003–04	2004–05	2005–06	2006–07	2007–08

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what measures are being taken to ensure that students in the bottom two socio-economic groups are encouraged into further education. [31601]

Bill Rammell: The Government's 14–19 Education and Skills White Paper sets out the prime objective of our 14–19 strategy to ensure all young people have opportunities to stay on and achieve their full potential in learning post-16. We are doing this through widening choice in the curriculum, improving the quality of the learning experience, and providing young people with the guidance and financial support they need. Particularly relevant measures for the bottom two socio-economic groups are:

the pre and post 16 Entry to Employment programmes—(work based learning designed to help disadvantaged or disaffected young people overcome often serious barriers to learning).

the Connexions Service (a front line support service for all young people offering advice on careers and lifestyle issues) a range of financial support and incentives (especially the income-tested educational maintenance allowance, a weekly payment of up to £30 designed to encourage young people to stay in learning).

Gifted and Talented Youth

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills pursuant to the answer of 7 November 2005 to the hon. Member for Bognor Regis and Littlehampton (Mr. Gibb), Official Report, column 118W, on gifted and talented youth, how many members of the National Academy of Gifted and Talented Youth there are in each school in Staffordshire. [32015]

Jacqui Smith: There are 863 members of the National Academy for Gifted and Talented Youth (NAGTY) in Staffordshire schools. The following table includes all Staffordshire local education authority schools plus those independent schools with NAGTY members.

Leadership Training

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what assessment she has made of the leadership training involved in the (a) Teach First and (b) Fast Track Teaching schemes. [33141]

Jacqui Smith: We have commissioned an independent five year evaluation of the Fast Track Teaching programme, which is due to report in 2008. An interim report will be published by the Department in early 2006. This will assess key aspects of Fast Track, including the provision of leadership training. The Training and Development Agency for Schools is funding an evaluation of the initial teacher training element of Teach First.

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how the leadership skills of participants in the (a) Teach First and (b) Fast Track Teaching scheme are assessed. [33142]

Jacqui Smith: In order to be offered a place on either Teach First or the Fast Track teaching programme, applicants are required to demonstrate their leadership potential in a challenging multi-stage selection process. Both programmes use a competency-based application sift and each has its own assessment centre.

Teach First recruits high-calibre graduates to train and qualify as teachers. It runs a compulsory leadership programme in partnership with the Tanaka Business School at Imperial College and the Institute of Education, amongst others. This Foundations of Leadership Programme aims to develop participants' leadership and entrepreneurial skills through internship, coaching, school-based projects and competitions and skills training.

Fast Track recruits teachers in the early years of their teaching career. It supports participants' accelerated leadership development by providing a programme of coaching support, mentoring and development activities, tailored to individual need. Fast Track teachers are assessed against a leadership impact scale which allows their progress to be benchmarked. The ultimate test of these teachers' leadership skills is to compete against other applicants for leadership roles. A number of Teach First participants and Fast Track teachers have achieved leadership positions in their schools. The first Fast Trackteacher to achieve a headship will take up her new post in January 2006.

Learning and Skills Council

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills pursuant to the answer of 18 October 2005 to the hon. Member for Fareham (Mr. Hoban), Official Report, column 962W, on the Learning and Skills Council, what (a) level 4, (b) level 5 and (c) higher education courses the Learning and Skills Council funded in 2003–04. [24986]

Bill Rammell: The Learning and Skills Council funded a wide range of non-prescribed higher education at level 4, 5 and higher education in 2003/04, including national vocational qualifications; diplomas (including graduate and postgraduate diplomas); graduateship, associateship and fellowship qualifications; qualifications in teaching further education; and other professional and management qualifications.

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what plans she has to introduce Ofsted inspections for the Learning and Skills Council. [33037]

Jacqui Smith: The Learning and Skills Council (LSC) is a non-departmental public body, responsible for funding and planning education and training for over 16-year-olds. It is not itself a learning provider, and is not therefore subject to inspection by Ofsted or the adult learning inspectorate (ALI), although the provision it funds is.

National Skills Academies

Jim Cousins: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Bognor Regis and Littlehampton (Mr. Gibb) of 17 November 2005, Official Report, column 1456W, on national skills academies, if she will set out the individuals, companies and other bodies who will be preparing the business plans for the first four sectors of the National Skills Academy programme. [32365]

Phil Hope: Each of the four proposals to develop National Skills Academies now moving into detailed business planning are led by the appropriate sector skills council. The sector skills councils are construction skills, the financial services sector skills council, improve (covering the food and drink manufacturing sector) and SEMTA which is leading the development of the proposal for a Manufacturing National Skills Academy.

In the four sectors a number of well-known companies have been involved in developing the proposals for National Skills Academies. This includes Bovis Lend Lease and Kier Homes (construction), Nationwide Building Society and Norwich Union (financial services) Northern Foods plc and Youngs Bluecrest Seafood Ltd (food and drink) Filtronics Components Ltd and Caterpillar (manufacturing). We expect that each of the sector skills councils will continue to work with these employers and to engage others across the sector as they develop their detailed business plans with the Learning and Skills Council. I will ask Mark Haysom, chief executive of the Learning and Skills Council to write to my hon. Friend with full details of the employers involved in the first National Skills Academies, once business plans have been agreed.

National Vocational Qualifications

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what assistance the Government are giving adults to pursue national vocational qualifications; and if she will make a statement. [31299]

Phil Hope [holding answer 23 November 2005]: The second skills White Paper, "Skills: Getting on in business, getting on in work" published in March 2005, reaffirmed our commitment that all individuals—whether employed or not can get the skills and qualifications they need for sustained and rewarding work, and for personal growth in order for them to maximise their contribution to their communities and society.

The Learning and Skills Council heavily subsidises adults undertaking national vocational qualifications—currently at least 72.5 per cent. of the course fees are paid from public funds. In addition it provides free tuition to those adults who have not yet achieved a first full Level 2 qualification, equivalent to five good GCSEs or an NVQ2. Today, there are around 10 million adults in England who lack a full Level 2 qualification and it is vital for the nation's social and economic future that they receive the help and support they need to achieve a platform of skills for employability. The Government's target is to reduce the number of people in the workforce lacking a full Level 2 or equivalent qualification by 40 per cent. (3.6 million) by 2010.

There are a number of other assistance channels for adult learners, which, depending upon individual circumstances, could include an adult learning grant which pays up to £30 a week for those on low incomes studying full-time (defined as at least 12 hours per week) for a first full Level 2 and for a first Level 3 for those between 19–30, access to an integrated information and advice service through learndirect and local nextstep services, additional help from Learner Support Funds for those who need extra help with child care, transport costs and other costs of learning, and skills coaching from April 2005 (in eight Jobcentre Plus areas) offering intensive personal guidance service for adults on inactive and active benefits to help them move into sustainable employment

Pre-school Education

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if she will make a statement on trends in (a) emotional and social development and (b) linguistic skills in pre-school children. [31419]

Beverley Hughes [holding answer 24 November 2005]: 2004 is the first year for which full official results for the foundation stage profile are available. These show that, across England as a whole, 83.7 percent. of children achieved a score of 18 or higher across the three assessment scales within the personal, social and emotional development area of learning, while 77.4 percent. achieved a total of 24 or higher across the four assessment scales within the communications, language and literacy area of learning. Children assessed as scoring six points on any assessment scale within the foundation stage profile are working securely within a wide range of goals across a broad curriculum.

We shall continue to monitor trends within the foundation stage profile results in the future.

Results from the Sure Start Language Measure (SSLM) show a significant rise in the percentage of children with both high word scores and parents free from concern about their child's language, rising from 70 percent. in 2001 to 76 percent. in 2004. Results from the 2005 SSLM national data collection are still being analysed.

Schools

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what steps her Department is taking to encourage schools to select pupils by aptitude. [33229]

Jacqui Smith: It is for schools' admission authorities to determine whether they wish to adopt such arrangements.

Mr. Davey: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what research her Department has undertaken into the relationship between a school's admissions policy and its stated ethos. [32721]

Jacqui Smith: My Department has not commissioned research into the relationship between a school's admission policy and its ethos.

Mr. Pelling: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what proportion of the Transforming Youth Work (Development Funding) funding stream from the Government Office for London was made available to the London borough of Croydon in 2004–05. [32280]

Maria Eagle: London borough of Croydon received £57,666 in 2004/05 from the Transforming Youth Work Development Fund. Croydon's proportion of the London regional allocation (£1,340.876) was 4.3 per cent.

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what guidance is given to local authorities when tendering for school transport on ensuring confidentiality of the identity of young people. [31648]

Maria Eagle: Confidentiality of information is governed by the Data Protection Act 1998. Further advice is contained in the Disability Rights Commission code of practice for schools. This recognises that information is often needed in order for authorities to make reasonable adjustments to cater for the transport requirements of a child with special needs. It explains that schools should seek the necessary consents before passing such information on. It is also clear that, should a request for confidentiality under the Disability Discrimination Act 1995 be made, information may not, from that point, be passed on for the purposes of making reasonable adjustments.

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how the role of the Northamptonshire local education authority will change as a result of the proposals in the recent schools White Paper. [31918]

Jacqui Smith [holding answer 28 November 2005]: The White Paper sets out an enhanced role for local authorities as the champions of parents and pupils, rather than the direct provider of school places. Local authorities will have new powers to commission school places and to intervene where provision is poor.

We expect all local authorities, including Northamptonshire to take on this role. However it will be for Northamptonshire local authority to determine their priorities on the basis of local need, and in accordance with relevant statutory provisions and guidance.

Scout Association

Stephen Pound: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what financial support is to be provided to assist the UK Scout Association in hosting the centenary programme in 2007. [32295]

Maria Eagle: There are currently no plans to provide funding specifically for the centenary event. However, the DfES is currently providing funding to the Scouts of £309,453 over the three year period 2005–08 through the National Voluntary Organisations Grant Scheme.

Specialist Schools

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many children with (a) special needs and (b) social and behavioural needs are being taught in specialist schools in (i) England and (ii) the Tees Valley. [26487]

Maria Eagle: Information on the number of pupils with special educational needs and behaviour, emotional and social difficulties in specialist schools and special schools is shown in the table.

Specialist schools and special schools: Number and percentage of pupils with special educational needs—January 2005: England and Tees Valley

	Number of schools	Total pupils	Pupils with a statement of SEN		Pupils with SEN without statements		Pupils whose primary need is behaviour, emotional and social difficulties[1]

[1] Pupils at School Action Plus and those with a statement of SEN provided information on their primary need and, if appropriate, their secondary need. Information on their primary need only is given here.
[2] Number of pupils with statements expressed as a percentage of the total number of pupils on roll.
[3] Number of pupils with SEN without a statement expressed as a percentage of the total number of pupils on roll.
[4] Number of pupils with behaviour, emotional and social difficulties expressed as a percentage of all pupils at School Action Plus or with a statement of SEN.
[5] Includes maintained secondary schools and special schools designated as specialist schools as at January 2005.
[6] Includes Hartlepool, Middlesbrough, Redcar and Cleveland, Stockton-on-Tees and Darlington local authorities.
[7] Includes maintained and non-maintained special schools.
[8] Number and percentage of pupils with SEN without statements and pupils by type of need excludes general hospital schools.
Note:
Pupil numbers have been rounded to the nearest 10.
Source:
Annual Schools' Census

Information was collected from schools on pupils at School Action Plus and those pupils with a statement or SEN about their main or primary need and, if appropriate, their secondary need fro the first time in 2004.

There are a range of factors which may affect the data recorded, including:

Local interpretation of definitions

Classification of children with multiple needs

Differences in diagnoses between education and health professionals

Availability of special provisions in Authorities

Swimming

Mr. Brazier: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what assessment she has made of performance against the key stage 2 target on swimming by schools in each of the last five years. [32056]

Jacqui Smith: This information is not collected centrally on a regular basis. In 2000, an Ofsted report on swimming at key stage 2 found that 83 per cent. of pupils could swim the 25 metre standard. It also found that the teaching of swimming was good or better in four out of five lessons.

Our Physical Education, School Sport and Club Links strategy, being implemented jointly with the Department of Culture, Media and Sport, provides targeted support to enhance school swimming. Since 2001, we have:

created a new swimming and water safety website

(www.nc.uk.net/safeswimming) which provides practical support for schools and swimming teachers;

published, in December 2003, a Swimming Charter, which sets out guidelines, shares best practice and provides practical support to help schools overcome many of the challenges they face when planning and delivering swimming; and carried out a pilot programme which tested out how best to support those children who reach the end of key stage 2 and are not able to swim 25 metres.

As a result of the success of the pilot, we intend to implement this programme nationally from April 2006. £5.5 million has been allocated to support a national key stage 2 swimming scheme between April 2006 and March 2008.

Teachers

Michael Fabricant: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many teachers of (a) physics and (b) mathematics do not hold a degree level qualification in a relevant subject; what estimate she has made of the percentage of teachers with a physics, mathematics or engineering degree who are likely to retire in the next 10 years; and what the availability is of supply teachers with appropriate subject qualifications. [31893]

Martin Horwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many teachers of physics at (a) A-level, (b) AS-level and (c) GCSE level had a degree in physics in the latest period for which figures are available, broken down by Key Stage. [32627]

Jacqui Smith: The information is not available in the format requested.

Table 24 of the Statistics of Education, School Workforce in England Volume, 2004 edition, shows the highest qualification held by secondary school teachers in the subjects that they taught to years 7 to 13 in 2002, the latest year for which data are available. A copy of the volume has been placed in the House of Commons Library. It may also be accessed at the following URL: http://www.dfes.gov.uk/rsgateway/DB/VOL/v000554/index.shtml.

Table 25 of the same publication provides the proportion of subject periods delivered by teachers with a degree level qualification in that subject.

Table 5 of the Secondary Schools Curriculum and Staffing Survey 2002 Statistical First Release shows the age breakdown of full time teachers by subject of highest post A-level qualification. A copy of the Statistical First Release has been placed in the House of Commons Library. It may also be accessed at the following URL: http://www.dfes.gov.uk/rsgateway/DB/SFR/s000413/sfr25-2003.pdf.

There is no fixed retirement age for teachers, although unreduced pension benefits are payable under the provisions of the Teachers' Pension Scheme to existing scheme members from age 60. Teachers currently aged 53 and over will reach age 60 by 2012 and would be able to take their pension benefits at that point. Actuarially reduced pension benefits are also available to members of the Teachers' Pension Scheme between the ages of 55 and 60.

Information is not available on the qualifications of supply teachers or the numbers of teachers who teach their degree or related subject by examination or key stage level.

Martin Horwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) what steps the Department takes to manage the number of teacher trainees in different subjects to ensure adequacy of supply; [32622]

(2) what assessment the Department has made of the ratio of supply and demand for teachers of modern languages. [32623]

Jacqui Smith: The number of initial teacher training places, including those for modern foreign languages, made available each year are agreed between the Department and the Training and Development Agency for Schools (TDA). Their decision is informed by the teacher supply models, which take into account recent and expected flows in and out of teaching, the age structure of the teaching profession, the latest pupil projections and expected changes in demand arising from new policy initiatives with an analysis by age, phase and (for secondary schools) subject. These also take account of expected wastage during training. Consideration is also given to:

the latest evidence on vacancy rate by subject the evidence of the secondary schools curriculum and staffing survey e.g. on levels of out-of-subject teaching evidence from Ofsted on particular subjects, where available the desirability for a degree of stability in the training provider market.

Since 2000 we have provided £6,000 bursaries to all PGCE trainee teachers. We have also provided those teaching priority subjects, which includes modern foreign languages, with a £4,000 Golden Hello once they have successfully completed their induction. From September 2005 trainee science and maths teachers have received an enhanced bursary of £7,000 bursary and a £5,000 Golden Hello. The financial package remained the same for other subjects. For PGCE trainee teachers of secondary priority subjects the bursary will increase again from September 2006 to £9,000. Those teachers who received the increased bursary will also be provided with a Golden Hello, of £5,000 for those teaching maths and science and £2,500 for other priority subjects, once they have successfully completed their induction.

Mr. Davey: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what research she has evaluated on what motivates (a) teachers and (b) administrators to enter the education sector at (i) primary, (ii) secondary, (iii) further education and (iv) university level. [31373]

Jacqui Smith: In 2003, the Department, in collaboration with the General Teaching Council for England (GTCE) and the Training and Development Agency for Schools (TDA), commissioned a six year study of teachers' experiences of initial teacher training and early professional development in England entitled "Becoming a Teacher". This has already explored what motivates people to enter the teaching profession.

This research has revealed that the three most influential sets of reasons which attracted the survey respondents to undertake an initial teacher training programme were related to: altruistic motives e.g. helping young people to learn; the perceived benefits of teaching and training e.g. long holidays; and being a teacher in today's society e.g. the challenging nature of the job.

The research has further revealed some differences across teaching phases, including: more primary trainees than secondary trainees were attracted by working with children and young people, and helping young people to learn; while at the same time, a higher proportion of secondary trainees than primary were attracted by staying involved with a subject specialism and opportunities for career development.

We have also looked at what motivates teachers in further education as part of a recent study entitled "Recruitment and Retention in the Post-16 Learning and Skills Sector". Respondents cited a range of factors, including wanting to help people to develop and wanting to work with a wider range of people/learners. The two major personal reasons mentioned by respondents were for their own personal development and wanting to change their career path.

In relation to university level, we have also funded a study by the National Institute of Economic and Social Research called the 'Recruitment and Retention of Academic Staff in Higher Education'. This looked at what motivates existing staff, and what the motivating factors are attracting staff into higher education. The motivating factors included: teaching; ability to undertake personal research; flexibility of hours; autonomy; and stability of employment.

We do not have any specific research results on what motivates administrators in schools, the learning and skills sector, or at university level.

Vocational Qualifications

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills pursuant to her answer of 3 November 2005, Official Report, column 1326W, on vocational qualifications, how many 15-year-olds achieved five A*-C grades at GCSE or equivalent, including a full intermediate GNVQ (a) as a proportion of all 15-year-olds and (b) as a proportion of all 15-year-olds who achieved five grades A*-C at GCSE or equivalent. [27963]

Phil Hope: Provisional figures for 2005 are available in the following table:

Proportions of 15-year-old pupils1 achieving five A-C grades at GCSE and equivalent including a full intermediate GNVQ in 2005[2]*

Five A*-C grades at GCSE and equivalent including a full intermediate GNVQ	4,666
Total number of 15-year-old pupils	637,194
Percentage of all 15-year-olds who achieved five A*-C at GCSE and equivalent including a full intermediate GNVQ	0.7
Five A*-C grades at GCSE and equivalent including a full intermediate GNVQ	4,666
Five A*-C grades at GCSE and equivalent	23,688
Percentage of those achieving five A*-C grades at GCSE and equivalent whose achievement included a full intermediate GNVQ	19.7

[1] Pupils aged 15 at the beginning of the academic year (i.e. 31 August).
[2] Figures for 2005 are provisional.
Note:
These figures are only based on those who achieved five A*-C GCSE and equivalent results, not five or more A*-C GCSE and equivalent results.

Young Apprenticeship Scheme

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how much the Young Apprenticeship Scheme (a) cost in 2004–05 and (b) is expected to cost in (i) 2005–06 and (ii) 2007–08; how many people dropped out of the scheme in 2004–05; whether schools will be able to use grades from the scheme in their GCSE league tables; how scheme grades are calibrated; and how they relate to the calibration for GCSE. [31262]

Phil Hope: There are around 1,000 pupils on cohort 1 of the programme, which began in September 2004, and around 2,000 on cohort 2, which began in September 2005.

Funding for the delivery of the Young Apprenticeship (YA) Programme is routed to local partnerships via the Learning and Skills Council (LSC) on an individual pupil basis. A total of up to £6,000 per pupil is available for the two years of the programme, £3,500 in the first and £2,500 in the second year.

In addition, the Department are providing funding to the Sector Skills Councils (SSCs) and sector bodies involved in the programme, to provide strategic input to policy development on behalf of their sectors and develop sector support for partnerships and teachers.

In 2004–05 the Young Apprenticeship Programme cost £3,948,855.63, of which £3,153,000 was allocated through the Learning and Skills Council to cover pupil costs and LSC support for partnerships, the remainder being allocated by the Department for central and sector specific support.

In 2005–06 the programme is expected to cost in the region of £10,700,000. Costs in 2007–08 (and in 2006–07) will depend on the number of pupils on the programme, yet to be confirmed.

Confirmed figures for the number of pupils who dropped out of the scheme in 2004–05 will not be known until the analysis of baseline data has been completed. This is currently scheduled for the end of 2005.

No new qualifications have been developed for the YA programme. Pupils are studying existing qualifications, which are approved as appropriate for use pre-16, either GCSEs in vocational subjects, NVQs or vocationally-related qualifications. SSCs and sector bodies have provided advice on which qualifications are most appropriate to accredit achievement in particular sectors and have clear progression routes post-16. Pupils on the programme are expected to achieve Level 2 outcomes (equivalent to A* to C at GCSE). The qualifications all have an established equivalence to GCSEs in the Secondary Achievement and Attainment Tables. Qualification outcomes for pupils on the programme will be included in the table for their school.

HEALTH

Ambulance Service

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment she has made of the impact upon the Tees, Yorkshire and Humberside Ambulance Service of the recent reconfiguration. [30317]

Mr. Byrne: There has been no reconfiguration in this geographical area since the Tees, East and North Yorkshire Ambulance Service National Health Service Trust was formed in 1999.

In order to deliver the benefits of the recent review of ambulance services, Taking Healthcare to the Patient: Transforming NHS Ambulance Services, ambulance trusts need to be of a size that enables investment in people and resources to underpin advanced services. We are therefore proposing that there should be fewer, bigger ambulance trusts and will be undertaking public consultation on these proposals this winter. These proposals will ensure resources are targeted at improving patient care and supporting front-line services.

Care Home Regulations 2001

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health, how many care homes (a) exceeded, (b) met, (c) almost met and (d) failed to meet (i) the national minimum standard for complaints procedures and (ii) Regulation (A) 5 and (B) 6 of the Care Home Regulations 2001 in each of the last five years. [22378]

Mr. Byrne: I understand from the chair of the Commission for Social Care Inspection, that data are collected on how care homes are meeting the national minimum standards. How care homes have met these standards is shown in the tables.

Regulations 5, 5A and 6 set out requirements on information to be provided to the service users. Regulation 22 sets out requirements for the complaints procedure. Compliance with these regulations is a legal condition that must be met in order for a home to be registered.

Childhood Vaccinations

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what discussions she has had with (a) the Joint Committee on vaccinations and immunisations and (b) other interested parties on whether to extend the routine childhood vaccination programme to include immunisation against pneumococcal disease. [28706]

Caroline Flint: The Joint Committee on vaccinations and immunisations provided advice on a proposed childhood pneumococcal vaccination schedule at their meeting in October 2005. This advice is currently being considered by the Department.

Consultants

Martin Horwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what mechanisms are in place to assess the effectiveness of consultant-led projects in her Department; what sanctions are available to penalise consultants who run unsuccessful projects; how many projects conducted by consultants were assessed as unsuccessful in each year since 2000; and what sanctions were imposed in each case. [29071]

Jane Kennedy: The Office of Government Commerce's Gateway process provides assurance at critical stages of a programme's or project's lifecycle and is applicable to programmes and projects managed by both internal and external resources.

The information requested in relation to individual projects is not readily available and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Martin Horwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps the Department takes to ensure that consultancies do not claim excessive expenses while working for her Department and its agencies. [29072]

Jane Kennedy: In order to prevent excessive expenses being claimed, the Department either includes them as part of the total work contract or allows them to be claimed in line with departmental guidelines.

Departmental Staff

Mr. Maples: To ask the Secretary of State for Health who the Director of Finance is of her Department; what specialist finance qualifications he or she holds; and what the details are of his or her career to date. [26322]

Mr. Byrne: The finance director is Richard Douglas. He is a member of the Chartered Institute of Public Finance and Accountancy. In summary his career history is:

Department of Health Finance Director since 2001

National Savings Finance Director 1999–2001

NHS Executive Deputy Director of Finance 1996–1999

National Audit Office Director 1994–96

National Audit Office 1980–1994

HM Customs and Excise 1978–1980

Hepatitis

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if the Government have set targets for the diagnosis of hepatitis (a) B and (b) C on an annual basis. [30845]

Caroline Flint: There are no national targets for the diagnosis of hepatitis B or C. In the Hepatitis C Action Plan for England, there are two national outcome indicators intended to track increased testing. Both these indicators, drawn from epidemiological surveillance by the Health Protection Agency, should increase the proportion of those attending treatment and support agencies for injecting drug users who are aware of their hepatitis C infection and the total number of laboratory confirmed hepatitis C infection reports.

HIV/AIDS

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps she is taking to raise awareness of HIV/AIDS among primary care staff; what guidance she has issued to primary care staff to ensure the care received by those with HIV/AIDS is fair and equitable; and what plans she has to issue further guidance on this issue. [26018]

Caroline Flint: "Recommended standards for NHS HIV services" was published in 2003. This includes a chapter on primary health care for people with HIV. This document was produced jointly by the Department and the Medical Foundation for AIDS and Sexual Health (MEDFASH). The latter has also produced a booklet, "HIV in Primary Care—an essential guide to HIV for general practitioners, practice nurses and other members of the primary health care team".

The British Association of Sexual Health and HIV (BASHH) also has guidelines on HIV testing in primary care.

The National HIV Nurses Association is due to publish a set of HIV nursing competencies in 2006. All these guidelines help ensure that HIV/AIDS care is fair and equitable.

Human Fertilisation and Embryology Authority

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will list public consultations undertaken by the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Authority in each of the last 10 years; and what conclusions were reached in each case. [30412]

Caroline Flint: Information on the public consultation exercises undertaken by the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Authority (HFEA) can be found on its website at www.hfea.gov.uk. Where the outcome is not shown, the consultation has resulted in amendments to the HFEA's code of practice or the issue of new or revised directions.

Infertility Treatment

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) whether all primary care trusts in England are providing at least one cycle of IVF to eligible couples with infertility; and if she will make a statement; [29837]

(2) what assessment she has made of the extent to which primary care trusts are limiting the provision of NHS-funded infertility treatment to couples with no existing children; and if she will make a statement;[29838]

(3) what assessment she has made of whether primary care trusts are applying more restrictive female age criteria to couples seeking NHS-funded infertility treatment than the 23 to 39 years range set by the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence; and if she will make a statement. [29839]

Caroline Flint: I refer the hon. Member to the reply I gave on 23 November 2005, Official Report, column 2110W.

Influenza Virus

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the evidential basis was for the statement on page 44 of the UK pandemic influenza contingency plan, published on 19 October, in relation to pneumococcal immunisation preventing some of the complications due to secondary pneumococcal infection following influenza infection; and whether the evidence indicates that this is an effective course of action for (a) adults over 65 years and (b) children. [28705]

Caroline Flint: Both pneumococcal vaccines used to vaccinate children and older people in clinical risk groups, including adults over 65 years have been shown to provide protection against pneumococcal bacteraemia. In the case of the vaccine that is recommended for children under five years who are in a risk group, the vaccine also provides protection against non-bacteraemic infections such as pneumonia and ear infections.

It is well documented that secondary bacterial infection follows influenza infection during seasonal flu epidemics. It is reasonable to assume that there may be an increase in pneumococcal disease during a pandemic. It would be prudent to ensure that there is high vaccine coverage among the risk groups recommended pneumococcal vaccine.

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what assessment she has made of the possibility of (a) co-infection within a single human host of a human-adapted influenza virus and H5N1, with a consequent interchange of genetic material between the viruses and (b) random mutation giving rise to a new pandemic influenza virus; [23988]

(2) what assessment she has made of whether there are human influenza strains which could combine with an H5N1 strain giving rise to mutagenesis from which a virulent, human host adapted strain could emerge. [25463]

Caroline Flint: There are little data available on this issue. There is good evidence that the 1918 pandemic virus arose from random mutation giving rise to a new human virus. There is also good evidence that the 1957 and 1968 pandemic viruses arose from reassortment between a human virus and an animal virus. At this time, it is impossible to determine how a new human pandemic virus might be created and which influenza strains might be involved in the reassortment.

Pharmaceutical Pricing Authority

Jim Cousins: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what the expenditure was on the Pharmaceutical Pricing Authority in 2004–05; and what the planned expenditure is for 2005–06 and 2006–07 in (a) cash and (b) real terms, including the reductions proposed in the NHS non-departmental body review; [30459]

(2) how many full-time equivalent staff were employed by the (a) Pharmaceutical Pricing Authority and (b) Health Protection Agency (i) in total and (ii) in each (A) region, (B) country and (C) main office location in each of the last five years; and what job reductions are planned in each case. [30460]

Jane Kennedy [holding answer 21 November 2005]: Expenditure by Prescription Pricing Authority (PPA) in 2004–05, taken from the finance report and accounts, shows a net resource out-turn of £72.676 million; capital expenditure of £4.702 million; and a net parliamentary funding of £76.477 million.

PPA expenditure for 2005–06, taken from the latest finance report and accounts indicates a net resource out-turn of £76.192 million (forecast); capital expenditure of £6.03 million (forecast); and a net parliamentary funding of £78.095 million.

The gross domestic product deflator for 2005–06 was 2.5 per cent.

In terms of planned expenditure for 2006–07, the PPA will become part of the new NHS Business Services Authority. Individual budgets will no longer be allocated to the component organisations within the NHS Business Services Authority as synergy through the merger will be used to realise efficiencies.

In terms of the numbers of staff employed by the PPA, the figures in the finance report and accounts, shows the number of employees (whole-time equivalent) as being:

	Number
2004–05	2,123
2003–04	2,108
2002–03	2,260
2001–02	2,080
2000–01	2,145

This excludes those employed on behalf of other agencies.

The Health Protection Agency (HPA) was created on 1 April 2003. Published information on staffing levels is available in its annual reports and accounts for 2003–04 and for 2004–05, both of which are available in the Library. The Department does not have information about HPA staffing in each region or county. Sites at which HPA currently operates and the whole-time equivalent staff numbers at each site as at 1 April 2005 has been placed in the Library.

Both the PPA and the HPA are in discussion with the Department about reductions in staffing levels in response to the arms length body review.

Notes:

1. 2005–06 forecast out-turn assumes £1.173 million underspend.

2. Figures are not really comparable due to European Health Insurance Card provision in 2005–06 of £8.5 million plus cost improvement programme, etc. Therefore, it would be misleading to increase the 2004–05 out-turn by 2.5 per cent. to £74.5 million without taking all the other funding changes into account.

Pneumococcal Vaccine Supply

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which manufacturers supply pneumococcal vaccines to the NHS; and what evidence she has received on the relative effectiveness of each. [28707]

Caroline Flint: The pneumcococcal polysaccharide vaccine is supplied by Sanofi Pasteur MSD Ltd and is the vaccine recommended for those aged two years and over in at-risk groups, including all those aged 65 years and over.

The vaccine provides protection against 23 pneumococcal strains. Overall effectiveness in preventing pneumococcal bacteraemia, invasive pneumococcal pneumonia, septacaemia and meningitis, is around 50 to 70 percent, for this vaccine[1]. Current evidence suggests that the polysaccharide vaccine is not effective in protecting against non-bacteraemic pneumococcal infection such as pneumonia[2].

The pneumococcal conjugate vaccine is supplied by Wyeth vaccines as is the vaccine recommended for at-risk children under five years.

The vaccine provides protection against seven common pneumococcal strains. Pre and post-licensing studies have shown the vaccine to be 97 percent, effective in preventing pneumococcal bacteraemia caused by these strains. The vaccine also provides protection against pneumonia and otitis media[3].

Tuberculosis

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will list countries from which people applying for a visa to stay in the UK for longer than six months have to provide a certificate proving that they are free from infectious tuberculosis; and what estimate she has made of the incidence of infectious tuberculosis in those countries. [29506]

Caroline Flint [holding answer 17 November 2005]: As part of the Home Office five-year strategy, the International Organisation of Migration (IOM) have started a phased implementation of pre-entry screening in Tanzania, Thailand, Sudan and Bangladesh. United Kingdom entry clearance officers in these countries have begun to advise all applicants applying for UK entry certificates that they need to be screened for infectious pulmonary tuberculosis, and will be required to bring a health certificate issued by IOM with them to the UK in order to get entry clearance. Applicants found to have infectious TB will not be issued with a health certificate until they have completed treatment in line with World Health Organisation guidelines.

Details of the incidence of infectious tuberculosis in the four, and other, countries have been published by the WHO at:

www.who.int/tb/publications/global_report/2005/en/

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment she has made of the reasons for the rise in the number of cases of tuberculosis in England. [29507]

Caroline Flint [holding answer 17 November 2005]: The chief medical officer's action plan "Stopping Tuberculosis in England" (October 2004) recognised that tuberculosis (TB) in England increased by 25 per cent. over the previous 10 years, and is still rising.

There are a number of factors that contribute to the rise in TB. TB is so common in certain parts of the world that people who live there are at a higher risk of catching it. The disease follows patterns of migration, and in England around two-thirds of TB patients are born abroad. Among these people, TB as a disease may not develop until five to 10 years later. Apart from the changing patterns of migration, other factors for increasing rates of TB include increased opportunities for international travel; homelessness in inner cities and increasing alcohol and other substance misuse. Also, HIV infection weakens a person's immunity to TB, although this only accounts for a small proportion, around 3 per cent. of the total.

The Health Protection Agency (HPA) implemented a system of continuous enhanced tuberculosis surveillance in England in 1999 in response to the increase in cases of tuberculosis reported through the statutory notification system for infectious diseases, and aimed to better inform understanding of the changing epidemiology of tuberculosis.

Annual tuberculosis surveillance reports are available from the HPA's website at www.hpa.org.uk/infections/topics_az/tb/epidemiology/reports.htm

SOLICITOR-GENERAL

Crime Statistics

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Solicitor-General how many successful prosecutions for (a) violent crime and (b) gun crime there have been in each of the last five years. [22261]

Hazel Blears: I have been asked to reply.

The available information from the Home Office Court Proceedings database is contained in the table. It shows the number of successful prosecutions for violent crime (including all offences of violence against the person, sexual offences and robbery) in England and Wales, 1999 to 2003.

It is not possible to identify the number of offenders found guilty of gun crime as the individual circumstances of the offence are not collected.

Statistics on court proceedings for 2004 will be published in late November.

Offenders[1] found guilty at all courts for violent crime offences,[2] England and Wales, 1999 to 2003

	Number
1999	45,630
2000	45,104
2001	46,163
2002	49,803
2003	49,694

[1] These data are on the principal offence basis.

[2] Violent crime includes all offences of violence against the person, sexual offences and robbery.

Equitable Life

Dr. Cable: To ask the Solicitor General when the Serious Fraud Office will report back on its examination of Equitable Life, commissioned by his Department in January 2004. [33047]

The Solicitor-General: I am informed that the Serious Fraud Office has taken counsel's opinion but will not complete consideration of the matter until the current civil actions are complete.

Serious Fraud Office

Chris Huhne: To ask the Solicitor General how many people have been proceeded against by the Serious Fraud Office in the 2005–06 financial year; and how many were acquitted by (a) jury and (b) order of the judge. [32465]

The Solicitor-General: During the financial year to date the Serious Fraud Office have secured convictions against nine defendants out of those proceeded against in seven cases whilst two have been acquitted by the verdict of a jury: Two further defendants have had the charges dismissed against them by order of the judge.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Bees

Mr. Willis: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps she is taking to address the increase in the incidence of European foulbrood in bee colonies. [29284]

Jim Knight: Data provided by the National Bee Unit indicate that there has been a slight decline rather than an increase in the incidence of European foul brood disease in England in recent years. This year, 664 colonies were found infected with European foul brood compared to the 1007 cases recorded in 2000.

The effectiveness of measures to control European foul brood is subject to continuous assessment by the National Bee Unit. The unit is currently evaluating the effectiveness of the shook swarm technique for improved control of the disease. If successful, this will eliminate the need for the application of antibiotic by bee health inspectors.

Cattle Passports

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) how many (a) farmers, (b) cattle owners and (c) cattle keepers have had an application for at least one cattle passport rejected on the grounds of the late return of the form since September 2003; [30585]

(2) how many applications for cattle passports have been made since September 2003; how many of those applications were rejected; and how many were refused on the grounds of the late return of the form in each month; [30586]

(3) in how many cases where applications for cattle passports were refused on the grounds of late return of the form since September 2003 (a) a passport was subsequently issued after an appeal, (b) the animal concerned was slaughtered and (c) the animal concerned died; and if she will make a statement. [30587]

Jim Knight: The Cattle Tracing System database (CTS) does not distinguish between farmers, cattle owners and cattle keepers. It contains details of cattle holdings. Each holding is associated with the name of a cattle keeper but the database does not indicate whether the keeper is also the owner of the cattle. A keeper may have more than one holding.

A passport is withheld when the application is received late. This rule has been strictly enforced since 21 November 2003. Before that date a less rigorous approach was taken. In the period from 28 September 1998 to 20 November 2003, a total of 13,448 passport applications were rejected because they were not received within the legal time limits and the identity and traceability of the animal could not be established.

Between 21 November 2003 and 31 October 2005, 14,995 holdings have had at least one cattle passport refused on the grounds of late application. In this period 5,551,571 passport applications were recorded onto the CTS of which 44,734 applications were refused on the grounds of late return of the form. Monthly figures are shown in the following table.

	Passport applications	Refused passports
21–30 November 2003	44,982	745
December 2003	169,944	3,122
January 2004	175,311	4,139
February 2004	177,562	2,425
March 2004	314,576	2,527
April 2004	383,512	3,336
May 2004	319,045	2,648
June 2004	306,653	3,519
July 2004	222,989	1,867
August 2004	236,334	2,000
September 2004	229,619	1,837
October 2004	197,708	1,385
November 2004	196,104	1,255
December 2004	151,008	1,061
January 2005	161,653	1,363
February 2005	164,482	1,264
March 2005	281,472	1,209
April 2005	360,409	1,199
May 2005	340,146	1,643
June 2005	258,330	1,688
July 2005	214,438	1,198
August 2005	227,453	1,236
September 2005	222,609	1,150
October 2005	195,232	918

During the period 10,504 passports were issued following a successful appeal, after initially being refused because of late application.

Of the animals which have been refused passports during the period 21 November 2003 to 31 October 2005, 11,202 have since been recorded as dead on the Cattle Tracing System database. This figure excludes import applications as the deadline dates are different for these application types.

It is not possible to distinguish between those which have been slaughtered and those which have died of natural causes. The database only records the date and place of death, not the cause of death.

The Department is currently reviewing all the domestic legislation implementing the ED cattle identification requirements, and I have asked officials to ensure that the rules on late passport applications are included. There will be a full public consultation on this review shortly. However, I must emphasise that if any changes to procedures are considered in this context, we will continue to give priority to the maintenance of an accurate and reliable database.

Civil Service Relocation (Scotland)

Stewart Hosie: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many departmental civil service jobs have been relocated to Scotland in each year since 2001. [32375]

Jim Knight [holding answer 28 November 2005]: Since DEFRA was created in June 2001, no staff have transferred to Scotland with funding assistance from the Department.

Common Agricultural Policy

Mr. Brady: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if she will list the meetings of EU Agriculture Ministers in the last 12 months at which reform of the Common Agricultural Policy was discussed. [32513]

Jim Knight [holding answer 28 November 2005]: Discussions of CAP reform within the last 12 months has focused on reform of the sugar regime. This was discussed at the Agriculture and Fisheries Council on the following dates: 22–23 November 2004, and 24 January, 18–19 July, 19–20 September, 24–25 October, 22–24 November 2005. Agreement on reform was reached at the meeting in November 2005.

Countryside Stewardship Scheme

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many agreements under the Countryside Stewardship scheme are live; how many hectares are covered by such agreements; how many agreements provided access for the public within two miles of (a) an urban area and (b) the coast; and how many hectares are covered in those areas. [31838]

Jim Knight: There are currently 16,747 live Countryside Stewardship Scheme (CSS) agreements covering 524,604.58 hectares. More specifically, the number and hectarage of live CSS agreements providing both linear and open access for the public are as follows:

(a) Within two miles of an urban area there are 1,127 agreements covering 3,697.87 hectares and

(b) Within two miles of the coast there are 295 agreements covering 1,283.53 hectares

All figures are taken from the 2004 agreement year which represents the latest available data.

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if she will list the access authorities which have taken part in the Access Management Grant Scheme; and what total level of funding has been granted to each such authority since the scheme's inception. [31842]

Jim Knight: Up to 1 November 2005, 52 access authorities in England have been granted a total of £3,063,591 in funding under the Access Management Grant Scheme, as follows:

Barnsley	15,018
Bath and North East Somerset	2,475

Departmental Staff

Mr. Maples: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs who the Finance Director is in her Department; what specialist finance qualifications he or she holds; and what the details are of his or her career to date. [26319]

Jim Knight: Defra's acting finance director is Ian Grattidge. He joined Defra on 18 February 2002 and was appointed acting director on 7 November 2005. Ian Grattidge is a Fellow of the Institute of Certified Chartered Accountants.

Prior to joining Defra Ian Grattidge held finance director posts at the Food Standards Agency and the Veterinary Laboratories Agency. He has also held posts in the finance management division of former MAFF and at the BBC; was head of finance and business administration at the Laboratory of the Government Chemist, DTI; financial accountant at NMI Ltd; an internal auditor for the DTI and a tax inspector for HM Customs and Excise.

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many staff in her Department have been relocated into London and the South East in each of the last five years for which records are available. [31765]

Jim Knight: DEFRA was created in June 2001 and the information in this answer covers the period since then. The following table shows the number of staff who have been relocated into London and the South East with funding assistance from the Department.

	Number
2001 (June to December)	11
2002	22
2003	11
2004	10
2005 (January to November)	7

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what plans she has to relocate staff in her Department and related agencies into London and the South East. [31766]

Jim Knight: The Department and related agencies have no plans to relocate staff into London and the South East.

Departmental Transport

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what guidance her Department has issued to departmental offices on (a) producing a transport plan for staff and contractors and (b) reducing the environmental impact of car parking and car use by staff and contractors. [30368]

Jim Knight: All Defra and executive agency workplaces with more than 50 people working on-site are required to produce travel plans to reduce the impact of travel-related activities on the environment. Targets and actions are reviewed for progress and sites are surveyed biennially so that travel plans can be updated. Comprehensive guidance is provided through access to the Energy Savings Trust's Travel Plan Resource Pack for Employers.

Travel plans are site-specific and each addresses significant transport-related environmental impacts according to local circumstances. At sites where car parking and car use are identified as significant impacts constructive solutions are sought to reduce the negative impacts.

Energy Efficiency

Sir Robert Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the answer of 19 October 2005, Official Report, column 1054W, on energy efficiency (commercial sector), what (a) the cost effective potential and (b) the technical potential for carbon savings in the commercial and services sector through energy efficiency measures is by (i) 2010 and (ii) 2020, expressed in megatonnes of carbon. [30822]

Mr. Morley: The information is as follows:

(a) 2010: The cost effective potential (10 per cent.) is around 2MtC.

2020: This figure is more difficult to estimate but may also be around the 10 per cent. level, with the draw-down of existing measures generally balanced by the influx of new ones, as has happened in the past. The corresponding carbon figure may be somewhat under 2MtC, but the precise value will depend on the impact of future carbon reduction policies in this particular sector, the sector's underlying growth rate and any structural changes occurring within it.

(b) The current technical potential is approximately 6MtC. The figures for 2010 and 2020 are likely to be similar, perhaps slightly lower in 2020 if emissions fall as planned.

Farm Subsidies

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the forecast number of applicants for the 2005 single farm payment in England was; and how many farmers have applied. [29789]

Jim Knight [holding answer 21 November 2005]: A total of 120,367 claim forms have been received under the Single Payment Scheme in England. The overall number is subject to revision as it includes some duplicate claims and claimants. The number of claims received is in line with forecasts, which ranged from 110,000 to 130,000.

Flood Defences

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what plans she has to increase investment on flood defences in Robertsbridge, East Sussex. [33126]

Mr. Morley: Following the serious flooding in Robertsbridge during autumn 2000, the Environment Agency has invested £4.5 million on a flood alleviation scheme for the town, which was completed in 2004. The Environment Agency undertakes annual routine maintenance of the flood defences in the form of river clearance, embankment mowing and weed screen clearance.

The Environment Agency's Rother and Romney catchment flood management plan is due for completion in 2007 and will identify the long-term policy and investment needs for the catchment, including Robertsbridge.

Global Monitoring for Environment and Security

Lembit Öpik: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what discussions she had concerning the global monitoring for environment and security programme since September with (a) the Prime Minister, (b) the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry and (c) the European Commission; and if she will make a statement. [32167]

Mr. Morley: I have regular meetings with the Prime Minister and other Cabinet colleagues on a range of issues.

The Government support the concept of GMES and has played an active role in shaping its development as a user-driven initiative.

GMES has the potential to improve the development and implementation of environment policy in the UK, Europe and on a global scale, but there is work to be done to ensure that this potential is realised.

Over the coming months the Government will continue to work with the European Commisson to try to ensure that GMES will deliver the information and services we need in the long term.

Greenhouse Gas Emissions

Mr. Binley: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether the United Kingdom is on track to meet the Government's target to reduce greenhouse gas emissions by 20 per cent. from 1990 levels by 2010. [33177]

Mr. Morley: The Government are aware that more needs to be done to achieve their 2010 goal—latest published projections indicate that emissions of carbon dioxide will be about 13 per cent. below 1990 levels in 2010.

The current review of the UK Climate Change Programme is looking at how existing policies are performing and the range of policies that might be put in place to put the UK back on track towards a 20 per cent. reduction in carbon dioxide emissions by 2010.

Japanese Knotweed

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what guidance she has issued to local authorities and other relevant bodies on dealing with Japanese knotweed. [32146]

Jim Knight [holding answer 28 November 2005]: Japanese knotweed is a vigorous and invasive non-native plant that appears to have no natural enemies in Britain. It can colonise most habitats, expanding rapidly and excluding other plants. It can also damage property (and therefore needs to be cleared from development sites) and cause problems in terms of flood management. Material containing Japanese knotweed is treated as controlled waste under the Environmental Protection Act 1 990 to help prevent its further spread. The Environment Agency and local authorities have enforcement functions for the 1990 Act.

The Environment Agency and the Centre for Aquatic Plant Management have therefore produced detailed guidance on control of Japanese knotweed, including what methods are appropriate in different circumstances. This is readily available on the web at:

www.environment-agency.gov.uk/subjects/conservation/840870/840894/840941/?version = 1&l ang = _e.

Public Service Agreements

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) if she will introduce more user friendly reporting of progress against 2004 public service agreement target 8; [29951]

(2) What timescales have been set by the Department for achievement of 2004 PSA Target 1; [30055]

(3) What data sources she intends to use to measure progress towards internationally-agreed commitments to tackle climate change, as required for the measurement of 2004 public service agreement target 1; [30056]

(4) How she will define the term rural area as required for the purpose of measuring achievement of the 2004 public service agreement target four. [30057]

Jim Knight: The Department provides regular performance updates against its outstanding public service agreement targets through its annual departmental report and its autumn performance report published in spring and autumn respectively which the Department aims to make accessible. The 2005 departmental report (Cm6537), which is the most recently published, is available in the House Libraries and online at:

http://www.defra.gov.uk/corporate/deprep/default.htm

Defra's 2005 autumn performance report is due for publication in mid-December and this will be the first time the Department has reported against its 2004 spending review targets.

A short summary of progress against our 2004 Spending Review targets can be found in appendix six of the forthcoming autumn performance eport, with more detailed information available in chapter two.

Radioactive Waste Policy Group

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs who the members are of the Radioactive Waste Policy Group; on what dates the Group has met in the last 12 months; when the Group plans to meet in the next 12 months; and if she will place in the Library a copy of the minutes of meetings held in the last 12 months. [28503]

Mr. Morley: The Radioactive Waste Policy group (RWPG) is chaired and managed by the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (Defra). It is made up of representatives from:

Department of Environment, Food and Rural Affairs; Department of Trade and Industry; Nuclear Decommissioning Authority; Department of Health; Department of Transport; Department for Education and Skills; Department for Culture, Media and Sport; Department for Work and Pensions; Ministry of Defence; Office of the Deputy Prime Minister; Treasury; Cabinet Office; Scottish Executive; Welsh Assembly Government; Department of the Environment Northern Ireland; Health and Safety Executive; Environment Agency; Scottish Environment Protection Agency; Office for Civil Nuclear Security and the Food Standards Agency.

Some of these participate fully while others are corresponding members who attend meetings as the agenda demands.

Meetings have taken place on the following dates over the past 12 months:

7 October 2004

12 April 2005

13 July 2005

8 November 2005

There are no confirmed dates for future meetings, although the next is likely to take place in the first half of February 2006.

As an inter-departmental body, the release of the minutes of meetings of RWPG may prejudice the full and frank exchange of views in the development of policy in this area. I will, however, give further consideration to the request and undertake to write to the hon. Member in due course. Meanwhile, the bulk of recent discussion in the Group has been on the subject of the Government's review of low level radioactive waste management policy on which there has been extensive stakeholder consultation. Details of this are given on the website http://www.peoplescienceandpolicy.com/llw/index.html

Tenant Farmers

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what progress has been made since 2001 in establishing a retirement scheme for tenant farmers in the livestock sector as stated in the Labour Party's 2001 general election manifesto. [29787]

Jim Knight [holding answer 21 November 2005]: The Government have decided against introducing a retirement scheme for farmers as it would not provide value for money compared with the large costs likely to be involved and would offer little public benefit—a view shared by the Policy Commission on the Future of Farming and Food. In addition, funding a retirement incentive scheme could mean having to close down or shrink other grant schemes, which are providing valuable public benefits such as the agri-environment schemes.

Research commissioned by Defra on entry to and exit from farming in the UK concluded that entry and exit decisions are generally rational and driven by strong market forces and personal motivations. Intervention to affect the rate of entry or exit via financial inducements is likely to be expensive and ineffectual in the longer term. (The research can be found at:

http://statistics.defra.gov.uk/esg/reports/entrvexit/finalreport.pdf)

However Defra is supporting an industry-led initiative called fresh start. Fresh start aims to secure a sustainable future for farming in England through encouraging new entrants into farming. A further element of the fresh start initiative is to stimulate existing farmers to think about how they might respond to the changes brought about by CAP reform, whether this means expanding their business, diversifying into other activities or retiring from the industry. Such choices will serve to create opportunities for new entrants wishing to develop their careers in the industry.

As part of fresh start, Defra has produced a detailed information pack designed to support professional agricultural advisers when discussing retirement and other exit options with their farmer clients. The pack provides an overview of all the issues that need to be considered as part of the process of planning for what may be a radical change, whether that be a transition to retirement or a move to another career.

Recently fresh start has established a new relationship with a number of organisations working in the field of farmer retirement, including the Arthur Rank Centre and Farm Crisis Network, to provide support to potential retirees including matching and mentoring services to help retirees link-up with potential new entrants.

Trade Effluent

Chris McCafferty: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many significant consents to discharge trade effluent to watercourses were held by industry in (a) 2002, (b) 2003 and (c) 2004; what percentage of these consents were monitored for compliance purposes and inspections made by the Environment Agency; what the level of compliance with these consents was; what enforcement actions were taken against sites that breached their consents; what percentage of these consents were reviewed; how many reviews led to a tightening of the discharge consent; and what percentage of consents included red list substances. [31923]

Mr. Morley: The table details the significant consents issued to industry by the Environment Agency for trade effluent discharges to watercourses and the corresponding information my hon. Friend requested.

	2002	2003	2004
Number of significant discharge consents	4109	4119	2858
Percentage monitored for compliance purposes and inspections made by EA	58.7	65.4	63.0
Level of compliance (percentage)	817	82.3	80.0
Enforcement action taken against sites that breached consents

Prosecutions	8	18	10
Percentage of consents reviewed	0.1	0.1	0.3
Number	4	4	9
Number of reviews which led to tightening of consent	0	0	8
Percentage	—	—	90
Percentage of consents including List I/I I (red list) substances	13	13	11

Urban Gulls

Steve Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if she will estimate the number of urban gulls in (a) England, (b) each region and (c) each sub-regional area; and if she will provide corresponding estimates for any earlier period for which estimates are available. [32020]

Jim Knight: The Seabird 2000 survey was conducted by Joint Nature Conservation Committee (JNCC) in partnership with other organisations including English Nature and RSPB. The survey looked at breeding populations of seabirds between 1998 and 2002. A full report of the survey can be found at:

http://www.incc.gov.uk/pdf/Summary Britain Ireland seabird breeding numbers.pdf

The report includes a number of tables setting out seabird populations which provides figures for Operation Seafarer and Seabird Colony Register census in comparison to Seabird 2000 at administrative area and country level. Specific data for each region and sub regional area is not available.

It can be seen from the report that the number of roof nesting gulls in England were approximately;

Herring Gulls 47,400 pairs

Warm Front Scheme

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many households in Tamworth constituency have received assistance under the Warm Front scheme in each year since its introduction. [32035]

Mr. Morley: Between the launch of the Warm Front Scheme in June 2000 and the end of March 2005, the number of households assisted in each year in Tamworth constituency are as follows:

Period	Number assisted
2000–01	309
2001–02	391
2002–03	303
2003–04	279
2004–05	414
Total	1,696

Wild Birds

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what information she collects on numbers of wild birds in the United Kingdom; and if she will make a statement. [31336]

Jim Knight: DEFRA annually monitors the numbers of a whole range of birds, through the Breeding Bird Survey. This survey, conducted and funded jointly by the British Trust for Ornithology, the RSPB and the Joint Nature Conservation Committee, assesses trends in the numbers of common species of birds across the country. A range of other surveys, funded by these organisations, assesses trends in scarcer species. Annual reports are produced for each of the surveys, but summary information derived from them is contained in the report "The State of the UK's Birds 2004"[1] which was published in July 2005.

This report revealed:

Major successes since 1970 include scarce breeders with mainly southern distributions, such as little ringed plovers, woodlarks and Dartford warblers, that may be benefiting from climate change; species such as the buzzard that may be experiencing less persecution than in the past; and species such as the woodpigeon, which may be benefiting from changes in agricultural cropping patterns.

Recent surveys have detected encouraging increases for some of our most vulnerable breeding species: corncrakes, bitterns and nightjars. One species, the hen harrier, showed encouraging increases in the north and west but worrying declines elsewhere in its range.

The all-species, farmland and woodland wild bird indicators for the UK have all shown a slight increase over the last year. However, the farmland bird indicator remains below 60 per cent. of its 1970 value.

2004 was the poorest breeding season on record for many of our seabirds, such as kittiwakes and guillemots, raising concerns about environmental changes in the seas surrounding the UK.

The report recognised encouraging progress towards meeting species' targets in the UK Biodiversity Action Plan where concerted conservation action has resulted in increases in numbers of bitterns, corncrakes, stone-curlews and cirl buntings—all species that were at serious risk of extinction as recently as the mid-1990s. While there is no reason for complacency, indications are that the dramatic rate of long-term decline in overall bird populations may have been halted.

TREASURY

Deaths (Statistics)

Lembit Öpik: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) how many people under the age of 18 years have been killed in accidents in each of the last five years; [32116]

(2) how many people under the age of 18 years have committed suicide during each of the last five years.[32117]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Colin Mowl, dated 30 November 2005:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your recent questions concerning how many people under the age of 18 years have (a) been killed in accidents and (b) committee suicide, during each of the last five years. I am replying in her absence. (32116, 32117)

The most recent available figures are for the calendar year 2004. The figures below show the number of deaths from (a) accidents and (b) intentional self harm among those aged 0 to 17 for the calendar years 2000 to 2004.

Number of deaths among people aged 0 to 17 years from accidents, suicide and injury of undetermined intent, England and Wales, 2000 to 2004[1]

	Aged 0–12		Aged 13–17
	Accidents[2]	Suicide[3]	Accidents[2]	Suicide and injury of undetermined intent[4]
2000	245	—	245	78
2001	216	—	272	63
2002	208	—	232	70
2003	202	—	233	57
2004	178	—	252	55

[1] Figures are for deaths occurring in each calendar year.

[2] The cause of death for accidents was defined using the International Classification of Diseases, Ninth Revision (ICD-9) codes E800-E869 and E880-E928 for the year 2000, and, for the years 2001 to 2004, the International Classification of Diseases, Tenth Revision (ICD-10) codes V01-X59.

[3] The cause of death for suicide was defined using the International Classification of Diseases, Ninth Revision (ICD-9) codes E950-E959for the year 2000, and, for the years 2001 to 2004, the International Classification of Diseases, Tenth Revision (ICD-10) codes X60-X84.

[4] The cause of death for injury of undetermined intent was defined using the International Classification of Diseases, Ninth Revision (ICD-9) codes E980-E989 excluding E988.8 for the year 2000, and, for the years 2001 to 2004, the International Classification of Diseases, Tenth Revision (ICD-10) codes Y10-Y34 excluding Y33.9 where the coroner's verdict was pending. It is assumed likely that most of these deaths at ages 13 and over are cases where the harm is self-inflicted but there was insufficient evidence to prove that the deceased deliberately intended to kill themselves. As there were no intentional self harm deaths in children under the age of 13, data for injury of undetermined intent have not been included.

Mr. Kemp: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer in how many deaths in (a) Houghton and Washington, East, (b) Sunderland and (c) Tyne and Wear alcohol was the primary cause in each of the past five years. [32871]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 30 November 2005:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your recent question asking in how many deaths in (a) Houghton and Washington East, (b) Sunderland and (c) Tyne and Wear alcohol was the primary cause in each of the last five years. (32871)

The latest year for which figures are available is 2004. The table below shows the numbers of deaths among residents of the parliamentary constituency of Houghton and Washington East, metropolitan district of Sunderland and former metropolitan county of Tyne and Wear where the underlying cause of death indicated a condition directly related to alcohol use in the years 2000 to 2004.

Alcohol-related deaths[1] to usual residents of the parliamentary constituency of Houghton and Washington, East, the metropolitan district of Sunderland and the former metropolitan county of Tyne and Wear, registered 2000–04

Number of deaths

	Houghton and Washington, East	Sunderland	Tyne and Wear
2000	11	48	174
2001	13	40	150
2002	13	44	167
2003	19	45	188
2004	7	37	221

[1] For the year 2000 the cause of death was defined using the International Classification of Diseases, Ninth Revision (ICD-9). The codes used by ONS to define alcohol-related deaths are listed as follows:
291—Alcoholic psychoses
303—Alcohol dependence syndrome
305.0—Non-dependent abuse of alcohol
425.5—Alcoholic cardiomyopathy
571—Chronic liver disease and cirrhosis
E860—Accidental poisoning by alcohol
For the years 2001–04 the International Classification of Diseases, Tenth Revision (ICD-10) was used. To maintain comparability with earlier years the following codes were used:
F10—Mental and behavioural disorders due to use of alcohol
142.6—Alcoholic cardiomyopathy
K70—Alcoholic liver disease
K73—Chronic hepatitis, not elsewhere classified
K74—Fibrosis and cirrhosis of liver
X45—Accidental poisoning by and exposure to alcohol

Notes:
1. Deaths were selected using the original underlying cause.
2. The selection of codes to define alcohol-related deaths is described in:
Baker A and Rooney C (2003). Recent trends in alcohol-related mortality, and the impact of ICD-10 on the monitoring of these deaths in England and Wales. "Health Statistics Quarterly" 17, pp 5–14.

Freedom of Information

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many Freedom of Information applications his Department has received; how many have taken more than 20 days to process; and how many of these gave rise to complaints about the time taken. [31220]

John Healey: The Department for Constitutional Affairs is committed to publishing quarterly updates in relation to departmental performance under FOI, including information on both the volume and outcomes of requests. The bulletin for the second quarter was published on 30 September 2005 and can be found on the DCA website at http://www.foi.gov.uk/statsapr-jun05.htm and in the Libraries of both Houses. The next bulletin will be published before Christmas, while an annual report will be published in early 2006. To the period to end June 2005 the Treasury has received one procedural review on grounds of late response.

Business Mileage Allowance

Philip Davies: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether he plans to re-evaluate the business mileage allowance tax scheme. [33427]

Dawn Primarolo: The Chancellor keeps the statutory tax free mileage allowance rates under review and considers changes in the context of the Budget and pre-Budget report statements.

Biofuels

Dr. Pugh: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what changes (a) have been made and (b) are due to be made in the taxation of biofuels; [32342]

(2) what changes (a) have been made and (b) are due to be made in the taxation of red diesel. [32343]

John Healey: Duty rates for all fuels are reviewed annually as part of the Budget process. The following table sets out duty rates for rebated gas oil (red diesel) and biofuels (bioethanol and biodiesel) since 1997.

Date of rate change	Gas oil (red diesel)	Biodiesel	Bioethanol	Biodiesel used off-road
2 July 1997	2.58	—	—	—
17 March 1998	2.82	—	—	—
9 March 1999	3.03	—	—	—
21 March 2000	3.13	—	—	—
26 July 2002	—	25.82	—	3.13
9 April 2003	4.22	—	—	—
1 October 2003	—	27.10	—	—
3 December 2004	5.22	—	—	—
1 January 2005	—	—	27.10	—

Notes:
All duty rates listed are given in terms of pence per litre. Before the introduction of biodiesel rates in 2002, biodiesel was liable at the ultra low sulphur diesel rate and biodiesel used off-road was liable at the same rate as red diesel. Before the introduction of a separate bioethanol rate in 2005 bioethanol was liable at the same rate as ultra-low sulphur petrol.

Budget Reports (Chart B6)

Mr. Holloway: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will set out the calculations and background statistics used in the compilation of Chart B6 of the Financial Statement and Budget Report of March 2005, HC 372, showing business investment relative to gross domestic product. [32670]

John Healey: The data sources for Chart B6 of the 2005 Financial Statement and Budget Report (FSBR) are available on the HM Treasury website, in a document entitled "Budget 2005: data sources"

(http://www.hm-treasury.gov.uk/media/B07/A9/bud05_data_sources.pdf). The workings behind Chart B6 are set out after the chart on page 233 of the 2005 FSBR.

Child Trust Fund

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many Child Trust Fund vouchers had been (a) issued and (b) invested as at 20 November; and if he will make a statement. [31239]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The latest quarterly Child Trust Fund statistics were published this morning at http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/child_trust_funds/child-trust-funds.htm

These are the third set of statistics to be published under our schedule.

Correspondence

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what research he has (a) commissioned and (b) evaluated on the qualitative experiences of those receiving the new tax credits. [13874]

Dawn Primarolo: The Government have, and will continue to, monitor all aspects of the operation of the tax credits system. Where appropriate this will include the commissioning of research.

Departmental Relocation

Dr. Cable: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer which buildings and sites used by his Department and related agencies (a) have ceased to be used in the last year and (b) will be closed under current plans for relocation. [31751]

Dawn Primarolo: The following Departments and agencies have not ceased to use any buildings or sites within the last year and do not have any plans to do so:

HM Treasury

Government Actuary's Department

Debt Management Office

Office for National Statistics

National Savings and Investments

Royal Mint

Office of Government Commerce (OGC)

However, OGCbuying.solutions will no longer have a permanent staff presence situated within London with effect from 31 September 2006. 20 posts will be relocated to Liverpool and a further eight posts will be re-classified as 'home based' workers. As a consequence, OGCbuying.solutions will vacate its offices in 35 Great Smith Street, London SW1.

HM Revenue and Customs (HMRC)

51 buildings and sites used by HMRC and the Valuation Office Agency (VOA) have ceased to be used in the last year. These are as follows:

HMRC is preparing business plans to meet its efficiency savings for 2005–08. These targets include a net reduction of 12,500 in its staff and moving 1,950 posts out of London and the South East under the Government Relocation programme. Delivering these targets means that the Department will be reviewing its estate on an ongoing basis to ensure that it remains in line with its needs. When HMRC takes any decision to close offices in future, letters will be sent to the Members of Parliament for the constituencies in which those offices are located and these letters, and the accompanying press release, will be placed in the Library of the House.

Departmental Staff

Mike Penning: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many staff in his Department were (a) civil servants, (b) contractors and (c) other staff in each year since 1997. [27458]

John Healey: The number of civil servants working in the Department can be found in Civil Service Statistics, published by the Cabinet Office. This publication is available in the Library or online at: http://www.civilservice.gov.uk/management_of_the_civil_service/statistics/civil_service_statistics/index.asp.

Information concerning contractors and other workers is shown in the Department's Resource Accounts within the Department Report for the 2004–05 period only. This is available in the Library or online at http://www.hm-treasury.gov.uk/about/departmental_reports/deptreport_index.cfm. This information for previous years has not been centrally recorded and can be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

ECOFIN Meetings

Mr. Brady: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer which Treasury Minister has attended each ECOFIN meeting since 1 May 1997. [31922]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Ministerial attendance and the outcome of each ECOFIN have been reported either by written ministerial statement, written answer or, occasionally, by letter to the chairman of the European Scrutiny Committee.

EU Budget Rebate

Mike Penning: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the income tax rate equivalent is of the UK's EU budget rebate. [32199]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: In 2004–05 the value of the UK abatement was equivalent to 2.9 per cent. of revenue raised from income tax in that year.

Exports

Mr. Holloway: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the total value was of British exports to (a) the Eurozone area, (b) the pre-enlargement 15 EU member states and (c) the post-enlargement 25 EU member states in each year since 1997. [32649]

John Healey: The Information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnel, dated 30 November 2005:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your recent question asking for the total value of British exports to (a) the Eurozone area, (b) the pre-enlargement 15 EU member states and (c) the post-enlargement 25 EU member states in each year since 1997 (32649).

The attached table shows exports on a Balance of Payments basis in £ million for goods and services for those years for which the data are available. They are consistent with the estimates published on 9 November 2005 in the UK trade First Release and on the National Statistics website at: http://www.statistics.gov.uk/StatBase/Product.asp?vlnk = 1119.

Financial Inclusion Task Force

Ben Chapman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he expects the Financial Inclusion Task Force to report on lower income groups' access to non-charging cash machines. [33702]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Financial Inclusion Task Force was set up by Government to monitor progress towards financial inclusion, in particular, access to banking, affordable credit and free face-to-face money advice. The terms of reference of the taskforce do not require it to report on fee-charging ATMs, however, it has commissioned research into how low income households access their cash and transmit money. Among other things, this work will identify the extent to which fee-charging ATMs are disproportionately used by the financially excluded. The results of this work are expected next year. In addition, the Treasury continues to maintain regular contact with LINK to discuss issues relating to the ATM market and to keep up to date with any developments.

HMRC

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many officers from Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs Department have been (a) permanently and (b) temporarily based outside the United Kingdom in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [33237]

Dawn Primarolo: The following table shows the numbers of HM Revenue and Customs staff based overseas at the 1 April in each of the last five years.

	Permanently based[1]	Temporarily based
2001	279	18
2002	268	18
2003	284	17
2004	285	14
2005	230	19

[1] Based at the channel tunnel entry point at Coquelles, France.

HMRC also has staff based overseas on intelligence and criminal investigation duties, but information on these cannot be made available as it might prejudice the security of those officers and HMRC operations. .

Home Information Packs

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 20 October 2005, Official Report, column 1137W, on home information packs, when the Government expects to take a decision on whether to levy VAT on home information packs. [31832]

Dawn Primarolo: The exact nature of the packs, and how they will be provided, is still under consideration by the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister (ODPM). Draft regulations have been published for consultation by the ODPM and the consultation period ends on 30 December.

The packs will be subject to the normal rules of VAT, as set out in the VAT Act 1994. HM Revenue and Customs will discuss the VAT position in detail with ODPM.

IT Projects

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the current (a) estimated cost and (b) expected completion date is of each information technology project on the list deposited by his Department in the Library on 19 January 2004. [18870]

John Healey: The information requested is being placed in the Library of the House.

Life Expectancy

Jim Cousins: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the life expectancy of (a) men and (b) women in each (i) region, (ii) county, (iii) socio-economic group and (iv) age cohort (A) 30 to 39, (B) 20 to 29, (C) 10 to 19 and (D) 0 to 9 years. [32416]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the national statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 30 November 2005:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your recent question asking what estimate has been made of the life expectancy of (a) men and (b) women (i) by region and county, (ii) by socio-economic group and (iii) by age cohort (A) 30 to 39, (B) 20 to 29, (C) 10 to 19 and (D) 0 to 9 years. (32416)

(i) Figures on life expectancy at birth for males and females for English regions are published annually by ONS based on three-year rolling averages. The most recent results, for 2002–2004, are included in the table below. Results for earlier years, from 1991–1993 onwards, are available on the National Statistics website at:

http://www.statistics.gov.uk/statbase/Product.asp?vlnk = 8841

ONS does not publish life expectancy results at county level. However figures for current English counties have been calculated by the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister, using data from ONS.

These are available on their website at:

http://www.neighbourhood.gov.uk/fti

(ii) Figures on life expectancy for males and females by socio-economic group are available from the ONS Longitudinal Study, a one per cent sample of the population. Figures showing life expectancy at birth and at age 65 by the Registrar General's Social Classes are available for the periods 1972–1976 to 1997–2001. These are available on the National Statistics website at:

http://www.statistics.gov.uk/StatBase/Product.asp?vlnk = 8460

(iii) All the figures referred to above are period life expectancies. For a particular area or social class in a given time period these figures are estimates of the average number of years a new-born baby would survive if he or she experienced the age-specific mortality rates for that area or social class in that time period throughout his or her life.

The Government Actuary's Department has also calculated cohort life expectancies. For people of a given age their cohort life expectancy is an estimate of how long they would live, on average, if they experienced the actual or projected age-specific mortality rates relevant to their cohort in subsequent years.

Cohort life expectancies at birth and five-yearly age intervals for the years 1981 to 2054 for the United Kingdom and its constituent countries, calculated using historic mortality rates and projected mortality rates from 2004-based national population projections, can be accessed from the GAD website at:

http://www.gad.gov.uk/Life_Tables/Period_and_cohort_eol.htm

Life expectancy at birth (years), by Government office region in England, 2002–04

Government office region	Males	Females
North East	75.0	79.6
North West	75.1	79.7
Yorkshire and The Humber	75.8	80.4
East Midlands	76.5	80.7
West Midlands	75.9	80.6
East of England	77.6	81.6
London	76.5	81.1
South East	77.7	81.8
South West	77.8	82.0

Lyons Inquiry

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether (a) his Department and (b) the Valuation Office Agency has made a written submission to the Lyons Inquiry on local government finance. [31729]

John Healey: I refer the hon. Member to the answer she received on 12 September 2005, Official Report, column 2431W from the Minister for Local Government.

Maladministration

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many payments for maladministration have been made by (a) his Department, (b) its agencies, (c) its non-departmental public bodies and (d) other bodies for which his Department has responsibility in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [32237]

John Healey: Information concerning payments related to maladministration is not available.

National Insurance

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much was raised in (a) national insurance contributions and (b) income tax from 16 to 18-year-olds during the 2004–05 financial year. [31026]

Dawn Primarolo: The information on the amounts raised in the national insurance contributions and income tax from 16 to 18-year-olds in the last financial year is not available.

Northern Ireland (Fiscal Regime)

David Simpson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what steps he is taking to ensure that Northern Ireland presents a more attractive fiscal regime. [32182]

Mr. Des Browne: The funding arrangements for Northern Ireland are set out in the Statement of Funding Policy published by the Treasury in July 2004. Public spending per head in Northern Ireland is higher than in any other region of the UK.

Predictive Diallers

John Hemming: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many calls were made by (a) his Department and (b) Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs in 2004–05 using predictive diallers; how many such calls resulted in contact being made with the recipient without a Government agent available to talk to them; and what assessment he has made of the likely impact of Ofcom's policy on silent calls on the use of predictive diallers by his Department. [30683]

Dawn Primarolo: In respect of the Treasury, I refer the hon. Member to the Financial Secretary's reply of 15 November 2005, Official Report, column 1209W. The Treasury does not use predictive diallers.

HM Revenue and Customs was created as a legal entity on 7 April 2005. Of the two former Departments, HM Customs and Excise did not make use of predictive diallers during the period.

It is estimated that the Inland Revenue—and contractors acting on its behalf—made around 7.5 million calls using predictive diallers during 2004–05. Full information is not available on the number of calls where contact was made but operators were not available.

HMRC is considering Ofcom's latest policy and guidance on silent calls alongside the associated Ofcom Consultation Document which was published on 31 October.

Private Finance Initiative

Stephen Hammond: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the total value of private finance initiative contracts on the Government Balance Sheet was as at July. [27043]

John Healey: Based on departmental returns, the total value of private finance initiative contracts on the Government Balance Sheet is £23.1 billion. This figure is the aggregate of the initial capital values of on-balance sheet PFI contracts signed.

Race Equality Impact Assessments

Keith Vaz: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many race equality impact assessments his Department completed between (a) April 2004 and March 2005 and (b) April 2005 and November 2005; and how many assessments in each period resulted in a change of policy. [32835]

John Healey: The Treasury actively embraces its duties under the Race Relations Act. It works with other departments on a wide range of policies, and in turn those departments are responsible for producing race equality impact assessments (REIAs). In addition, successive Pre-Budget and Budget reports have given explicit commitments to promoting equality, fairness and opportunity and have published the distributional analyses necessary to deliver change.

The Treasury has not led on any REIAs between April 2004 and November 2005. A copy of the Treasury's race equality scheme, which gives information on how the Treasury meets its duties to promote race equality, can be accessed via the following link:
http://www.hm-treasury.gov.uk./media/1B7/85/race_equality_scheme050705–1.pdf

Railways

Mr. Newmark: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much debt the Government holds on and off balance sheet for London and Continental Railways Ltd.; and whether this debt assumes par value. [26222]

Derek Twigg: I have been asked to reply.

The most recent accounts produced by London and Continental Railways Ltd. (LCR) showed that, as of 31 December 2004, it held total debt of £6.2 billion.

The Government do not hold any debt for LCR. However, the Office for National Statistics currently classifies £1.25 billion of the debt held by LCR as government borrowing in the National Accounts. The remainder of LCR's debt is classified to the private sector.

Renewable Fuels

Mr. Drew: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will reduce duty on renewable fuels to accompany the introduction of the Government's Renewable Transport Fuel Obligations. [33039]

John Healey: The Chancellor announces changes to taxation policy in the context of the Budget.

Road Fuel Imports

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many people have been stopped by HM Customs and Excise for importing road fuel in excess of the 10 litres allowed free of excise duty in each year from 2001. [32484]

John Healey: HM Revenue and Customs record seizures of road fuel improperly imported. The following table details the numbers of seizures in calendar years.

Calendar year	Number of seizures of imported oil
	Under 100 litres	Over 100 litres
2001	7	85
2002	5	66
2003	6	24
2004	6	8

Tax Credits

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) whether it is possible for a tax credit award in payment to be fraudulently redirected to a new bank account without detection; and what systems exist to prevent this; [25244]

(2) in how many cases identity fraud has been suspected following contact from tax credit recipients asking why their award has stopped, for each month since April 2003. [25245]

Dawn Primarolo: Tax credit claimants can notify HMRC of changes to their bank details. This is normally done by telephone to one of the Department's contact centres. Before any change to a person's details are made; however, the caller must satisfy a variety of security questions designed around personal information held about them by HMRC.

HMRC have a number of sophisticated measures in place to help them detect fraud and to minimise the risk of fraudulent payments being made this way.

The information requested on the number of cases where identity fraud has been suspected following contact from tax credit recipients is not available.

Dr. McCrea: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what is the average time taken to process annual tax credits declarations; what measures have been put in place to speed up current processing times; and whether a new annual tax credits declaration may be submitted before a dispute about an overpayment for previous years has been settled. [28419]

Dawn Primarolo: For average processing times, I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave the hon. Member for Guildford (Anne Milton) and my right hon. Friend the Member for Birkenhead (Mr. Field) on 2 November 2005, Official Report, column 1058W.

Claimants who are required to make a declaration must do so by 30 September, following the end of the year of claim, whether or not they have an ongoing dispute with HM Revenue and Customs about a tax credits overpayment.

David Simpson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the total estimated cost of dealing with tax credit overpayments made to people in Northern Ireland has been; and what the average cost was of a tax credit overpayment in Northern Ireland in 2005. [32126]

Dawn Primarolo: The information requested is not available.

Danny Alexander: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer in how many tax credit cases from 2003–04 in Scotland an overpayment was identified where there was no ongoing award. [33020]

Dawn Primarolo: There were around 25,000 2003–04 tax credit awards made to families in Scotland, where an overpayment was identified at April 2004 but there was no ongoing award.

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what definition of product development he uses in relation to tax credits; and whether this includes design development. [33368]

John Healey: Research and development (R&D) tax credits are available for expenditure on qualifying activities, defined under the DTI's guidelines of 5 March 2004. R&D takes place where an activity seeks to achieve an advance in science or technology—through the resolution of scientific or technological uncertainty.

Product development activities qualify for R&D tax credits where they meet the definition in DTI guidelines.

Design permeates the process of new product development; design activities also qualify for R&D tax credits where they meet this definition.

Tax Revenue

Chris Huhne: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will estimate the annual yield from taxes with an ecological impact in each year from 1996–97 to 2005–06; and what the amount is as a percentage of (a) total tax revenue and (b) GDP for each tax. [32436]

John Healey: The information requested on the environmental taxes (landfill tax, Climate Change Levy and Aggregates Levy) are given in the following table.

	Yield[1] (£ million)	Percentage of net taxes and social security contributions	Percentage of GDP[2]
Landfill Tax
1996–97[3]	113	0.04	0.01

Unemployment

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what percentage of the registered unemployed in the Middlesbrough, South and East Cleveland constituency were (a) 25 years and under, (b) 26 to 35 years, (c) 36 to 45 years, (d) 46 to 55 years and (e) over 55 years on the latest date for which figures are available. [32756]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 30 November 2005:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Question about unemployment. (32756)

The Office for National Statistics (ONS) compiles unemployment statistics for small areas from the Annual Population Survey following International Labour Organisation definitions.

Table 1 shows the percentage of unemployed, by specified age groups, who were resident in the Middlesbrough South and East Cleveland Parliamentary Constituency for the 12 month period ending in March 2005. These estimates, as with any from sample surveys, are subject to sampling variability.

ONS also compiles statistics for local areas of people claiming Jobseeker's Allowance (ISA). Table 2 shows the percentage of ISA claimants, by age bands, resident in the Middlesbrough South and East Cleveland constituency for October 2005.

Table 1: Percentage of unemployed by age bands resident in the Middlesbrough South and East Cleveland constituency—12 months ending March 2005

Age band	Percentage
25 and under	44.4
26 to 35	16.3
36 to 45	16.5
46 to 55	10.6
Over 55	12.2

Valuation Office Agency

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) whether the Valuation Office Agency's computer assisted mass appraisal system will be used for (a) inheritance tax purposes and (b) property-based taxes other than council tax or business rates; [31728]

(2) whether the Valuation Office Agency uses (a) dwelling house codes and (b) value significant codes to assess the value of domestic properties for (i) inheritance tax purposes (ii) capital gains tax and (iii) property-based taxes other than council tax or business rates; [31801]

(3) whether the Inland Revenue will have access to the Valuation Office Agency's Automated Value Model computer database used for council tax valuations. [33159]

Dawn Primarolo: The Valuation Office is an executive Agency of Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs (HMRC). The Commissioners for Revenue and Customs Act 2005 provides for the sharing of information across HMRC for tax purposes.

The Valuation Office Agency uses information it has gathered for council tax purposes for other functions where it has statutory authority to do so. This includes making valuations of domestic properties for (i) inheritance tax (ii) capital gains tax and (iii) other property based taxes.

As my hon. colleague the Minister for Local Government indicated in Standing Committee on 16 November, the Valuation Office Agency is currently considering other uses to which the automated valuation model can be put and the benefits it can bring.

WALES

Smoking

7. Daniel Kawczynski To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what assessment he has made of the likely impact on pubs along the Shropshire-Wales border of a smoking ban in England. [31673]

Nick Ainger: Assessments on the impact of any ban on smoking in pubs in cross border areas will be addressed in the regulatory impact assessments that will accompany the Health Bill.

I am pleased to have secured provisions in the Health Bill to enable the Assembly to implement a full ban on smoking in enclosed public places in Wales. One of the most important cross-border implications of the ban in Wales will be that English visitors to Wales will enjoy a smoke-free environment in all enclosed public places.

Employment

8. Mrs. Betty Williams To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will make a statement on employment levels in (a) Conwy and (b) Wales. [31674]

Mr. Hain: Employment in Wales continues to rise, with more people in work than ever before. According to latest figures, the number of people in employment in Wales rose by 27,000 in the last quarter compared with the same period a year earlier and the employment rate in Conwy remains above that of Wales as a whole.

Council Tax

9. Mr. Llwyd To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what discussions he has had with Cabinet colleagues on the revaluation of Welsh properties for the purposes of council tax. [31675]

Nick Ainger: My right hon. Friend and I regularly discuss matters relating to local government in Wales with our ministerial colleagues.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many appeals there were in Wales against council tax banding following the 2005 council tax revaluation; and how many appeals have so far been (a) wholly and (b) partly (i) refused and (ii) granted. [33117]

Mr. Hain: As at 31 October 2005 the Valuation Office Agency had received 8,567 formal appeals against the 2005 council tax lists. As at the same date 2,838 had been settled, of which 1,765 resulted in an amendment to the council tax band.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales whether the Government intended the council tax revaluation in Wales to be revenue neutral. [33160]

Mr. Hain: The council tax revaluation in Wales was a matter for the Welsh Assembly Government. The purpose of revaluation was to keep council tax banding up to date with changing property prices. It was intended to be, and was, revenue neutral.

There is no direct relationship between the revaluation and the overall amount of tax revenue.

New Hospitals

10. Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what discussions he has had with the National Assembly for Wales Minister for Health on funding for the provision of new hospitals serving patients in Wales. [31676]

Nick Ainger: I regularly meet the Assembly Minister for Health and Social Services to discuss a range of issues including funding for the provision of new hospitals in Wales.

Capital expenditure for building hospitals is detailed within the Welsh Assembly's Capital Investment Plan. This includes a major rebuilding scheme aimed at modernising health and social care and increasing capacity.

Nuclear Power Stations

11. Hywel Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what discussions he has had with Cabinet colleagues about building new nuclear power stations in Wales. [31677]

Mr. Hain: I have regular discussions with Cabinet colleagues on a range of issues including energy.

The Prime Minister has said that the Government will be publishing proposals on energy policy next year. In developing these proposals, we will be looking at the impact of new nuclear build on helping us to meet our Energy White Paper goals. The review will be examining a wide-range of options for helping us meet these goals.

Health Service (Commissioning)

12. Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will make a statement on proposals for commissioning in the Health Service in Wales. [31678]

Nick Ainger: The commissioning and provision of health and social care services in Wales is a matter for local health boards to determine, based on their judgement of competing priorities.

Renewable Energy

13. Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what discussions he has had with the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry on grants for domestic renewable energy facilities in Wales. [31679]

Mr. Hain: I have regular discussions with DTI colleagues on a range of energy matters, including renewable programmes. A £30 million funding package for microgeneration has recently been announced.

Licensing Hours

14. Paul Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many applications have been granted for 24 hour sale of alcohol licences in (a) Newport and (b) Wales. [31680]

Nick Ainger: I understand that three applications have been granted by Newport city council, all for retail sites. I further understand that 61 applications have been granted by local authorities in Wales, and that 40 of these are for retail sites.

Local Government

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what estimate the Government has made of the cost to local councils in Wales of the implementation of section 77 of the Local Government Act 2003. [31805]

Mr. Hain: Revaluation was undertaken by the Valuation Office Agency and the costs were met by the Agency out of the funding it receives from the Welsh Assembly Government.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales whether his Department has made a written submission to the Lyons Inquiry on local government finance. [31806]

Mr. Hain: I refer the hon. Lady to the answer given to her by the Minister for Local Government on 12 September 2005, Official Report, column 2431W.

Maladministration

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many payments for maladministration have been made in each of the last five years by his Department; and if he will make a statement. [32156]

Mr. Hain: None.

Sick Leave

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many of his Department's employees who are within one year of the official retirement age are on extended sick leave. [32592]

Mr. Hain: None.

UK Energy Policy

John Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what discussions he has had with the Welsh Assembly and his ministerial colleagues regarding an integrated energy policy for the UK. [31666]

Mr. Hain: I have regular such discussions with both. The Energy White Paper, which was developed in collaboration with the Assembly, provides the framework for energy policy in the UK.

MINISTER FOR WOMEN

Equal Pay

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality what recent steps the Government have taken to reduce the pay gap between men and women; and what evaluation she has made of the effectiveness of these steps. [26802]

Meg Munn: The pay gap between men and women is gradually decreasing, this year the full-time median gender pay gap went down from 14.5 per cent. in 2004 to 13.2 per cent. This is an achievement we are proud of and committed to build upon.

As part of their remit, the Women and Work Commission have looked at the different labour market factors which act as barriers to women's chances of entering and progressing through work, in particular, to ensure employers make the best use of the skills and potential of women returning to the labour market. I look forward to their final report early in the new year, which will contain recommendations to further tackle to the gender pay gap.

We have also introduced a number of measures to tackle the gender pay gap. Since we introduced the right to request flexible working, almost a quarter of parents with children under six have requested to work flexibly—these requests are most likely to be from female employees. The Work and Families Bill, published last month, will extend the scope of flexible working law to carers of adults.

The national minimum wage, which increased to £5.05 in October this year, continues to play a part in reducing the gender pay gap. Around 70 per cent. of the beneficiaries of the uprating of the national minimum wage in October 2004 were women.

We have made progress in tackling this issue and with the findings of the Women and Work Commission and with the appropriate measures in place, we hope to progress further in reducing the gap between men and women.

DEFENCE

Army Prosecuting Authority

Mrs. Humble: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will list the outcomes of all cases handled by the Army Prosecuting Authority in the last 12-month period for which figures are available in which all proceedings are complete; in what percentage of cases proceedings were abandoned; and what the reasons were in each case. [32944]

The Solicitor-General: I have been asked to reply.

In the period from 1 November 2004 to 31 October 2005, 856 cases were referred to the APA for consideration as to whether trial should be directed. Of those cases, 641 were directed for trial. 65 cases were discontinued after direction for trial, leaving 576 which proceeded to trial. The outcome of cases are not centrally recorded, nor are the reasons for abandonment, and to retrieve this information would incur disproportionate cost.

Astute-class Submarines

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what plans he has for submarines to be built at Barrow-in-Furness after the completion of the first three Astute-class boats. [32170]

Mr. Ingram: The Barrow yard will remain the UK's centre of excellence for submarine building.

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assessment he has made of possible economies which may be achieved by ordering future Astute-class submarines more than one at a time. [32172]

Mr. Ingram: The procurement strategy for future Astute boats is currently being considered and announcements will be made at the appropriate time.

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether the timetable for building further Astute-class submarines is compatible with that for building future ship submersible ballistic nuclears to replace the Vanguard-class. [32173]

John Reid: No decisions on any replacement for the Vanguard-class submarines have yet been taken. Orders for further Astute-class submarines, beyond the three already on order, are being considered and announcements will be made at the appropriate time. There is no reason to believe that there is any incompatibility between the possible future demands that may arise from these potential requirements.

Civil Service Relocation (Scotland)

Stewart Hosie: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many departmental civil service jobs have been relocated to Scotland in each year since 2001. [32260]

Mr. Touhig [holding answer 28 November 2005]: Details of the number of departmental civil service jobs relocated to Scotland are not available, as this information is not held centrally by the Department, and obtaining the data would incur disproportionate costs.

Departmental Finance

Mr. Gerald Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether he plans to remove in-service fighting equipment and associated intangible assets from the top-level budget-holder balance sheets to a central balance sheet; and if he will make a statement. [32704]

John Reid: Yes, this is part of a wider programme to simplify and improve our financial management processes, in order to yield efficiencies and enhance decision making.

Mr. Gerald Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence by how much his Department's end of year flexibility was changed under the Treasury's cash management scheme in financial year 2004–05. [32707]

John Reid: Following the introduction of the Treasury's cash management scheme, the Ministry of Defence's end year adjustment was £25,000 in 2003–04 (net charge) and £95,000 in 2004–05 (net rebate). These adjustments were reflected in the carry forwards for 2004–05 and 2005–06 respectively.

Departmental Staff

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many staff in his Department were (a) civil servants, (b) contractors and (c) other staff in each year since 1997. [27443]

Mr. Touhig: The following table gives details of Ministry of Defence civilian strength by Full Time Equivalence (FTE) as at 1 April for the years 1997 to 2005. Data for the number of contractors employed over the listed period are not centrally held.

FTE

April	Civil servants[1]	Other[2]	Total
1997	117,470	15,860	133,330
1998	111,140	15,160	126,290
1999	108,140	14,870	123,010
2000	106,440	14,850	121,290
2001	104,820	13,340	118,170
2002[3]	95,980	14,120	110,090
2003	93,740	13,840	107,580
2004	93,620	15,430	109,050
2005	92,810	15,660	108,470

[1] Total for civil servants includes all permanent and casual staff, as well as staff employed by Trading Funds and the Royal Fleet Auxiliary, but excludes staff employed as Locally Engaged civilians.

[2] Total for Other is comprised of locally engaged civilian staff who are employed overseas.

[3] In 2001 the QinetiQ portion of the Defence Evaluation and Research Agency (8,000) was established as a private company.

Note:

Due to the rounding methods used, figures are rounded to the nearest 10, and individual totals for each year may not match precisely to the overall total.

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many staff in his Department have been relocated into London and the South East in each of the last five years for which records are available. [31782]

Mr. Touhig: Details of the number of departmental civil service jobs relocated to London and the South East are not available, as this information is not held centrally by the Ministry of Defence, and obtaining the data would incur disproportionate costs.

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many (a) officers, (b) other ranks, (c) support personnel and (d) administrative staff were employed by his Department in each year since 1997; and what proportion of his Department's budget was attributed to the employment of each group. [32205]

Mr. Touhig: The following table gives details of Ministry of Defence personnel strength for officers, other ranks, support personnel and administrative staff as at 1 April for the years 1997 to 2005. This includes

Full-time Reserve Service Personnel, Gurkhas, Royal Irish Regiment (Home Service), Gibraltar Permanent Cadre and Non-regular Permanent Staff (NPRS).

Civilian support staff are the Locally Engaged Civilians and Royal Fleet Auxiliaries, with administrative staff consisting of all other civil servants within the MOD.

[1] Figures show trained and untrained personnel.

[2] FTRS were created by the Reserve Forces Act 1996 and none existed before late 1997 they were formally recorded from late 1998 only.

[3] FTRS figures include full commitment (FC), home commitment (HC) and limited commitment (LC) individuals. For the Army, FC and LC individuals serve against the requirement whilst HC individuals fill posts specifically for the FTRS personnel. For the RAF, FC individuals serve against the requirement whilst HC and LC individuals fill posts specifically for the FTRS personnel.

[4] Army FTRS officer figures from 2000 to 2004 are currently under review and should be considered provisional. Figures from 2001 to 2004 have been supplied by Army Personnel Centre. 1 April 2001 figure is not available, figure is for 1 March 2001.

[5] Non-regular permanent staff (NRPS) are Territorial Army personnel who provide training and administration to Territorial Army units on a permanent full-time basis. They are included within the Territorial Army Group B, together with Officer Training Corps personnel. Further details may be found in Tri-Service Publication (TSP) 7, UK Reserves and Cadets, a copy of which is held in the Library of the House.

[2] During 2001–02 and 2003–03 the Department introduced resource accounting and budgeting (RAB) in two stages. To provide roughly comparable figures with pre and post full RAB the net cash requirement to represent the "defence budget". The net cash requirement (NCR) is the actual money that MOD requests from the Government in order to fund its activities. The NCR takes account of movements in working capital levels (debtors, creditors, stock) whilst excluding all non-cash costs.

Departmental Websites

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will take steps to ensure the Department's websites attain the W3C AAA standard of accessibility for people with visual and other disabilities; and if he will set a target date for this standard to be achieved by. [30964]

Mr. Touhig: The Ministry of Defence has five principal corporate websites, and we take seriously the requirement to make them accessible for people with visual and other disabilities. The e-Government unit of the Cabinet Office mandates the W3C 'A' standard of accessibility, and identifies some elements of the 'AA' and 'AAA' standards as best practice. We aspire to achieve the 'AA' standard in full, as well as the best practice elements of 'AAA'. Where this is not currently being met we have a programme of work to ensure that we will achieve it. The status of current and future achievement of this aspiration is set out in the following table:

Site	Current status	Future development
www.mod.uk	Majority of the site meets the 'A' standard or above	Following launch of redeveloped site in January 2006, whole site will aim to achieve the 'AA' standard
www.foi.mod.uk	Partially meets the 'A' standard	Is being amalgamated into the corporate site and so will also aim to achieve the 'AA' standard from January 2006
www.army.mod.uk	Partially meets the 'A' standard	Site software currently being amended to allow addition of alternative text to images. This will be enabled from end of November 2005 leading to significant improvement in accessibility compliance
www.royal-navy.mod.uk	Partially meets the 'A' standard	Following launch of redeveloped site in Jan 2006, whole site will aim to achieve the 'AA' standard
www.raf.mod.uk	Partially meets the 'A' standard	A redeveloped site will launch late 2006 and will aim to achieve the 'AA' standard

A number of other, generally small, websites are maintained by subsidiary organisations of the MOD and armed forces. However, information on their standards of accessibility is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

European Airlift Transport Co-ordination Cell

Mr. Gerald Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether it is his policy that the United Kingdom should join the European Airlift Transport Co-ordination Cell. [32711]

John Reid: I assume that the question refers to the European Airlift Centre. The UK was a founding member of this organisation. The other members are Belgium, France, Germany, Italy, Netherlands, and Spain. Nations that are members of the European Airlift Centre can use its services in support of their own national requirements and also in support of international organisations such as NATO and the EU.

Nuclear Deterrent

Mr. Holloway: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will publish consultation documents relating to the decision on the replacement of Trident. [32474]

John Reid: I have nothing to add to the answer I gave to my hon. Friend the Member for Pendle (Mr. Prentice) during defence questions on 14 November 2005, Official Report, column 692.

Race Equality Impact Assessments

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many Race Equality Impact Assessments his Department completed between (a) April 2004 and March 2005 and (b) April 2005 and November 2005; and how many assessments in each period resulted in a change of policy. [32829]

Mr. Touhig: Between April 2004 and March 2005 the Ministry of Defence completed 20 Race Equality Impact Assessments (REIAs). Of these, one resulted in a policy change. No centrally co-ordinated figures are yet available for the period April 2005 to November 2005 as we collect statistics on an annual basis. Figures for 2005–06 will be collected as part of our next Race Equality Scheme (RES) data monitoring exercise and published in our 2005–06 RES report.

UK Service Medals

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will list the theatres of service in which UK service medals other than general service medals have ceased to be awarded, broken down by (a) date and (b) reasons for the decision in each case. [32611]

Mr. Touhig: Campaign or operational service medals no longer in issue would have been terminated because the operation ended or the risk and rigour diminished. Other than general service medals, the following UK campaign and operational service medals have been awarded since the end of the Second World War:

Medals for Individual Campaigns or Operations:

Korea Medal-1 July 1950 to 27 July 1953

Rhodesia Medal-1 December 1979 to 20 March 1980.

South Atlantic Medal-2 April to 12 July 1982.

Gulf Medal-2 August 1990 to 7 March 1991.

Iraq Medal-20 January 2003 to a date to be decided. (Clasp '19 March to 28 April 2003')

Operational Service Medal with Ribbon for:

Sierra Leone-5 May 2000 to 31 July 2002

Afghanistan-11 September 2001-to a date to be decided.

White Phosphorus

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what discussions he has had with US authorities regarding the use of white phosphorous in Iraq. [33290]

John Reid: None.

EDUCATION AND SKILLS

Departmental Staff

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how much it costs to employ (a) (i) multiple part-time and (ii) jobshare staff to a full-time post and (b) a full time member of staff for (A) her Department and (B) the Learning and Skills Council. [31265]

Maria Eagle: 'Part-time, jobshare and full time staff in both the Department and the Learning and Skills Council are paid at the same hourly rate as one another. The overall costs and benefits of employing part-time, jobshare or full-time staff depend on the particular circumstances and individuals involved.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many (a) temporary and (b) agency staff she has had working in her Department in the last three years; how long each one has been employed for in total over that period and how many have been taken on as permanent staff. [31256]

Maria Eagle: My Department was established in June 2001. Statistics for temporary agency staff are recorded by days worked and the information detailed in the following table is for the calendar years 2002, 2003, and 2004.

Calendar year	Days worked
2002	31,229
2003	27,087
2004	16,940

The number of temporary staff engaged during the same period varied on a month by month basis. The average use for the calendar years 2002, 2003, 2004 is detailed in the following table:

Calendar year	Average number of temporary staff
2002	112.2
2003	99.6
2004	72.8

We do keep statistics on the length of time each individual was employed for. We can also confirm that no agency or temporary staff were subsequently offered permanent appointments.

Education Maintenance Allowance

Shona McIsaac: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many students aged 16 to 18 years of age are in receipt of education maintenance allowance in each institution in (a) North East Lincolnshire and (b) North Lincolnshire. [18474]

Maria Eagle: This is a matter for the Learning and Skills Council, who operate Education Maintenance Allowances for the DfES and hold the information about take-up of the scheme. Mark Haysom, the Council's Chief Executive, will write to my hon. Friend with the information requested and a copy of his reply will be placed in the House Libraries.

Letter from Mark Haysom to Ms McIsaac, dated 7 November 2005:

I am writing in response to your Parliamentary Question that asked "how many students aged 16 to 18 years of age are in receipt of educational maintenance allowance in each institution in (a) North East Lincolnshire and (b) North Lincolnshire?"

Educational Maintenance Allowance is available to 16–19 years olds in full-time Further Education. The number of young people in receipt of Education Maintenance Allowance in each institution in North East Lincolnshire and North Lincolnshire Local Authority Areas at 25 October was 1,932 and 1,252 respectively. The following table displays this data at institute level.

Extended Schools Programme

Ed Balls: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) what estimate she has made of the number of schools in (a) West Yorkshire, (b) Wakefield district and (c) Normanton constituency that will be delivering extended services in (i) 2006, (ii) 2007 and (iii) 2008; and to how many children and parents such provision will be available; [32437]

(2) how much has been allocated to (a) the local authority and (b) local schools in Wakefield to develop and roll out the extended schools programme in (i) 2005–06, (ii) 2006–07, (iii) 2007–08 and (iv) 2008–09 financial years. [32438]

Beverley Hughes: This Government want all schools to provide access to a core offer of extended services by 2010, with half of all primary and a third of all secondary schools doing so by 2008. We want to see at least 2,500 schools providing access to the core offer by September 2006. The core offer, which should be available to all parents and pupils of the school, comprises: high quality child care; a varied menu of study support activities; parenting support programmes; swift and easy referral to a wide range of specialised support services; and wider community access. It will be for individual local authorities, in discussion with all schools in their area, to take a strategic approach to developing access to the core offer through schools. This will include determining how many primary and secondary schools develop access to the core offer in each year. On 29 September 2005 my Department published its report on the baseline survey of extended services in schools which it commissioned earlier in the year. The survey showed that nationally the vast majority of schools were providing access to some form of extended activity. The survey did not provide figures at local authority level.

On 13 June 2005 my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State announced funding of £790 million over 2005–08 to support the development of extended schools. £110 million of this was allocated in 2005–06 and Wakefield received £815,005. Of the £680 million to be allocated across 2006–08, £250 million will go direct to schools through the School Standards Grant and the formula for calculating each school's allocation for 2006–07 will be announced in the near future. The remaining £430 million will be distributed to local authorities through the Standards Fund and the General Sure Start Grant. Of this Wakefield will receive £1,203,051 in 2006–07 and £1,453,835 in 2007–08. Funding will be released to schools in accordance with each local authority's extended schools strategy. My Department wrote to each local authority on 13 June 2005 detailing what their extended schools allocation, excluding the School Standards Grant, will be over the period 2005–08.

Funding for extended schools beyond 2007–08 is subject to the outcome of the Comprehensive Spending Review in 2007 when the Department will be reviewing all its programme budgets.

Information Sharing Protocols

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills pursuant to the answer of 31 October 2005, Official Report, column 821W, on information sharing protocols, which local authorities were 'a bit behind' in (a) March 2004 and (b) July 2004. [30681]

Beverley Hughes: The Green Paper 'Every Child Matters', published in September 2003, required local authorities to meet nine minimum requirements in relation to information sharing. These included putting in place information sharing protocols, covering health, education and social care, and to have them in development with other agencies providing services to children and young people, by March 2004. All 150 top-tier local authorities were provided with funding in the financial year 2003–04 to meet these requirements.

Independent research carried out by Royal Holloway, University of London reported that 43 authorities were 'a bit behind' in March 2004. Royal Holloway did a further check in July 2004 which indicated only 10 local authorities were still in this category. The authorities are as listed in A and B respectively.

A more recent assessment of local authorities' progress carried out by our Regional Change Advisers in October 2005 indicates that a further four of these 10 authorities—Lambeth, North East Lincolnshire, Northamptonshire and Sandwell—have put information sharing protocols in place. Regional Change Advisers will continue to work with the remaining authorities to help them develop effective information sharing arrangements.

Requirement—have protocols for information sharing in place, covering health, education and social care; and in development for other agencies providing services to children and young people.

Marshall Aid/Scholarships

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the criteria are for a scholarship under the Marshall Aid Commemoration Act 1953; and if she will make a statement. [29844]

Ian Pearson: I have been asked to reply.

The criteria for awarding Marshall scholarships, as laid down in the Marshall Aid Commemoration Act 1953, are that recipients must be:

"... citizens of the United States of America, who are graduates of recognised institutions of higher learning in the United States of America ..."

There are no references to selection in the Act of 1959, but the current administrative regulations do establish further criteria, a copy of them will be placed in the Library of the House.

Post-16 Education

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how much (a) capital and (b) revenue spending has been allocated for the education of 16 to 19-year-olds in (i) school sixth forms, (ii) sixth form colleges and (iii) further education colleges in Warrington in each year since 1997. [26584]

Bill Rammell [holding answer 9 November 2005]: As the allocation of funding in local areas relates to the Learning and Skills Council's (LSC) operational responsibilities. The LSC's chief executive Mark Haysom has written to my hon. Friend with the information requested for sixth form colleges, further education colleges and the revenue information for schools sixth forms since 2002–03. A copy of his reply will be placed in the Library. However, we are not able to provide details of capital spend for schools sixth forms as capital allocations for investment in schools have not separately identified funding for sixth form provision. Decisions on priorities for capital investment in schools have been taken locally in accordance with local asset management plans. The new 16–19 Joint Capital Fund will combine schools and post-16 budgets bringing greater coherence to investment decisions on projects requiring investment in new post-16 education and training provision.

Before the LSC took on the responsibility, in 2002–03, of funding for sixth-formers in schools, local authorities were provided with allocations for these pupils through the "post 16" and "Other" sub-blocks of the Education Standard Spending Assessment. Further funding for schools with sixth forms has been provided to authorities through grants such as the School Standards Grant and the Standards Fund. However, it is not possible to determine how much of the funding through formula or grants has been directed towards sixth forms since it is for the authority to decide how much funding an individual school receives, and a school to direct appropriate resources towards its sixth form. Any apportionment is likely to be inaccurate.

Letter from Mark Haysom, dated 30 November 2005:

I write following your Parliamentary Question about capital and revenue funding for 16–19 year olds in school sixth forms, sixth form colleges and further education colleges in Warrington since 1997. I thought it might also be helpful to pick up a couple of related points following the evidence that Chris Banks and I gave to the recent Education and Skills Select Committee on 7 November.

I should begin by explaining that there are a number of limitations on the information that the Learning and Skills Council can provide in response to your question on funding. Firstly, as the LSC was established in April 2001 I cannot provide information prior to April 2001. Those allocations (including for the 2001–02 academic year) were made by one of the LSC's predecessor agencies, the former Further Education Funding Council (FEFC).

Secondly, school sixth forms did not come under the LSC's remit until the 2002–03 academic year; until that time revenue funding was allocated by Warrington's local education authority. Similarly, capital funding for school sixth forms is not currently within the LSC's remit and so we cannot provide those figures.

Finally, in relation to capital expenditure, the elements of capital spending in colleges that relate specifically to 16–19 year olds are difficult to apportion, as most further education college facilities are used by adult learners as well as 16–19 year olds. The same is true of sixth form college facilities, although to a lesser extent.

Therefore, the information I can provide consists of:

revenue funding for 16–19 year olds in the town's further education college (Warrington Collegiate) and sixth form college (Priestley College) from 2002–03 to 2005–06 revenue funding for the borough's seven school sixth forms from 2002–03 to 2005–06 capital grants for the sixth form college and further education college since 2001.

The details of these allocations are set out below.

Revenue funding

The table below gives details of revenue funding allocated by the LSC.

[1] Allocations made by LEA
[2] Allocations made by FEFC

Note:

The amount actually paid each year might vary from the allocation by around 2–3 per cent. depending on how far learner numbers differ from the projections on which allocations were based.

Capital spending

Capital projects in sixth form colleges and further education colleges are funded on the same basis. Until 2003 there was an assumption that the LSC would provide approximately 35% of the costs of a project, with the exception of works needed to meet the requirements of the Disability Discrimination Act (DDA) which receive a higher level of funding (up to 75%). The balance would be from a variety of sources that might include colleges' cash reserves, the proceeds from the sale of surplus land, private finance or buildings borrowing.

However, since 2003 LSC capital project funding has been based on affordability; if colleges can use their own cash reserves and borrow to a reasonable level they are now expected to do so before the LSC will agree the level of grant it will pay.

The table below gives details of the capital grants that have been allocated in Warrington.

	LSC grant (£)	Overall project cost (£)	Project summary
School sixth forms	[1]	[1]	[1]

2005	2,850,000	5,700,000	Construction of new build; refurbishment of existing accommodation; demolition of unsuitable temporary accommodation

Total	8,130,039

[1] Information not available as capital funding for sixth forms is not within the LSC remit

I should like to follow up some of the related questions put to Chris Banks and me by your colleagues on the Select Committee last week.

We discussed the findings of the Learning and Skills Development Agency's research into the funding gap for full-time 16–18 year old learners in schools and colleges. The report found that had FE colleges been funded on the same basis as school sixth forms, they would have received an additional 13%.

However, it did not suggest that simply uplifting college funding rates is the way to level the playing field, as the gap in the actual funding rate is only just over 2%. A large part of the difference is caused by technical issues such as special pensions arrangements for teachers in schools, differences in the way that data (particularly learner number information) is collected and used, and the impact of the Government's 'real terms guarantee' which stated that no school that maintained its student numbers would receive less funding in real terms under the LSC funding formula than under the previous LEA arrangements.

Today around one in seven schools still benefits from this guarantee by receiving more than they would under the LSC formula.

As Chris and I said last week, the funding inequity is one of the issues that the LSC's "agenda for change" programme aims to address. When Sir David Normington and I gave evidence to the Committee of Public Accounts in October, Sir David reiterated the Government's commitment to narrowing the gap, but he noted that any changes must be carefully planned and rolled out so as not to destabilise the school system by simply taking money away from them to give to the colleges. By its very nature this process cannot be a quick one, but with our new funding arrangements we will make progress.

Finally, I should like to touch briefly on your concerns about funding for adult learning. I know that Liz Davis has written to you to explain the funding issues and I understand that Warrington Collegiate has historically taken a very inclusive approach to fee setting in order to ensure that those who are most in need of learning continue to be able to access it. Colleagues at the local LSC, together with the two colleges and Warrington Borough Council's community services department, met recently to discuss the best way to manage the impact of future changes and developments in adult learning in Warrington.

Although this group's discussions are at an early stage I have asked Liz to ensure that you are kept informed of progress over the coming weeks.

If you would like to discuss this or any of the matters in this letter in more detail I know that Liz would be pleased to meet with you at your convenience. Liz can be contacted on 01606 320022.

I hope that this is helpful.

Sure Start

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the national performance targets are for Sure Start centres; and what the performance of Sure Start centres in Torbay has been against those targets. [32055]

Beverley Hughes: The progress of Sure Start local programmes (SSLPs) is measured through the SR02 public service agreement targets. It should be noted that Sure Start local programmes are currently being converted into children's centres. 90 per cent. of SSLPs are expected to have been converted by April 2006 and the remainder by April 2008. They will then operate under the targets set for children's centres.

Children's Centre Targets

The Government's overall target for phase 1 children's centres is for them to reach at least 650,000 children under five by March 2006. Each local authority was given a target number of children under five to reach, plus a target of new child care places to create by March 2006. Torbay has a reach target of 5,575 children under five and child care places target of 172 in phase 1.

In phase 2, we have set targets for local authorities to develop a minimum number of Sure Start children's centres to reach a minimum number of children by 2008. Torbay has been asked to develop three Sure Start children's centres to reach 2,574 children under five by March 2008. Phase 1 targets are expected to be met by June 2006; phase 2 targets are making good progress.

Progress against SR02 PSA Targets

All targets refer to fully operational Sure Start local programmes and cover the period 2003–06.

PSA 1—Improve the proportion of children aged 0–5 with normal levels of personal, social and emotional development—following delays in implementation of the foundation stage profile and concerns over data quality it was not possible to set a baseline or target level. It is therefore not possible to report progress of SSLPs against the SR02 target.

PSA 2—Reduce by 6 per cent. percentage points the proportion of mothers continuing to smoke during pregnancy—2003–05 data shows that the two Torbay SSLPs saw a rise in smoking levels (Paignton—56 per cent. to 62 per cent. Torquay—30 per cent. to 37 per cent.). Nationally, there was a 1.4 per cent. drop between 2002 and 2004, the national data for 2005 is currently being analysed.

PSA 3, part (a)—Improve proportion of children aged 0–5 with normal levels of communication, language and literacy at the end of the foundation stage—see PSA 1.

PSA 3, part (b)—Increase the proportion of children aged two with satisfactory speech and language development—nationally there was a 3 per cent. rise (73 per cent.—2003, 76 per cent.—2004) as measured through the Sure Start speech and language measure. It is not possible to report on the progress of individual SSLPs for this period.

PSA 4—Reduce by 12 per cent. the proportion of children aged 0–4 living households where no one is working—the percentage has risen very slightly between 2003 and 2004 in the Paignton SSLP area (25.7 per cent. to 25.6 per cent.), but has fallen in the Torquay Project SSLP area (29.9 per cent. to 27.3 per cent., a reduction of 8.6 per cent.). Nationally there was a 7.3 per cent. drop in SSLP areas.

Ed Balls: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many children living in disadvantaged areas of (a) Wakefield district and (b) Normanton constituency are participating in Sure Start local progammes. [32451]

Beverley Hughes: There are four Sure Start local programmes in Wakefield reaching a total of 2,953 children under the age of four. Sure Start Wakefield West covers 773 children; Sure Start Ferry Fryston and Airedale covers 651 children; Sure Start Hemsworth, Kinsley and Fitzwilliam covers 610 children and Sure Start Wakefield East involves 919 children under four. All four Sure Start local programmes are part of or are becoming children's centres.

There are 14 neighbourhood nurseries in Wakefield providing 596 full day care places. Seven of these nurseries are involved in phase one children's centres. Wakefield has one early excellence centre which forms part of Castle children's centre. The centre is also based on the Sure Start Wakefield East local programme and a neighbourhood nursery. The centre was designated in April 2005.

Wakefield has 13 children's centres planning to reach a total of 7,886 children under the age of five: 10 of the centres have received approval to proceed from the Sure Start unit and three centres have been designated by the unit.

There is one children's centre in Normanton. Newlands children's centre is based on a primary school and serves 570 children under five. There are also two neighbourhood nurseries based within the constituency, offering a total of 88 full-day care places. There are no Sure Start local programmes in Normanton.

Young People (Statistics)

Mr. Davey: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what estimate she has made of the number and proportion of (a) 16, (b) 17 and (c) 18-year-olds not in full-time education or training, broken down by local education authority area. [30799]

Phil Hope: Estimates of the number and percentage of young people aged (a) 16 and (b) 17 who were not in full-time education or work-based learning (e.g. apprenticeships) in local authorities in England are given in the table. Figures for 18-year-olds are not available at a local level.

These estimates are provisional and are snapshot information as at the end of the calendar year 2003. They are derived from the Department's Statistical First Release (SFR 11/2005) entitled, 'Participation in Education and Training by 16 and 17 year olds in Each Local Area in England: 2002 and 2003'.

[1] Figures for individual Inner London LEAs cannot be estimated reliably, therefore only a total is provided. See paragraphs 19 of the SFR for further information.

[2] Definitive national figures for participation in education and training are published in the SFR entitled "Participation in education, training and employment by 16 to 18-year-olds in England", see section E in Notes to Editors.

Note:

Due to the margin of error surrounding local level participation estimates and the use of school level data for independent schools, participation rates can be over 100 per cent. For these areas, an asterisk is placed in the table.

Pre-school Education

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what representations she has received about the funding of three-year-old children for 33 weeks of pre-school education; and if she will make a statement. [32544]

Beverley Hughes: The Secretary of State does receive, from time to time, representation from a range of stakeholders, including local authorities, early years providers and national associations about funding for the free entitlement for early education for three and four-year-olds. From April 2006, the minimum entitlement will be increased from 33 weeks to 38 weeks a year.

All local authorities receive, through the under-fives sub-block of the education formula spending share (EFSS), sufficient funding to enable them to meet their statutory responsibilities to provide a free early education place for all three and four-year-olds. Local authorities are responsible for determining the specific level of funding to providers in their area taking account of local needs and circumstances.

Special Educational Needs

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if she will make a statement on the Academies Special Educational Needs Dispute Resolution Service. [32659]

Maria Eagle [holding answer 29 November 2005]: Academies are fully inclusive schools and are required by law to cater for children of all abilities. They cannot cherry pick their intake, but must have regard to the SEN code of practice and statutory guidance on inclusion. An Academies independent status, does not affect parents rights to appeal to the SEN and Disability Tribunal.

The Department launched an independent, free and entirely voluntary SEN Dispute Resolution Service for Academies in January 2005. The service was made available to support good and timely local decision making with regards the admission of pupils with SEN to Academies. The service has been well used by Academies and well received by both Academies and local authorities.

On average Academies admit more pupils with SEN (both with and without statements) than other schools in England. They also, on average, admit more SEN pupils (both with and without statements) than their predecessor schools.

TRANSPORT

Airports (Security Costs)

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will list airports that (a) pay for and (b) do not contribute towards their security and policing costs; and if he will make a statement. [32676]

Ms Buck: Heathrow, Gatwick, Stansted, Birmingham, Manchester, Aberdeen, Glasgow, Edinburgh and Prestwick are designated airports under section 25 of the Aviation Security Act 1982 and as such the aerodrome manager must pay such policing costs as he and the relevant police authority may agree. Non-designated airports are not obliged to contribute in the same way. All UK airports contribute to the costs of security.

The Secretary of State made a statement on 21 November announcing a review of policing at airports.

Departmental Staff

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many (a) consultants and (b) special advisers were employed by his Department in each year since 1997; what the cost of each was in each year; and if he will make a statement. [27414]

Ms Buck: The Department for Transport only came into existence on 29 May 2002. The number of consultants employed by the Department in the years since 29 May 2002 is not readily available and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

In relation to special advisers, I refer the hon. Member to the reply given by the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for the Cabinet Office on 16 November 2005, Official Report, column 1257W.

Arriva Buses

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many complaints about Arriva Buses have been received by the Traffic Commissioners in (a) England, (b) the North East Government Office and (c) the boroughs of the Tees Valley sub-region in each of the last 10 years. [32671]

Dr. Ladyman: Complaints about Arriva Buses received by the Traffic Commissioners, for the years that records are available, are shown in the following table:

	2000	2001	2002	2003	2004	2005
NETA	26	20	26	24	26	24
Tees Valley	0	5	7	1	12	1
England	46	53	46	62	41	42
Total	72	78	79	87	79	67

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many complaints against Arriva Buses made to the Traffic Commissioners have resulted in that company being forced to amend operating practices in (a) England, (b) the North East Government Office area and (c) the boroughs of the Tees Valley sub-region in each of the last 10 years. [32672]

Dr. Ladyman: It is not possible to determine the number of complaints against Arriva Buses that have resulted in Arriva Being forced to amend its operating practices.

Arriva has been directed to amend its practices on the number of occasions shown in the following table:

	2000	2001	2002	2003	2004	2005
Total	0	0	0	3	0	1

Such action will only be taken when a series of complaints has been made, where the operator has failed to address problems, rather than as a result of a single complaint.

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) how much revenue was obtained by Arriva Buses from local authorities and passenger transport executives in each year in respect of concessionary fares in (a) England, (b) the North East Government Office Region and (c) the boroughs of the Tees Valley sub-region since 1995; [32812]

(2) how much revenue was obtained by Arriva Buses for running subsidised services on behalf of local authorities and passenger transport executives in (a) England, (b) the North East Government Office area and (c) the boroughs of the Tees Valley sub-region in each year since 1995. [32813]

Ms Buck: It is not possible to answer this question from the information available to the Department. Such information as we do have from Arriva Buses on its revenue from subsidised bus contracts and concessionary fares reimbursement has been supplied for aggregate statistical purposes and is commercially restricted under the terms of the Statistics of Trade Act 1947.

Concessionary Travel (South Gloucestershire)

Steve Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the answer of 8 November 2005, Official Report, column 284W, on concessionary travel (South Gloucestershire), what he estimates to be the current cost to each local authority of the existing half-fare scheme. [32013]

Ms Buck: The cost of concessionary fare reimbursement to bus operators is reported to the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister by each local authority. Aggregate data is published in the DfT's 'Public Transport Statistics Bulletin GB: 2005 Edition Supplement' copies of which are placed in the Libraries of the House.

A table showing estimates of total spending on all concessionary bus travel reimbursement in 2004–05 by individual authority including discretionary spending on enhanced schemes, for example, providing cross-border travel or county-wide schemes, entitlement to travel in peak hours and concessionary travel for children has been placed in the Libraries of the House. It is not possible to disaggregate the cost of providing a statutory half-fare scheme for older and disabled people.

Departmental Staff

Mr. Geoffrey Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how often on average civil servants moved posts within his Department in the last 10 years. [27968]

Ms Buck: The average length of time in each post for civil servants since the Department was created in 2002 was 2.95 years for staff in the centre and 2.27 years for staff in the Driving Standards Agency. The data for the other Executive Agencies is not available.

Driver Licences Directive

Mr. Cameron: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) what estimate he has made of the cost to the consumer of gaining an unlimited access motorcycle licence under the proposed Third European Directive on Driver Licences; and if he will make a statement; [32504]

(2) what assessment he has made of the likely effect of the Third European Directive on Driver Licences on motorcycle manufacturers in the UK; and if he will make a statement; [32509]

(3) what assessment he has made of the likely impact on casualty numbers of the second motorcycle riding test proposed in the Third European Directive on Driving Licences. [32510]

Dr. Ladyman: The proposed Third European Community Directive on driving licences remains under negotiation in the Council of Ministers.

The Government's assessment of the potential impact of the original Commission proposals was provided to the Parliamentary Scrutiny Committees. We concluded that the proposals for motorcycles bore no clear relationship to the road safety problems of which we have evidence in the UK. An update to the impact assessment was provided to the Committees on 23 December 2004, and a further substantive letter on 13 June 2005.

In its present form, the draft Directive may impose additional testing or training costs on motorcyclists under the age of 24 who wish to ride larger machines, but such costs cannot be quantified at this stage. The amount would depend on the final form of any Directive adopted, and on subsequent decisions by the Government about how to implement the Directive in the United Kingdom. For the same reasons, the Government cannot at this stage quantify any potential effects of the Directive on UK motorcycle manufacturers or on casualty numbers.

If the proposed Directive is adopted, the Government will consult widely about how to implement it in a way that minimises potential adverse effects.

DVLA

Tom Brake: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what (a) targets the Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency (DVLA) has for responding to complaints; and (b) how many complaints received by (i) telephone, (ii) letter and (iii) electronic mail the DVLA responded to within those target times in each year since 1997, broken down by type of complaint. [33367]

Dr. Ladyman: DVLA has two internal targets for responding to complaints. These are:

to acknowledge all complaints within one working day; and to provide a substantive response to all complaints within 10 working days.

Information on how the complaints were received is not available.

The following table shows how many complaints were received and how the Agency performed against each target in the years requested.

Festivals

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what steps his Department took to celebrate and promote the events of (a) Ramadan, (b) Diwali and (c) Chinese New Year in 2005. [31168]

Ms Buck: The Department for Transport and the Executive agencies promote religious dates and cultural events through the publication of an informative annual religious calendar which is accessible to all employees. In addition to advertising and promoting specific dates, it also provides information about particular religions and festivals.

In addition to this, policy and guidance has been published regarding religious and cultural leave and the availability of prayer and reflection rooms.

Many activities have also been organised across the Department. For example; DfT(C) held a Celebration of Culture Event on Friday 11 November for staff to celebrate Diwali and Eid; DVLA's Diversity Team supported the Swansea Chinese Association this year by attending their event to celebrate the Chinese New Year. The Highways Agency took part in the 2004 Diwali event at the NEC in Birmingham and in October 2005 attended the Asian Mela also held at the NEC.

Freedom of Information

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many Freedom of Information applications his Department has received; how many have taken more than 20 days to process; and how many of these gave rise to complaints about the time taken. [31221]

Ms Buck: The FOI Act 2000 came fully into effect on 1 January 2005. Prior to 2005, the Department (as with all Government Departments) was operating under the non-statutory code of practice on access to government information and there is no centrally held record of those cases.

Between 1 January and 30 June 2005, DfT (including its Executive agencies) received 893 FOI requests.

738 (83 per cent.) of these were answered within the 20 day deadline. A further 49 (5 per cent.) were answered within a permitted extension to the 20 day deadline to consider complex public interest tests. Where such an extension is made, officials are instructed to keep applicants informed as to the likely time within which a reply can be expected.

In summary, the total number of cases answered after the 20 day deadline was therefore 155, of which 106 had not been subject to a formal extension of the deadline to consider a public interest test.

A total of three complaints have been received in respect of requests during the period about the time taken to respond.

The Department for Constitutional Affairs is committed to publishing quarterly updates in relation to departmental performance under FOI, including information on both the volume and outcomes of requests. The bulletin for the second quarter (ie April to June 2005) was published on 30 September 2005 and can be found on the DCA website at http://www.foi.gov.uk/statsapr-jun05.htm and in the Libraries of both Houses. The next bulletin will be published before Christmas, while an annual report will be published in early 2006.

Heavy Goods Vehicles (Restrictions)

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether he has made an assessment of the effectiveness of the restriction on heavy goods vehicles using the outside lane on parts of the M42/A42; and if he will make a statement. [32668]

Dr. Ladyman: At present it is too early to assess the effectiveness of the trial over a three mile section of the northbound carriageway of the M42 between junctions 10 and 11. The restriction was introduced on 10 October for an experimental period of up to 18 months. The Highways Agency is monitoring the performance of the restriction to assess what benefits have resulted. Additionally the Agency is inviting comments from all road users to gauge their reaction.

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will introduce a restriction on heavy goods vehicles using the outside lane on the two-lane stretches of the M18 motorway. [32669]

Dr. Ladyman: The Highways Agency is currently trialling the restriction of heavy goods vehicles using the outside lane on the M42. The trial is at an early stage and no decisions have been taken on whether or not to introduce such a restriction elsewhere on the motorway network.

IT Projects

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many IT projects which cost over £1 million and were introduced since 1997 are in use in his Department. [26594]

Ms Buck: 64 IT projects which cost over £1 million have been introduced since 29 May 2002 and are in use in the Department for Transport and its agencies.

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many of the IT projects costing over £1 million in use in his Department and introduced since 1997 have been scrutinised by the Public Accounts Committee; and if he will list them. [26606]

Ms Buck: No IT projects costing over £1 million in use in this Department have been scrutinised by the Public Accounts Committee since the formation of the Department on 29 May 2002.

London Buses

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what was the average number of passengers per mile travelled by London buses in 1999–2000. [31712]

Ms Buck: Buses in London are the responsibility of the Mayor and Transport for London (TfL). However, they have informed me that the total number of miles operated by buses in 1999–2000 was 220,136,730. During this period 1,296,000,000 passenger journeys were made. Therefore 5.88 journeys were made per mile operated.

London Olympics

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment he has made of the extent to which the construction of Olympic transport projects and Crossrail will affect each other. [31722]

Ms Buck: The project teams from both the Crossrail and Olympic projects are liaising closely with each other to ensure that the programmes of construction are properly co-ordinated. We therefore expect the impact of each programme on the other to be minimal.

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what precautions will be taken to ensure that dust and pollution from Crossrail construction will not adversely affect air quality at the time of the 2012 Olympics. [31723]

Ms Buck: In consultation with local authorities and other stakeholders, we are developing a range of mechanisms to ensure the construction impacts of Crossrail are suitably controlled. This includes a Construction Code that details how Crossrail construction activities will be carried out including measures for the control of dust and other air pollutants. Any nominated undertaker appointed to construct Crossrail will be required to comply with the Construction Code.

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment he has made of the adequacy of the measures taken to explain to the public the relationship between the availability of funding for transport for the 2012 Olympics and the availability of funding for regional transport schemes and projects. [31724]

Ms Buck: We have always been clear that the transport plans published as part of the Olympic bid were based on making the best use of the existing network and improvements which were planned to have taken place before 2012 regardless of the Olympics. These planned improvements include schemes such as the Channel Tunnel Rail Link, East London Line Extension and extensions to the Docklands Light Railway, all funded by the relevant body regardless of the Olympic decision.

As has been made clear throughout the development of the bid, additional schemes needed specifically for the Olympics will be funded from the Public Sector Funding Package of £2.375 billion. This is made up of funding from the lottery and contributions from London council tax and the London Development Agency.

We therefore would not expect the Olympics to affect the availability of funding for other transport schemes. We have consistently made it clear that, in taking funding decisions in connection with the Olympics or wider transport development, our objective will always be to secure the very best value for money.

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment he has made of whether the capacity on the Docklands Light Railway will be sufficient to meet planning needs for the 2012 Olympics. [31795]

Ms Buck: We believe that the Docklands Light Railway (DLR) will have sufficient capacity to meet the needs of the 2012 Olympics. Planned works on the Docklands Light Railway, due for completion before 2012, include the extension to London City airport, the extension to Woolwich and capacity enhancements on stations between Bank and Lewisham. The Secretary of State is also currently considering proposals to convert the North London Line to DLR.

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the total amount is to be spent on transport schemes connected to the 2012 Olympics.[31808]

Ms Buck: The transport plans for the London 2012 Olympic and Paralympic games were set out in the Bid documents submitted to the International Olympic Committee in November 2004. This identified some £7.2 billion for transport projects connected with the Games. This includes planned schemes, such as Phase 2 of the Channel Tunnel Rail Link, which would have taken place regardless of the Olympics, as well as a number of schemes which are funded through Olympic budgets.

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment he has made of whether adequate planning has been made to ensure that transport for the 2012 Olympics will be fully sustainable. [31809]

Ms Buck: London 2012 will be a sustainable Games—with this in mind, the Olympic Transport Plan will encourage 100 per cent. spectator use of public transport, walking and cycling. The successful Olympic bid was founded on existing and planned transport infrastructure in 2012, minimising the need for additional Olympic specific schemes and services. Wherever possible, vehicles producing low (or no) emissions will be used for both spectator and Olympic family transport.

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what park and ride schemes have been planned in connection with the 2012 Olympics. [31810]

Ms Buck: The bid documents proposed two major park-and-ride schemes bus, situated off the M25. The main Northern site would be near the M11 and M25 junction and would have over 6,000 parking spaces. The Southern site, near Dartford river crossing, would also provide 6,000 parking spaces. These sites would be 20 to 25 minutes ride from the venues.

9,000 park-and-ride rail spaces will be available at Ebbsfleet station, which will link spectators to the Olympic Javelin service, providing access to the Olympic Park in 10 minutes. 10,000 park-and-ride bus spaces will be made available at Windsor Racecourse, a 10-minute ride from Eton Dorney, the Olympic rowing and canoeing venue. Wimbledon and other established sporting venues will make use of existing, established schemes.

Since the Games were awarded to London in July, we have taken the opportunity to step back and look again at these schemes and whether alternatives may offer even better value for money.

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) what assessment he has made of whether the transport arrangement for the 2012 Olympic Games will be efficient without the completion of the Thameslink box development; [31811]

(2) whether the Thameslink box was a scheme included in the bid for the 2012 Olympic Games; [31812]

(3) what assessment he has made of the effect on passengers using transport services at the 2012 Olympic Games of the non-completion of the Thameslink box. [31813]

Ms Buck: The transport schemes needed for the 2012 Olympic and Paralympic games were set out in the Bid documents submitted to the International Olympic Committee (IOC) in November 2004. In addition, in February 2005 the Department announced that, following a review, the King's Cross Northern Ticket Hall and Western Concourse would be completed in time for the 2012 Games. This will improve the passenger interchange with the Olympic. Javelin Service operating out of St. Pancras.

The Thameslink Box was not included in the Olympic Bid documents or in any subsequent commitments to the IOC. Modelling produced in the development of the Bid has shown that adequate facilities will be in place at King's Cross and St. Pancras to cope with Olympic spectators. However, the Department is investigating the feasibility of an earlier fit out of the box in line with the completion of the CTRL Project and the transfer of Eurostar services to St. Pancras.

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment he has made of the need for (a) a travelator and (b) another mechanised link between Stratford Regional Station and Stratford International Station for the 2012 Olympics. [31814]

Ms Buck: The proposed travelator is not part of the Olympic Transport Plan. Subject to the approval of applications which are currently before the Secretary of State, from 2010 the DLR will provide direct access to the wider transport network from both stations and to all Olympic venues.

In particular, during the Paralympic Games when spectators hold day tickets, the DLR will facilitate efficient spectator transfer from the Olympic Park to the River Zone cluster of competition venues.

Motor Vehicle Accidents (Private Land)

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what plans he has for reducing deaths from motor vehicle accidents on private land. [32281]

Dr. Ladyman: We are aware that the use of motor vehicles on private land causes nuisance from time to time. However, we are not aware that there is a significant number of deaths involving motor vehicles on private land. The road accident statistics we collect are for on road use of motor vehicles. We do not collect data on accidents that occur on private land. There are sufficient powers to regulate the use of motor vehicles off road. It is for the police to enforce them.

National Minimum Wage

Ms Katy Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many employees in his Department were affected by the rise in the national minimum wage on 1 October. [28977]

Ms Buck: The rise to the National Minimum Wage on 1 October did not affect any of the Department's employees.

Northern Rail Services Review

Mrs. Riordan: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether the Review of Northern Rail Services has been completed. [32586]

Derek Twigg: The Review of Northern Rail services is still in progress, and I expect to receive recommendations early in 2006.

Parliamentary Questions

Mrs. Ellman: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when he will reply substantively to the questions tabled by the hon. Member for Liverpool, Riverside for answer on 8 November, reference (a) 26246 and (b) 26249. [32422]

Derek Twigg: I have replied to both of my hon. Friend's questions. Ref 26246 was answered on 24 November 2005, Official Report, column 2218W and ref 26249 was answered 29 November 2005.

Pedicabs

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what discussions he has had with Transport for London about the safety of pedicabs. [31466]

Ms Buck: I discussed the question of regulation of pedicabs, including with respect to safety, with representatives of Transport for London on 4 October. The Department is very willing to hold further meetings with interested parties but of course Transport for London are in the lead on the introduction of a licensing regime.

Rail Infrastructure

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what extra security measures have been taken along the (a) Hastings to London Victoria, (b) Hastings to Charing Cross and (c) Brighton to London Victoria train lines since the 7 July terrorist attacks in London. [29817]

Derek Twigg: Following the attacks on 7 July the threat to the whole UK rail network was re-assessed, resulting in additional security requirements. It would be inappropriate to go into detail for obvious security reasons but the situation is kept under review to ensure that these measures are commensurate with the risk.

Railways

Tom Brake: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much has been spent on the National Train Passenger Survey in each year from 1997–98 to 2004–05; and what funding is planned for future financial years. [25615]

Derek Twigg: The National Passenger Survey was set up in 1999. The following table outlines how much has been spent on the survey in each financial year since then, inclusive of VAT.

	Cost
1999–2000	251,475
2000–01	466,768
2001–02	507,515
2002–03	582,840
2003–04	642,396
2004–05	681,192

The contract for the National Passenger Survey is open to competition. It would therefore be inappropriate to make future funding figures available to potential bidders.

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what plans Network Rail has to increase funding for rail infrastructure along the Bexhill to London Victoria line. [33127]

Derek Twigg: This is an operational matter for Network Rail, who will be responding directly to the hon. Member.

Road Accidents

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many (a) fatal and (b) serious road accidents there were in each of the last five years for which figures are available; and how many in each year involved (i) drunk driving, (ii) a stolen vehicle, (iii) a driver without a valid driving licence, (iv) a foreign national driver and (v) a combination of these factors. [30592]

Dr. Ladyman: The estimates for the number of fatal and serious accidents involving illegal alcohol levels for 2000–04 are in the table. The total number of fatal and serious accidents in GB for 2000–04 is also given in the table.

	Drink drive		All road accidents
	Fatal	Serious	Fatal	Serious
2000	450	1,950	3,108	32,499
2001	470	2,020	3,176	31,588
2002	480	2,050	3,124	30,521
2003	500	1,970	3,247	28,913
2004	[1]530	[1]1,790	2,978	26,748

[1] Provisional data. The sample of fatality data from coroners for 2003 has now been finalised but 2004 estimates are based on a reduced sample of coroners' returns and may be biased. They remain provisional until more complete information for 2004 is available.

The number of fatal accidents where a driver or rider had an illegal alcohol level is estimated from coroners' and procurators' fiscal data which become available a year later than the main road accident data. As a result, the estimates for 2004 are provisional.

Information on stolen vehicles involved in personal injury road accidents is not currently available. However, from 2005, the reporting police officer may note where the fact that a vehicle was stolen, or being driven in the course of a crime influenced the driver or rider's behaviour and contributed to the accident. This will not be available for accidents reported to the police at the police station. Information on drivers without a valid driving licence involved in personal injury road accidents is not collected because of the inability in linking accident data with prosecution data.

Road Traffic (London)

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many traffic lights there were in London in (a) 1999–2000 and (b) 2004–05. [31884]

Ms Buck: Traffic signals in London are the responsibility of the Mayor and Transport for London (TfL). Before 3 July 2000, traffic signals in London were the responsibility of the Traffic Control Systems Unit, a body which was subsumed into TfL, and the London boroughs.

The total number of Traffic Signal sites[1] in Greater London was (a), on 31 March 2000, 4,236 and (b), on 31 March 2005, 4,978.

Walking

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what steps his Department has taken to develop a strategy to promote walking since publication of the discussion paper 'On the move: by foot'. [33472]

Derek Twigg: In response to the discussion paper 'On the move: by foot', the Department published 'Walking and cycling: an action plan' on 16 June 2004, which outlines the Government's walking (and cycling) strategy for the next five years. There are a number of actions which are being taken forward in conjunction with interested walking groups. Progress reports of the action plan are regularly published on the walking home page of the Department's website following quarterly meetings with walking stakeholders. A copy of the Action Plan is available in the House Library.

Yellow Bus Schemes

Tom Brake: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what estimate his Department has made of the cost of providing a yellow bus scheme (a) in England and (b) for each region. [32449]

Ms Buck: We have not made any estimate of the cost of providing a yellow bus scheme (a) in England and (b) for each region. We know from our evaluation of various small-scale yellow and other dedicated school bus schemes that well-designed schemes have the potential to reduce car dependency for journeys to school and the traffic congestion that results from this. However, care needs to be taken to ensure that they are appropriate to local circumstances and do not reduce levels of walking or cycling or undermine the viability of important bus services available to the wider public.

We therefore want to encourage individual local authorities to consider school bus schemes as part of broader local transport planning and to decide whether or not they would be appropriate to their area.

We are currently funding the MyBus school bus scheme in West Yorkshire. The £18.7 million we are providing over three years is expected to fund the capital cost of 150 dedicated buses.

HOUSE OF COMMONS COMMISSION

Energy Consumption

Martin Horwood: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission what assessment he has made of the average energy consumption of the House of Commons between midnight and 6.30 am; how much of that figure is accounted for by (a) lights, (b) computers, (c) heating, (d) televisions and annunciators and (e) photocopiers; if he will estimate the energy consumed for each category in terms of (i) watts and (ii) metric tonnes of carbon emitted; and what the cost was of each category. [32467]

Nick Harvey: Electricity is purchased on a day/night tariff with the night period metered from midnight to 7 am. The average electricity consumption by the House of Commons estate during the night period in 2004–05 was 11,650 kWh, costing on average £600 per night. The metric tonnes equivalent of carbon emissions due to this electricity consumption was 1.363 tonnes. There is no breakdown available of the electricity consumption between lights, computers, annunciators and photocopiers.

Heating is provided by natural gas and the night period is not separately metered. Assuming that 10 per cent. of natural gas consumption occurred during the midnight to 7 am night period, the average gas consumption by the House of Commons during the night period in 2004–05 was 5,090 kWh at a cost of £75.00. The metric tonnes equivalent of carbon emissions due to this natural gas consumption was 0.26 tonnes.

Light Bulbs

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the honourable Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission what percentage of the light bulbs used on the House's estate are energy-efficient light bulbs. [32674]

Nick Harvey: 95 per cent. of fluorescent tubes and 70 per cent. of lamps on the parliamentary estate are energy efficient.

Parliamentary Communications Directorate

Martin Horwood: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission what assessment he has made of the cost effectiveness of the Parliamentary Communications Directorate; and whether the Parliamentary Communications Directorate follows communications and customer service best practice. [32458]

Nick Harvey: The Parliamentary Communications Directorate (PCD) has been subject to external review in the past and is subject to regular audit. There will be a review of the effectiveness of the new Parliamentary Information and Communication Technology Department (PICT), of which PCD will be part, once it has been established on 1 January 2006 and has been operational for a suitable period of time.

PCD aims to provide good quality communications and customer service. PCD, together with the rest of the House of Commons, has achieved Investors in People (IiP) accreditation and more recently was accredited by the Helpdesk Institute (HDI). PCD is also pursuing service management excellence through the adoption of the Information Technology Infrastructure Library (ITIL) framework, a government backed framework for organising and managing IT services which is being widely adopted by the private and public sectors both at home and abroad. Customer service training is provided to all customer-facing staff, with plans for this to be updated and re-run in the near future.

Security Barriers

Martin Linton: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission if he will place in the Library the risk assessment conducted prior to the erection of permanent security barriers outside the Palace of Westminster; and if he will make a statement on their effect on road safety, with particular reference to cyclists. [33024]

Nick Harvey: The installation of the security barriers followed full consultation with Westminster city council and Transport for London, who are responsible for road safety for all road users, including cyclists. It is not the Commission's practice to publish papers relating to the security of the Palace.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Antisocial Behaviour

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what measures the Department plans to put in place as part of the Government's plans to tackle antisocial behaviour. [22468]

Mr. Caborn: My Department and its sectors are helping to address antisocial behaviour through involvement in a range of programmes that encourage participation by target groups in positive activities, including sport and the arts. These include the Positive Activities for Young People programme, Sport Action Zones and the Plus Strategy.

In addition, we anticipate that the Licensing Act 2003, which took effect on 24 November, will have an important role in the prevention of crime and disorder and public nuisance through encouraging a more orderly dispersal of customers bringing in new powers for tackling problem premises.

Casinos

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what discussions officials in her Department have had with the Anschutz Entertainment Group regarding plans for a casino at the site of the Millennium Dome. [32492]

Mr. Caborn: Ministers and officials have had a number of meetings with casino operators interested in securing licences for new casinos under the Gambling Act 2005. These include meetings with representatives of the Anschutz Entertainment Group and Kerzner International, its partner in the development of the Millennium Dome site. At no stage have representatives of these or any other companies received anything other than publicly available information.

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what representations she has received since the general election on increasing the number of regional casino licences. [32493]

Mr. Caborn: We have received a number of letters from local authorities and others in support of an increase in the number of regional casinos permitted by the Gambling Act 2005.

Despite these representations, we do not believe the case has been made for an increase, and we are therefore proceeding with implementation on the basis of the one regional casino specified in the Act.

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what provisions and regulations govern the size of the non-gambling space in casinos licensed under the Gambling Act 2005; and whether alcohol sales can take place in the non-gambling spaces. [32494]

Mr. Caborn: Section 7(5) of the Gambling Act 2005 requires the Secretary of State to make regulations by reference to which any casino may be classified as a regional, large or small casino. Regulations under this subsection may make provision by reference to the floor area used or designated for a specified purpose. We set out our intentions in this respect in the Government's response to the First Report of the Joint Committee on the draft gambling Bill (Cm 6253). This information was also reproduced in my previous answer to the right hon. Lady of 18 October 2005, Official Report, column 711W.

Alcohol sales will be permitted in the non-gambling spaces, just as they were under the Gaming Act 1968.

Departmental Estate

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport which buildings and sites used by her Department and related agencies (a) have ceased to be used in the last year and (b) will be closed under plans for relocation. [31770]

Mr. Lammy: The information is as follows:

(a) The Department ceased to use its one-floor holding at Woburn Place in central London in April 2005.

(b) The Department occupies buildings in Blandford Street and Orange Street, both in central London, which it plans to vacate in 2006 and 2007 respectively, as part a project to harmonise its accommodation around its main buildings in Cockspur Street.

The Royal Parks Agency has not ceased to use any buildings in the past year and has no current plans to close or relinquish buildings.

Gambling Act

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what the timetable is for the (a) implementation of the Gambling Act 2005, (b) consultation on and publication of secondary legislation and (c) announcement of the gambling licence applications. [32495]

Mr. Caborn: We plan to bring the Gambling Act 2005 fully into force with effect from September 2007.

The first two commencement orders were made at the end of August 2005. These brought into force on 1 October 2005 the provisions of the Act formally creating the Gambling Commission; and giving effect to parliamentary commitments to abolish the 24-hour membership rule in respect of casino and bingo halls, and to increase the number of jackpot machines allowed in a casino to 20.

My Department has been considering the remaining subordinate legislation needed to complete the process of implementation and the time-table for that legislation. We propose to publish details shortly.

We expect the Gambling Commission and licensing authorities to start accepting applications for licences and permits from early 2007.

National Lottery

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much has been awarded from the National Lottery to the Hull and East Yorkshire Hospitals NHS Trust. [32951]

Mr. Caborn: In total, nine lottery awards worth £3.6 million have been made to the Hull and East Yorkshire Hospitals NHS Trust. One award worth £5,000 was made under the awards for all scheme. The other eight awards were made by the New Opportunities Fund, which has since merged with the Community Fund to form the Big Lottery Fund.

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what eligibility criteria are used to distribute Lottery monies to projects directed towards facilities for young people. [33148]

Mr. Caborn: The Lottery distributors make their funding decisions independently of Government, and against their own criteria for specific funding programmes. However, they are also obliged to take account of policy and financial directions issued to them by my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State, when making funding decisions. These directions set out the framework for the wider aims of Lottery funding and specifically require the distributors to take into account the needs of children and young people when making funding decisions. Copies of the policy directions have been deposited in the Libraries of both Houses.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Agency Workers Directive

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what discussions he has had with his counterparts in Europe on the implementation of the EU Agency Workers Directive. [29798]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Over the last few months in bilateral discussions with other member states, at ministerial and official level, we have found that many member states still have major problems with the current draft of the Agency Workers Directive and views remain very polarised on a number of issues. As the directive has not yet been agreed it would be inappropriate to discuss implementation at this time.

Business Link

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what the national performance targets are for Business Link; and what the performance has been against those targets of each Business Link office in Devon and Cornwall. [32065]

Alun Michael: For this year, there are there national performance targets for Business Link which are:

1. Market penetration: to deliver the service to 36.6 per cent. of all business (measured against the Inter Departmental Business Register).

2. Customer satisfaction: to achieve 90 per cent. of all customers to be satisfied with the service provided by Business Link.

3. Additional target: to have offered a significant level of assistance (defined as "intensive" assistance) to more than 35,000 businesses this year.

Business Link is a national brand delivered locally, and overseen by the Regional Development Agency in each area of England since April 2005. In Devon and Cornwall, Business Link performance is ahead of the regional target for penetration (32.2 per cent. of all businesses on the Inter Departmental Business Register) and for Intensive Assistance. The service is on track to meet the customer satisfaction target.

Dairy Industry

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what representations were received by the Office of Fair Trading on retail price initiatives in the dairy industry prior to its inquiry into that subject; from whom; what the scope is of its inquiry; and when it is expected to be completed. [32980]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Competition law enforcement is a matter for the Office of Fair Trading (OFT). It can initiate an investigation under the Competition Act 1998 in response to a complaint or on its own initiative. The OFT initiated its investigation into the milk retail prices initiatives, not in response to representations but because it had reasonable grounds to suspect that the initiatives infringed competition law.

The milk processors Robert Wiseman Dairies and Dairy Crest have stated that they are included in the investigation of the retail price initiatives. The investigation includes other parties but these have not been made public.

The timetable for the investigation is a matter for the OFT.

Flexible Working Hours

Anne Snelgrove: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what progress has been made in helping people in South Swindon to achieve flexible working hours; and if he will make a statement. [31657]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Government are committed to increasing opportunities for people to work flexibly through promoting the benefits of flexible working and through light-touch, targeted legislation. Business Link and ACAS provide tailored guidance to help business manage requests to work flexibly and ACAS have developed a web-based interactive tool, which includes a free online training module.

The residents of South Swindon, like others, have benefited from the right to request flexible working for parents of children under six and disabled children under 18, introduced in April 2003. This legislation has been a tremendous success, with almost a quarter (22 per cent.) of parents with children under six requesting to work flexibly since the legislation was introduced and around 90 per cent. of requests accepted.

Building on this success, the recently introduced Work and Families Bill will extend the scope of the existing law to include carers of adults, a group who face particular challenges in juggling their caring responsibilities with work. We will be consulting on the detail of exactly which carers will be covered by the legislation in early 2006.

Gas Shortages

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what emergency powers he has to control the export of gas through the interconnector in the event of severe gas shortages this winter. [32320]

Malcolm Wicks [holding answer 28 November 2005]: The Energy Act 1976 gives the Secretary of State the power to make orders and give directions regulating or prohibiting the production, supply, acquisition or use of fuels including gas.

Any exercise of these powers would take into account the UK's international obligations and, of course, the requirements of EC law.

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry (1) what research his Department has conducted, prior to the beginning of November, on the economic impact of commercial gas users reducing demand in the event of gas shortages this winter; [32321]

(2) what research his Department had conducted, prior to the beginning of November, into the ability of commercial gas users to reduce demand in the event of gas shortages this winter. [32370]

Malcolm Wicks [holding answer 28 November 2005]: In May 2005 DTI published a report by the independent consultants Global Insight on the potential demand-side response of industrial gas users. This can be found at:

http://www.dti.gov.uk/energy/publications/policy/index.shtml

More recently, the DTI has commissioned, with industry support, two short studies to update and expand this work.

Hearing Loss Claims

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many hearing loss claims have been registered by Vendside Ltd. with his Department since 1997; and how many cases have been (a) partially and (b) fully paid out. [31409]

Malcolm Wicks [holding answer 24 November 2005]: Vendside Ltd. have not registered any hearing loss claims with the Department. As at 20 November, the Union of Democratic Mineworkers have registered 10,166 claims in which 8,859 claimants have received damages.

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry whether legal advice was (a) sought and (b) received by his Department before the decision was taken to allow hearing loss claims in the mining industry to be represented solely by a claims handler. [31410]

Malcolm Wicks [holding answer 24 November 2005]: No such decision has been taken. The choice of representative is a matter for each individual claimant.

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry by whom the decision to allow claims handlers to represent claimants in common law hearing loss claims was made. [31412]

Malcolm Wicks [holding answer 24 November 2005]: Who represents them is entirely a matter for each claimant.

Householders' Contracts (Good and Services)

Mr. Robathan: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry (1) what decisions have been made regarding the cooling-off period for contracts between householders and (a) unsolicited visits by those offering services or goods and (b) solicited visits by those offering services or goods; and if he will make a statement; [31999]

(2) when he expects to announce his proposals following the consultation on doorstep selling and cold calling which closed in November 2004; and if he will make a statement. [32050]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Government's final response to the OFT report on doorstep selling has been delayed for a number of reasons.

There was a substantial number of responses to the consultation, which needed to be considered carefully. In addition, the Government wished to await greater clarity on the impact of the Unfair Commercial Practices Directive (UCPD), which is specifically directed at aggressive and misleading sales practices towards vulnerable consumers. This clarity was not available until early summer 2005. We also wished to take account of the wider context set by the DTI's Consumer Strategy published in July.

The Department held a stakeholder event earlier this month to explain this wider context for decisions on doorstep selling and to debate the pros and cons of the seven options for change originally consulted on. This was attended by key stakeholders from the doorstep selling industry, consumer groups, bodies representing vulnerable consumers, OFT and Trading Standards. In the light of the comments received from stakeholders, Ministers will be considering next steps and intend to publish a final response from the Government as soon as possible.

Industrial Injury Claims

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many common law industrial injury claims relating to the coal industry have been paid out through (a) all claims handlers and (b) Vendside Ltd. in the last eight years. [31411]

Malcolm Wicks [holding answer 24 November 2005]: No common law industrial injury claims have been paid through claims handlers. All common law industrial injury claims settled in the last eight years have been from either solicitors (21,246) or the Union of Democratic Mineworkers (8,758).

Low Skilled Workers

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what research his Department has undertaken on the scale of the shortage of low skilled workers in big cities in the UK. [32849]

Alun Michael: The Department of Trade and Industry has published a report on Regional Employment and Skills in the Knowledge Economy by Local Futures (URN 05/1328) which looks at regional differences in both the supply and demand for people at all skill levels. This is available in the House of Commons Library and can be obtained from DTI publications on 0845 015 0010 or from the Vote Office.

The main source of information on skill shortages is the Learning and Skills Council's National Employers Skill Survey that in 2003 surveyed 72,000 employers. The survey is updated every other year and 2005 figures will be available shortly. It highlights skill shortages according to occupation (low skilled workers will typically be in elementary occupations) and while not looking at the city level provides information for each of the RDA regions and for the 27 local LSC areas. Other research in this area is being undertaken at the regional level and an example of this is the 'Northern Way' initiative that looks at the eight city regions in the three Northern RDAs http://thenorthernway.co.uk/docs/2005).

Miners' Compensation

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many requests were made by (a) National Union of Miners and (b) National Union of Miners (Yorkshire Area) for a separate claims-handling agreement for miners' compensation between 1997 and 2000. [32313]

Malcolm Wicks [holding answer 28 November 2005]: The National Union of Mineworkers made three requests for a separate claims handling agreement for miners compensation between 1997 and 2000. No such requests were received from the National Union of Mineworkers (Yorkshire Area).

Rogue Dialling

Mr. Binley: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if he will take steps to protect consumers from the telecommunications fraud known as rogue dialling; and if he will make a statement. [33007] Alun Michael: Protection has been put in place to deal with the annoying activity of rogue dialling but it is not simple. Since August 2004 the Independent Committee for the Supervision of Standards of Telephone Information Services (ICSTIS) has operated a prior permission scheme for premium rate diallers. This has been at the least of discouraging rogue dialling and it has greatly reduced the incidence of rogue dialling. The independent regulator for electronic communications, the Office of Communications, is currently consulting on extending this scheme to enable ICSTIS to take action against any rogue dialler irrespective of the telephone number or call charge used. We are increasing the maximum fine for breaching the independent regulator ICSTIS' code of practice from £100,000 to £250,000, in order to deter rogue diallers.

Sectoral Investment

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what sectoral investment opportunities he has identified for United Kingdom businesses in (a) Argentina and (b) Uruguay; and if he will make a statement. [29774]

Ian Pearson: In both countries there are likely to be investment opportunities across all sectors in Argentina some sectors (mining, agriculture, construction) are growing rapidly, although others are still suffering following the economic crisis in 2002.

There are investment opportunities in Uruguay for British firms in a number of sectors including agriculture, tourism, forestry and energy. In addition, state companies operating in various sectors (electricity, fuels, oil refining, telephones, railroads and ports) are seeking consultants to advise on public-private partnerships (PPP). Plans to construct a new airport and modernise the health sector may give rise to a range of opportunities.

Solar Photovoltaics

John Thurso: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what steps he is taking to encourage private sector investment in the UK solar photovoltaics sector. [33283]

Malcolm Wicks: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given to my hon. Friend the Member for Birmingham, Selly Oak (Lynne Jones) on 17 November 2005, Official Report, column 1510W.

John Thurso: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of (a) capital grants, (b) feed in tariffs and (c) other support mechanisms in developing the UK's solar photovoltaics industry. [33284]

Malcolm Wicks: The information is as follows.

(a) The capital grants provided through the Solar PV Programme have contributed to the development of the solar photovoltaics industry in the UK. This includes raising awareness of PV and developing an installer base. The new low carbon buildings programme will continue to fund the installation of solar technologies in household, community and large-scale projects. The new programme will have a budget of £30 million over three years and will start in April 2006 subject to EU State Aids clearance. The microgeneration strategy, to be published April 2006, will look at removing some of the wider barriers currently hindering market development.

(b) and (c) We believe for the UK that it would not be right to set a price for exported electricity. To do so would risk distorting the electricity supply market and would be incompatible with the liberalised arrangements for the UK electricity market and the market for renewable electricity provided by the Renewables Obligation. The framework underpinning our competitive energy markets was established to provide market-based solutions to our energy needs. Intervention by the Government to the extent of setting a price for exported electricity would be an unwarranted intervention that could have adverse effects on the confidence and certainty our liberal framework provides for investors. In addition the current Renewables Obligation Review is looking to simplify the way in which small-scale generators can claim Renewable Obligation Certificates.

Traffic Offences

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many people convicted of traffic offences were subject to an anti-social behaviour order in 2004. [31456]

Paul Goggins: The information requested is not collected centrally by my Department.

Internet Arms Sales

Anne Snelgrove: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if he will make a statement on the regulation of distance-selling of less lethal weapons via the internet. [28502]

Hazel Blears: I have been asked to reply.

The internet is regulated by the application of existing law, which applies equally online and offline. It is an offence to sell seventeen offensive weapons, in addition to flick knives and gravity knives to a person of any age; to market a knife in a way which suggests it is suitable for combat; and to sell a knife to a person under 16. We are raising this to 18 in the Violent Crime Reduction Bill currently before Parliament.

Tasers and incapacitant sprays using CS or PAVA are prohibited weapons and cannot be sold, purchased or possessed without authority from the Secretary of State. Baton guns are also controlled under firearms laws and, depending on their size, can be prohibited weapons.

DEPUTY PRIME MINISTER

Asset Register

Anne Main: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister if he will place in the Library the asset register for his Office for each year since his Office was established. [32466]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Office of the Deputy Prime Minister was established following the Machinery of Government changes on 29 May 2002. Officials in the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister have, for the sake of clarity and consistency, converted the extremely detailed information on assets held on the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister's accounting system for the financial years ending 31 March 2003, 2004 and 2005 into the National Asset Register format. Once the information is collated copies will be made available in the Library of the House.

Council Elections

Mr. Kemp: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister which local authorities in England have requested a move to whole council elections as outlined in the consultation document vibrant local leadership. [27366]

Mr. Woolas: Pursuant to my answer of 7 November 2005, Official Report, column 190w, the seven district councils are Broadland, Eastbourne, Congleton, Swale, Havant, Bristol and South Cambridgeshire. Broadland has made a formal request under s7(4) of the Local Government Act 1972; the other local authorities are in the process of making formal requests as required by the legislation.

Departmental Websites

Charles Hendry: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister if he will take steps to ensure the Department's websites attain the W3C AAA standard of accessibility for people with visual and other disabilities; and if he will set a target date for this standard to be achieved by. [30969]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Office of the Deputy Prime Minister follows the Guidelines for UK Government websites. These indicate that websites should meet Level A of the Web Content Accessibility Guidelines, while identifying certain Priority Two and Three Checkpoints as best practice.

Neither these Guidelines, e-Accessibility communications from the European Union nor advice from the RNIB suggest that Government websites should attain and maintain Level AAA.

The Office of the Deputy Prime Minister's current accessibility policy is therefore that its websites should aim to conform to WAIAA rating where HTML is used. Where possible, we also aim to conform to a number of checkpoints from the Level AAA requirement, such as:

contrast between foreground and background colours (P3 Checkpoint 2.2)

use of access-keys (P3 Checkpoint 9.5)

provision of a site map (P3 Checkpoint 13.3) provision of skip navigation (P3 Checkpoint 13.6)

provision of search facilities (P3 Checkpoint 13.7)

speech-enablement (P3 Checkpoint 14.2)

consistent presentation across all pages (P3 Checkpoint 14.3)

All these checkpoints are met by the main Office of the Deputy Prime Minister's site, www.odpm.gov.uk.

Fire Authorities

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister if he will list the fire authorities that have introduced charging for non-statutory services in the last two years. [33174]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Section 19 of the Fire and Rescue Services Act 2004 provides for the Secretary of State to make an order specifying categories of service for which a Fire and Rescue Authority (FRA) may charge. The first such order (SI 2004/2305) specifies 16 such categories. FRAs do not need any further permission from the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister (ODPM) to charge under these categories. ODPM do not collate information centrally on which FRAs have decided to charge for a specified category of service.

Housing

Jim Cousins: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister how many right-to-buy sales there were (a) in total and (b) as a proportion of available stock by (i) each council and (ii) each social landlord in Tyne and Wear in each year since commencement of the scheme; and what the size of the available stock was in each local authority in each year. [32435]

Yvette Cooper: The following table shows council housing stock and council housing right to buy sales as a total and as a proportion of available stock for the five Tyne and Wear local authorities. This excludes any preserved right to buy in Sunderland after the large scale voluntary transfer in 2000–01 as this information is not held centrally, and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Quarterly returns (P1B) to ODPM from local authorities

Local Government

Mr. Bone: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what would be the length of the period of consultation in regard to changes to the structure of local government in England. [31589]

Mr. Woolas: In undertaking any consultation on local government structures, the Government would have regard to its code of practice on consultation which provides, but for exceptional cases, for a minimum period of 12 weeks. Implementation of any changes would require legislation.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what assessment the Government have made of the (a) transitional and (b) set-up costs of introducing unitary local government. [31894]

Mr. Woolas: Other than in the case of the local government restructuring proposed in the context of referendums on regional assemblies, the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister has not made any assessment of the transitional and set up costs of introducing unitary local government.

Local Government Finance

Mr. Andy Reed: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister if he will make it his policy to use real data rather than modelling to assess the day visitor indicator element of the formula spending share for local authorities; and if he will make a statement. [24041]

Mr. Woolas: Ministers are currently considering the option to update the day visitor indicator for use in the 2006–07 formula spending shares taking into account the representations received during the recent formula grant distribution consultation.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister if he will list the organisations that have seconded staff to the Lyons Inquiry into local government finance. [31783]

Mr. Woolas: The parent organisations of the staff of the Lyons Inquiry comprise the following:

Audit Commission

H M Treasury

New Local Government Network

Office of the Deputy Prime Minister

The Inquiry also has an adviser from Shropshire county council, and I understand that it is currently seeking to recruit additional expertise from local government.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister how many written representations the Lyons inquiry into local government finance has received. [31784]

Mr. Woolas: I understand that the Lyons inquiry has received over 400 written representations.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what estimate he has made of the likely costs to local authorities in England of council tax revaluation. [31827]

Mr. Woolas: The Office of the Deputy Prime Minister has made no estimate of the likely costs of council tax revaluation to local authorities in England.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister how many households in London are in each council tax band. [31829]

Mr. Woolas: The number of dwellings in each council tax band in London, as at 31 March 2005, were:

Band	Dwellings (Thousand)
A	108
B	432
C	853
D	812
E	490
F	245
G	199
H	55
Total	3,194

The data are supplied by the Valuation Office Agency.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister whether the (a) Government and (b) Valuation Office Agency conducted research or analysis on the (i) possible distribution and (ii) number of gainers and losers from the council tax revaluation in England prior to the public announcement of its postponement. [31833]

Mr. Woolas: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 14 November 2005, Official Report, column 1030W.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister if he will list items of expenditure that the valuation tribunal service has incurred on council tax revaluation in (a) England and (b) Wales. [31836]

Mr. Woolas: The valuation tribunal service has not incurred any expenditure on council tax revaluation in England. The remit of the valuation tribunal service does not extend to Wales.

Local Government Pension Scheme

Anne Snelgrove: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister if he will restore the entitlement to the first 12 months pension scheme membership to local government manual workers who began employment before 1991. [31658]

Mr. Woolas: There are no plans to amend the Local Government Pension Scheme Regulations in relation to manual workers whose employment started before the 12 months qualifying condition for joining the scheme was removed. It is open to scheme members to purchase added years membership where appropriate.

Mr. Mudie: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what the average percentage contribution by local authority employees to the Local Government Pension Scheme was in each of the last five years; and what the total employee contributions were in each year. [32459]

Mr. Woolas: The employee contribution rate is set by the Local Government Pension Scheme Regulations 1997. Over the past five years, the rate has been fixed at 6 per cent., with a 5 per cent. contribution rate for those members classed as manual workers prior to March 1998 who can demonstrate continuous membership.

Further information about the total percentage of employee contributions paid into the scheme in each year since 1995–96 can be found at:

http://www.local.odpm.gov.uk/finance/stats/data/table3.pdf

Policies (Financial Report)

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister pursuant to the answer of 31 October 2005, Official Report, column 764W, on policies (financial report), if he will place in the Library copies of the costings carried out on the two documents to which the answer refers. [27104]

Jim Fitzpatrick: I refer the hon. Member to HM Treasury's website:

Public Service Agreements

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister (1) what assessment he has made of the attainability of 2004 public service agreement target number 7; [29890]

(2) what method he will use to measure performance against 2004 public service agreement target number 8, with particular reference to deprived areas; [29937]

(3) what method and which individual indicators he will use to measure overall performance against 2004 public service agreement targets 5 and 6. [29938]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The performance indicators the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister uses to measure progress against all its public service agreement targets are set out in technical notes, which were published at the beginning of 2005. These are available at http://www.odpm.gov.uk/index.asp?id=1122982.

The Office of the Deputy Prime Minister publishes an assessment of progress against these performance indicators in its Annual Report and Autumn Performance reports. The latest assessment published was in the Annual Report for 2004–05 (cmd 6526). The next assessment will be given in the Autumn Performance Report for 2005, due to be published in December 2005.

Smoke Alarms

Paul Rowen: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister if he will issue guidance to fire services on the need for smoke alarms provided to deaf and hard of hearing people to meet the British Standard (BS 5446–3.2005). [31920]

Jim Fitzpatrick: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Hemel Hempstead (Mike Penning) on 14 November 2005, Official Report, column 1046W.

Valuation Office Agency

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what the total cost is of the contract and associated liabilities between the Valuation Office Agency and Cole Layer Trumble. [30280]

Mr. Woolas: Cole Layer Trumble currently assist the Valuation Office Agency with computer modelling and statistical analysis of the AVM. The total spend with Cole Layer Trumble from July 2004 until end October 2005 is £1,868,780. It is estimated any associated liabilities will not exceed £200,000.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister how much the Valuation Office Agency spent on digital cameras and related electronic equipment in the last five years for which figures are available; and how many cameras were purchased in each year. [30695]

Mr. Woolas: This equipment is used across the Valuation Office Agency (VOA) business. In respect of residential property, it is used for external photographs to help valuation officers arrive at fair and accurate valuations. On very rare occasions, for example where a property is in poor condition and this is not obvious from an external photograph alone, the occupier's permission is sought for internal photographs to be taken.

The Valuation Office Agency has spent £438,749.40 (excluding VAT) on digital camera equipment in the last five years, detailed as follows.

	Number purchased	Cost (excluding VAT) (£)
2001–02	150	30,425.90
2002–03	656	202,523.50
2003–04	[1]—	[1]—
2004–05	1,270	196,850.00
2005–06	50	8,950.00

[1] None.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister if he will list the committees and working groups within the Valuation Office Agency that have been involved in the council tax revaluation in (a) Wales and (b) England. [30698]

Mr. Woolas: In respect of both England and Wales a large number of committee meetings and working groups were naturally held in the course of business in preparation for the revaluations.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what arrangements are in place for compensating a property owner if Valuation Office Agency inspectors accidentally damage property. [30700]

Mr. Woolas: The Agency would consider a claim for compensation for any direct costs incurred.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what account the Valuation Office Agency takes of the presence of human or animal remains in making a valuation of a domestic property. [30838]

Mr. Woolas: The proximity of, for example, burial ground might affect value, as might any other feature in the locality.

CABINET OFFICE

Central Office of Information

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster for what reasons the Central Office of Information holds framework agreements with companies allowing contracts to be awarded without prior notification in the Official Journal of the European Union; and what assessment he has made of the cost-effectiveness of this approach. [31904]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The Central Office of Information (COI) sets up framework agreements with companies in a manner fully compliant with the procurement rules of the European Union. The framework agreements are advertised in the Official Journal of the European Journal and are refreshed on a regular basis.

Framework agreements are set up because:

COI's staff are expert in the markets in which they operate and are, therefore, best placed to identify and select the best suppliers, removing the need for replication of expertise across government;

they allow COI to ensure that industry best practice, particularly in relation to competitive terms of business, is built into agreements at the earliest possible stage;

they allow purchasers in the public sector to obtain value for money in their purchasing while being assured that their procurement is compliant with UK and EU legislation;

they save time and money for government purchasers by ensuring that the terms and conditions of individual contracts are robust and follow best practice;

although they save time and money for suppliers because they remove the need to undertake a full credentials presentation for each contract separately, they still enable contestability and competition by requiring appropriate suppliers to pitch for each individual contract awarded under the agreements.

Government Services (Online Access)

Martin Horwood: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what proportion of Government services have been accessible online in each year since 1998. [32778]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The Modernising Government White Paper published in March 1999 proposed a target date of 2008 by which all Government services to the citizen and to business should be available online. My right hon. Friend, the Prime Minister, announced on 30 March 2000 that the target date had been advanced from 2008 to 2005.

Figures for the proportion of Government services accessible online are not available prior to 2000, but for the years up to and including 2004, they are shown in the table.

	Percentage of services reported accessible online
2000	33
2001	51
2002	63
2003	71
2004	76

At the end of 2004 we also reported that 96 per cent. of services are expected to be online by the March 2006, when the public service agreement target expires.

Race Equality Impact Assessments

Keith Vaz: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many Race Equality Impact Assessments his Department completed between (a) April 2004 and March 2005 and (b) April 2005 and November 2005; and how many assessments in each period resulted in a change of policy. [32826]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The Cabinet does not legislate in high volumes.

Nevertheless, all management units in the Department are required to assess their functions and policies annually for their impact on the promotion of race equality, to introduce any necessary amendment and to report the results of their assessments to Human Resources. Units allocate a level of high, medium or low impact to each function and policy and those with a high impact are reviewed annually, medium—bi-annually, and low—every three years. Any new functions or policies are also assessed in advance of being put in place.

The majority of the assessments have been of internal departmental functions and policies. However, units would have assessed the general impact on race equality for any recommendations they might make to Departments on service delivery. It would then be the responsibility of those Departments delivering the service to ensure a comprehensive race equality impact assessment being made prior to any recommendation implementation.

Between April 2004 to March 2005, 102 assessments were undertaken of Cabinet Office functions and policies. Of this total 18 were of high category. As a result of these assessments, 17 changes to functions and policies are being developed or implemented. The Cabinet Office will shortly be publishing a revised Race Equality Scheme which will include details of all assessments over the past three years and actions being taken. Copies will be placed in the Library.

Assessments undertaken between April 2005 and March 2006 will be reported to Human Resources in early 2006 and published later next year.

Sir Christopher Meyer

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster who was responsible for vetting Sir Christopher Meyer's recent book and giving the approval for publication; and if he will make a statement. [29403]

Mr. Jim Murphy: I refer my hon. Friend to the response given to him by my right hon. Friend, the Foreign Secretary, on 28 November 2005, Official Report, column 164W.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Alcohol

Mr. David Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many convictions for the sale of alcohol to persons who are intoxicated have been obtained in the force area of North Wales police in each of the last three years for which figures are available. [22976]

Paul Goggins: In the North Wales police force area, there have been no convictions in years 2001 to 2003 for the offence of licence holders selling or supplying liquor to a drunken person.

Court statistics for 2005 will be available in autumn 2006.

Alcohol-related Violence

Ed Balls: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much his Department has spent to ensure that police officers have the powers and resources needed to deal with alcohol-related violence and disorder in (a) West Yorkshire and (b) Normanton constituency. [31562]

Paul Goggins: We have put significant extra resources into the police service in England and Wales. Expenditure on policing supported by Government grant or spent centrally on services for the police has risen by over 39 per cent. or £3 billion between 2000–01 and 2005–06. West Yorkshire police has received its fair share of the available resources.

Allocation of resources between activities and across the force area are operational matters for the chief constable.

Streamlining administrative licensing processes by the police under the Licensing Act 2003 should lead to a saving of up to £15 million annually. The Act gives the police further powers to tackle alcohol related disorder, for example, by allowing temporary or permanent reductions in trading hours. Through the Violent Crime Reduction Bill we are also introducing further powers for the police to help them tackle the problems of alcohol related crime or disorder.

We have also recently announced provision of £2.5 million to boost a range of operations to crack down on alcohol-related disorder; the sale of alcohol to under-18s; and the closure of problem premises using existing powers and the tough new powers available to the police in the Licensing Act 2003. Of this, £350,000 will be provided for Trading Standards. Ten basic command units (BCU) across West Yorkshire will receive a share of the fund, including £25,000 for Wakefield BCU.

Asylum Seekers

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department which nationality accounted for the highest number of applications for asylum in the last year for which figures are available. [32815]

Mr. McNulty: Information on the top asylum seeking nationalities are available in the annual statistical bulletin Asylum Statistics United Kingdom 2004. Copies of this publication and others relating to general immigration to the UK are available from the Library of the House and from the Home Office Research Development and Statistics Directorate web site at:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/immigration1.html

Aviation and Maritime Security

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) males and (b) females have been (i) charged with and (ii) convicted of offences under sections (A) 9, (B) 10, (C) 11 and (D) 12 of the Aviation and Maritime Security Act 1990 in each year since 1993. [29297]

Paul Goggins: Statistics on the number of persons charged with a crime are not centrally collected.

There are no records of any convictions reported via the Home Office Court Proceedings database for offences under sections, 9, 10, 11 and 12 of the Aviation and Maritime Security Act 1990 in England and Wales, 1993 to 2004.

Child Pornography

Judy Mallaber: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what further steps he intends to take to ensure that credit card companies take action to prevent the cards issued by them being used to purchase child pornography on the internet; [21385]

(2) what assessment he has made of the steps that have been taken by credit card companies to combat the purchasing of child pornography on the internet. [21386]

Paul Goggins: I set out on 10 January 2005, Official Report, column 316W the various steps which have already been taken by payment card companies in conjunction with Government, law enforcement, and the children's charities to combat the purchase of child abuse images on line.

The Government continues to assess the impact of these initiatives in discussion with a wide range of organisations including payment associations.

With regard to the specific issue of whether an individual who uses a payment card to purchase images of child abuse could have the card involved in the purchase of images removed from them by the issuing card company. I understand that the Department for Constitutional Affairs is considering how changes to Schedule three of the Data Protection Act to enable payment card companies to legitimately hold and process sensitive data concerning an individual and their convictions would work in practice. Any such change would provide card issuers with the ability to remove an individual's card once they have been advised of the commission of an offence.

Correspondence

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when he will reply to the letters from the hon. Member for Eastbourne of 28 September 2004, 9 May 2005, 28 June 2005 and 15 August 2005 regarding his constituents Mr. and Mrs. Tanner of Percival Crescent, Eastbourne. [29763]

Andy Burnham: The chief executive of the United Kingdom Passport Service, wrote to the hon. Member on 23 November 2005.

Clare Short: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when the Minister for Immigration will reply to the letter of 9 August from the hon. Member for Birmingham, Ladywood, (acknowledged 11 August 2005, reference B18797/5), Home Office reference E1010147. [32337]

Mr. McNulty: The Immigration and Nationality Directorate wrote to my right hon. Friend on 25 November.

Clare Short: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when the Minister for Immigration will reply to the letter of 20 September from the hon. Member for Birmingham, Ladywood, Home Office reference H1047147, regarding Mr. Tasooji. [32338]

Mr. McNulty: The Immigration and Nationality Directorate (IND) replied to my right hon. Friend on 25 November.

Clare Short: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when he will reply to the letter of 20 September from the right hon. Member for Birmingham, Ladywood, on F. Scott, his Department's reference 51155584, acknowledgement reference B22357/5. [32464]

Mr. McNulty: The Immigration and Nationality Directorate (IND) wrote to my right hon. Friend on 25 November.

Criminal Records Bureau

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what requirements there are for further Criminal Records Bureau checks for individuals providing private tuition to young people where the tutor is not a teacher and holds an enhanced disclosure certificate. [30782]

Andy Burnham: The Criminal Records Bureau does not impose any requirement on individuals to obtain a disclosure. The decision whether to obtain a disclosure for a specific eligible position rests solely with the recruiter, bearing in mind any existing legal obligations which may govern their employment sector.

Tutors working for private individuals, such as parents, are not generally eligible for enhanced disclosure because parents are not entitled to ask exempted questions under the Rehabilitation of Offenders Act 1974 (Exceptions) Order 1975. An individual cannot at present obtain a disclosure without an exempted question being asked.

However, if tutoring is carried out in a formalised environment, such as a school, the position is likely to be eligible for disclosure by virtue of being in a "regulated position" under the terms of the Criminal Justice and Court Services Act 2000 (CJCSA). Nevertheless the CRB imposes no requirement on such individuals to obtain disclosures, although other guidelines may make the work eligible for checks.

Mr. Pelling: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what action is being taken to deal with the backlog in Criminal Records Bureau checks. [26896]

Andy Burnham: There is no backlog of checks in the Criminal Records Bureau (CRB). The Bureau's performance for Standard Disclosures has consistently exceeded the target of 93 per cent. issued within two weeks because the processing of a Standard Disclosure is entirely within the direct control of the CRB.

However, there are checks outstanding in a small number of police forces and this has led to a drop in the performance for Enhanced Disclosures overall and specifically for any application requiring a check by one of those forces.

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment his Department has made of the accuracy of data held by the Criminal Records Bureau; and if he will make a statement. [31294]

Andy Burnham: The Criminal Records Bureau (CRB) processes but does not hold information. The CRB accesses a number of sources of information to provide its disclosure service, including criminal record information held on the Police National Computer (PNC).

The police service is responsible for the accuracy of information recorded on the PNC. My Department commissioned some research which showed that conviction data was entirely accurate in the majority of cases. Additionally, a Code of Practice was published in January 2005 which set national targets for the timely entry of conviction data onto the PNC. Performance is monitored by Her Majesty's Inspectorate of Constabulary.

In addition to the PNC, the CRB accesses information systems operated by other Government Departments. Those Departments are responsible for the accuracy of their respective systems.

Deportation

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment he has made of the compatibility of his proposed deportation policy with Article 3 of the European Convention on Human Rights. [31171]

Mr. McNulty: As we have made clear on a number of occasions deportations will only take place if the removal is consistent with our international obligations.

Fireworks Offences

Mr. Anthony Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many illegal fireworks were seized in (a) Norfolk, (b) the East of England, (c) England and (d) England and Wales in each of the last five years for which figures are available. [28021]
